Despite Proposed MWRA Increase

Sheets: No Sewer, Water Rate Hike

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Quincy will see no increase in its Massachusetts Water Resources Authority water and sewer rates for the new fiscal year, according to Mayor James Sheets.

Sheets said this week that although the MWRA is calling for a combined water-sewer increase of 2.2 percent for the city, ratepayers' bills will not go up.

"We were in a position where if the increase were less than, say, somewhere between 2.3 and 2.5 percent, there would be no increase," said the mayor. "So we will have no water or sewer rate increase for the ratepayers this (fiscal) year."

Fiscal Year 1997 took effect on Monday.

Sheets said the city will be able to offset the proposed 2.2 MWRA increase for two reasons: a steady decline in ratepayer delinquency, which has lent additional revenue to the city's fiscal picture, as well as a decrease in water usage over the last 18 months.

He added that this is the third year in a row there will be no sewer rate increase and the second year in the last three there will be no hike in the water rate.

Sheets noted that the city also will have a surplus about $400,000 to spend in this year's budget as a result of the rates called for by the MWRA. He explained that the city set aside approximately $400,000 more than what is needed to pay the authority in its FY97 municipal budget because the figure was based on previous MWRA projects.

The excess money now can be appropriated for whatever purpose the city chooses, he said.

Last week, the MWRA Board of Directors approved a $365.7 million FY97 expense budget that includes an average increase of 4.4 percent in combined water and wholesale charges to its 61 customer communities, twice the amount of the recommended Quincy increase.

The MWRA budget calls for a Quincy water payment of $2,830,133--down $192,575 from last year's figure of $3,022,708--and a sewer payment of $10,703,512, an increase of $478,996 over the FY96 amount of $10,224,516. The combined FY97 figures total $13,533,645, a 2.2 percent hike over the $13,247,224 total.

MWRA Executive Director Douglas MacDonald said the authority has been working as hard as possible to keep rates down.

"With careful budgeting practices and an eye

New Clothing Store Coming To Downtown

A new discount women's and children's clothing store will open at the site of the former Cummings women's clothing store in Quincy Center sometime next month.

Expose, currently located in Allston and an affiliate of the East Boston-based chain Tello's--which owns a half-dozen area stores--is expected to move to the downtown building at 1479 Hancock St. "in mid- to late August," according to owner Arnold Parseghian of Wayland.

"I'm looking forward to it, very much so," he said. "My staff is, too. They're all coming with me."

Parseghian, 53, noted that he has been in the clothing business since he was 10 years old and at his Allston location for about five years. He said he was attracted to the location, which he learned about from his broker, because he felt his establishment could fill a need there and because of the area foot traffic generated by exist-

Snug Harbor Apartment To Become Teen Center

The Quincy Housing Authority is planning to convert a four-bedroom apartment in one of its Snug Harbor facilities into a new teen center for the children of families who live under the authority's jurisdiction.

QHA Executive Director John "Jake" Comer said the teen center, which will mainly provide an opportunity for arts and crafts activities, will be located in Apartment 4 of the Riverview Family Development at 78 Doane St.

The center will replace a previous, similar operation at 9 Bicknell St. in Germantown which has been converted to office space for the QHA's modernization department. The new center, like the previous one, will be operated by the QHA's tenant organization, the Harborview Residents Committee.

"It's certainly going to be a good thing," said Comer. "It will keep the kids off the streets, and help the parents to monitor them. The kids will do arts and crafts and things like that."

He also stressed that the center is only open to the children of the 619 families who live at QHA facilities.

"I've been hearing rumors that people think it will be open to the whole city, and it won't be," said Comer, who estimated that the number of eligible children falls between 1,200 and 1,500.

Comer said the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) recently approved the conversion at Riverview, which is a federal property. The only cost will be absorbed by the QHA, he added, which simply will not charge for the apartment.

Comer said he hopes the center can be opened within the next two weeks.

City To Receive $2.9M From Transportation Bill

The city will receive $2,940,105 from a $975 million Transportation Bond Bill recently adopted by the Massachusetts Legislature.

The announcement was made by Quincy's State House delegation, Sen. Michael Morrissey and Reps. Ronald Mariano, Michael Belloti and Stephen Tobin.

Among the highlights of the initiative are a $300 million appropriation to be dispersed to cities and towns in so-called Chapter 90 monies for local projects designed to improve public safety, access and convenience.

Other notable sections of the bill authorize the state Executive Office of Transportation and Construction to meet its funding requirements for projects being undertaken in conjunction with the federal government.

Sheets Says After Mayors' Conference:

Cleveland Good Example For Downtown District

Cleveland, Ohio, has the type of active downtown area that Quincy should have, according to Mayor James Sheets.

The mayor made his comments Monday after he spent five days in Cleveland last week for the U.S. Conference of Mayors, which meets biannually for summer and winter sessions. More than 300 mayors from across the country were in attendance.

Asked if Cleveland is a good example for Quincy to follow in terms of downtown revitalization, Sheets replied, "There's no question, in certain areas they are."

He added that 20 years ago, Cleveland was "the butt of many jokes. But that city has just been turned around. It has a very clean, very safe, very active downtown."

Sheets cited the proximity of the playing facilities of both Major League Baseball's Cleveland Indians and the National Basketball Association's Cleveland Cavaliers to the downtown area, as well as a renovated theatre district, as being among the keys to the city's success. A low percentage of residential buildings in Cleveland's downtown also contributes to its success, he said.

He also noted that a new area stadium is planned for the National Football League's Cleveland Browns.

"It was an exceptionally good conference," Sheets said of his time in Cleveland. "I had the opportunity to interact with other mayors and learn how other cities, like Cleveland, use their city, state and federal funds for city projects. And it reinforced a lot of my own thinking about our downtown."

Health Department Water Sampling Program Underway

The Quincy Health Department has begun its summer water sampling program.

Water samples will be collected every Tuesday until Sept. 3 at 11 beaches, one to two hours before high tide. Results will be analyzed for fecal coliform counts by a certified private laboratory, and will be made available to the media throughout the summer months.

The Metropolitan District Commission (MDC) will collect and analyze water samples at four locations along Wollaston Beach. The samples will be obtained each Wednesday, and will be reported to beach managers and the Quincy Health Department by Friday of each week.

Quincy will utilize a standard of 200 or greater fecal coliform colonies as an indication of potential health risk. Beaches with counts of 200 or greater will be resampled and posted with signs which read: "Warning: Beach Unacceptable For Swimming per order of Quincy Health Department."

Such beaches are considered unsafe for swimming and the signs will remain in place until water samples show fecal coliform counts below 200.

If a period of rainfall has occurred after the water samples were taken on Tuesdays, the Health Department stresses it is important that people understand that such samples may not represent an accurate reflection of the water quality which will be reported on Fridays. Sewerage can be discharged into the harbor from pipes and drains that contain overflow wastewater in combination with rainwater after 3/4 of an inch of rainfall or greater occurs in a given day. The department recommends that people refrain from swimming or bathing for a period of 48 hours after a rainfall to allow for the natural flushing action of the tides to dilute and cleanse the water.

The city has been involved in a Bathing Water Quality Improvement Program over the past several years.

A brochure on the Bathing Beach Water Sampling Program will once again be available from the Quincy Health Department. For more information, call 376-1278.

"The landlord and the city have been extremely helpful," he said. "And I like a lot of the things the city is doing about improving and cleaning up the area."

Parseghian added that Quincy 2000, the city's public-private planning corporation, will have a hand in making various renovations and improvements to the outside of the building.

Parseghian declined comment on the terms of his lease with Walcott Corp. of Boston, which owns the Cummings building.

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT BURNS

A burn is the kind of medical emergency you need to think about well before it happens. What type of treatment should you use at once? When is a burn serious enough to require professional care? The first stop should be to cool the burned area, with cold water or an ice pack. This will relieve the pain as well as stop the transmitted heat from continuing to harm the skin. Wash the burn gently with soap and water, then apply antibiotic cream (not butter or petroleum jelly) to prevent infection and cover with a sterile gauze dressing. Aspirin or ibuprofen may help relieve pain and inflammation. Self-treatment is usually acceptable for first-degree burns (red skin) and some second-degree burns (red, blistered skin). All third-degree burns (white or blackened skin) should receive emergency professional care, even though such burns may not feel painful.

P.S. Protect a burned area form exposure to sun for several months, to avoid permanently discoloring freshly healed skin.

If you have been severely burned, go to a hospital immediately. For more minor burns, following these instructions should be adequate, but don't hesitate to call us if you have questions. At COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, located at 700 Congress St., in Quincy, we specialize in treating heart problems, hypertension and cholesterol. Dr. Lisa Antonelli and I specialize in heart disease. I am also board certified in cardiology and internal medicine. Call 472-2550, office ours by appointment. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals.

July 4th Day Of Irony

July 4th, you might say, is a day of irony in American history.

America was born on July 4th and the two men who played major roles in that historic event also died on July 4th--50 years later.

Thursday marks the 220th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence and the 170th anniversary of the deaths of its two main architects--Thomas Jefferson and our own, John Adams.

ADAMS

Adams, like Jefferson, was a super patriot.

And he certainly was a better patriot than he was a prognosticator. He predicted July 2nd--not July 4th--would be celebrated down through the year's as America's birthdate.

Adams made that somewhat erroneous prediction in a letter to Abigail Adams July 2, 1776. In the letter sent from Philadelphia to Abigail here in Quincy, he declared:

"The second day of July, 1776 will be the most memorable epoch in the history of America."

The man who would become second President thought this because the Declaration of Independence was adopted by 12 states on July 2. But, it wasn't signed by anyone until July 4th.

And, only two of the 55 signers actually affixed their signatures on July 4th. They were Quincy's John Hancock, who as President of the Second Continental Congress, was the first to sign, and Charles Thomson.

HANCOCK

Most of the others signed the precious document on Aug. 2. But six signed after that. And, Thomas McKean, of Delaware didn't get around to it until five years later.

Jefferson and Hancock usually get top billing in the history books when it comes to the Declaration of Independence. Jefferson as its author and Hancock as its first signer. Hancock's signature--bold and with a fancy flourish so "King George III can see it without his spectacles"--probably is the most famous autograph in history.

But Adams played a key, if not as glamourous a role in putting the Declaration together.

Jefferson acknowledged that when he praised Adams " . . . the most efficient agent in procuring a public Declaration of Independence."

Ironically, both Jefferson and Adams died on July 4, 1826--the 50th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence.

Adams collapsed here in Quincy in a wing chair in his second floor study in the Adams Mansion on Adams St.--the home of four generations of the illustrious Adams family and the summer White House of two presidents.

Adams and Jefferson had had a falling out but reconciled in later years through the efforts of Abigail as a peacemaker.

Among Adams' last words as he lay dying were, "Jefferson survives."

He thought Jefferson had outlived him. But actually, Jefferson had died earlier that same day at Monticello, his home in Virginia.

He was 83.

News didn't travel very fast in those days before radio and television. There were no such things as instant news bulletins.

Adams was just three months and 15 days from his 91st birthday. He survived Abigail, his wife of 54 years, by eight years.

He had lived to see his son, John Quincy Adams become the sixth President in 1825. But Abigail, the only woman ever to be the wife of one U.S. President and the mother of a second, never knew the second honor.

ABIGAIL

Four days before he died, John Adams was asked to give a holiday toast to his fellow Quincy residents. The old man replied:

"I will give you independence forever."

Asked if he would add to that, he declared: "Not a syllable."

"Independence forever"--those words are to cherish and remember.

By the way, if you've never been to the Adams Mansion, you're missing a visitor's treat.

The Mansion is under the National Parks Services. The late Wilhelmina Harris as superintendent, gave the Old House her personal loving care. Present Supt. Marianne Peak has carried on that tradition.

They have kept the house in a "lived in appearance."

Scenes From Yesterday

7th Grader: Physical Education Classes Should Not Be Eliminated

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I am writing in concern to the proposition to eliminate physical education classes in the state of Massachusetts, as an attendant of the Quincy Public School system.

I'm in the seventh grade at Sterling Middle School, and it is my opinion--as well as the opinion of many others--that the education received from participating in physical education classes will help students not just throughout years of schooling, but as we succeed through life as well. Physical education teaches students about responsibility, sportsmanship, ways to keep in shape, good hygiene, respect, mentoring, ways to resolve problems, and most importantly, good and useful ways to spend our spare time.

As I'm sure you know, the reasons I've listed above help build good character in a student, which is especially needed today with the racial tension and other problems presented to help build a better world and environment of living and growing.

All the reasons I've already given my opinion on are only half the reason to keep physical education classes. The other half are the people giving out this useful information, our mentors, the teachers. The people who gave up at least four years of their lives and their money to dedicate the rest of their lives to teach others, whether it be children or adults, how to make their lives better. Many of these teachers give up their own spare time to have faculty dances that allow us to have a good time and keep us off the streets, have conversations with us about our problems, and give us advice to make our lives better.

These teachers fight to protect the rights of students. They all start out as new teachers, but by the time a student or teacher moves on, the teacher ends up being a mentor and a friend. The physical education staff give the students someone to look up to, and to try to be like.

The bottom line is they give their lives, time and money, but we can't give them 80 minutes a day. I don't think that's right. Physical education classes give students something to look forward to, and a reason to work hard in our academic classes.

Wire Story About AFDC Caseload 'Has No Merit'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

A widely-circulated wire service story recently incorrectly alleged the decline in the Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) caseload was due to the fact that recipients are merely being shifted to the federal Supplement Security Income (SSI) program for the disabled.

This unfounded claim has absolutely no merit.

During a five-year period cited in the report, approximately 300,000 AFDC cases have closed in Massachusetts. Only about 700, fewer than 3 percent, were closed because the recipient moved to SSI.

Compared to 1991, there are currently 42,000 fewer, not more, Massachusetts residents relying on the state and federal welfare programs mentioned in the article.

While Massachusetts does indeed have contracts to move people with disabilities off the state rolls and onto SSI, it is not AFDC recipients who are being converted, but recipients of Emergency Aid to the Elderly, Disabled and Children (EAEDC), which is a program intended to help people with short-term disabilities.

Let there be no mistake that the SSI caseload has skyrocketed across the entire country. If the Weld-Cellucci Administration could receive permission for us to oversee the SSI program in Massachusetts, rest assured there would be fair yet dramatic cost-saving measures in a federal program known for its issuance of "crazy checks."

There is a small segment that is determined to see welfare reform in Massachusetts. Published reports such as the recent wire service story give those pessimists false hopes. Welfare reform in Massachusetts is traveling down the road to success. Since it took 60 years to get us in the mess we're in, it will take some time to stem the tide. Massachusetts, however, is headed in the right direction.

Grossman's Opens Granite St. Store

July 4 - 10

By PAUL HAROLD

The Grossman Companies opened the largest store in its 41-store chain this week at 100 Granite St.

The fully air-conditioned store replaced the former rambling Grossman's facility that consisted of a number of buildings on both sides of Granite St.

The new store was designed by Everett Grossman, vice president in charge of engineering. All employees of the old Quincy store were transferred to the new building with the addition of new employees.

16-YEAR-OLD IN BID FOR GOVERNOR'S COUNCIL

Sixteen-year-old Louis Trout of Whitwell St. was attempting to take advantage of a loophole in the law by collecting signatures to challenge incumbent Patrick "Sonny" McDonough for the Governor's Council.

He was among a handful of teen "candidates," including Leonard Tagg of Weymouth who was attempting to file as a candidate for state representative. Secretary of State Kevin White announced his intention his intention to close the loophole allowing for candidate to run for office, despite the fact they were too young to vote.

Trout was running as an independent to abolish the Governor's Council.

LOCAL INCINERATOR AMENDMENT REJECTED

By a vote of 43-10, the House of Representatives rejected an amendment offered by Rep. James McIntyre that would require City Council approval on legislation allowing for the city to operate an incinerator at Hardwick's Quarry. The bill was sent to Gov. Peabody for his signature.

McIntyre argued that the legislation would impose a zoning change on the city and thus needed local approval.

Arts In The Parks Second Season To Begin July 9

The Quincy Park and Recreation Departments, under the direction of Mayor James Sheets, will sponsor the second annual Arts in the Parks Program scheduled to begin July 9.

Six evenings of musical entertainment for the entire family will be held Tuesday nights throughout the summer at parks in each of the city's six wards. The program enjoyed a successful inaugural season last year under the leadership of City Councillor Michael Cheney.

Each show will begin at 6 p.m. and last until about 8:30 p.m. In the event of a cancellation due to inclement weather, the program will be held on the Thursday of the same week.

The schedule includes: July 9, LaBreque Field in Houghs Neck; July 16, Fore River Field in Quincy Point; July 23, Bishop Field in Montclair; July 30, Kincaide Park in Southwest Quincy; Aug. 6, Beechwood Knoll School in Wollaston; Aug. 13, Wendall Moses Playground in Squantum.

Returning acts will include the Riverside Theatre Works, a 15-member ensemble of teenagers and the Alumni Band of Quincy, which plays Big Band, jazz and pop music. Among the new acts will be the Barbecue Brass, which combines the original arrangements of Big Band tunes with classic jazz and Dixieland.

"This year's show will offer a variety of different acts, yet the common denominator is that each of these groups will get the audience tapping their feet and clapping their hands," said Peter Kenney, chairman of the Quincy Park and Recreation Board. "I encouraged people of all ages to see, at least once, this fabulous show. The City of Quincy has once again organized an entertaining evening of free family fun."

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements, the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit photos with their announcements, and when submitting their wedding photo, to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries, beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

QHS Science Students Recognized By Top Schools

A group of high-achieving science students from Quincy High School has been recognized by some of the nation's finest institutions for higher learning.

The seniors have actively participated in a wide-variety of science courses that have been offered by the high school over the past four years. They are planning to pursue careers in science as they move on to college.

Enrollment offers have been extended from schools such as Harvard University, Tufts, Wellesley, M.I.T., Boston University, Brown University, Boston College, Colgate, Smith and Colby.

Seniors displaying an interest in the aforementioned schools include: Sejal Patel (M.I.T./Harvard), Marina Cramer (Wellesley), James Donnelly (Colby), Hubert Lam (Colgate), Kristin Fluhr (Brown), Sally Lai (Boston College), Maryann Ashworth (Smith), Steven Crosby (Boston University), Jennifer Cullen (Boston University), Kristin Priscella (Harvard), Jenny Weng (Tufts), Paul Sam (Boston College), and Christine Neamtu (Wellesley).

The seniors worked hard, taking multiple science courses each year. They plan to study science in college and may become engineers, doctors, nurses, pharmacists or explore other opportunities in the vat and growing field.

The science department at Quincy High School has helped develop the students' interest in science. The department has opened doors for many top seniors and has encouraged involvement.

For example, many of these young scientists have taken two biology courses, two chemistry courses, or a course in physics. Some have chosen to experiment in each subject and thus, gain a broad perspective into the field.

In addition, extra activities were introduced. The U.S. First Robotics project created an exciting opportunity for hopeful scientists and engineers. Furthermore, a weather station has been installed t the high school and will allow students to be introduced to the study of meteorology.

The department has expanded to cover a wide range of topics and appeal to a variety of interests.

'Waldo's' A Winner

Atty. George Burke of Quincy recently awarded four University of Massachusetts scholarships to students who attended high school in Quincy.

Students receiving scholarships included: Christine Amate, 42 Joan Drive, Quincy; Nicole Foti, 100 Nightingale Ave., Quincy; Margaret Peatridge, 45 Storey St., South Boston and Lisa Renzi, 791 Sea St., Quincy.

Burke, a UMass alumnus, annually awards the scholarships in recognition of the years he served on the City Council. To date, he has awarded $22,000 in scholarships.

For his generosity, Burke received a "thank you" letter from City Council President Peter Kolson that states:

"On behalf of the members of the Quincy City Council, sincere thanks to the George G. Burke Foundation for the scholarship money for Quincy students to attend UMass.

"Thank you for the confidence you continue to show in the City of Quincy and its sons and daughters. These students are indeed fortunate to receive this financial assistance, and you are to be congratulated for the part you play in helping young adults further their education.

"I am very pleased to convey the gratitude of the Quincy City Council for your kindness and outstanding generosity."

Megan Davis Top Winner In Legion Flag Essay Contest

Megan Davis of the Atherton Hough School was the top winner in the recent annual Flag Essay Contest sponsored by the Houghs Neck American Legion Post.

The theme of the contest, which involves fifth graders from the Atherton Hough, Merrymount and Snug Harbor schools, was "Stand Up For Old Glory." The other winners were Julia McGunigle of Merrymount and Shawn Munchbach of Snug Harbor.

All three winners won $25 for their efforts. In addition, Megan won a plaque and the Traveling Trophy awarded for the best essay from the three schools will remain at Atherton Hough until June of next year.

Megan's Essay Reads As Follows:

"The third oldest of the National Standards of the world is the United States flag. The flag was first flown fron Fort Stanwix on Aug. 3, 1777. It was first under fire in the battle of Oriskany on Aug. 6, 1777. When the flag was first made, they decided that it should have stars and stripes for each colony, making 13 stars. There were only 13 put on at that time as there were only 13 colonies.

"The colors of the flag have a meaning. Red is for valor, zeal and fervency. White is for hope, purity, cleanliness of life and rectitude to conduct. The blue, the color of heaven, is for reverence of God, loyalty, sincerity, justice and truth.

"The name 'Old Glory' was given to the national flag on Aug. 10, 1831, by Capt. William Diver of the brigg Charles Dogget.

"I feel the flag means you are proud to be an American! Let the world know how proud you are by standing up for 'Old Glory.' We should all be very grateful for all the men and women who fought in the wars, so we can all enjoy our freedom. I think everyone should always be proud of the flag! It is a message to the world that we are one nation and proud of it. It also shows how grateful we are to the soldiers who fought in the many wars. I'm so glad that I live in the United States."

Julia's Essay Reads:

"When you hear the name 'Old Glory,' what do you think of? I think of honor, hope, and bravery. I am honored to be an American, because if our ancestors had not fought we may still be controlled by England. I think of hope, because our country believed in freedon and nothing else. Our ancestors proved to be brave by fighting, even if there was no chance of winning, because they believed in their rights.

"Did you know that each star represents a state in the United States? The red stripes symbolize the mother country England. The white stripes symbolize liberty. The reason you never see the same color side by side is because this means we separated from England.

"Each day in school when you pledge allegiance, do you really think of its true meaning? When you pledge, you are saying: I am an American citizen. I will obey the rules of my country. I will honor and respect America. In the words of John F. Kennedy, 'Ask not what your country can do for you, ask what you can do for your country.' As an American citizen, I clean my community, take part in Kids Vote, listen to the news, make sure I am heard and that I will always be seen.

"We have rights too, though. You have the right to be heard and respected. That is we have government. Government will help us to be heard and seen and protect our laws and rights. If we did not have government, we would have a lot of problems.

"I am very proud of being a citizen, and you should be, too."

Shawn's Essay Reads:

"The flag we stand up for and fight for is part of our country. The people who fought and died, and the people who fought and lived deserve a great deal of respect. The long months and years of war are hard on families of soldiers and sailors who are serving our country. The sleepless nights are terrible for these families, but even harder on the people who fought for our flag and fought to keep our country free.

"We should stand up for Old Glory because of the sacrifices of the people who fought and left their loving homes and sometimes never came back. When they raise the red, white and blue colors of our flag, we should stand up and salute it. We should give thanks for the people who gave us our freedom."

ASK YOUR LAWYER

by Kevin F. O'Donnell
ATTORNEY AT LAW

IT'S NOT OVER UNTIL . . .

Those who win their personal injury suits by virtue of a jury's verdict or a judge's decision should not be so quick to celebrate. It may be that the losing party wastes little time in making a motion for a new trial, based on the assertion that the trial was unfair due to legal errors that prejudiced its case. In cases involving jury verdicts, the losing party may make a motion for a judgment notwithstanding the verdict. This motion argues that the facts do not support the jury's verdict. The losing side may also appeal and thereby attempt to bring the case before a higher court. It may also happen that the judge may reduce the damages awarded to the plaintiff in the belief that they are too high. For that matter, the judge may increase the damages. Either way, either side may appeal the amount of the damage award.

HINT: Most negligence trials are heard by a jury.

In my law practice, I specialize in personal injury cases. You can depend on my extensive trial experience and my determination to faithfully serve you. Ayers Presents Atlantic Students With Commendations

The students' fundraising project netted $1,000, which will be directed to the Juvenile Diabetes Research Fund. Ayers praised the students for their month-long fundraising and commitment to such a worthy cause.

Also receiving commendations were Laura Bogan, principal; Linda Green, parent coordinator; Michael Curtin, teacher coordinator and Carol Steeves, whose class raised $160 more than all other classes participating in the fundraiser.

"It is because of unselfish efforts by these hard working students who weren't afraid to conquer a challenge that this significant amount was raised," said Ayers. "As ward councillor, I am extremely proud of these students and the school. This project focuses on what great kids we have in our city and the contribution they make toward keeping Quincy a city in which we are proud to live."

Attic, Whole House Fans Cheaper Coolers

Now that the "dog days" of summer are here, many home owners are relying heavily on the ability of their air conditioners to beat the heat.

But air conditioning isn't the only way to make your home more liveable, according to Mary E. Dawson, president of the South Shore Association of Realtors.

Did you know that a whole house or attic fan can help keep your home quite comfortable at a fraction of the cost of central air conditioning? In fact, attic fans are enjoying a revival as consumers attempt to keep their energy costs down.

How does whole-house ventilation translate into whole-house cooling?

"The first step is to install a large three- or four-bladed fan with a diameter of 20 to 36 inches in the attic floor," Dawson says. "You'll also want to make certain that this fan is in a central part of the house."

The fan draws air from outside when a few windows are opened on the first and second floors. Whole house fans installed in a hallway ceiling or attic can move 3,000 to 6,000 cubic feet of air per minute. The cooler outside air is drawn up into the attic where it replaces hot attic air which is then pushed through attic vents. For maximum efficiency, fans can be wired to automatically turn off when your air conditioner is in use.

The amount of air coming through the house depends, of course, on the number of open windows. Opening additional windows allows more air through the house. However, if you keep only a few windows open, air will move faster and create a pleasant breeze-like effect.

When having a whole house fan installed, be sure to ask two important questions: (1) what size fan should be used and (2) what type of exhaust ventilation is needed. It's a good idea to work with a local dealer who will be able to advise you on fan size and exhaust ventilation for your home's dimensions.

"Using fans can help you keep cool this summer, especially if the outdoor temperature is under 85 degrees Fahrenheit," Dawson says.

"We've learned to rely on air conditioning both at home and in the office," she adds. "We may not have a choice at the office because of all the heat generated by such essentials as computers and the need for a controlled climate. However, for consumers looking to save money on their energy bills at home, a fan may be a pleasant alternative."

But when all else fails, remember that the really hot days can't last forever, and autumn is just around the corner.

The South Shore Association of Realtors is one of more than 1,800 local boards and associations of Realtors nationwide that comprise the National Association of Realtors. As the nation's largest trade association, NAR is "The Voice for Real Estate."

Robinson's Birdie In Sudden Death Gives Team Broom Classic

The team of Don Smith, Dave Robinson, Rick Radzik and Joe Boyd won the recent 1996 Broom Classic on the third sudden death hole as Robinson sank the winning birdie putt.

The winning putt lifted the Smith team over the runner-up foursome of Al Bortolotti, Jay Sarson, Don Garner and Roger Conby, who had finished tied in regulation with a 10-under score of 60.

The champions got stellar play from Smith (celebrating his 45th birthday) and overall good putting from the team. Radzik made some timely putts, but the big putt was Smith's, who sank a 20-foot birdie on the 18th hole that put his team in a first-place tie.

Boyd made another big shot, sinking a wedge on the par 4, 14th hole for an eagle. The shot jump-started Smith's team, which was one over par after four holes.

Once again, the tournament was close, with 12 teams finishing within four shots of each other at day's end. The team of Paul Nestor, Bob Doyle, Bob Fisher and Paul Preziosi finished third at 62 and five teams tied for fourth at 63.

Closest to the pin winners were Roger Conboy, Mike Donoghue, Bob Fisher, Al Nogler, Bob Doyle and Bob Kilday. Longest putt went to Sam Abraham and longest drive to John McKay.

South Shore YMCA Golf Classic Raises $14,000

The South Shore YMCA recently held a Golf Classic and Raffle at the Marshfield Country Club and raised $14,000 for its Annual Support Campaign, a financial assistance program for families who otherwise could not participate in the YMCA's camps and youth programs.

A total of 120 people participated in the event and attended the dinner, including YMCA President Ralph Yohe, Development Director June Blair, Executive Director Mary Moore, Capital Campaign Chairman John Sheskey, YMCA past Chairman of the Board and current board member Paul Hurley and YMCA Board of Directors Chairman Bill Jackson.

There were no winners in the hole-in-one prizes, which included a 1996 Buick Regal donated by South Shore Buick and round-trip air transportation for two to Paris donated by American Airlines. The tickets to Paris were auctioned off at the dinner for $1,200 to Hingham resident Anne Morrison, wife of Sheskey. YMCA member Scott Fithian, a resident of Hull, won the raffle grand prize drawing of $5,000.

Golf Classic sponsors were acknowledged at a speech during the dinner.

"One day's effort is going to take at least 60 kids off the street for two weeks and send them to camp," said Hurley, who served as the event's emcee. "No event takes place and no money can be raised without good sponsors who give back to the community. Their success makes it our success."

The Golf Classic and raffle event were sponsored by FleetBank of Massachusetts, Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Co., South Weymouth Savings Bank and the Vulcan Company. Other supporters included Arbella Insurance Co., American Airlines, Johnson & Johnson Professional, Inc., Bank of Boston and Ocean Spray.

Basketball Camps At North Quincy High

The Quincy Recreation Department will conduct boys' and girls' basketball camps this summer at the North Quincy High School gym.

The boys' camp will be held from July 8-12 for boys age 9-16. Cost is $32. The camp will be run by Brian Buckley, Suffolk University assistant coach.

The girls' camp will be held from July 22-26 for girls age 10-15. Cost is $32. The camp will be under the direction of Paul Bregoli, former North Quincy head coach.

A complete series of drills will emphasize fundamentals of passing, shooting, rebounding and defense, as well as team concepts such as the fast break. Scrimmage games will be conducted with instructors pointing out proper techniques.

Registration may be completed at the Recreation Office, 100 Southern Artery from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Registration is taken on a first come, first serve basis. For more information, call 376-1-FUN.

Six North Quincy Athletes Qualify For Bay State Games

In the Scholastic Boys Division, Finn qualified in the javelin and Wells made it in the shotput. For Scholastic Girls, Quilty (shotput and discus) and Bertone (discus and javelin) qualified. Pineo and Roche, her coach, qualified in shotput and Roche also made it in discus in the Open Division.

Qualifiers had to place in the top three in their event at the Regional Qualifies. There are four regionals (Metro, Southeast/Coastal, Northeast and Central/West), creating a field of 12 qualifiers in each event for the finals. The top six finishers in the finals receive Bay State Games jackets. The finals will be held at MIT on July 12-13.

Triple A

Kenny's A Lock; CNA, Spillane & Epstein Also Win

Kenny's Lock scored three runs in both the fifth and sixth innings to pull away and defeat an improving Thrifty Rental Car, 10-4.

Chris Haldoupis pitched an excellent game, allowing 2 hits and striking out 11 to pick up the victory. Sean O'Keefe ripped an RBI single in the fourth and Brian Donovan roped a two-run double in the fifth to pace Kenny Lock's offensive output. Danny Sullivan made two outstanding defensive plays to close out the game for the victors.

Thrifty played sparkling defense and was led by the hitting of George Pepgjonaj and Joe Maskall.

In other action, CNA Insurance posted three wins and Spillane and Epstein each recorded a victory.

CNA's Craig Flanigin went the distance for his second win, striking out 8 and walking 2 to lead CNA over Locker Room, 6-4. CNA ended the regular season at 10-6; Locker Room final record is 9-7. Both teams now proceed to the playoffs.

Two three-run innings for CNA were the difference in the game, keyed by Flanigin's 2 triples and 2 RBI and center fielder Pat Losi's clutch 2-run single. Catcher Dave Grogan drove in a run and had the fourth and last hit that Locker's Adam Terlaje (12 K's in 5 innings) allowed.

CNA third baseman Mike Merlis and shortstop Rob Richards made key defensive plays and first baseman Billy Cox started the rundown and tag out that ended the game with the tying runs on base for Locker.

Third baseman Frank Feeley led Locker's offense with 2 hits, including a triple, and scored 2 runs. Shortstop Justin Adler stroked a solo homerun in the third and Terlaje hit a booming triple. First baseman Mark Bertrand had 2 hits and an RBI and catcher Andrew Mahoney had a hit, scored a run and played a strong game behind the plate.

Rob Richards pitched a complete game for his second win of the season, leading CNA to a 17-5 victory over Thrifty Car Rental. The win was CNA's ninth this season.

For Thrifty, third baseman Chris Livingston and shortstop Ryan Fandetti had 2 hits each, and catcher Dave Andronico chipped in with a hit and a run. Left fielder Dan Duval scored once, and second baseman Joe Maskall and center fielder Joe Moloney played solid defense.

Dave Grogan pitched a complete game with 11 strikeouts to lead CNA Insurance to an 8-2 victory over Quincy PAL. Grogan held onto a 2-1 lead through four until PAL tied it in the top of the fifth inning. CNA came back with six runs in the bottom of the inning to break open the game.

Grogan and center fielder Craig Flanigin led the CNA attack with two RBI apiece and third baseman Mike Merlis scored twice. Catcher Billy Eastwick and first baseman Billy Cox anchored the defense with solid heads-up play, play.

For PAL, shortstop Bert Vivatyrkan was the spark plug for his team, scoring both runs. Third baseman Richie Zapata and first baseman Jackie Goguen had a hit apiece and kept PAL in the game with timely defense. Catcher Brian Petitt made several tough plays behind the plate.

Spillane and Epstein rallied from an early five-run deficit, scoring 11 runs in the last two innings to down Yellow Cab, 15-8.

Kosta Kalpakidis led the comeback with a three-run homerun in the fifth. Eric Healey hit a double and William Eisan, Darryl Zoia and Jonathan Mendez all had singles.

John Chevalier pitched five strong innings for the win. Eisan caught five innings and pitched the sixth and picked up the save. Helping Spillane clinch second place and a playoff spot were Jonathan Tallent, Joey Scribi, Jarrod Abbott, Chris Mercurio, Daniel Joyce and Gerald Verisotosky.

International

Recupero And Davis Wins Two

Recupero and Davis won two of three games in recent International League action.

Recupero and Davis posted a seven-run first inning en route to a 26-8 romp over Imaginative Insurance. Alex King led the hit parade with a homer, 2 double and a single. Anthony Placet added a triple and a single and Brian Raddel, also the winning pitcher, scored 5 runs. Recupero's Jim Newhall and Donald Kavanaugh turned in solid defensive performances.

In a losing effort, Bruno Dias tripled and singled and John Lupo contributed 2 hits for Imaginative. Mike Mitchell and Steve Inferera played well defensively.

In a 21-10 victory over Noll Electric, Alex King singled, doubled and tripled and scored 3 runs to lead Recupero and Davis to the win.

Anthony Placet (3 singles, 4 runs), Brian Radell (3 singles, 3 runs), Dan McDonagh (2 hits) and Joe Cronin (2 hits) contributed hits for the victors. Dan McCoughin earned the victory and Pat Crossman and Mike Feeley were defensive standouts.

Bill McDonald, who struck out 2 and took the loss, had 2 doubles and Matt Triloje homered and singled to pace Noll's offensive attack.

Chris Tobin drove in the game winning run as O'Brien's Bakery scored twice in the bottom of the seventh to come from behind to edge Recupero and Davis, 8-7. Steve Avalion, who struck out 6 and picked up the win, also tripled in the game-tying run in the seventh. Gene Delisle scored 3 runs, including the game-winner.

Matt Moriarty, Mark Fowkes and Marty McDonagh played solid defense for the victors.

In a losing effort, Alex King belted a grand slam to put his team ahead temporarily, 7-6, in the sixth. Dan McCoughin struck out 8 and also drove in two runs. Anthony Placet stood out defensively for Recupero.

Applications Available For 'Twilight Hoop'

Team applications are available for the 1996 "Twilight Hoop" League to be sponsored by the Quincy Recreation Department.

Applications are available at the Recreation Department and at all supervised recreation programs. Entry deadline for the free program is Friday.

The unique feature of the league will be that all participants on each roster must reside in the same ward in the city.

The middle school and high school league will have four divisions of play for boys and girls. High school teams, which may have a player/coach, will consist of players who are entering grades 9 to 12.

The middle school divisions will be for players entering grades 6, 7 and 8, and will have volunteer coaches assigned by the Recreation Department.

Participants will form their own rosters of teams (not less than eight players and not more than 12). All games will be played on outdoor basketball courts.

For more information, and persons who are interested in being a volunteer coach, please contact the Recreation Department at 376-1386 (376-1-FUN).

Babe Ruth

Pitching Delivers Three Victories For Barry's

Behind the strong pitching of Michael Shaw, Shawn Manning and Shawn Boostrom and the torrid hitting of Matt McCann, Barry's Deli posted three victories in recent Babe Ruth League action.

In a 9-3 win over the Elks, Shaw struck out 12 and scattered three hits over five innings to pick up the victory. Manning and McCann led the offense with three hits apiece. Catcher Didier Alther excelled defensively and contributed two hits, including a triple.

Shaw, Sean Lefebvre, Jarrod DeCelle and David Centrella each singled. McCann and Lefebvre starred defensively.

Barry's defeated Granite City, 9-4, behind Manning's 10-strikout performance. McCann, Lefebvre and Manning each had two hits. Matt Graham doubled and Boostrom, Shaw and Conrad Leger also had hits. Alther, Boostrom and Leger were defensive standouts.

Boostrom pitched a fine game to lead Barry's over Houghs Neck, 9-4. Alther threw out four baserunners in an outstanding performance. McCann again paced Barry's offense with a single, a sacrifice fly and a double. He went 7-for-7 in the three recent victories. Graham also had two hits, Boostrom doubled and Manning and Shaw singled.

Infielders McCann, Graham, Shaw and Manning provided solid defensive support. John Cooper, Brendan Donahue and Matt Joyce all played well and contributed to the three wins.

In other action, the Elks posted two victories and Golden Print won two games, tied one and lost another.

After an 11-1 loss to Barry's, the Elks edged the Deli, 6-5, behind the pitching of Chris Bregoli, who pitched a complete-game four-hitter and struck out 11.

The Elks took an early lead as Mike Keddy doubled and was singled in by Bregoli. Will Tracy and Justin Adams rapped back to back doubles and Chad Fitzpatrick singled in a run.

Trailing 5-1, Barry's used two walks, two errors and a double to tie the game, 5-5. Kevin Shaw put the Elks up for good, singling, stealing second and third and scoring on Tracy's sacrifice fly.

Matt McCann had two hits for Barry's.

Tracy and Bobby Johnston combined on a four-hitter as the Elks knocked off first place Granite City, 4-3. Again, the Elks scored first when Fitzpatrick reached on an error and scored on a double by Bregoli, who then stole third and scored on a wild pitch.

Keddy singled in Mark Robinson for a 3-0 Elks lead in the third. Robinson then gunned down Mark Dunn at the plate from left field.

Granite City tied it in the sixth as Joe Flynn reached on an error, Jason Oriola (two hits) singled in Flynn and Jeff Glynn drew a bases loaded walk for an RBI.

Switch hitting Shaw then won the game by roping a double to right. Shaw scored from second on a groundout by Tracy. Johnston picked up the win in relief of Tracy, striking out three in two innings. Shaw and Bregoli each had two hits for the Elks, now 7-5.

Fourteen-year-old ace Brian Deptula no-hit Barry's Deli, striking out 11 and helping his own cause with 3 hits and 2 RBI. Tony Staffier had 2 hits and played excellent defense. Devin O'Brien had an RBI double.

In a game called due to darkness, Print tied Fire, 10-10. Tony Staffier had 3 hits and Brian Deptula and Nathan Dorosario each had 2 hits.

In a come-from-behind win, Print defeated Local, 7-3. Nathan Dorosario stepped up and pitched five strong innings of one-hit ball, striking out 5. Chris Carthas struck out the side in the seventh to pick up the win.

Tony Staffier led off the seventh with a triple and later scored the tying run on Brian Deptula's single. Matt Reggiannini knocked in the winning runs. Sean Fitzpatrick, Joe Flores and Brian Kalil had key hits and RBI.

Bregoli Leads Mariners In Three-Game Sweep

Chris Bregoli (five hits, three RBI, three stolen bases) helped his New England Mariner 15-and-under AAU baseball team to a three-game sweep of the Worcester Heat in regional playoff action.

Bregoli, who played shortstop at North Quincy High School, starts in center field and also sees time at second base.

The Mariners, based in Beverly, defeated Worcester, 7-0, at Assumption College, and then 6-3 and 10-5 at Brandeis University.

The next regional series for the Mariners is against South Shore Baseball Club next weekend. Prior to that, they will play in the UConn Invitational against the Rhode Island Frays, the New Jersey Arsenal and Team Connecticut.

The Mariners, who will travel to Montreal for seven games in late July, are hoping to qualify for the National AAU Tournament in Charlotte, N.C. in August.

St. John's

Sun Shine Streak Now 24; Matarazzo Wins Three Games

Following three victories in recent St. John's Farm League action, the Sun Shine Fruit Twins remain undefeated at 11-0 and increased their winning streak to 24 games, dating back to last season.

In a dramatic, come-from-behind 8-5 win over Reggie's Oil, winning pitcher Billy Wagner cracked a bases loaded triple in the last inning to lift the Twins to the victory.

Brittney Beal, Craig Bennett, Randy Santini and Jimmy Hutchins all scored runs to provide the offense for the Twins in a 7-3 decision over the Continental Cablevision A's.

The Twins also edged Contintental Cablevision, 4-3. The A's rallied for three runs in the sixth, but left the bases loaded. Steve Sullivan and Matt Boyle both pitched well for the A's and teammates Joe Canavan and Joe Ferris both played good games.

In other action, S. Matarazzo Dentistry won three of four games.

S. Matarazzo scored seven runs in both the third and fourth innings to break open a close game and defeat Sweeney Brothers, 18-3. Ian McRae, who homered, tripled and drove in 4 runs to lead the offense, also recorded the victory.

Other offensive standouts included Eddie Laura (homerun, double, single, 3 RBI), Justin Grimmel (triple, single, 3 RBI), Marc Hutchins (homerun, 2 RBI), Carl Morris (triple, RBI), Jared Fontain (single, RBI) and Raymond Marchand (single, RBI).

A close game turned into a romp as S. Matarazzo scored 13 runs in the last two innings to coast by Sweeney Funeral Services, 21-5.

Winning pitcher Marc Hutchins belted a two-run homer as S. Matarazzo took a 4-3 lead after one inning. The victors started to pull away in the third, scoring four runs on a solo homer by Eddie Laura, a two-run triple by Carl Morris and a single by Justin Laura.

Jared Fontain's two-run homer highlighted a six-run fourth and Carl Morris' RBI triple and Raymond Marchand's two-run homer capped a seven-run fifth inning for S. Matarazzo.

S. Matarazzo fell behind, 9-0, after two innings and Reggie's Oil added seven runs in the fourth en route to a 17-10 victory. Losing pitcher Raymond Marchand (triple, single, 4 RBI) paced S. Matarazzo offensively. Eddie Laura (homerun, triple, RBI) and Ian McRae (2 singles) chipped in with hits.

S. Matarazzo got back on the winning track with a 7-1 victory over Nation One Mortgage. Winning pitcher Raymond Marchand helped his own cause with a single and 2 RBI. Other offensive standouts were Eddie Laura (2 singles, 2 RBI) and Ian McRae (single, RBI), who relieved Marchand and struck out one in the sixth inning. In the top of the fifth, Eddie Laura caught a pop fly and threw to Marchand at first to complete the double play.

Junior League

Kiwanis' Doherty Hurls 1-Hitter; Burke, Jaehnig Also Post Wins

Kiwanis posted two victories in recent Quincy Junior Baseball League action.

Kiwanis pitcher Keith Doherty (5-1) tossed a one-hitter and struck out 13 in an 8-1 victory over the Burke Club.

Kiwanis took a 1-0 lead as Eric Maginnis doubled home Walter Perry. Burke's Pat Bregoli ripped a triple to right center and scored on a wild pitch to tie the game, 1-1. Kiwanis took a 4-1 lead after four and added a four-spot in the fifth to ice the win.

Maginnis and Doherty struck the big blows for Kiwanis, each belting a double, as did Perry. Maginnis, Matt Donovan and Dan Sheehan each had two hits and Nick Duke and Shawn Gibbons each added a base hit. Bill Cosgrove had the other hit for Burke.

Dan Sheehan (5-1) had another strong outing on the mound, sparking Kiwanis to an 8-7 win over Rotary.

Strong defensive plays by Matt Donovan and Keith Doherty saved the day for Kiwanis. Donovan drove in 2 runs with a first-inning double and drove in the winning run, Eric Maginnis, from third on a sacrifice fly in the fifth. Doherty, Maginnis and Walter Perry had 2 hits apiece. Other key hits were by Dan Sheehan and Marc Tucker along with a second inning triple by Shawn Gibbons.

In other action, the Burke Club posted a win and the Jaehnig Chiropractic Club recorded two victories.

The Burke Club rebounded from the loss to Kiwanis with a 14-0 blanking of Burgin Platner. Pat Bregoli's triple and Justin Hall's single highlighted a four-run first for the Burke Club.

A barrage of extra-base hits pushed Burke further ahead, 9-0. Sean Moriarty blasted a three-run homer, his second of the season. Mike Haines then laced a triple and scored on a wild pitch. Hall, Peter Turowski and Joe Sudak all singled in the sixth and scored.

Dan Cosgrove pitched the final inning, starting a 1-2-3 double play to end the game.

Patrick Jaehnig cracked 2 doubles, 2 singles, knocked in 4 runs and scored 4 runs as Jaehnig Chiropractic Club rolled to a 21-3 win over Buick. Brandon Sleeth slapped 3 singles and drove in 3 runs. Mark Maher smashed a triple and a double, while Chris Ham, Derek Keezer and Bryan Thornton each singled and doubled.

Thornton struck out 6 and allowed only 2 hits in 5 innings for his fifth win of the season. Tom Buckley, Steve Kelly, Patrick O'Brien, Kyle Cormody and Marc Tobin all hit safely for the victors.

Ten-year-old Rookie of the Year candidate Steve Williams hit a double and a single for Buick. Brian O'Hanley also collected a hit while Kevin Holleran knocked in a run with a sacrifice fly.

The Chiropractic Club's Patrick Jaehnig struck out 10 and scattered 3 hits as he tossed a complete game in an 8-1 decision over Colonial Federal. He helped his own cause by stroking 2 doubles and a single.

David Buttomer went 3-for-4 with 3 singles, Mark Maher tripled and singled and Chris Ham added 2 singles for the victors. Jeff Butts and Kyle Cormody each doubled while Brandon Sleeth, Patrick Maxey, Patrick O'Brien and Derek Keezer whacked a single apiece.

Merrymount recently won the 1996 Quincy Recreation Department's all-city basketball tournament high school division with a 61-51 victory over Snug Harbor.

In the championship game, Merrymount led by nine at the half and was paced offensively by Jason Little (12 points), Sean Thomas (12 points), Brian Brownell (8 points) and Matt McGloughlin (8 points). Saeed Sadaat, Mark Miller and Jason Lumaghini played well for coach Aidan O'Donoghue's team.

Terry Bowman led all scorers with 19 points in a losing effort. Brandell Pinckney added 15 and Scott Shepherd chipped in with 8 points for Snug Harbor. Alphie Montes and Mike Sheffer excelled on the boards and played strong overall games for coaches Billy Reardon and Nicole Sheffer.

To advance to the finals, Merrymount ousted a tough Atherton Hough squad, 53-45 in one of the semifinal games. Merrymount led by 12 at the break and was led by the well-rounded play of Jason Lumaghini and Chuck Feeley. Sean Thomas (19 points), Mark Miller (14 points) and Matt McGloughlin (6 points) led Merrymount offensively.

Atherton's Mark Froelich led his team with 16 points, Donald McCarthy added 8 and John Johnson contributed 6 points. Dominic Catrambone played tough defense and Bryan Dunn, who connected on a three-pointer, also played well for Atherton, coached by Michelle Drury and Billy Dunn.

In the other semifinal game, Alphie Montes scored 19 points to lead Snug Harbor to a 55-40 victory over Atlantic. Terry Bowman (16 points) and Brandell Pinckney (7 points) contributed to the win, as did Mike Sheffer, Scott Shepherd and Pete Orseno.

Atlantic, which led by six at halftime, was led by Frank McNamara's 12 points. Peter Connolly added 11 points and Bill Manning chipped in with 8. Chuck O'Brien and Ted McGillicuddy played well for Atlantic, coached by Joe Mulvey.

Eight teams competed in the opening round of this NCAA-style tournament which began in late April.

Girls' Softball

D.A.R.E. Posts Playoff Victories

D.A.R.E.'s Kerri McAteer, who helped her own cause at the plate, was the winning pitcher in a 21-15 victory over Kerri Limo.

Casey Lorman and Caitlin Callahan had triples and Amanda Zoia, Tory Gardner and Caitlyn Miller all turned in solid defensive performances.

Melissa Braga and Michelle Boyd had 3 hits apiece to lead D.A.R.E. over Keohane's, 15-8, in another playoff matchup.

Michelle Boyd pitched well for the victors and teammate Breanne Therrien added 2 hits. Christine Brick, Robin Fatseas and Kristina Manganaro played well defensively.

Lipton Cup Regatta July 13-14

The 10th annual Lipton Cup Regatta will be held July 13-14 at Squantum Yacht Club.

Festivities will begin with registration on Friday, July 12 from 7 to 9 p.m.

The Lipton Cup Regatta will host 1,000 sailors from Canada to Florida. Classes of sailboats expected to race are N10, Optimist, Laser, International and Club 420, One Design 14, Hustler, Tornado, Thunderbird, Mercury and Vanguard 15 as well as the ocean racing PHRF boats.

This is the 10th year the Thomas J. Lipton Company has sponsored the event. The Lipton Cup trophy, originally given to the Massachusetts Bay Yacht Clubs Association in 1930 by tea magnate Thomas J. Lipton, was first awarded to Herbert Allbright, a victorious skipper in the Indian Class sailboat.

The Lipton Cup silver trophy is nearly three feet tall and is the object of a grand sailboat racing competition in the waters of Massachusetts.

Pre-registration forms are available at all of the Massachusetts Bay Yacht Clubs at 328-5730.

3,000 Attend 4th Annual Stadium Show

Blues Festival 'Rousing Success'

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Joe Hajjar, producer of the fourth annual City of Presidents Blues Festival, said only a few words after Sunday's event, but those words evoked a resounding ovation from the approximately 3,000 fans in attendance.

"Do you want me to come back (next year)?" Hajjar asked the audience gathered at Veterans Memorial Stadium. The inquiry was met with rousing applause, guaranteeing Hajjar will produce a fifth annual Blues Festival in Quincy next summer.

Hajjar's question followed the performance of headlining act Bluestime, a band that features Magic Dick and Jay Geils, former members of the J. Geils Band. Bluestime concluded its set and the festival with the popular instrumental "Whammer Jammer", a rollicking song that had the crowd on its feet, dancing.

"They put on a great show," said Hajjar, owner of The Yard Rock Blues club in Quincy Point. "It was the perfect way to end the day, with everyone up dancing, enjoying the music and having a good time."

The family-oriented, alcohol-free event went "very smoothly" with no problems for the fourth straight year, said Hajjar.

"A lot of the food vendors sold out, which was great," he said. "One of those was Webster's, which brought a lot of food, sold out and closed up early."

In addition to Bluestime, other performers who delighted the audience included Blue Dog, Les Sampou, Rick Russell and The Cadillac Horns, The Movers, Matt Woodburn and Kat in the Hat, Michelle "Evil Gal" Willson, Steve Murphy and The Yardrockers with John Putnam, Toni Lynn Washington, Radio Kings, and James Montgomery and Bruce Marshall. Quincy resident Joe Lamparelli opened the festival for the fourth consecutive year with his rendition of the national anthem.

"Everyone who plays here is an all-star to me," said Hajjar. "You won't go on stage here if you're not a star."

One of the day's highlights, according to Hajjar, came when visitng blues musicians Shirlee Lewis and Percy Strother joined Montgomery and Marshall for an acoustic session. "That was not even planned, but the crowd loved it," he said.

Despite threatening skies overhead that may have kept some fans away, Hajjar said Sunday's event drew the largest audience of the four festivals.

"I think we were a rousing success in the Stadium," he said. "I'm sure some people who were coming from out of town may have decided not to come because of the weather, but I think everyone who came enjoyed themselves. Even though it was a gloomy day outside, it was an outstanding day inside the Stadium."

Hajjar also said that some people may have stayed away thinking that since they were not fans of blues music, that the show would not interest them.

"You don't have to be a blues lover to enjoy the day," he said. "I think some people stay away because they are not sure what blues is. It's not just the music, but also the camaraderie and social aspect of the day. I guarantee if you come that you'll like the music. It's infectious.

"I think there are a lot of people who might like to come, people who hear a lot of good things about it but end up not coming because they're not sure what to expect."

Hajjar added that the wide open Stadium makes the event more enjoyable for the fans, because they are not "on top of each other."

"The festival is also spread out, so the people are able to walk around and stretch their legs during the show," he said. "People told me how comfortable they were at the show. It's also a very strong event in that there's nothing like it price-wise. Since its a family event, we try to make it easy for parents to bring their kids by keeping the price low."

For the first time, the festival also featured a juried art show presented by the Quincy Art Association, which featured photography and other art exhibits.

"The art show went very well," said Hajjar. "The people were thrilled to see that component added to the event."

As of press time Monday, Hajjar said it was unclear whether the festival would show a profit, but he felt that the festival was a success financially.

Banking on the response to Sunday's festival, Hajjar said he will try to make the event even bigger and better in the future, including such acts as nationally known rock and blues musician Bonnie Raitt, who established herself performing in the Boston area in the 1970s.

"Of course, booking Bonnie Raitt would probably cost more than the rest of the artists combined," said Hajjar said. "To keep the cost of the ticket down, we would have to raise the money to book her through additional sponsorship. What we did yesterday (Sunday) impressed some of our bigger sponsors, like Stop and Shop and Harvard Pilgrim Health Care, who can help us get other big sponsors in the future.

"We really owe a lot to Stop and Shop and Harvard Health Care, because they made a commitment to help us keep this event going, and went above and beyond the call to help ensure its success. It's nice to have friends like that who are right beside me all the way."

Other sponsors included Bank of Boston, Chase Manhattan Bank, The Patriot Ledger, WBOS, Signature Signs, Quincy Telemessaging, Zildjian, and Blues Audience.

JOE HAJJAR, producer of the City of Presidents Blues Festival and owner of the Yard Rock Blues Club, said the positive response from Sunday's festival guaranteed that he would produce a fifth annual Blues Festival next summer.

ENC Receives $1.3M MIFA Bond

State Rep. Michael Bellotti announces that the Massachusetts Industrial Finance Agency (MIFA), an affiliate of the Massachusetts Development Finance Agency, has issued a $1.3 million fixed rate, tax-exempt bond on behalf of Eastern Nazarene College.

Bellotti said, "I am happy to announce that proceeds from the MIFA Bond will be used for a variety of projects at Eastern Nazarene. Included is a campus wide upgrade of the college's computer and telecommunications systems, energy conservation and safety systems, as well as updating of the classrooms and instructional equipment."

To date, MIFA has issued over $8 billion in bonds for over 2,600 expansion projects across the Commonwealth. Already, MIFA related bonds are having positive results in Lawrence, Springfield, Fort Devens and elsewhere across the Commonwealth.

Bellotti added, "as a result of this financing, Eastern Nazarene College will enhance the services that it offers to its students, both directly, by improving the systems which they can access, and indirectly, by improving the conditions under which the faculty and administration perform."

Eastern Nazarene College currently employs 225 people.

A Thought For The Week

Back in 1776, John Adams wrote, "Independence Day ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, games and sports, guns, bells, bonfires and illuminations from one end of this continent to the other, from this time forward, forevermore."

That has been an American custom through the years. We hope this custom will always continue. On this day of leisure and pleasure we should also inventory our inheritance. We should give prayerful thanks for our country being the world's best hope for freedom and liberty. On our national anniversary we should rededicate ourselves to the principles of honesty, truth, temperance and appreciation.

Also on this most important day, let us be thankful for our past, be aware of our responsibilities of today and pledge our obligation to the future.

Yau To Head Chinese Oil Co-op For East Coast Petroleum

The newest innovation of the Quincy-based East Coast Petroleum is the creation of a Cantonese Broadcasting Workshop Oil Cooperative.

"The opportunity to combine our full-service fuel oil program to assist in providing scholarships for Chinese-American students was triggered by Betty Yau, a marketing specialist and radio host," said president Loretta DeGrazia.

Yau, a Quincy resident, is the executive producer-host of the "Cantonese Radio Show" airing Sundays on WJDA-AM 1300 (South Shore) and WESX-AM 1230 (North Shore) from 4 to 7 p.m. Additionally, she teaches a one-hour weekly class to Chinese students prior to each broadcast.

East Coast Petroleum, a 10-year-old, rapidly growing women-owned and operated company, will return to the Cantonese Broadcast Radio Workshop a cash donation to be used for scholarships based on the numbers of fuel oil gallons purchased by members of the Chinese-American community enrolling in the full-service-discounted program with Yau or her student representatives.

Yau, who earned her master's degree in business administration from the University of Massachusetts in Boston, left Hong Kong 15 years ago and has since established herself as a behind-the-scenes leader in the Asian American Community in the Bay State. Those close to her say she is the moving force behind the Bridge Committee, which merged with the Quincy Asian American Association several years ago.

BETTY YAU of Quincy, executive producer of WJDA's Sunday Cantonese Radio Show, teaches Loretta DeGrazia, president of East Coast Petroleum in North Quincy, how to use chopsticks during a recent luncheon. Yau has agreed to coordinate the Cantonese Broadcast Radio Workshop Oil Cooperative with East Coast Petroleum, which will provide financial aid to Chinese students attending her weekly radio broadcast workshop. (Stephen Allen Photo)

Yau's professional experience includes Civic Rights work for the Norfolk County District Attorney, and with IMPACT, a Quincy Coalition for the prevention of alcohol, tobacco and other drug problems.

The marketing expert has among her many activities the publishing of a monthly bilingual newsletter that is mailed to 2,000 homes, businesses and agencies, and has an estimated 5,000 readership within the Chinese community.

Yau has made tedious efforts to promote Asian American culture by encouraging Massachusetts Asian Americans active participation in programs offering English as a Second Language.

The Cooperative is one of several such opportunities offered by ECP's President DeGrazia, formerly based in Dorchester, where there is a similar type oil co-op for civic group residents. Since moving to North Quincy early last year, ECP's chief executive also created the Quincy Oil Co-op to encourage residents to join their local civic group and enjoy the full-service benefits of the QOC at discounted oil pricing.

As coordinator of this new program for Chinese families and businesses, Yau will also act as an interpreter for those who call her at 328-9538 and request services on an emergency basis. She will then activate East Coast Petroleum's dispatcher requesting emergency C.O.D. services with a two percent cash back option, or she will enroll the caller for full-service "member benefits."

Quincy Mutual Acquires Hurley, Burgin-Platner Insurance Agencies

The Hurley and Burgin, Platner insurance agencies have reached an "agreement in principle" to be acquired by Quincy Mutual Insurance Company.

The new agency will be called Burgin, Platner, Hurley Insurance Agency Inc. and will be headquartered at 14 Franklin St. in Quincy, the current Burgin, Platner location, with service offices in Hingham and Pembroke.

The Burgin, Platner, Hurley Insurance Agency Inc. will operate as a subsidiary of Quincy Mutual.

"The acquisition and merger allows our two agencies to perpetuate and grow in one solid organization," said Ned Platner, president of Burgin, Platner Insurance. "Quincy Mutual will help the new agency with a capital investment to improve service levels in addition to completely upgrading our infrastructure."

The agency will be managed by Platner, Barbara Lawson and Roy Eaton of the current Burgin, Platner Insurance Agency and Michael Prendergast, president of the Hurley Agency.

"Our companies have a rich history in the local and regional insurance market and have similar business approaches which will create a dynamic, synergistic organization," said Prendergast. "We all benefit and are now positioned to better service all of our customers and carriers as an independent agency."

The acquisition of the two insurance agencies is a strategy by Quincy Mutual to maintain relationships with independent agents in a rapidly-changing marketplace.

"This agreement is a business opportunity for Quincy Mutual and is a great way to perpetuate two high-caliber agencies who have represented our company for over 50 years," said K. Douglas Briggs, Quincy Mutual president. "It makes sense to support and financially back independent agencies because of the service they provide to their customers, and our commitment to doing business through the American Agency System."

toward controlling rate increases, the MWRA has been able to keep wholesale water and sewer charges at an absolute minimum," said MacDonald.

"The legislature has shown great leadership and the MWRA Legislative Caucus and Gov. Weld have worked to keep rate relief on top of the state budgeting agenda," he added. "The monetary assistance from both the state and the federal government will be a key element to moderate rate increases as debt service continues to represent the single biggest item in the MWRA's budget."

MacDonald said under the spending plan, rate increases are needed to begin work this month on the MetroWest Water Supply Tunnel and to start operating the new Secondary Treatment Plant on Deer Island this fall.

FY97 also marks the first year of full implementation of the new sewer rate methodology with impact moderation assistance. Because the new formula is based primarily on flow, some communities will experience a marked increase in their rates, while rates in other cities and towns will decrease.

AFL-CIO Endorses Delahunt

The Massachusetts AFL-CIO has announced its endorsement of Norfolk County District Attorney William Delahunt for Congress in the 10th Congressional District.

In announcing the near-unanimous vote, AFL-CIO President Joseph C. Faherty said:

"Our Council overwhelmingly agreed that Bill Delahunt is the strongest candidate to assure that the 10th Congressional District remains in hands that are friendly to working people. The current Republican Congress, led by Newt Gingrich, has undermined job security, attacked student loans, threatened Medicare, and opposed a decent minimum wage. Bill Delahunt is an articulate and compassionate advocate for workers' rights, and he is the best candidate to prevent Newt Gingrich's disciple, Ed Teague, from a seat in Congress."

WILLIAM DELAHUNT

The Massachusetts AFL-CIO is a federation of 700 local unions which represent 400,000 working men and women throughout the Commonwealth, including 35,000 throughout the 10th Congressional District.

In accepting the endorsement, Delahunt said: "I have devoted my public life to trying to protect people in need. I'm especially proud of accomplishments we've achieved in the district attorney's office, including programs to fight domestic violence, sexual assault, and hate crimes. I entered this race for Congress because I felt that I could continue fighting for people, in particular the working men and women whose security is threatened by this Congress' insensitivity and greed.

"This endorsement by the State AFL-CIO in the Democratic Primary is validation to me that the working families of this state share my values and my vision. I am extremely pleased that they chose me to lead their fight."

Delahunt, whose campaign has been successful in fundraising and organization as well as in gaining endorsements, will now be eligible to receive additional funds from unions and will be the recipient of significant organizational support. The AFL-CIO will also assist in voter identification and election day get-out-the-vote efforts.

Delahunt already has received more than a dozen other labor endorsements.

RECALL EFFORTS

Recalls of automobiles over safety concerns signal an effort by consumers, government agencies and automobile manufacturers to make cars, vans and trucks safer. A measure of the care and diligence that these various interests bring to this common goal is underscored by the fact that, for the first time the number of cars recalled exceeded the number of new cars sold. According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), over 17.8 million vehicles were recalled in 1995 and, according to the trade publication Automotive News, fewer than 15 million cars and light trucks were sold in the U.S. during the same period. This does not mean that 1995 models were any less safe than those manufactured in previous years. A safety recall campaign can cover up to eight years of a particular model and follows a safety-defect investigation by the NHTSA.

HINT: According to the NHTSA, more than 75 percent of its investigations are prompted by consumer calls to its hotline number.

Safe driving starts with the proper adjustment of safety devices such as mirrors and the proper maintenance of systems and components which could affect your safety. At LEO & WALTS SUNOCO we understand that the science of auto technology has actually become very advanced and sophisticated. Whether you have a question about your car or need to have us look at something specific, trust our professional, ASE Certified technicians. Stop by 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (843-1550). REUNITED--Christine Leone and her seven-month-old son, Nicholas, greet Officer Brian Tobin Tuesday outside the home of Christine's mother-in-law, Jeannette Leone, on Pray St., Quincy Point. Nicholas, who is also the son of David Leone, was dropped by her mother from a second-floor window into the waiting arms of Off. Tobin during a fire at their home Saturday on Kidder St., West Quincy. Officer Tobin and three other Quincy police officers, Lane Watkins, William O'Neill and Richard Gibbons, have been credited with saving the family's lives. (Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Bosworth)

She Thanks Him With Kiss After Dramatic Rescue

Officer Who Saved Baby Credits Mother As 'Real Hero'

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The police officer who helped saved a baby from a burning West Quincy duplex Saturday says the real hero is the child's mother who tossed the 7-month-old boy from a second floor window into his waiting arms.

Quincy Police Officer Brian Tobin, a 9-year member of the force who has been described as a hero for his actions during the three-alarm blaze, said 34-year-old Christine Leone showed true courage by letting her adopted son Nicholas drop from a window about 18 feet from the ground in order to save him from the fire.

"She was very brave and courageous," said Tobin, 33, son of former Mayor Arthur Tobin, now clerk magistrate of Quincy District Court. "It must have taken a lot for her to do that, to drop her baby. She's the real hero."

Mrs. Leone, however, gave the credit to Tobin.

"This is the true hero right here," she said, giving Tobin a kiss. "Yes sir, you (Tobin) caught him. All I can say is, my glasses fell off, I saw your hands, and I aimed."

"She's a good tosser, I'll tell you," laughed Tobin.

The fire began about

Plymouth Consultant Selected From 60

Coordinator Named For Downtown

A Quincy Center development coordinator has been hired to administer the revitalization activities and the promotional and marketing effort for the downtown business district.

Quincy 2000 Executive Director Joseph Mannarino said Tuesday that Bruce Arons, who has served in a similar capacity in Plymouth, was chosen from a group of 60 applicants from throughout New England following an extensive recruitment and interview process. The coordinator's position will be funded by both The Quincy 2000 Corporation and the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA), he added.

Quincy 2000 and the QCBPA have formed a partnership to combine their resources to fund the new position, Mannarino said. In addition, a joint advisory committee has been created to work with Arons in accomplishing the revitalization effort.

"I am extremely pleased with the hiring of Bruce Arons for the Quincy Center development coordinator position," said Mannarino. "Bruce's demonstrated experience in downtown commercial revitalization and his ability to work effectively with community organizations, public officials, and the business community are the qualities we need for the Quincy Center revitalization program."

Arons was unavailable for comment at press time.

Arons was instrumental in Plymouth's Downtown Harbor revitalization program from 1990-95. He also managed the Plymouth Downtown Harbor Corporation, a successful public-private downtown revitalization organization. Previously, he operated a small business in downtown Plymouth and served on the Plymouth Board of Selectmen.

For the past year, Arons has served as an economic development and small business consultant, meeting the needs of both small business owners and development organizations.

Mannarino said Arons will be responsible for implementing the comprehensive Strategic Development Plan for Quincy Center which is being prepared by Quincy 2000 and Sasaki Associates. The other responsibilities include targeting and

'Flying Elvis' Will Never Jump Again

Skydiver: Spotter Made A 'Mistake' But Not Responsible For Tragedy

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

He lost a close friend, suffered a potentially paralyzing injury and will never "fly" again but the skydiver hurt in a stunt en route to Quincy last month does not hold anyone responsible for that tragic jump.

James Bozarth, a veteran "Flying Elvis" skydiving stuntman, suffered a broken back and shattered tailbone in the exhibition which went awry. The jump was supposed to celebrate the grand opening of a new Squantum night club June 25.

The four experienced parachutists--dressed in fringed jumpsuits with slicked-backed hair and sunglasses--never made it to their intended target: the parking lot of the new WaterWorks night club at Marina Bay.

Bozarth, 42, of Henderson, Nevada, landed near the Savin Hill Yacht Club. His injuries required two 10-inch steel pins to be surgically implanted in his back during a seven-hour operation at Boston City Hospital.

"My skydiving career is over," Bozarth said from his hospital bed in his first interview since the accident June 25. "Skydiving has been a really important

Salem Due Home After Winds Caused Delay

The USS Salem, the 718-foot heavy cruiser that serves as the centerpiece of the U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum in Quincy Point, was expected to return to the city yesterday (Wednesday), according to Mayor James Sheets.

At press time Tuesday, the mayor said high winds had again prevented the Salem from leaving Massport's Black Falcon Terminal in South Boston. The cruiser, which left Quincy July 3 for a holiday tour of Boston Harbor, has experienced similar problems since last Friday, he noted.

"It's all governed by the Coast Guard," said Sheets. "They're concerned about the wind factor. They're afraid that the tugs (tugboats) wouldn't be strong enough to hold the Salem, and it would be washed up on shore."

Sheets added that although the Salem has lost several days' worth of fees paid by those who would board at the ship as a tourist attraction at the Fore River shipyard in Quincy Point, that loss is virtually offset by the fact that all of the heavy cruiser's systems were shut down while at the Black Falcon Terminal, while they would all be operation at the shipbuilding museum.

This, he said, should result in a cost savings that will balance out any revenues lost from tourism.

The layover at Black Falcon also gave the Salem's crew a much-needed rest after preparing for the holiday trip, Sheets noted.

More than 1,100 people boarded the Salem for the tour last week. The ship led a procession of other historic ships, including the USS Constitution, the World War II destroyer USS Cassin Young and the HMS Bounty, before crowds on Castle Island while participating in special July 4 ceremonies and a tribute to the ships of World War II.

Former city councillor Tom Fabrizio was elected vice president of the Ward 4 Neighborhood Association at a recent meeting of the board of directors.

Fabrizio has been a member of the association since 1989 and was elected to the board of directors this year.

Fabrizio said at the board of directors meeting that an area of concentration for him will be the establishment of a scholarship fund which the board approved in a vote.

Steve Hawko is the president of the association. Community meetings are held on the second Tuesday of each month at the Ward 4 Community Center.

Church Member Bequeaths Nearly $1 Million To Union Congregational

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Union Congregational Church in Wollaston, which celebrated its centennial last year, is celebrating once again.

The church has received an endowment of nearly $1 million from a member who died March 29, according to Rev. John Swanson, pastor.

Rev. Swanson said 94-year-old Doris Bryant, who last lived at the Rice Eventide Nursing Home in Quincy, virtually split her estate between the church and Lasell College in Newton, of which she was a graduate. The church endowment totals about $960,000, he noted.

"She had a really great love for the Lord and for the church," said Rev. Swanson. "This is a real testimony to her faith in us. It will be a tremendous asset."

Mrs. Bryant was married at one time, but her husband died years ago and she had no children, he noted.

He added that her money will be used primarily "to build up the church" through community outreach activities, promoting the gospel, and assisting small churches in the area as well as groups such as the Protestant Social Service Bureau and the Quincy Crisis Center.

"That's what Doris wanted," he said.

Rev. Swanson said Bryant, the daughter of Alonzo Bissett--a charter member of the church--was a "pioneer in the field of banking" who served as a senior loan officer in the 1920s at the former Granite Trust Co. in Quincy. She was one of the first women in the state to hold a senior position at a major bank and the first female officer in Granite Trust Co. history. In 1949, she was named assistant treasurer of the Granite Bank, now Bank of Boston.

Rev. Swanson described her as "a shrewd investor" who ably managed her own financial affairs into her 90s.

"She was a sharp lady,"

Liquor License Stalls Italian Restaurant Plans

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

A sought after liquor license continues to stall plans for the Agnitti family to open an Italian restuarant at the former High Rise on Maple St. in Quincy Square.

The Quincy Licesne Board has planned a continued hearing July 23.

Lawrence and Anthony Agnitti, who own the building that houses the High Rise, are seeking a common victualer all alcoholic license, but because High Rise still has a valid license the license board was unable to issue another license for the same location.

The meeting Tuesday marked the third meeting regarding the license.

Atty. Robert Fleming representing the Agnitti's told the board that the "wisdom of Jobe" has to be exercised and cited section 77 which states that the board can be discretionary in issuing a second license.

Chairman Joseph Shea doubted whether the ABCC would agree with issuing two licenses at the

Six City Beaches May Reopen This Week

Six city beaches were to remain closed until at least the middle of this week because of high levels of bacteria.

Cindy DeCristofaro, chief sanitarian for the Quincy Health Department, said at press time the city retested the water at the beaches Tuesday to see if the bacteria levels had dropped to a level safe for swimming. Results of the tests would not be available until yesterday (Wednesday) or today, she said.

If bacteria levels have dropped, the beaches could be reopened this week, she said.

Warning signs were posted last Friday at the six beaches: Nickerson and Orchard beaches in Squantum, Parkhurst and Quincy Yacht Club beaches in Houghs Neck, Rhoda Beach at Rock Island Cove and Broady Beach near Germantown.

Meanwhile, Wollaston Beach, which is owned by the Metropolitan District Commission, remains open. Jim Timilty of the MDC's community affairs office said all four sites at the beach tested regularly over the summer by the MDC were deemed safe after samples were taken last Friday.

Timilty added that the water at Wollaston Beach is checked every Wednesday and Thursday during the summer months but was tested last Friday because of the Fourth of July holiday.

The MDC and the Health Department routinely test for fecal coliform, a bacteria found in human and animal intestines.

DeCristofaro said fecal coliform itself does not make people sick, but high levels of the bacteria indicate the waters may be

QHA, Schools Begin Summer Food Program

The Quincy Public Schools and Quincy Housing Authority has begun a free summer meals program designed to provide thousands of children ages 1-18 with a fun, safe and nutritious way to enjoy the summer break.

The Summer Food Service Program in Quincy will be open to children who want to participate at various meal site locations. The no-cost program is aimed at giving children an opportunity to eat healthy food while enjoying the summertime with friends. No applications or registration are necessary.

The schools and QHA will operate summer meal programs at five locations: Atlantic Neighborhood Center, 12 Hunt St.; Ward II Community Center, 16 Nevada Rd.; Lincoln-Hancock School, 300 Granite St.; QHA, 9 Bicknell St. and QHA, 333 Palmer St. Summer meals may include such items as sandwiches, salads, pizza, milk or fruit juice, and fresh fruit.

The Massachusetts Department of Education administers the federally funded Summer Food Service Program for the Commonwealth. For the third straight year, the Department is collaborating with Project Bread.

The summer meals program is available at approximately 300 sites in 25 cities and towns in Massachusetts through a variety of public and private nonprofit agencies and organizations.

Officials estimate that 2,500 children in Quincy are at risk of missing meals or going hungry when school meals are not available during the summer months.

"This program is an effective way to reach out to the entire community to make sure we meet the nutritional needs of our children," said School Supt. Eugene Creedon. "For many working families, knowing their child can receive a healthy meal close to home, will lessen the strain on tight food budgets and concern about their child's well-being."

Meal sites are open through Aug. 23. For more information, call 1-888-660-FOOD or 1-888-660-3663.

FIRST AID FOR FRACTURES

Despite what the song says, these hazy, crazy days of summer are seldom lazy. For many people, summertime is just the opposite: a time to get out and be active. This can do wonders for physical and mental health, but it can also open the way to injury. Fractures, or breaks in the bone, are one danger to watch for. They range from simple hairline fracture, invisible to the eye, to fractures in which bones are obviously damaged and out of alignment. Signs of a broken bone may include pain, swelling, difficulty moving the affected part and internal injuries. If you suspect that a bone may be fractured, immobilize it immediately with a support or splint until you can get professional help. Never move someone with a possible neck or spine fracture unless it is necessary to do so in order to escape further injury.

P.S. Never "try out" a broken leg, arm or other bone you suspect may be broken. Get a prompt diagnosis to prevent further injury.

If you injure yourself and the swelling doesn't go down after a number of hours, or if you find yourself in extreme pain, you may well have a fracture. See your doctor promptly for an x-ray. At COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and I are dedicated to comprehensive preventative care. We are conveniently located at 700 Congress St., in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. Call 472-2550, office ours by appointment. Mr. And Mrs. Uncle Sam

Rounseville and his bride, the former Jean Kenney, were aboard the cruise ship Royal Majesty which steamed out of Boston Sunday for Bermuda.

Before sailing off to Bermuda, the bride and groom took time out to march in the Merrymount and Squantum Fourth of July parades and got a warm reception.

Those who attended the wedding and the reception after in the Grand Hall at the State House really enjoyed themselves and were quite impressed by it all.

There was the governor of Massachusetts, William Weld officiating at the ceremony while MDC Commissioner David Balfour stood at Rounseville's side as his best man.

WELD

And those attending were even more impressed when after the ceremony, Governor Weld held the train to Jean's white wedding gown so no one would step on it.

"I've got to practice," he mused. "I have three daughters at home."

Rounseville, who has been to some really big events as America's No. 1 cheerleader since leagally changing his name to Uncle Sam in 1990 (on Flag Day, naturally), seemed to be a little overwhelmed by his own wedding.

"It was the most unbelievable, spectacular event I've ever seen," he said.

One of his close friends, Jack Powers, formerly of Houghs Neck, was also quite impressed.

"Imagine that," he told Rounseville. "Up there on the Hatch Shell being married by the governor and the MDC commissioner your best man and everyone cheering. Not bad for a kid from Houghs Neck."

THOSE NEW OPTICAL scan voting machines are expected to arrive at City Hall any day now.

City Clerk Joseph Shea plans instruction sessions for precinct wardens, clerks and election workers by mid-August to introduce them to the new system.

SHEA

And then, demonstrations will be held in all six wards by late August to acquaint voters with the process.

That means all should be familiar with the machines in time for their debut in the Sept. 17 state primaries.

"It's really a simple system," says Shea. "All the voter has to do is connect the name of a candidate and the elective office by pen."

The new system replaces the punch card method that has been used here since 1968 and which replaced the old paper ballots and the tedious hand counting that often dragged into the next morning.

Thirty-three machines--one for each voting precinct and three back-ups--will cost $169,000. The low and winning bidder was Business Record Corp., a national firm based in Texas.

"We're excited about them," says Shea. "I'm sure the voters are going to like them. They will speed up the vote counting so that the results will be known shortly after the polls close. They will more than pay for themselves by reducing election costs."

MARY VALLIER, an active member of historic First Parish Church, recently returned from a trip to New Orleans.

VALLIER

While there she got a chance to see another historic site, the Cabildo where the Louisiana Purchage agreement was signed and which is part of the Louisiana State Museum.

Mary was also interested in the building for another reason. Three years ago, her son, Richard Lawson, a specialist, restored the roof of the building, one of the oldest in Louisiana.

Mary was named The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year in 1993 for her work with DOVE aiding battered women and abused children.

DENIS TARDO, member of the Quincy Board of Voter Registrars, is settled in at his new home on Rock Island Rd. where he recently hosted friends and colleagues at an open house.

TARDO

Among those attending were City Council President Peter Kolson, Councillor Paul Harold, former Mayor Frank McCauley and his wife, Sandra, Bill Draicchio of the Board of Registrars, Josie Carnali, retired secretary to the city clerk, former WJDA news editor Herb Fontaine and his wife, Barbara, and Uncle Sam Rounseville who seems to be everywhere.

MANY OF US can fondly remeber when then City Clerk John Gillis, now a Norfolk County commissioner, and his wife, Vi, became the proud parents of Mark and Pam.

Now John and Vi are the proud grandparents of two elementary school graduates. Mark Gillis, Jr., son of Mark and the former Diane Brabazon, graduated from St. Bridget's in Abington and will attend Boston College High School.

Lauren DeGennaro, daughter of Pam and Peter DeGennaro, graduated from St. Francis Xavier in Weymouth and will attend Notre Dame Academy in Hingham.

And did somebody say time really does fly.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS AN EARLY 1920'S real photo postcard showing Wollaston Beach. This view was taken near the end of Rice Road before the first seawall was built. You can see the Wollaston Yacht Club in the distance on the right. Along the water on the sand you can see accumulated sea weed which seems to show up in all these old pictures of the beach. The autos are of Model T vintage and so are the bathing suits.

Paying Taxes Is Also An Economic Issue

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Has anyone noticed the signs in front of City Hall? The area previously designated for "City Hall business" are now designated for "Tour Buses, April-October."

How does one find a parking space in Quincy Square, and if one is a senior citizen, what does one do about paying taxes, etc.?

I realize tourism is an economic issue. However, paying our taxes is also an economic issue.

Please give the taxpayer a few parking spaces. The morning I went to my taxes, there were no buses parked in the area but plenty of taxpayers complaining in the line inside City Hall.

Quincy Walk Raises $15,000 For March Of Dimes Foundation

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

On behalf of the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation and the Quincy WalkAmerica Committee, we would like to thank you for all of your help in publicizing the 1996 Quincy WalkAmerica. With your help, over $15,000 was raised in Quincy, and over $600,000 throughout Massachusetts to benefit the March of Dimes.

All monies raised through WalkAmerica will aid the March of Dimes in its efforts to reduce birth defects and infant mortality. Through its Campaign for Healthier Babies, the March of Dimes funds programs of medical research, community services, health education, and advocacy on local levels as well as across the nation.

Once again, thank you for your support. We look forward to your participation in WalkAmerica 1997!

Thanks Participants In MDA Walk

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Ibsen wrote that "a community is like a ship; everyone ought to be prepared to take the helm."

On behalf of the Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA), I want to thank the more than 2,000 people from communities across Massachusetts who took the helm in the fight against muscle disease by joining MDA's Great Walk for Science.

We are grateful to all who gave their time, talent and energy--from the walkers who collected pledges and the volunteers who counted the money and distributed refreshments, to the individuals and businesses who made donations and the organizations and institutions whose scientific exhibits engaged our curiosity.

Their committed leadership in the fight against muscle disease is deeply appreciated by MDA and the individuals and families we serve who wait for a cure.

Smooth Sailing For Tall Ships' Viewers

By PAUL HAROLD

Months of planning paid off as Quincy hosted more than 100,000 people in the city to catch a glimpse of the Bicentennial Tall Ships parade.

Police Chief Francis Finn praised the police and auxiliary units for their handling of crowds, traffic and parking. The Squantum causeway carried between 75,000 and 125,000 people, with traffic and parking restrictions enforced along the length of Quincy Shore Drive and streets along the Houghs Neck coastline.

Reunion-Fundraiser For Two Schools Oct. 5

Friends of the "NAZ" (St. Brigid's and Nazareth High and Grammar Schools in South Boston) are seeking names and addresses of former graduates and classmates for a reunion-fundraiser set for Oct. 5 at the IBEW Hall, Freeport St., Dorchester.

The event will feature a reception for classmates, clergy, and former nuns, teachers and friends from the schools from which a number of Quincy residents graduated. Highlights will include a buffet dinner, dancing, and a silent and live auction.

Donations of gifts and services for the auctions are being accepted. Some families who have benefitted from attending the schools are combining resources and providing gifts for auction in their names.

For more information, call Charlie McCarthy at 479-3477, Joan Todd at 479-1149 or Carmelita (Leahy) Guinan at 472-4342 or write to Nazareth/St. Brigid's Alumni Fund, c/o St. Brigid's Rectory, 98 North St., South Boston, MA 02127.

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements, the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit photos with their announcements, and when submitting their wedding photo, to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the photographer to send a copy to The Sun with the announcement. The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries, including the 25th anniversary.

Couple Renews Vows Under Tree Planted By Abigail Adams

By JERRY ELSDEN

Jack and Dorothy (Erskine) McTiernan of Adams St. recently celebrated 35 years together by renewing their wedding vows beneath the graceful branches of a tree planted more than 200 years ago by Abigail Adams.

The Rev. John Swanson, pastor of Union Congregational Church in Wollaston, officiated. About 100 friends and relatives joined the McTiernans, some traveling great distances for the special reunion.

Legend has it that a sea captain gave the European Weeping Beech sapling to Abigail, wife of President John Adams, and she picked the spot to plant it. The McTiernans' home, a white brick ranch, was built on land that was once the Adams' and is located a short distance from the Old House, as the Adams Mansion is now known.

Jack McTiernan, a Quincy police officer for 30 years, has walked the Wollaston beat for 17 of them. Every Christmas, he dons a Santa Claus uniform and white beard and entertains children of fellow officers and local elementary schools.

Dot McTiernan has served as traffic supervisor for the Parker Elementary School in North Quincy and currently is a manager at Boston Financial Data Services in Marina Bay.

The couple eloped to New Hampshire in 1961 and never had a formal wedding. They met when Dot's family had moved back to Quincy Point from Plymouth, and settled into the second floor of a two-family above the "groom's" family, the McTiernans.

Jack's dad, Johnnie Mac, was a well-known waiter at the old Fox and Hounds restaurant on Sea St. and his mother, Margery (Midge) Zanghi of Braintree, was and continues to be involved in many local social activities.

Dot's father, Al Erskine, was a soloist at Quincy Point Congregational Church, and her mother, Helen Davidson, was an active parishioner there.

Jack and Dot tied the knot upon returning from New Hampshire at the home of the late Justice of the Peace Hattimay Thomas, former Quincy City Clerk. She had also signed the marriage certificates of the elder John McTiernans and the birth certificates of the young bridal couple.

For the recent renewal ceremony, the McTiernans' daughter Doreen Vasseur was a bridesmaid, her husband Allan was an usher, daughter Erin Marie, 8, was a junior bridesmaid and Courtney Lee, 5, was flower girl.

Daughter Cindi Lee of North Weymouth was a bridesmaid. James McTiernan was best man for his brother, sister of the bride Helen Lutes was matron of honor, and sister of the groom Marlene Edelson was a bridesmaid.

Jeanine D'Entremont Wed To Steven Mahoney

At a wedding ceremony at Bethany Congregational Church, Jeanine D'Entremont of Quincy became the bride of Steven Mahoney of Quincy.A reception followed at the Quincy Sons of Italy.

Miss D'Entremont is the daughter of John and Louise Burns of Quincy. Mr. Mahoney is the son of the late Gerald and Pearl Mahoney.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by Kendra Quinn of Plymouth as Maid of Honor.

Gary Gillis of Quincy was Best Man.

The bride is a graduate of Quincy High School and Burdett College. She is employed as a secretary at a nursing home.

The groom, also a Quincy High School graduate is employed as a mechanic at Toyota.

Mayor's Boy Scouts Breakfast July 17

The fourth annual Mayor's Boy Scouts Breakfast will be held Wednesday, July 17 at 8 a.m. aboard the USS Salem at the U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum, Fore River shipyard, Quincy Point.

A reception will precede the event at 7:15 a.m.

The breakfast is being held to benefit Scouting programs in Quincy. Mayor James Sheets, honorary chairman, will be in attendance.

Those to be honored at the breakfast include former Ward 5 City Councillor Charles Phelan and City Clerk Joseph Shea, both of whom are Eagle Scouts. Presenting the awards will be Councillor Paul Harold and North Quincy Business Association President Eric Stoeckel, event co-chairmen.

The promotion committee for the event is composed of Quincy business and community leaders. As a featured part of the program, Star Scout Richard Carbonneau will speak about what Scouting means to him.

Reservations are $30. Tickets for the event are available through the mayor's office. For more information, call 376-1990.

Flaherty Twin Brothers Awarded Law Degrees

Twin brothers from Wollaston recently were awarded juris doctor degrees from the New England School of Law.

They are: David and Daniel Flaherty, sons of Quincy Police Lt. Vincent M. Flaherty and Ann Marie Flaherty.

David received a bachelor of science degree in business administration in 1993 from Fairfield University while Daniel was awarded a bachelor of science degree in business administration from Stonehill College, also in 1993.

The Flaherty brothers are graduates of Boston College High School and Sacred Heart School in North Quincy. They plan to take the bar examination this month.

ASK YOUR LAWYER

by Kevin F. O'Donnell
ATTORNEY AT LAW

SETTLING OUT OF COURT

Plaintiffs may have expectations of fighting their legal battles in courtrooms, but the fact is that over 90 percent of tort claims are settled out of court. The decision to accept or reject a settlement offer rests squarely on the plaintiff's shoulders. When making such a decision, a plaintiff should weigh the advice of his or her attorney carefully. Not only do the lawyer's objectivity and knowledge of legal issues provide valuable insight, but experience with the legal system and its human component can he helpful as well. Lawyers also have an idea as to whether their clients are going to be credible in a jury's eyes. If not, it may be in the plaintiff's best interests to settle out of court.

Hint: Even though a trial win may yield damages in excess of a settlement offer, the money may not be immediately forthcoming - pending appeal.

Quite often, settling disputes out of court is the preferable route to take. It is a speedier solution to the time involved in fighting a legal battle in the courtroom and compensation is more imminent. I have had years of experience helping clients determine whether it would be in their best interest to accept or take the dispute to court. I would be happy to discuss your case with you. Call 773-2880 to schedule a free consultation. My office is conveniently located at Gridley Bryant Office Condominiums, 111 Willard Street.

Seaside Gardeners Win Top Public Works Week Award

The Seaside Gardeners of Squantum recently received the National Public Works Awards Week first prize in the City of Quincy.

Browning-Ferris Industries donated the $500 prize and the club was given a City Council plaque of recognition. Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers presented the award during a recent council meeting.

The award was given in conjunction with the Adopt-an-Island program in recognition and appreciation for outstanding work performed by the club at the Triangle Gateway to Squantum. Louise Grabowski, chairperson of the Seaside Gardeners Triangle Project, accepted the award on behalf of the club.

Also in attendance were Club President Ruth Ann Wetherby, Ruth Graceffa, Elfrieda O'Brien, Sally Erickson, Jean Mackie, Marie Stamos, Mary LaFlamme, Jerry LaFlamme, Bill Grabowski and Ann Marie Wetherby.

Charter member Edith MacDonald, who was unable to attend the presentation, has been involved in the Triangle preservation over the years. MacDonald, who recently received the South Shore District Gardener of the Year Award, said afterward the club would use the prize to continue the Triangle maintenance program.

Veterans Housing Project To Receive State Funds

State Rep. Michael Bellotti, in conjunction with the Executive Office of Community Development, announces that the Veterans Housing Project in Quincy has been selected to receive state HOME funds.

The EOCD has allocated $110,000 in funds for the project. Bellotti said it is for the rehabilitation of an old, unused building to become eight units to be used as housing for veterans.

"These funds are greatly needed, as well as appreciated, by both the City of Quincy and the Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services," he said. "I am pleased that additional and affordable housing for our veterans has been made available through this grant.

"I hope that in the future, with the help of Norm Grenier, director of Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services, and EOCD, Quincy will continue to apply for and receive such funding."

Daniel O'Donnell Joins Army

Daniel P. O'Donnell has joined the Army under the Delayed Enlistment Program at the U.S. Army Recruiting Station in Quincy.

The program gives young men and women the opportunity to delay enlistment into the Army for up to one year before reporting to basic military training.

The enlistment gives the new soldier the option to learn a new skill, travel and become eligible to receive as much as $30,000 toward a college education. After completion of basic training, soldiers receive advanced individual training in their career specialty.

O'Donnell will report to Fort Benning in Columbus, Ga., for military basic training on Aug. 22.

He is the son of Thomas J. O'Donnell of 217 Main St., Charlestown, and Diane R. O'Donnell of 30 Oakland Ave., Quincy.

Flynn & Co. Sells Braintree Property

Daniel J. Flynn & Co. Inc. Commercial Real Estate of Quincy recently represented Saporiti Realty Trust in the sale of its property at 133-145 Elm St., Braintree.

The structure known as the Kelley Building was originally home to the Braintree Post Office. The 7,600-square-foot building was transferred from Saporiti Realty Trust to the KLM Company of Quincy for $210,000.

Jay Nuss, senior vice president of Flynn & Co., handled the negotiations for both parties.

"We had a great amount of activity on this property, still showing that location is a driving factor in real estate sales," said Nuss. "With its high visibility from Route 3, the property provided an excellent location for the new owner's usage."

Daniel J. Flynn & Co. Inc., located in the Heritage Building at 1495 Hancock St., Quincy Center, is a commercial real estate and auction firm with offices also in Springfield and Hyannis. For more information, call 479-9000.

Recycle Your Lawn During Summer Months

Summertime's warm weather and sunshine brings another season of moving and maintaining your lawn.

The South Shore Association of Realtors offers some tips on how you can use those grass and other yard clippings as a source of nutrients for gardening and landscaping around your home.

"Mowing, bagging and disposing of lawn clippings have been recurring cycles for years in this community and our landfills cannot continue to absorb the waste," said Mary Dawson, president of the association.

The association recommends recycling yard clippings for the good of both your lawn and the environment.

"Creating a compost pile is an ideal way to recycle your lawn wastes, while simultaneously providing you with a source of nutrients for gardening and landscaping," said Dawson. "Anything growing in your yard is potential compost material."

Although ideally you should begin your compost pile in late spring for use in the fall and in the fall for use in the spring, it's never too late to begin the process.

To begin, first remove any grass and sod cover from the area where you plan to construct a compost pile. Create a bin to enclose this compost. Prefabricated snow fencing, woven wire, wood pallets or bricks can serve as inexpensive compost bins. Be sure to allow for easy access through the top or sides for turning the compost.

For best results, the South Shore Association of Realtors recommends the following "recipe":

•First layer: three to four inches of chopped brush or other coarse material.

•Second layer: six to eight inches of leaves, grass clippings, sawdust, etc. Materials should be "sponge damp." You may want to sprinkle sulfur over the heap to increase its acidity.

•Third layer: one inch of soil (to speed up the process).

•Fourth layer: two to three inches of manure or a handful of commercial fertilizer to provide the nitrogen needed. Add water if the manure is dry.

•Fifth layer: Repeat Steps 1-4 until the bin is almost full. Top off heap with a four to six-inch layer of straw and scoop out a "basin" at the top to catch rain water.

A properly-made heap will reach a temperature of 140 to 160 degrees Fahrenheit in four to five days. At this time, you'll notice a setting, a good sign that your heap is working properly.

After five to six weeks, fork the materials into a pile, turning the outside of the old heap into the center of the new pile. Add water if necessary. It shouldn't be necessary to turn your heap a second time. The compost should be ready to use within three to four months.

Compost is ready when it is dark brown, crumbly and earthy smelling. For best results, turn your soil, apply one to three layers of compost and work it in well.

"Fertilizing your garden and lawn with compost can improve the overall landscape and beauty of your home," said Dawson. "In addition to saving landfill space, recycling your lawn reduces your water usage and the need to purchase soil conditioners and trash bags. That's good for you and good for the environment."

You can find out more about caring for your lawn and about composts by contracting your local nursery.

The South Shore Association of Realtors is one of more than 1,800 local boards and associations of Realtors nationwide that comprise the National Association of Realtors. As the nation's largest trade association, NAR is "The Voice for Real Estate," representing nearly 750,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate industry.

Skydiver: Spotter Made A 'Mistake' But Not Responsible For Tragedy

'FLYING ELVIS' James Bozarth underwent a seven-hour operation after suffering a broken back and shattered tailbone in a skydiving accident en route to Marina Bay June 25. His wife, Susan, traveled to Boston from Nevada to be by her husband's side at Boston City Hospital.

part of my life for a long time. It's going to be really hard to give it up," he said, fighting back tears.

"I'm an intelligent individual and I know when I have to end things. I saw my x-rays this morning. You gotta be pretty limber to be a skydiver and nobody's ever going to jump with this back. It's solid," Bozarth said the day before leaving for home.

His wife, Susan, who flew 2500 miles to be by her husband's side, added, "He had a choice of having rods in his back or spending the rest of his life paralyzed in a wheelchair. He made the right choice."

Bozarth's good friend and fellow "Flying Elvis" Raymond E. Sayles III, 41, of Las Vegas, also landed near the yacht club but was not as fortunate. He died a day after the jump of head and chest injuries.

The two other parachutists, George R. Head, 46, another "Flying Elvis" from Las Vegas, and Thomas H. LaRochelle of Brookline, N.H., landed in the water nearby and were not injured.

It is Bozarth's opinion that LaRochelle, who was hired as the jump team's "spotter" made a "mistake" by signaling the skydivers to exit the aircraft too far downwind and off-course from their target.

"We should have jumped somewhere west of the big natural (Boston) gas tank that's just west of the target area. We should have exited the aircraft somewhere upwind of that. We were way off to the right and way into the northwest up towards UMass (Boston). Our spot should have been to counter the westerly winds at their miles per hour.

"There's not a whole lot you can say about it," Bozarth said, reclined in his hospital bed with a back brace wrapped around his torso. "The spot was too long and we were way, way too far away from the target."

"(LaRochelle) just made a mistake. This was his mistake for the year."

But Bozarth does not blame LaRochelle for his injuries or Sayles' death.

"He (LaRochelle) was responsible for goofing up the jump. He's not responsible for what happened to Ray, my buddy who died, or the injuries that happened to me. We could have went into the ocean just like (the other two skydivers)," Bozarth said.

Bozarth and Sayles attempted to land facing the wind on land near the yacht club, the recuperating skydiver explained.

"You always try to land your parachute into the wind with the wind in your face, just like an airplane. If you land with (the wind) behind you, it gives you way too much wind speed to kill off when you set down so you always turn into wind and with the wind in your face and that's what we both did."

Bozarth said he landed exactly where he had aimed: on a small patch of land at the end of the yacht club driveway, just before some large rocks and water.

"It was either that (spot) or water and rocks and when I got down near it, it (the wind) was real, real turbulent from the little bit of wind that was blowing and it just deflated my parachute and set me down on my behind."

Bozarth then theorized on his friend's attempt for a safe landing that early evening.

"Ray, I'm guessing . . . was a little bit farther up the coastline of the yacht club and he got up there in the shadows not able to see the ground real clearly and not familiar with the area whatsoever and he's just like me. He did not want to take soaked seawater gear back to the hotel.

"If we can get a dry landing out of this, I mean the jump's all ready screwed up, so be it. He got up in those shadows and he realized at the last minute that he was boxed in and there was no where to go."

Sayles "was imminently aware of the risks involved," Bozarth said. "He wasn't experienced as some of the rest of us but he knew the risk. Anybody that's been doing this for several years has seen people go in and they know it can happen to them.

"That's just the scenario that you have to accept to do this sport."

Bozarth then drew this analogy. "Skydiving is as safe as you are. It's like a loaded gun lying on a table. A loaded gun is never going to hurt anybody. It can lay there on that table until it rusts but once somebody picks it up, it becomes dangerous.

"Skydiving is not dangerous if you're not dangerous. If you follow the rules and follow all of your safety guidelines, you'll be all right."

Asked whether they took all the safety precautions the night of the jump, Bozarth answered, "We thought we did." Then he added, "At an exhibition flight which somebody is paying for, you try to make it better than just a normal drop. But everybody wants the drop zone fun jump to be on the spot, standing up smiling and this one just got away from us.

"It was just a mistake made and it's something we're all going to have to live with."

Bozarth said LaRochelle visited him in the hospital. "We talked for a couple of hours. There's no hard feelings between me and him. He's having a tough time with this. I'm sure no one's died under his tutelage before."

Bozarth said he feels very fortunate. "I'm as fortunate as it gets. My buddy didn't make it," he said, his voice trailing off with emotion.

He then took a moment to reflect on the tragedy and his friend. "If I had to do it over again, I would have went swimming. In a heart beat. But that's hindsight. I'm laying here with a broken back and hindsight's not going to do me a bit of good.

"I really, really wish Ray would have gone swimming. I really do."

Bozarth said he doesn't blame LaRochelle because "he took the same risk that we did when he crawled out of the aircraft.

"He went with us. It's not like he didn't spot us. If he spotted us and said, 'go ahead and go, you're fine,' and then went to the airport and landed, then I'd say, 'yeah, he's pretty responsible here' but he thought he was okay.

"He made a mistake. Everybody gets to make a mistake every now and then and that was his."

LaRochelle was not part of the "Flying Elvis" group. "We hired him locally," Bozarth said. "He knew the area and he knew the weather. From what we're told, he was a pretty experienced skydiver. He was recommended to us."

Bozarth, who normally does the spotting for his team of "Elvises", said he knew the spot was off immediately after exiting the aircraft.

"George and the spotter were too far downwind to go back and not miss going into the water and I recognized immediately because I do the spotting for the team on a normal basis and I knew immediately, instantly when I looked down that we were really, really long."

Before the jump, Bozarth was sitting on the floor of the aircraft in the student position up next to the pilot's leg and couldn't see out of the plane. "The only guy who could really see where we were at that was familiar with the area was the guy who was doing the spotting.

"When the parachute opened, I knew it was a bad spot and I started heading for ground." Bozarth said he is certain Sayles knew they were off course but there was no way to communicate.

Bozarth said the winds, which were reported at 20 mph with gusts of up to 35 mph, were "fine" and not a "big factor" in the mishap.

"The winds were fine. What a lot of people don't understand about skydiving a wind, just as much as it can be a detriment to you, can also help you. The parachutes we we're all using were anywhere from 25 to 30 miles an hour so if we're flying into wind that's 15 (mph), it's only nullified as 15 miles an hour. We're still flying through that wind at 10 miles per hour.

"But if we turn around, how much have we gained? We've gained another 15 (mph) on top of 30 (mph) so we're doing 45 miles per hour. A little bad spot could have been countered by using that wind.

"It wasn't too windy to jump, trust me on that."

Bozarth, who works at the University of Las Vegas along with his wife, is a seasoned skydiver. In 15 years of exhibitions and stunts, he made over 1700 successful jumps.

He portrayed his part-time "Flying Elvis" persona in the 1991 movie, "Honeymoon in Vegas" starring Nicolas Cage.

"The longest scene I've got is when Nicolas Cage is in the aircraft, we've told him the only way he's going to Las Vegas is by jumping out and we've got him sitting on a seat with the Elvis suit and parachute on. The camera pans down the row of Elvises bobbing their heads to the music. I'm the big guy right next to Nicolas Cage doing the Ray Charles impersonation.

"I look so little like Elvis, and it was supposed to be comedy anyway, none of us were ever supposed to look like Elvis, it was supposed to be all tongue and cheek and that's the way we carried it through."

Sayles had completed about 700 or 800 jumps over a six or seven year period, Bozarth said. He had recently put on a charity event for the "Make A Wish" foundation in Las Vegas.

"(Ray) put together some accuracy jumping and a whole bunch of activities that a dollar from each jumper went to the Make A Wish foundation and that was two weekends before we came here and he raised a lot of money for the foundation.

"He had no other reason to do it. He was just a good guy," his friend said.

Sayles, who grew up in Ventura, California, was also an avid surfer. After his death, Sayles was cremated. Half of his ashes were scattered into the California surf off Ventura the same day Bozarth spoke to the Sun.

The other half was given to his skydiving friends. "We're going to take them up I think next week," Bozarth said.

Despite the emotional anguish and physical pain inflicted by the tragedy, the Bozarths returned home with some positive memories.

"I've got a buddy who works at one of the trauma units in Las Vegas and he called me the night after I made the decision to stay (and get treatment) and his comment was he talked to doctors in Vegas and they said this was probably the best trauma unit in the country.

"This is a great hospital. Where we're from the people are kind of laid back and they really don't need you around but the people here are just the nicest people I've ever had to deal with in my life and I've been everywhere," he said.

The Bozarths also spoke very highly of the hospitality at The Adams Inn in North Quincy, especially innkeeper Bob Galligan. The skydivers stayed at the Inn before their jump. After the accident, Susan flew out to be by her husband's bedside and was taken in by the Adams Inn staff.

Galligan made sure Susan had transportation to the hospital. He also made arrangements to get the Bozarths to the airport in a specially equipped van. The van was supplied by Bruce Ayers of Ayers Handicap Conversion Center in Squantum.

"They've been extremely accommodating," she said. "We've been really impressed. We are going to come back under much better circumstances."

Susan said her husband has a long recovery period ahead of him. "It'll be quite a while before he can go back to work and resume the regular activities his doctors say he'll be able to do. Not skydiving. He won't have the range of motion that he had up until now but we'll take one day at a time."

Bozarth said he enjoyed skydiving for the thrills. "I like wowing the crowds. It's a big kick in the pants. It really makes you feel good."

But Bozarth also knows, all too well, the inherent dangers of the sport.

"I've had a couple of friends who have died before (while skydiving). If this (back injury) hadn't happened, I would be jumping in the Las Vegas Fire Department Fireworks Show (July 4th).

"Skydiving is life. It's just life."

SUMMER CAR CARE

Car Care Tips For Older Drivers

"Don't threaten my freedom of mobility," demands an 85-year-old driver who, according to statistics, has 10 times as many accidents as drivers half his age.

Most safety experts agree that easily-renewed licenses, issued to drivers of any age and often with no testing required, contribute to this terrible highway statistic.

The vehicle, per se, can be a major factor in the driver's ability to stay out of trouble. Do streaking windshield wipers blur a senior's already failing eyesight? Has it become uncomfortable for the driver to turn his head beyond 20 degrees? Can his foot reach the brake pedal in time to avoid a crisis?

Perhaps driver condition and vehicle condition go hand in hand, suggests the Car Care Council. A more "forgiving" car, one that's capable of helping a driver avoid trouble, could make a big difference in preventing a potential accident.

Council President Don Midgley urges vehicle owners, especially older drivers, to pay attention to those vehicle functions that affect driving safety. To mention a few:

•Vision: Are all lights, including turn signals, working properly? Do windshield wipers clean the glass to prevent glare from oncoming headlights?

•Handling: Does the car stop straight and true? Is steering responsive?

•Dependability: Will the car start when you want it to? Are the tires OK or will a worn tire let you down where you can't get help? How's the spare?

While a vehicle cannot be expected to compensate for a driver's physical or mental condition, its mechanical condition can make the big difference in a driving emergency.

This point is emphasized in the American Association of Retired Persons' "55 Alive" program, which qualifies some of its 500,000-plus graduates to reduced insurance rates.

Vehicle owners of all ages can benefit from an informative pamphlet entitled "How To Find Your Way Under the Hood and Around the Car." Just send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Car Care Council, Department UH, One Grande Lake Drive, Port Clinton, OH 43452 to receive your free copy of the brochure.

How Many Fluids?

How many fluids can be checked on a typical car? Four? Six? Ten?

•Power Steering
•Cooling System (Antifreeze)
•CV Joints/Rear Axle

•Air Conditioner

All of the above except the CV joints (which should be checked for leakage) and some batteries required periodic checking and "topping off."

Which ones require changing? The engine oil, antifreeze, transmission fluid and the brake fluid.

How many require filter replacement? Generally, three: the engine oil, transmission fluid and fuel.

Late-model cars are more susceptible to trouble due to contaminated fuel and brake fluid, says the Car Care Council. The tiny orifices in fuel injection and braking systems require that the fluids passing through them be absolutely clean. For the long life and dependability of your vehicle, says the Council, check fluids regularly.

The first air conditioned cars were introduced by Packard Motors in 1939.

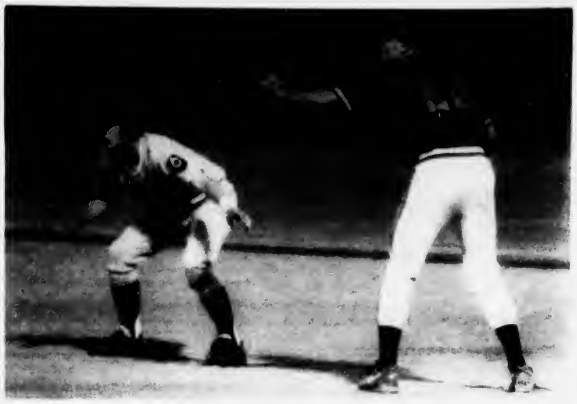
AFTER BELTING A three-run triple to center field, Morrisette's Matt McLoughlin (7) crosses the plate when the throw from center field eluded the shortstop. McLoughlin was the hitting star, collecting three hits and driving in five runs in Morrisette's win Monday night.



MORRISETTE FIRST BASEMAN Jim Cunio leads off first base as West Roxbury's Bobby Todd holds him on. Cunio, who walked twice and was hit by a pitch, scored on Matt McLoughlin's three-run triple in the second inning. (Quincy Sun photos/Tom Gorman)

McLoughlin's 3 Hits, 5 RBI Leads Offense

Morrisette Gets Even With W. Roxbury, 11-8

By LIAM FITZGERALD

After scoring just two runs off West Roxbury starter Scott McCabe in an earlier loss, Morrisette pounded the left-handed hurler for 10 runs in an 11-8 American Legion Zone 6 victory Monday night at Adams Field.

Center fielder Matt McLoughlin singled, doubled and tripled, scored three runs and drove in five to pace Morrisette's offensive attack against McCabe. Trailing 4-1 in the second, McLoughlin cleared the bases with a deep drive to center field and scored on the center fielder's errant throw to put Morrisette ahead to stay, 5-4.

In the third, Morrisette added five runs on three hits, three walks, two wild pitches and a double steal to put the game out of reach. Tom Cunio, who walked four times, led off with a walk and moved to second on Paul Marnikovic's single.

Two wild pitches later, Tom Cunio scored. Walks to Jim Cunio and Erik Fagan loaded the bases for McLoughlin, who ripped a bad-hop single over third baseman Mike Kearns' head to drive in two more runs. On a double steal, Fagan scored and McLoughlin stole second. Tim Zaniboni, who had three hits and two RBI, followed with a solid single to right, driving in McLoughlin for a 10-4 lead.

"Since the Weymouth game, the bats have started to improve," said Morrisette head coach Mark Kelleher. "We need to start to peak offensively with the playoffs coming. The pitching has been there and the defense is taking steps, so we're heading in the right direction. We're doing much better than we were on day one, but we have a long way to go if we want to cause any damage in the playoffs."

West Roxbury's McCabe, who held Morrisette to three hits in a 3-2 victory last month, took the loss Monday night, allowing nine earned runs on eight hits and walking five in three innings.

"He held us to only three hits last time, so it was nice to see we could hit the ball off him tonight," said Kelleher. "It shows that the offense is starting to come around."

Mike Kenney (4-0), who allowed six runs on six hits while walking six and striking out five in five innings, ran into trouble in the second. With the bases loaded and two outs, Will Bissonnette singled in two runs and Kearns drove in two more with a triple, but was thrown out at home to end the inning.

"When he bears down and concentrates, Mike can be a real good pitcher," said Kelleher. "He has all the tools and talent and works hard every time he pitches. He leads us in wins and has done a great job this season."

Hard-throwing reliever Chad Feetham pitched the final two innings and gave up two runs (one earned) on one hit while striking out two. Two Morrisette errors in the seventh resulted in two runs for West Roxbury before Feetham shut the door.

"Chad has done the job for us all year," said Kelleher. "He's good for three innings, throws strikes and knows his role on this team. I have total confidence in him when he takes the mound."

Following Monday's win, Morrisette (9-4-1) was scheduled to host Quincy Tuesday night, travel to Milton yesterday (Wednesday) for a 5:45 tilt, and battle Quincy again Friday at 8 p.m. at Adams Field.

Morrisette starter Joe McCarthy pitched a masterpiece against Cohasset, allowing one hit and striking out seven while going the distance in a 4-1 victory. He took a no-hitter into the seventh, allowed a hit, gave up an unearned run, then recorded a strikeout to end the game.

McLoughlin singled, doubled and tripled and drove in three runs to

'Quite An Honor,' Says Long-Time Morrisette Baseball Manager

Adams Field Dugout Named For Cattaneo

Tuesday night, before a game against rival Quincy, the third base dugout at Adams Field was named in honor of Morrisette American Legion baseball manager Ray Cattaneo, who has been involved with Morrisette baseball for 27 years.

A plaque was installed inside the dugout and a sign with the words "Raymond C. Cattaneo Dugout" was fixed to the front and back sides of the structure.

"I'm quite honored to have the dugout named after me," said Cattaneo. "It's been quite an experience coaching these kids the past 27 years. I don't know where all the time has gone, but the years have been very enjoyable."

Among the invited guests on hand were Mayor James Sheets, the Quincy City Council, the Quincy Park and Recreation Board, state Sen. Michael Morrissey and Reps. Steven Tobin, Ronald Mariano and Michael Bellotti.

Cattaneo, a Quincy native, has spent his life around the game of baseball. As a youngster, he developed his skills enough to become known as the finest ballplayer to ever come out of Quincy.

After playing in the Boston Braves farm system from 1949 to 1954, Cattaneo was one player

Junior League

Burke Club Clinches Title, Playoffs Start Saturday

The George Burke Club clinched the American League title, improving to 17-3 with three victories in recent Quincy Junior League action.

In a 19-5 win over Beacon Sports, the Burke Club's Justin Hall (4-for-4, 3-run homerun, 2 doubles, 6 RBI) and Peter Turowski (3-run triple, double, single, 4 RBI) swung hot bats. Turowski also pitched and earned the victory.

Table setters Dan Duggan and Pat Bregoli scored 3 and 5 runs, respectively. Joe Sudak (2-for-3) nailed a double and had 2 RBI while Mark Dondero also had 2 RBI. Dan and Bill Cosgrove also had 2 hits apiece for the victors.

Beacon was paced by Bruce Maggio, Chris Selter and Mike Cafano, who had 2 hits apiece. Rob Kenneson, Keith Austin and Tom Hughes drove in runs for Beacon.

Hall fired a no-hitter, striking out 11 as the Burke Club romped over Keohane's, 13-0. Hall, who has 106 strikeouts this season, allowed only one ball out of the infield. He also combined with Bregoli in turning a pitcher-to-short-to-first double play.

Burke scored 8 runs in the first, highlighted by Bill Cosgrove's three-run triple and Duggan's two-run double. Sudak ripped a two-run homer in the second, scoring Turowski, who had singled. Hall, Randy Jacobs and Brian Rooney each drove in a run for Burke.

Burke's Bregoli was nearly as flawless in a 6-0 blanking of Colonial Federal, striking out 10 and allowing only 2 hits. Bregoli was aided by some outstanding defensive plays by left fielder Sean Moriarty, who made a diving catch, and Rooney, who ranged into deep right center to haul in an extra-base bid.

Hall led the offense, collecting 2 hits and driving in 3 runs. Bregoli and Duggan scored 2 runs apiece and Turowski drove in 2 runs.

In other action, the Jaehnig Chiropractic Club increased its winning streak to six with three recent victories.

Mark Maher, who came within one out of pitching a no-hitter, also hit a two-run homerun to lead the Chiropractic Club to an 8-1 victory over Kiwanis. Keith Doherty broke up the no-hitter with a solid single up the middle.

Patrick Jaehnig supplied the power for the Chiropractic Club with his third grand slam of the season and fourth in his career. He also doubled, singled and scored three runs. Leadoff hitter Chris Ham collected a double and a single and scored twice. Jeff Butts, Marc Tobin and Steve Kelley also had base hits for the victors.

Erik Maginnis played a solid game at second base and Dan Sheehan pitched a good game for Kiwanis.

Pat Jaehnig won his seventh game of the season, scattering four hits and striking out seven. He helped his own cause with two singles. Mark Maher came off the bench to deliver a clutch two-out, opposite-field double to drive in two runs. Chris Ham had three hits and scored two runs and Derek Keezer went two-for-two. Pat O'Brien, Pat Maxey, Steve Kelley, Jeff Butts and Sleeth each hit safely.

Bruce Maggio had two hits and drove in Beacon's only run. Robbie Kenneson added a double and Tom Hughes chipped in with a single. Mike Feetham was the hard-luck losing pitcher, while Keith Austin, Matt Grazioso, Billy Croke and Mike Cafano played well defensively.

Mark Maher (three hits) and Bryan Thornton (two hits) both blasted long homeruns to lead the Chiropractic Club to a 25-7 romp over Burgin Platner. Patrick Jaehnig went five-for-five with three doubles and five runs scored and Chris Ham went three-for-three and also scored five runs. Brandon Sleeth, who was the winning pitcher, also smashed two hits and collected five RBI.

Patrick O'Brien and Patrick Maxey had two hits apiece while Tom Buckley, Derek Keezer and Jeff Butts each singled. Buckley and Dave Buttomer pitched well in relief. Kyle Cormody continued to play excellent defense for the Chiropractic Club.

Cascy Winter and Paul Adams each doubled for Burgin Platner. Tom Watson and Jimmy Burke added singles and Billy Eagles was soild at first base. Dennis Thomson pitched well and hit the ball hard.

Standings: Burke Club (17-3), Kiwanis (14-6), Keohane's (14-6), Jaehnig Chiropractic (14-6), Police (12-8), Lions (11-9), Rotary (9-11), Buick (9-11), Colonial Federal (7-13), Beacon (6-14), Elks (5-15), Burgin Platner (2-18).

Bertoni Golf Memorial Sept. 9

The 8th annual Arthur and Dorothy Bertoni Memorial Golf Tournament will be held Monday, Sept. 9 at the Halifax Country Club.

The tournament, which benefits the Quincy Visiting Nurse Association, raised over $11,000 last year.

Tee time is at 8 a.m. with coffee and doughnuts preceding at 7:30 a.m. A luncheon is also scheduled following the tournament.

Dozens of prizes for first, second, third and fourth place teams, attendance prizes and a hole-in-one prize sponsored by South Shore Buick will be offered.

Sponsorship opportunities are available for businesses and individuals.

For more information about sponsoring or registering for the tournament, call Bill Shea at 471-9130 or Stephen Robbins at 472-2828.

Cerebral Palsy To Host Basketball Tourney

Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore will host a Three-On-Three Basketball Tournament Aug. 10 at North Quincy High School.

The tournament will hold three divisions: the "Pro" division (some college experience or the equivalent), the "Amateur" division (the weekend/recreation player), and an Under 18 division. There will also be a slam-dunk contest and a three-point shoot-out contest.

The one-day event will benefit children with disabilities from Cerebral Palsy's Children's Developmental Disabilities Center where the children receive comprehensible rehabilitation, day care, education and social services.

Registration is $60 and teams may register a fourth (alternate) player which would cost each player only $15. The deadline to register is Aug. 5.

For more information, call 479-7443 or write to Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore, 105 Adams St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Triple A

CNA, Flavin & Flavin Post Playoff Victories

In recent Triple A Baseball action, CNA won two playoff games.

Trailing 4-0, CNA Insurance came back in the bottom of the fifth inning to score five runs and held on for an exciting 5-4 playoff win over Spillane and Epstein.

Catcher Billy Eastwick started the inning with a double, followed by right fielder Mike Tormey's RBI double. Tormey later scored on a wild pitch, and after the next two batters were retired, third baseman Mike Merlis singled to keep the rally alive.

A batter later, first baseman Billy Cox came up with two runners on and drove in the tying runs with a triple to right center. Starting pitcher Dave Grogan, who went the distance, drove in the eventual game-winning run with a clutch single.

CNA's defensive stars went to Eastwick, who threw out four runners, and second baseman Paul Hardiman, who had a putout and two assists.

Up until the fifth, Spillane starter Bill Eisan had shut down CNA, pitching brilliantly and getting ample defensive support from outfielders Eric Healy and Jonathan Mendez. The two outfielders made three fine catches. Eisan, Joe Scribi, Jonathan Mendez and Gerry Veristosky all scored for Spillane.

CNA erupted for 12 runs in the first inning en route to a 22-9 romp over Locker Room in the first playoff game for both teams.

After falling behind 3-0, CNA stormed back in the bottom of the first and added 4 runs in the second to build a 16-3 advantage. Dave Grogan, who notched the complete game victory, also paced CNA's offense with 2 hits and 3 RBI.

Eastwick also played outstanding defense with two putouts at the plate, one on Losi's throw from right, and first baseman Billy Cox started a sparkling double play to squelch a Locker Room rally.

In other action, Flavin and Flavin entered the playoffs winning two of three games.

Flavin fell to Spillane and Epstein, 12-9, then bounced back to romp over Locker Room, 24-10, and defeat CNA Insurance, 20-10. Flavin's next game is against a strong IHOP team with the winner advancing to the World Series.

Flavin's pitching staff of Brian French, Brian Eaton, Mike Boyle and Mike Delahoyd had an excellent season, combining for over 100 strikeouts.

Leading Flavin defensively were Boyle at first, Andrew Pangraze and Harvey Chan at second base, Ian Pegg at shortstop and center field, Steve Sacchetti and Justin Kusy at third base, and Norman Yaun, Billy Bent, Cory Bythrow and Mike Griffith in the outfield. Playing well behind the plate were Eaton and French. Head coach Ron French commends his squad on an all-around team effort this season.

Girls' Softball

Wisialko Reds Open Playoffs With Impressive 22-9 Win

The Wisialko Reds scored 16 runs in the first three innings en route to a 22-9 romp over Everlasting Engraving in the opening round of the Quincy Youth Girls' Softball League senior division playoffs.

Marissa Lentini paced the Reds' offense, going 5-for-5 with 2 homeruns (including a grand slam), 2 doubles and a triple. Jessica Lorman also swung a hot bat, going 5-for-6 with 2 homeruns and 2 doubles.

Other big hitters were Marisa Malvesti (2 doubles), Danielle O'Rourke (3-for-4), Michelle Pilalas (3-for-4) and Kellie Conley (2-for-3).

Winning pitcher Dierdre Jacobs, who struck out 6 and allowed just 1 hit in 3 innings, helped her own cause with 2 doubles and a triple. Lentini (catcher) and Lorman (first base) excelled defensively for the Reds.

In a losing effort, Everlasting's Heather went 3-for-4 including a double and played outstanding defensively. Also turning in solid defensive performances were Nicole Ferris and Lindsay Langille.

Ashley Fowkes and Robyn Fatseas both went 2-for-3 and Kristina Manganaro added a triple to pace D.A.R.E.'s offensive attack. Manganaro also played well defensively at first base and teammate Breanne Therrien turned in a solid performance at second base. Kerri McAteer was the winning pitcher, striking out 4. Christine Brick and Kristen Dwyer also played well for the victors.

In a losing effort, Susan Spring went 4-for-4, Beth Goodrich went 2-for-3 and Jen Ryan went 2-for-4. Korey Verhault and Lisa Shifone chipped in with doubles and Kristina Penzo excelled defensively at second base, including throwing out a runner at the plate.

D.A.R.E. reached the title game with a 6-4 victory over ServiceMaster in the semifinals. A 3-run fifth gave D.A.R.E. a four-run cushion before ServiceMaster scored two in the bottom of the sixth to make the game close.

Michelle Boyd, who struck out 8 and picked up the win for D.A.R.E., helped her own cause by going 3-for-3 at the plate. Casey Lorman went 2-for-3 and turned in a solid performance at third base.

Melissa Braga and Michelle Boyd scored 4 runs between them. Robyn Fatseas added a double and Caitlin Callahan and Tori Gardner turned in good efforts for the victors.

ServiceMaster's Maria McGiness pitched well in a losing cause, striking out 11. Alyssa Hawksley went 2-for-2 and Marybeth Bent chipped in with a double. Rachel and Rebecca Sorenson played well for ServiceMaster.

Morrisette Gets Even With West Roxbury

provide Morrisette with all the offense it would need. Brian Beaton drove in the other run with a sacrifice fly and Fagan walked three times and scored twice.

Morrisette's next game was against Weymouth, who had downed Morrisette, 3-1, earlier in the season. This time, the teams battled to a 5-5 tie when the game was called after seven innings because of darkness.

Trailing 5-3 in the sixth, Morrisette finally solved Weymouth starter Jay Estano, scoring two runs on three hits. Feetham led off with a triple and scored on Beaton's double. Zaniboni followed with an RBI single to tie the game.

In relief of Kenney, Feetham and Marnikovic shut down Weymouth in the later stages of the game. Marnikovic pitched two shutout innings to keep the tie intact.

Morrisette jumped out to a 1-0 lead in the second when Kenney walked, Tom Cunio and Marnikovic singled and Kenney scored on a wild pitch. In the third, Morrisette added two unearned runs when Tom Cunio doubled home Zaniboni, who had reached on an error, then scored on an error.

Four Morrisette errors resulted in four runs for Weymouth in the third. Trailing 3-0, Bob Sacchetti and Eric Beatrice ripped back-to-back doubles, Sean Burns hit an RBI single and Jamie Barrett walked and later scored to ignite the rally.

Weymouth's Estano, who struck out six and allowed three earned in runs in five and two-thirds innings, walked and scored Weymouth's fifth run in the fifth.

In an 8-4 loss to Braintree, Morrisette starter Jeff Russell pitched a complete game, allowing 14 hits, four walks and striking out 10. Braintree scored three runs in the first and added three more in the top of the seventh to put the game out of reach. Dave Trainor and John Marini had three hits apiece for the victors.

Braintree starter Kevin Sweeney also went the distance, allowing four runs on six hits, walking four and striking out four to pick up the win. With two outs in the seventh and runners on second and third, Sweeney struck out pinch hitter Mike Russo to end the game.

Pacing Morrisette offensively were Tom Cunio, who went two for three, and McLoughlin, who drove in two with a single in the second.

Dugout Dedicated For Cattaneo At Adams Field

away from making it to the major leagues. Unfortunately, that player was "Mr. Brave", Eddie Mathews, who went on to hit 512 home runs and make the Hall of Fame.

Upon returning home, Cattaneo devoted himself to teaching the skills that he had honed on diamonds throughout the country. In 1972, he became the coach of the Morrisette American Legion baseball team. The team's success through the years is unmatched by any local team in any sport.

In 1975, Cattaneo led the team to the American Legion National Championships in South Dakota. More importantly than teaching how to be a good ballplayer, Cattaneo taught his players how to be young men. His influence on the young men in Quincy over the years is immeasurable.

"We haven't had a losing season, and all the kids who have come through here always had winning attitudes, which made it fun to coach," said Cattaneo. "I hope the kids who come through here in the future are as good as those who have gone before."

Cattaneo also worked for the Quincy Park Department as an administrative assistant from 1972 to 1987. In 1987, he was appointed executive director of the Park, Forestry, and Cemetery Department, where he served until his retirement last year.

It was at his retirement party that it was announced that the third base dugout would be named in Cattaneo's honor.

"It was a surprise that night," said Cattaneo, who said he was pleased that Morrisette played Quincy Tuesday night, which meant only Quincy people would be involved.

"It also meant that three guys I coached, Larry Taglieri, John Cristiani and Wayne Chambers, would be here, because they coach Quincy now," said Cattaneo.

After nearly three decades of coaching Morrisette, Catteneo has no regrets, nor does he plan on retiring from any time soon.

"It's been my pleasure," said Cattaneo. "I couldn't have spent the summers in any better place then at the ballpark. I enjoy baseball, so it's not a chore to come out year after year. It's been my life since I was a little kid in Quincy."

Three Residents Win Essay, Drawing Contests Awards

Three Quincy residents recently won awards in the 1996 Lincoln Essay and Drawing Contests.

Eighth grade winners included Elaine Liu, who took third place and Christine McCarthy who earned an honorable mention. Michael Fletcher received an honorable mention at the seventh grade level.

All three residents are students at St. Agatha's School in Milton.

The contests for students in Grades K-8 are held annually by the Capt. Robert Bennet Forbes House in Milton to highlight the Abraham Lincoln and Civil War collections at the house.

BUSINESS

Sargent, Quinn Team At Bank Of Braintree

Two well known South Shore bankers have joined forces once again in Quincy.

Bank of Braintree's chairman of the board Win Sargent has relocated from Braintree to join Bob Quinn, business development officer in Quincy.

Sargent and Quinn are no strangers to the South Shore community or to each other. They enjoyed a long association at South Shore Bank where Sargent served as president and director and Quinn as senior vice president of the Commercial Division.

Sargent has over 35 years of diversified banking experience in the South Shore community. He is honorary director and chairman, Past Chairs Council of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce. He has also served as director of the Deposit Insurance Fund since 1992. He joined Bank of Braintree in 1981, working in the bank's headquarters in Braintree.

Quinn came out of retirement in 1994 to join Bank of Braintree as business development officer. He had a successful 38-year career with South Shore Bank, where he most recently served as senior vice president. He was born and raised in Quincy and has spent his entire life on the South Shore. He is past president of St. Coletta's Day School and the Neighborhood Club in Quincy.

"Both the South Shore community and Bank of Braintree have greatly benefited from Bob's knowledge and experience. I am pleased to be working with him once again in Quincy," Sargent said.

Bank of Braintree, a wholly owned subsidiary of Walden Bancorp Inc., offers a full range of commercial and consumer financial products and services to businesses and individuals through nine retail banking offices in Plymouth and Norfolk County.

Securing Windows From Burglars

This week we will discuss how to secure different types of home windows against burglary.

Double hung windows are easily jimmied or pried open. These windows can be secured by taking these simple, inexpensive precautions.

A. For Wooden Double Hung Windows Only. Drill a hole at a downward angle through the first sash and into, but not through, the second sash. Then pint the window by driving a nail into the hole. Pinning braces the window against prying. More holes can be drilled to pin the window in an open position for ventilation. Directions to this method can be obtained from the Quincy Police Crime Prevention Unit, 745-5719.

B. Keyed locks offering effective protection are available for windows. These inexpensive, easy to install, locks should replace thumb turn locks that offer little security.

If you do decide to use window locks, master key all window locks and show children how to use them. Do not use keyed locks on windows in sleeping areas.

C. A stick or wooden dowel can be wedged between the top and bottom portions of the window. The dowel may be fastened to the inside of the window with hook and loop material. This allows it to be shortened for window ventilation.

Awning type windows are hard to secure. But it is possible to provide security be tightly closing them and removing the operator handle. Keep the handle handy in case of emergency.

Casement windows provide good security. Make sure the cranking mechanism works properly and that this is no excess play between window and frame. To add more security remove the operators handle and store in a convenient place in case of emergency. Now if someone breaks the glass it will be difficult to reach inside and crank open the window.

Sliding glass windows are secured the same way as sliding glass doors. Inexpensive auxiliary locks are available from locksmiths and hardware stores.

Jalousie windows are a high security risk and should be replaced with another type of window offering more security. If replacement is impossible, install metal grating on the outside of the window. The grating should have a quick release feature for escape in case of emergencies.

Security glazing. Burglary-resistant glass and other transparent materials, which are shatter-resistant and virtually unbreakable, can be installed to replace window and door glass. These materials can give extra security against forced entry.

Contact a local glass company for advice on the best material for your home.

Schools Addressing Teen Dating Violence Issue

The Quincy Public Schools, with the assistance of a grant from the Massachusetts Department of Education, is addressing the issue of teen dating violence.

New programs taught by the Quincy Public Schools staff and the Quincy Police have been incorporated into physical education classes for ninth and 10th graders, and an in-school support group, "Dating Safely," has been extended to serve girls in Grades 9-12.

In addition, "The Yellow Dress," a one-woman play depicting the tragic consequences of an abusive dating relationship, recently was presented at Quincy High School to an invited audience of students and parents. The play was produced in memory of Deanna Brisbois--a Topsfield teen who was a victim of dating violence--and has been presented at high schools throughout the South Shore.

For more information, contact the Guidance Department at Quincy High School or North Quincy High School.

Kevin Kynock In NEH Teachers' Seminars Program

Kevin Kynock of Quincy, a teacher at Boston College High School, has been awarded a stipend by the National Endowment for the Humanities to participate in the 1996 program of Summer Seminars for School Teachers.

CLUTCH PLAY

If a clutch does not engage firmly upon release, it is possible that the disc has worn out. This component contains friction material that works much in the way that a brake lining does. When the disc's friction material wears out, the clutch slips. Before a clutch replacement is decided upon, however, it should be determined if a clutch adjustment is all that is necessary. On some cars, an incorrect adjustment may mimic a burned-out disc and a simple adjustment can return the clutch to normal working order. To see if an adjustment is necessary, depress the clutch pedal. The first inch or two of pedal travel, referred to as "free play," should come easily. After that, there should be some sudden resistance felt to the force applied to the pedal. Most clutch designs require free play, without which the clutch can slip.

HINT: The friction surface of the flywheel, against which the friction surface of the clutch disc comes in direct contact, must also be checked during a clutch job.

OBITUARIES

Robert D. Newman, 84

Editor, Author, Company Owner

A funeral service for Robert David Newman, 84, of Quincy, was held July 5 in Temple Beth El, 1001 Hancock St.

Mr. Newman died June 28 at Quincy Hospital.

He was a former editor of the Quincy Evening News.

During the 1950s, he worked as a printer for various companies.

In 1961, he founded Lion Labels, a Quincy printing company, which he operated until 1965 when he retired.

Mr. Newman was the author of Let Them Remember, a quasi-fictional book about Israel and its relationship with Palestine, which was published in 1980. In it, the author said he did not believe the Israelis could ever tolerate a Palestinian state on their borders because it would be dominated by the Palentine Liberation Organization, which he alleged was Marxist-oriented.

That some year, Mr. Newman was scheduled to go to Israel to make a documentary film on Israeli politics.

During World War II, he worked as a foreman at Boston Gear Works.

A lifelong resident of Quincy, he was a life member of Temple Beth El in Quincy and a member of the temple's Brotherhood.

He also belonged to the Lions Club in Quincy and B'nai B'rith.

Mr. Newman graduated from Quincy High School in 1928.

He and his wife, Ethel (Feldman) Newman, who survives him, had been married 57 years. He is also survived by a son and a daughter, Frank N. Newman and Deborah D. Newman, both of New York; and a grandson.

Burial was in Sharon Memorial Park.

Funeral arrangements were by the Schlossberg and Solomon Memorial Chapel, Canton.

Donations may be made to Jewish National Fund, 262 Washington St., Suite 700, Boston, MA 02108.

Afrodite Matthews, 78

Stitcher For 25 Years

A funeral service for Afrodite (Rafail) Matthews, 78, of Quincy, was held Monday in the Albanian Orthodox Cathedral of St. George, South Boston.

Mrs. Matthews died July 3 in Quincy Hospital after a brief illness.

She worked as a stitcher for 25 years in the Boston garment district before her retirement 16 years ago.

Mrs. Matthews was a member of the Daughters of St. George Bashkimi.

Born in Korce, Albania, she was educated in Albanian schools. She lived in Newton before moving to Wollaston a year ago.

Wife of the late Nicholas Matthews, she is survived by two sons, Chester Matthews of Watertown and Thomas Matthews of Braintree; three daughters, Dorothy Adams of Wollaston, Diane Minnelli of Florida and Nancy Chamo of Holden; a brother, Sam Raffail of Hyannis; 13 grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren.

Burial was in Forest Hills Cemetery, Jamaica Plain.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

Donations may be made to St. George Cathedral, 523 East Broadway, South Boston, MA 02132.

Theresa E. Gacicia, 85

Quincy License Board Secretary

A funeral Mass for Theresa E. Gacicia, 85, of Quincy, was celebrated Monday in St. John's Church.

Miss Gacicia died July 4 at home after a long illness.

She worked as a secretary to the Quincy License Board for 16 years before her retirement at age 79. Miss Gacicia was named one of the city's outstanding employees at one time and often worked 50 hours a week without extra pay.

In 16 years, she took only two sick days--to have eye surgery.

Previously, she worked as a secretary for the Navy's Office of the Judge Advocate General at the Pentagon in Washington, D.C. She held that position for 25 years and won several commendations for her service.

Born and raised in Quincy, she graduated from Quincy High School and Burdett Business School in Boston.

Miss Gacicia is survived by three brothers, Anthony Gacicia, Samuel Gacicia and Peter Gacicia, all of Quincy; and three sisters, Anna Gelardi of Providence and Mary E. D'Allesandro and Eva B. Losiewicz, both of Quincy.

Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Bolea-Buonfiglio Funeral Home, 116 Franklin St.

Donations may be made to the Alzheimer's Association and Related Disorders, 1 Kendall Square, Cambridge, MA 02139.

Constance A. Ducey, 84

Former Kindergarten Teacher

A funeral Mass for Constance A. Ducey (Reardon), 84, of Quincy, was celebrated Monday in St. Ann's Church.

Mrs. Ducey died July 6 in Colonial Nursing and Rehabilitation Center, Weymouth.

A former kindergarten teacher for many years in the Quincy schools, she retired in 1976. While raising her three sons, she worked as a substitute teacher in Boston. She graduated from Boston State College in 1969.

She was a member of the Quincy Retired Teachers Association and St. Ann's Church Women's Club. With her husband, James F. Ducey, who died in 1991, she served as a volunteer driver for Quincy Meals on Wheels.

Born in Everett, she was raised in Charlestown and summered in Scituate. She was a 1930 graduate of Girls Latin School, Boston. She moved to Quincy in 1950.

She is survived by three sons, Peter J. Ducey of Norwell, David J. Ducey of Westboro and James C. Ducey of Randolph; and two grandchildren.

Burial was private.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

Donations may be made to Boston Catholic Television, 55 Chapel St., P.O. Box 9109, Newtonville, MA 02158-9109.

Garrett M. Leonard, 52

State Court Officer; Served In Navy

A funeral Mass for Garrett M. Leonard, 52, of Quincy, was celebrated July 3 at Sacred Heart Church.

Mr. Leonard died July 1 at home.

He served in the Navy from 1960 to 1966. He then worked for the state as a court officer in Dedham.

Born in Boston, he lived in Quincy since 1950.

He was a member of Local 251, Trial Court of Massachusetts.

He is survived by his parents, Morris and Gertrude (Garrett) Leonard of Wollaston; a brother, Charles Leonard of Easton; and two sisters, Marcella Rodriguez of Medfield and Michele Lefebvre of Weymouth.

Burial was in Mount Benedict Cemetery.

John E. Andre, 88

Construction Co. President

A funeral service for John Einar Andre, 88, of Quincy, was held June 27 at Hamel, Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St.

Mr. Andre died June 25 at the Newton-Wellesley Alzheimer's Center, Wellesley.

Mr. Andre was active in local construction for many years. In 1940 he became president and treasurer of the Carl Andre and Son construction firm. He changed the name of the company to the John Andre Building Company ir. 1955. Mr. Andre closed his building company in 1972 to devote more time to Andre Realty Trust, which he formed in 1953.

He was responsible for the construction of several significant buildings in Quincy and around the South Shore. His company built the home of former Mayor Thomas Burgin near the Furnace Brook Golf Club and the Weymouth Light Company building. Mr. Andre's company also built many gas stations in Quincy and throughout New England. He also oversaw the construction of post offices in several New England towns.

During World War II, he served as assistant superintendent of constructural affairs at the Fore River Shipyard in Quincy, the Hingham Shipyard and East Boston Shipyard. He worked as a liaison between Bethlehem Steel and the Navy, monitoring cost and estimate figures.

A native of Goteborg, Sweden, Mr. Andre and his family immigrated to Quincy in 1911. He graduated from Quincy High School in 1926. He then began working for his father as a bricklayer and attended Franklin Technical School (now Franklin Institute) where he earned an associate degree in construction estimating.

Mr. Andre served in many capacities as a member of Covenant Congregational Church.

He is survived by a brother, Carl P. Andre of Maryland; a son, John M, Andre of Quincy; and two grandchildren, Jon C. Andre and Heather Orenstein. He was also the brother of the late Olga G. Eck, George H, Andre, Ellen Hurst and Anna C. Jacobson.

Burial was at High Street Cemetery, Hingham.

Donations may be made to Alzheimer's and Related Disorders, 1 Kendall Square, Cambridge, MA 02139.

Fred Comi, 90

Former Plumber

A graveside service for Fred "Duke" Comi, 90, of Braintree, formerly of Quincy, was held July 5 in Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

Mr. Comi died July 2 at Quincy Hospital after a brief illness.

Mr. Comi became a master plumber at age 18 and worked as a plumbing estimator for several plumbing and heating companies.

He coached the Quincy Manets semi-professional football team and was a member of the Quincy Wanderers team.

Born in Barre, Vt., he was raised and educated in Quincy and was a graduate of Quincy Trade School.

He is survived by his wife, Prina (Cedrone) Comi; a sister, Rose MacAllister of Holbrook; and several nephews and nieces.

Funeral arrangements were by the Bolea-Buonfiglio Funeral Home, 116 Franklin St.

Nancy E. Fraser, 52

Department Store Salesperson

A private funeral service was recently held for Nancy E. Fraser, 52, of Quincy.

Mrs. Fraser died Sunday after a brief illness.

She was a salesperson in the shoe department for Lord and Taylor department stores for 15 years.

Born in Quincy and North Quincy High School, she lived for a brief period in Marshfield and for most of her life in Quincy.

She is survived by her mother, Mary (Leppanen) Gifford; two sons, Anthony Palmer and Christopher Palmer, both of Quincy; and a sister, Ava Gifford of Florida.

Burial was private.

Funeral arrangements were by the Lydon Funeral Home, 644 Hancock St.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

We are often disappointed when we expect other persons to follow our ideas of how they should live their lives. We are disappointed because we are forgetting that each person lives life according to his or her own inner light.

Couldn't it be said that if we want to be happy and at peace in our human relationships, we must try to give other persons the same freedom of expression that we desire for ourselves? Then we find that most persons are interesting and enjoyable as they are. We come to appreciate the distinctive traits of character that different persons possess. And, most importantly, we are free from the tensions that would come if we tried to make others conform to our ideals . . .

Officer Who Saved Baby Calls Mother 'Real Hero'

4:30 a.m. and caused an estimated $100,000 damage before it was extinguished. Fire Chief Thomas Gorman said Tuesday the blaze may have been started by a candle left burning or by smoking materials in the rear room of the Leones' residence.

Leone, her husband David, and Nicholas all have been hospitalized for smoke inhalation and released. Members of the DeSouza family who also live in the duplex, who and first discovered the fire, escaped unharmed, according to Gorman.

Tobin said he and fellow Officers Pat Watkins and William O'Neill were the first to arrive at the scene Saturday. They saw David Leone--who had been separated from his wife and baby in the confusion--appear in a second floor window. When Leone shouted that his wife and baby also were trapped upstairs, Tobin went to find them while the other officers rescued Leone.

"I ran around to the side of the house, and I saw the mother up in a window holding the baby," said Tobin. "I gave my flashlight to a neighbor, and I started telling the mother, 'drop the baby, let go of the baby.'

"She didn't say a word, but she did it. She was so brave. I never took my eye off the baby. He just fell into my arms. And the funny thing was, he was crying all the way down, but as soon as I caught him, he stopped crying."

Tobin, who has played outfield for various baseball and softball teams since age 5, added, "It was the most important catch I ever made."

Tobin said he immediately handed the baby to Officer Richard Gibbons, who also had arrived on the scene. Gibbons then removed the baby from the burning property, he said.

Meanwhile, Firefighter Peter DiBona was able to carry Christine Leone down a ladder to safety, Tobin said.

Mrs. Leone expressed gratitude not only to Tobin, but also to the other officers and firefighters at the scene as well as the members of the DeSouza family who first alerted the Leones to the fire's existence.

While Tobin has received much of the credit for the saving the baby during the blaze, he said the others at the scene deserve equal recognition.

"Pat Watkins, Billy O'Neill, Richie Gibbons, the firefighters, the ambulance crews, they all did a great job," he said. "Any officer would have done the same thing. I was just lucky to be there."

During a recent visit to The Quincy Sun, however, Tobin's daughters Brittney, 10, Meagan, 6 and Colleen, 4 and niece Kaitlyn Pudder, 8, disagreed.

"I'm proud of my father," said Brittney. "It was nice of him to do what he did."

Tobin, Watkins, O'Neill and Gibbons all received commendations for bravery Monday from Police Chief Francis Mullen.

A fund has been established to help the Leone family. Donations may be sent to The Leone Family Fire Fund, c/o Citizens Bank, 77 Granite St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Four Police Officers Who Saved West Quincy Family Commended For Bravery

Four Quincy police officers credited with saving the lives of a West Quincy family have been commended for their bravery and heroism by Chief Francis Mullen.

Officers Brian Tobin, Lane Watkins, William O'Neill and Richard Gibbons responded to a house fire at 15 Kidder St. July 6. Upon their arrival, they observed flames and heavy black smoke.

According to Mullen, a male party was leaning out of a second floor window so Officer Watkins kicked open the front door in an effort to enter but he was driven back by heavy black smoke. Officers O'Neill and Watkins convinced the man to come out the window.

With Officer O'Neill standing on the railing of the stairs, Officers Watkins and O'Neill were able to grab the male party who was hanging out the window and lower him to safety.

Officer Brian Tobin, who learned from the male party that his wife and baby were still in the house, ran to the side of the residence where he observed a female leaning out a second floor window. After Officer Tobin asked the female where the baby was, she disappeared and returned to the window with the baby.

Officer Tobin instructed the woman to place the baby out the window and drop it to him. She did as Officer Tobin suggested and Officer Tobin caught the baby and handed it to Officer Gibbons who immediately sought medical assistance. Officers Tobin and Watkins then assisted the Fire Department in placing a ladder to the window of the trapped female, at which time the Fire Department was able to take her out safely.

"As a result of their brave, outstanding performances which resulted in saving the lives of this family, Officers Brian Tobin, Lane Watkins, William O'Neill and Richard Gibbons are all hereby commended," Mullen said. "In behalf of the entire department and the citizens of Quincy, I want to recognize you for your heroic efforts above and beyond the line of duty."

Coordinator Named For Downtown

recruiting suitable companies for Quincy Center and developing and implementing a marketing a promotional campaign for the downtown area.

QCBPA President Daniel Flynn said he is happy with the selection of Arons.

"The members of the QCBPA are looking forward to working with Bruce and supporting his effort in getting business owners and property owners to participate in the Quincy Center revitalization programs that are being planned by Quincy 2000 and the QCBPA," said Flynn.

Mayor James Sheets voiced similar sentiments.

"There's no question that a city's health is often measured by the vitality of its central business district," he said. "The hiring of a Quincy Center development coordinator will allow Quincy 2000 to assign a specific staff member to the task of revitalizing Quincy Center while the organization maintains a citywide focus.

"Quincy 2000 and the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association have embarked on a cooperative effort which will benefit the City of Quincy," Sheets added.

High Rise renewed their license Dec. 1995 which is valid for a year. They have been closed since Jan. 1996.

James Timmins, an assistant city solicitor suggested a hearing to evaluate whether High Rise has a new premise and to narrow down the time frame.

Board members discussed the possibility of revoking High Rise license and then issuing a new license to the Agnitti's, but Shea said he has "knowledge that owners of High Rise are working on acquiring a new location."

Lawrence Agnitti, calling himself the "king of compromise" told the board that contractors who were waiting to renovate the establishment are already contemplating "going to another job" because of the delay. He said a demolition permit had already been issued.

The hearing is scheduled for July 23.

Bequeaths Nearly $1 M To Union Congregational

he said.

When asked if he knew how wealthy she was, he noted, "No. I suspected she probably had a good amount of money, but not that much."

Rev. Swanson said when Bryant died, he thought she might leave the church an endowment of about $50,000. When a member of the church's board of trustees told the pastor he suspected the amount might be close to $1 million, Rev. Swanson laughed.

"I said, 'Yeah, right,'" he recalled with a laugh. "So I bet him a lunch there was no way the amount would be that high. Then I found out in May about the endowment, and I had to buy him lunch."

Mrs. Bryant did not offer many specifics about how to spend the money, according to Rev. Swanson.

"Her only specifications were that it be used for the benefit of the church, and that the principle not be touched," he said. "So we will work out of the interest."

The money will be tied up for legal reasons and unavailable to the church for about a year, he added.

Rev. Swanson, pastor of Union Congregational for the past three years, said the church's funds had already begun to stabilize in the last year. The church, which has a weekly attendance of about 60 people--up 10 percent from 1995--oversees an annual budget of about $84,000.

Rev. Swanson said after thinking about the endowment for the last two months, he decided to go public with the story of Mrs. Bryant's gift.

"I just thought people should know," he said. "She still has a lot of friends in the church, including members of the Sara M. Ayers Society, a social group she founded. She was such a dear lady."

contaminated by sewage. Swimming in polluted waters can cause skin rashes, gastrointestinal illness or eye irritations, she added.

Health officials consider water unsafe when tests find 200 or more colonies of fecal coliform per 100 millimeters of water.

According to Timilty, MDC officials suspect that runoff from a nearby sewage outfall pipe caused high bacteria counts in the Sachem Street section of Wollaston Beach in tests taken July 2.

Developer To Appeal Council Decision On Marina Bay Project

The owner of Thorndike Development in Braintree has vowed to appeal the City Council's 8-1 vote last week to reject his plan to build condominiums at Marina Bay.

Developer Lloyd Geisinger made his comments following last week's council meeting. At press time, however, it was unknown if Geisinger had filed his appeal and he was unavailable for comment.

Under the law, Geisinger has up to 20 days after the council officially files its decision to appeal to the state's Land Court or Superior Court. A judge could overturn the council's vote.

Opponents of the project, however, are calling last week's vote a major victory. The council's decision marked the first time since it created the Planned Unit Development (PUD) process in the 1970s that it has rejected a proposal.

About 100 people packed the City Council Chambers to attend the special meeting.

Leading the council opposition to the plan was Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers, whose ward would become the home of the 268 condominiums Geisinger has proposed for the 17-acre site.

The main thrust of Ayers' argument was the developer's decision not to include a large public walkway through the middle of the property. The so-called Promenade was granted to the city as part of a development approved in the mid-1980s, but never was built.

Ayers also voiced objection to the amount of on-street parking and the impact of increased traffic on Marina Drive, the only roadway into Marina Bay's two condominium developments. He said the proposal would place too many buildings on the property and would be detrimental to the neighborhood.

In all, Ayers listed 21 problems he had with the project.

The only councillor to vote in favor of the project was Councillor Michael Cheney. He said he thought the problems Ayers had with the project could be worked out. Cheney also warned that the city could lose a court battle over the matter.

Other councillors, however, disagreed. Ayers said he worked with the city solicitor's office in putting his objections into legally defensible positions.

Morrisette Post Finds New Home On Ricciuti Drive

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The Cyril P. Morrisette Legion Post, well known in the city at 54 Miller St., West Quincy, for nearly 60 years, has found a new home and will move to 294 Ricciuti Drive. The number of the street is the same as the post.

A car dealership, Saturn, had purchased the Morrisette building and completely demolished it constructing a new building on the old site.

Atty. Carl Johnson, representing the post showed plans to the board explaining that the building, which will be 6,000 square feet will be pre-fab and a modular unit. Johnson said once it got started, it would take a shorter time than most buildings because of its design.

The post, which is the third largest legion post in Massachusetts had originally planned to relocate to Quarry Street in West Quincy, but plans were scrapped because of environmental problems.

The new building on Ricciuti drive according to Johnson, will be an "asset to West Quincy and Morrisette."

Bob Lotterhand, treasurer of the Morrisette Corporation told the board the the post has always supported charitable projects while Jack Beaton, a member of the corporation said the post has "always been available for different group meetings."

Lotterhand said the function room will hold about 150 persons, but added "we're out of the function hall business."

William Mahar, who will be the manager of the post was unable to attend Tuesday's meeting.

Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico spoke in support of the new post and praised their efforts to relocate in West Quincy.

Mariano Secures $18,500 For Shipyard Workers

State Rep. Ronald Mariano has secured $18,500 in assistance for 18 former workers of the Fore River shipyard in Quincy Point.

The Massachusetts House of Representatives last week passed its Deficiency Budget, which included Mariano's amendment for that amount.

Mariano said when the shipyard closed in 1985, the displaced workers were entitled to receive state-funded plant closing benefits under the Re-employment Assistance Benefits (RAB) program. In 1986, they filed a class action lawsuit that resulted in positive decisions for 18 workers to receive benefits.

"Unfortunately, the funding for the RAB benefits ran out some time ago, making it impossible for these employees to receive the benefits they are entitled to," he said. "The program just ran out of money."

Mariano acknowledged that the workers, who will receive a little more than $1,000 apiece, have waited a long time for the funding.

"It has been a long battle to get these workers the money they deserve," he said. "In paying these benefits, the Legislature recognizes the difficult circumstances these workers have been through as a result of the shipyard's closing.

Harry Beede Bequeaths Endowment To QRTA

Principal Leaves Over $1 Million For Scholarships

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The Quincy Retired Teachers Association (QRTA) has received an endowment totaling more than $1 million from a longtime Quincy Public Schools educator who died earlier this year.

Harry Beede, a former principal at three Quincy schools and science teacher at what is now Quincy High School, has bequeathed a total of $1,022,000 to the association, according to QRTA Secretary Bill Phinney. The money will be used to benefit the association's scholarship fund.

Beede died April 7 at age 84 at his home in Palm Harbor, Fla. Phinney said he learned of the endowment last week.

"He was an educator who was obviously very concerned about the kids," said Phinney, a former Quincy assistant school superintendent who served as assistant principal under Beede at Broad Meadows Junior High School.

Phinney added that Beede and his wife Louisa, a former Quincy podiatrist, had no children of their own and therefore made the students a top priority in their lives.

"The two of them were just devoted to the school children," he said. "It's kind of a nice story. They didn't have any children of their own, so they adopted the kids in the Quincy Public Schools.

"Harry was a great guy, a very quiet, mild-mannered man who was very devoted to the kids. All the kids will benefit from this (endowment)."

Currently, the QRTA has $400,000 in its scholarship account, and it awards annual scholarships to students from North Quincy High School and Quincy High School out of the account's interest, Phinney said. Last year, he noted, the association awarded 27 scholarships totaling about $800 apiece.

At 1212 Hancock St.

College Could Own Building By August

Quincy College could acquire the former Elks building at 1212 Hancock St. in Quincy Center by next month and have it operating as the school's "front door" by Jan. 1, according to Dr. Jeremiah Ryan, college president.

The purchase price likely will fall between $2 million and $2.25 million, he added. The deal would require the approval of the college's Board of Governors and City Council funding.

Ryan said at press time he is confident it is only a matter of weeks before the deal is completed.

"I'm very optimistic," he said. "We have a 'gentlemen's agreement' with the owner that it will happen. We think we have an agreement, in concept, on a price."

The Board of Governors will meet within the next two weeks to discuss the issue, according to Ryan, and he will recommend that the building be purchased. If the board agrees, and reaches a figure the building's owner--Alain Checroune, president of Boston-based United Real Estate Investors--can live with, the college will ask Mayor James Sheets to request a $3 million bond issue from the City Council in September.

Ryan said he anticipates the board's full cooperation in the matter. Sheets already has expressed his support.

Ryan said because of an agreement with the owner, he could not discuss the specifics of the deal. He did say, however, that the final purchase price likely will fall between the $2 million the college offered last month and the $2.25 million he says the owner is seeking.

The balance of the $3 million bond issue would fund needed renovations around the college's existing downtown campus, Ryan added.

Ryan would not discuss the matter of 62 parking spaces at the college and whether they should be included in the sale price being negotiated, an issue that has caused disagreement.

He noted, however, that the college plans to reimburse the city for any money that is bonded.

Central Students Receive American Legion Awards

The 1996 American Legion School Awards were presented at the annual awards ceremonies of Central Middle School held recently at the Quincy High Auditorium.

Winners, announced by Quincy Post 95, were Frances M. Ronayne, mayor of the eighth grade graduating class and David A. Constantine.

Robert Leo Eng, past state commander and past commander of Quincy Post 95, chairman, represented Commander James W. Hartford. Assisting were Past Commander Warren J. Demers and David G. Wood of Post 95.

School Principal Louis DiMartinis and Assistant Principal Kevin Marks were assisted in the selection by the Central Middle School faculty.

Joseph Mannarino, executive director of Quincy 2000, announces the closing of a $25,000 loan to The Schuerch Corporation through the Quincy 2000 Loan Pool.

The corporation, founded by entrepreneur Peter Schuerch, designs and manufactures low cost equipment for the medical community.

Currently, Schuerch Corporation focuses on the marketing and sale of the Schure Side and the Schure Foot and accessories, two of the corporation's devices which are in use in hospitals, by ambulance companies and other health organizations. The products are currently being sold to national wholesalers, distributors and mail order houses, although Schuerch noted that they will soon be marketed directly to the end users.

"The current state of the medical industry provides an environment in which the company can increase its capacity," he said. "By providing innovative and low cost alternatives to current equipment and inventing new ones, Schuerch Corporation has positioned itself to be a major supplier of medical equipment."

Prior to receipt of the loan funds, Schuerch said, he was struggling to meet the production demands because of a lack of available capital. After reading about Quincy 2000's small business development programs, he sought help in developing his business plan and financial statements.

Schuerch received assistance by participating in the Quincy 2000 Technical Assistance to new and existing Quincy-based firms in developing business plans. Once his business plan was completed, it was reviewed and approved by the Quincy 2000 Loan Pool.

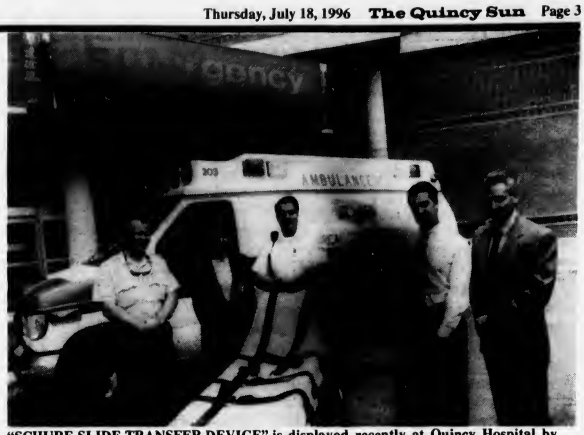
The award of the loan enables the Schuerch Corporation to take his business out of the home and establish an office in Quincy.

"The loan funds will be used primarily for working capital during the corporation's development and growth stages to enable Schuerch to focus on meeting market demands and developing new products," said Greg Glennon of Citizens Bank, chairman of the Quincy 2000 Loan Pool.

Mannarino added, "This loan represents a commitment by the local banks, which fund the Quincy 2000 Loan Pool, in that they are willing to invest in an incubating Quincy industrial manufacturer. We expect that this small amount of seed money from the Loan Pool will assist the Schuerch Corporation in growing its business and employment in the City of Quincy.

"The health care industry is vital to the Massachusetts and Quincy economy. By producing low cost, innovative products for the medical community. Schuerch Corporation is meeting the needs of this important industrial sector."

"My company is committed to Quincy and I expect it to be a positive economic force in the city," said Schuerch. "The company currently uses Quincy-based manufacturers to produce its products."



"SCHURE SLIDE TRANSFER DEVICE" is displayed recently at Quincy Hospital by inventor Peter Schuerch (second from right), owner of The Schuerch Corporation. The plastic device helps EMTs transfer patients to and from ambulances. Schuerch Corp., which designs and manufactures low cost equipment for the medical community, recently received a $25,000 loan through the Quincy 2000 Loan Pool. Also in photo from left are EMT Michael Dowd, Kristen Manchester of the hospital's Public Relations Department, EMT Timothy Routhier and Quincy 2000 Executive Director Joseph Mannarino.

The $5 million Quincy 2000 Loan Pool, established in November 1994, is funded by 12 local and regional banks. To date, the Loan Pool has provided approximately $830,000 in loans to small businesses in Quincy.

"Although I feel the Loan Pool has provided much-needed capital to the business community and it has retained and increased employment in the city, I believe we have yet to to realize the Loan Pool's full potential," said Mannarino. "Therefore, Quincy 2000 is embarking on a more aggressive outreach program to encourage greater participation of existing and new businesses in the city."

Mannarino said in particular, a more streamlined approach is being planned for loans of less than $40,000. In addition, the process of screening loan requests will be handled more effectively, and Quincy 2000 plans to loan approximately $750,000 this year.

Any new or expanding business in Quincy seeking funds to grow can call Quincy 2000 at 847-1454 to ask about the Loan Pool Program.

Two Decorated Veterans To Speak At Korean War Memorial Dedication

Two prominent guest speakers have been lined up for the dedication of a new Korean War Veterans Memorial to be dedicated Saturday, July 27 at noon in front of Veterans Memorial Stadium, Hancock Street and Southern Artery, Quincy.

They are: retired Marine Corps Lt. Col. Frank Colleton, a 1945 graduate of North Quincy High School and heavily decorated veteran of three wars, and Paul Comi, a NQHS Class of 1949 graduate who received three Purple Hearts for his Army service in Korea.

John "Butch" Mahoney, chairman of the committee behind the memorial and social health coordinator for the Quincy Public Schools, said he is pleased to have not only one but two outstanding keynote speakers for the memorial dedication.

"I've known both of them all my life, and I felt it would be a good inspiration for the kids," said Mahoney. "I know that anything those two guys have to say will be a good message."

Each will have interesting tales to tell, he added. Colleton will be able to speak of his service at the end of World War II as well as two tours in Korea and three in Vietnam that won him numerous awards, including a Silver Star Medal, Bronze Star Medal, Purple Heart Medal and others.

Comi, meanwhile, a retired actor who has been in more than 600 motion pictures and television shows, has had unique experiences of his own, Mahoney said.

"Paul was actually at Pork Chop Hill in Korea when it happened, and then was in the movie 'Pork Chop Hill' that they made about it later," he noted.

City officials, including Mayor James Sheets, also are expected to attend the event.

The Korean War Veterans Memorial will stand as a permanent tribute to the 38 Quincy men who died in what is sometimes referred to as "the forgotten war."

Mahoney said more than $40,000 was collected for the project through various fund-raisers and the sale of items such as flagpoles, benches, memorial bricks, T-shirts, key chains and lapel pins.

Mahoney added that the money raised, combined with a number of in-kind services, will be enough to make the memorial project come to fruition. Among those who are assisting with the project, he noted, are union bricklayers and ironworkers, a local landscaping firm, and others.

Any additional monies raised will be used to help defray "hidden costs" and to maintain the upkeep of the memorial site, Mahoney said.

The planned 10-ton black granite memorial was designed by Jack Monti of A. Monti Granite Co. of Quincy. A model of the finished project was unveiled in front of the stadium during a groundbreaking ceremony on June 25, 1994, the 46th anniversary of the day the Korean War started.

The foundation for the memorial has been put in by Derbes Bros. of Quincy, Mahoney said.

The memorial will be dedicated on the anniversary of the armistice which ended the war, which was signed July 27, 1953. Mahoney noted that the official Korean War era, however, did not end until Jan. 31, 1955.

Originally, the Korean War Veterans Memorial Committee had hoped the ceremony could, like the 1994 groundbreaking, take place on June 25. For various reasons, however, July 27 was eventually chosen as the date for the event.

Donations may be sent to the Korean War Memorial Fund, P.O. Box 0161, Quincy, MA 02169. For more information about bricks or other items for sale, call 773-4333.

First Lady Or Co-President?

I don't often wander outside of Quincy in this column.

And, maybe I shouldn't today because I have a feeling I am going to get some flak for even thinking what I am thinking.

But here goes:

I really think if the wife of a Presidential candidate intends to be Co-President instead of First Lady, she should be up front about it. Tell the voters before the election. Not have them find out about it after.

Maybe somewhere along the campaign trail she might let her hair down with a little frankness. Something like: "I really don't intend to be a Martha Washington or a Bess Truman or a Pat Nixon. I want to be where the action is."

If that's what she wants and says so, the press could then zero in to place her under the same close scrutiny as it would her husband.

CLINTON

If she wants to be half of the show, the voters are entitled to know as much about her as they do about the other half.

Four years ago, Bill Clinton was campaigning with this line: "Buy one, get one free."

Well, that's a pretty good deal--at the supermarket. And, you at least know what the free one is. It has the same label on it.

HILLARY

Four years ago, I don't think most people realized what they were about to get free.

They thought they were getting an intelligent, articulate First Lady in Hillary Rodham Clinton.

Maybe I'm wrong but what they got, it appears, is an intelligent, articulate, aggressive, powerful, controversial, unpopular Co-President.

She has become probably the most powerful female occupant of the White House ever. And got there without a single vote in her name in the election.

There have been other strong women in the White House. Among them, Abigail Adams, Edith Wilson, Eleanor Roosevelt and Nancy Reagan. But none with Hillary's apparent clout.

ELEANOR

Hillary's favorite First Lady seems to be Eleanor Roosevelt with whom she sort of "consults" at times. I believe she would like to have you think of her as another Eleanor Roosevelt.

They do have one thing in common: critics. But Eleanor was a First Lady, not a co-president. She advised but Franklin Roosevelt made the decisions. Hillary is no Eleanor Roosevelt and Bill Clinton is no FDR.

Maybe we have come to the point where a husband and wife should run as a Presidential candidates team. Put her name on the ballot beside his. Let the people decide if they want them as co-presidents.

What about the vice president? It would leave him out. But vice presidents have been left out of things pretty much down through the years. Once the campaign and election are over, the vice president usually isn't seen or heard from again until the next campaign or a president dies.

Our own John Adams, the first vice president pretty much sized up the importance of the job when he observed it was the most senseless or useless ever created. Or words to that effect.

J. ADAMS

Maybe we will never see husband-wife teams on the ballot.

But at least we should have the wives meet in a series of debates each election year. That way we could pretty much tell whether we were getting a traditional First Lady or a Co-President.

Hillary and Elizabeth Dole squaring off on TV would certainly liven things up this year. They probably would keep us tuned in longer than say Al Gore or a Dan Qualye would.

And maybe bring out a bigger vote.

Phinney noted that the scholarship account was started with a $1,000 donation by retired Quincy High School teacher Warren Findley about 12 years ago.

The number of scholarships will increase next year because of Beede's gift, Phinney said. He would not speculate how many more scholarships will be offered, saying that must be decided by the QRTA Scholarship Committee.

Beede, a QRTA member, was principal of Broad Meadows Junior High School (now Broad Meadows Middle School) from the time it opened in 1957 until his retirement in 1970. He was involved in the design, planning and building of the school.

During his 34 years in the Quincy school system, he also served as principal of Central Junior High School (now Central Middle School) and North Quincy Junior High School (now North Quincy High School), where he worked 14 years starting in 1935 as a science teacher. A Quincy native, he was a graduate of Quincy High School, Northeastern University and Boston University.

Hospital Childbirth Classes Begin July 27

Quincy Hospital will offer first-time and refresher childbirth classes beginning Saturday, July 27.

The first-time childbirth class covers labor and delivery, breathing, relaxation, post partum and baby care. The refresher course reviews several sections of the first-time class for women who are having another child.

Weekend classes are scheduled for July 27 and 28 and again on Sept. 21 and 22 and will run from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. each day.

Six-week classes will be held Aug. 27 through Oct. 1 and Oct. 22 through Nov. 26 and are held one evening each week for two hours.

Cost is $100 for the first-series, $50 for the refresher course. Advance registration is required and space is limited. For more information or to register, call 376-4018.

In 1900 newborn girls could be expected to live two years longer than boys. By 1981, girls were expected to live 7.6 years longer.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS POSTCARD IS an early 1930's view of what was then known as the Canoe Club on the south beach near the public landing at the far end of Houghs Neck. These buildings have changed quite a bit over the years mostly from storms but they all still survive as private residences. They are not visible from this seaside view but Thomas Lane comes in from Sea Street on the left and Harvey's Wharf road is on the right. Canoes could also be rented in Quincy, at this time, at Blacks Creek in Merrymount and near Bethel Beach on the Town River.

It's A Grand Old Flag

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The article on Flag Day's celebration, Quincy's wonderful parade and the Adams Field ceremony was a special experience for me.

I had selected a seat early in the bleachers--to be sure of a good view--when a request was made for volunteers. I wasn't sure of the kind of volunteering I was to be involved in, but several of us made up a team and went out onto the field. As it turned out, we were given the task of hauling the huge Mt. Rushmore flag from its storage box.

A huge crane was in position to raise the flag up as we each unfurled it in our arms, and as it gradually was raised, I was truly overcome by emotions and the enormous size of the flag itself. The heartfelt emotions I experienced as the national anthem was being played, and as each of us waved this huge emblem of freedom in a rippling "wave," words cannot convey.

I recall that many years ago, as a housemother at an academy in Fryeburg, Maine, each September I reminded the new freshmen in my dorm that they were not only guests in my dorm home--some were also guests in my country.

Yes, I am a "flag waver." And on June 15, 1996, was I ever!

Encourages Encore Of Adams Mansion Event

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Congratulations to the folks at the Adams Mansion for an outstanding July 4th event. I had read about the reenactment of the Declaration of Independence in last week's Quincy Sun, and thought that would be an interesting event to watch. Little did I know I would soon be representing Massachusetts, with men, women and children of all ages and backgrounds, and debating what would go into the final Declaration of Independence.

When I got there, I was assigned to the Massachusetts delegation, and was assigned the role of Elbridge Gerry, a stubborn patriot (actually, everyone in the Massachusetts delegation--Thomas Paine, Sam Adams and John Hancock--were stubborn. We were given information about the character we were to play (level of stubbornness, etc.), and proceeded to reenact the negotiations and final vote for the Declaration of Independence. We even got to sign it at the end. Then they gave us our own copies of the Declaration and "indepencils" so we could write back to our colonies to tell them what we did.

Thanks to the Adams Mansion for a wonderful event. And please, please do it again next 4th of July.

NQHS Girls' Soccer Team Thanks Supporters

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The North Quincy High School girls' soccer team would like to thank all of those people who brought/saved their bottles and cans and helped make our bottle and can drive a tremendous success.

Our goal of $1,000 was achieved! This will help significantly the girls' trip to Orlando, Fla. for their pre-season training.

Many thanks, also, to the players and their family members who worked so hard during the drive.

Anyone wishing to make a donation for the girls and their trip can send a check made out to N.Q. Red Raiders Soccer Club and mail the money to Paul Bregoli, 80 Willow Ave., Quincy, MA 02170.

City Offices Close For Moon Landing

July 18 - 24 1969 27 Years Ago

By PAUL HAROLD

Mayor James McIntyre joined Gov. Francis Sargent in closing municipal offices so employees could celebrate the moon landing on Monday.

Supt. Lawrence Creedon cancelled summer school classes, while Sheriff Charles Hedges allowed inmates at the Dedham jail to stay up beyond their bedtime to watch the landing. Judge Kenneth Nash of Quincy District Court, who also served as chief justice of the district courts, ordered all 72 district courts to adjourn after arraignments.

BANK ANNOUNCES PLAN FOR N.Q. COMPLEX

The board of directors of State Street Bank gave formal approval for a $100 million data processing complex in North Quincy.

The new facility was expected to create 3,000 jobs with an addition to the city's tax base that would allow for a $10 to $15 drop in the tax rate.

'ACCIDENTAL' STRIKE AT SHIPYARD

An "accidental" strike took place at the main gate of the General Dynamics shipyard, lasting 90 minutes.

While negotiations were going on, shop stewards were told to stand by for possible action. Somehow, 50 workers carrying "On Strike" signs appeared at 5:30 a.m. at the main gate. They were withdrawn, however, within minutes before the 7 a.m. arrival of the 6,500 man first shift.

QUINCY-ISMS

After nine months of negotiations, the city and police finalized a two-year contract. It provided for a six percent raise retroactive from January with a six percent raise beginning in September. Reports were that the 27-page agreement was not settled "amiably."..To prevent development by the city of Boston, the City Council, at the urging of Councillor Vincent Smyth, rezoned Moon Island from industrial B to residential A... The City Council took under advisement an offer by the Quincy Housing Authority to build a 150-200 unit elderly building on the municipal parking lot on Clay St. Ward 5 Councillor Walter Hannon questioned if it was the best use for the land since two private developers were interested in the land for two projects estimated at $3 million and $6 million... Five candidates filing for the fall election were Louis Caruso for Ward 3 councillor, George Litif for Ward 5, Joseph Shea for Ward 4, Warren Harrington for Ward 2, Herb Cole for Councillor-at-large and James Harrington for School Committee... Diane Affsa married John Mahoney, Jr... A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilson of Grandview Ave. and a son to Mr. and Mrs. Ioannis Demetropoulos of Fayette St. at Quincy City Hospital... A neighborhood carnival for Muscular Dystrophy was held at the Apthorp St. home of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Allman. Their son, Kenneth and Joseph, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kane of Warwick St., served as ringmaster. They were assisted by David Allman, Eddie Kane, Ann Marie Kane, Robbin Menz, David Flynn, Adalaide Durkin and Margie Durkin... Seventy-five dollars was raised for MD by Germantown youths: David Hancock, Rick and Barbara Inman, Mary, Nancy and Eddie Long and Christine Campbell... A one-day malt and beer license was granted to the Nickerson Post... The License Board granted Kenneth Johnson permission to open the Deli-Haus on Hancock St... Paul Ladas presented a petition, signed by 77 area residents, asking the park Board to keep the Whitwell St. playground at its new location. It was moved from Cranch St. because the area was entirely blacktopped... Nancy Perito, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Perito of Quincy Shore Drive, was studying at the University of the Americas in Mexico City... Ward 4 Councillor Albert Barilaro called for the city DPW to take action to stop swimming at the quarries, following the recent death of a Quincy boy... The McCabe brothers of the Wollaston Yacht Club led in the Blue Hustler division... Bob McKay of the Elks and Jim Walker of the Fire Department baseball teams helped the Quincy All-Stars defeat Somerset 5-0... Despite the Planning Board's recommendation against it, the City Council voted to sell city-owned land on Broad St. to the Bryan V.F.W. Post... Robert Page of Edison St. announced his candidacy for Ward 2 councillor.

Coffee Break Cake

While helping out recently at a neighborhood yard sale, we had a welcomed coffee break with cake.

The cake was so different and not as sweet as most that I just had to have the recipe to share with all of you.

My friend Tertu called this Anna-Liisa's cake, but I call it delicious.

Coffee Break Cake
2 eggs
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup raisins
1 and 1/2 cups sugar
1 and 1/2 cups buttermilk (or sour cream)
1 and 1/2 teaspoons baking soda
1/2 cup of melted butter
3 cups flour

Beat eggs and sugar. Add buttermilk, cinnamon and flour with soda. Roll the raisins in flour and add to the mixture.

Add the butter and mix.

Place in a greased pan (bundt pan works well) and bake at 375 for about one hour. (A bundt pan takes about 35 minutes).

Turn onto plate after slightly cooled.

Celtic Storyteller-Minstrels At Crane Library July 18

Jerry and Nancy Bell, Celtic storyteller-minstrels, will perform in concert Thursday, July 18 from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. on the lawn of the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

The show will feature Scots and Irish music played on such traditional instruments as the Irish harp, Scottish bagpipe and Scots/Irish fiddle.

The Bells, recently arrived from Scotland, have been performing professionally for the past eight years. During their library concert, they will explain how each instrument works and talk a bit about its history. Scots/Irish music was used in every phase of life from working to celebration and lament.

The program is supported, in part, by the Quincy Cultural Council, the Massachusetts Cultural Council, and the Friends of the Library.

CELTIC STORYTELLER-MINSTRELS Jerry and Nancy Bell will perform Thursday, July 18 from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. on the lawn of the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

Cerebral Palsy Auction Committee Meeting July 25

Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore, 105 Adams St., Quincy, will hold a "Fantasy '96" Auction committee meeting Thursday, July 25 at 12:30 p.m.

The auction is scheduled for Friday, Nov. 1 at Lantana in Randolph. The committee plans to charge $25 per ticket to the event--which will include hors d'oeuvres, desserts and coffee--and sell at least 300 tickets.

The committee hopes to include as auction items travel/entertainment packages, such as trips to holiday destinations, local and regional getaways and Red Sox spring training as well as sports memorabilia.

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements, the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit photos with their announcements, and when submitting their wedding photo, to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries, beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

ASK YOUR LAWYER

by Kevin F. O'Donnell
ATTORNEY AT LAW

DAMAGE ASSESSMENT

When there is an automobile accident that causes physical injury, how are damages determined in a bodily injury case? Insurance companies take several factors into account when arriving at an award figure. Chief among them are the current and projected medical costs, called special damages. After these costs are calculated, insurers also factor in the type and duration of the medical treatment involved, the severity of the injured party's pain and suffering, the length of the recovery period as well as the seriousness and permanence of the injury. In addition to these considerations, the injured party's occupation may be taken into account. If the injury were to hamper his or her ability to make a living in his or her chosen field, the fact would doubtlessly have to be dealt with. With a lawyer on the injured party's side, all these factors are sure to receive the attention that they are due.

HINT: If you are injured in an accident, the other driver's insurer will surely want evidence of your damages. Be sure to keep good records of your medical bills, proof of loss of income, etc.

I make it a point to handle each and every case promptly and expediently. The best results in our judiciary system are obtained when legal problems and issues are addressed immediately. For a free initial consultation, call 773-2880. My office is conveniently located at Gridley Bryant Office Condominiums, 111 Willard Street. I handle all personal injury cases on a percentage fee basis. I only receive payment if a recovery is made on your behalf.

QHS, BM Students Receive Houghs Neck Legion Awards

Houghs Neck American Legion Post awards were presented recently to students at Broad Meadows Middle School and Quincy High School.

At Broad Meadows, Jennifer Brundige and James Cuddy each received a medallion and a certificate noting their qualities of courage, honor, leadership, patriotism, scholarship and service. The presentation was made my Commander Richard Wainwright.

Continental, QCTV Earn National Honors

Continental Cablevision and the Quincy Community Television Council announce that QCTV, the local programming department for Continental Cablevision in Quincy, has earned three nominations for excellence in community television in the national Hometown Video Awards.

The Hometown Video Awards are presented each year by the Washington, DC based Alliance for Community Media. Judges named Continental and QCTV as finalists in the categories of Sports Series, Educational Programming, and Overall Excellence.

The QCTV Sports Team, a dedicated group of community volunteers assisted by Continental staff members, was nominated for its wide range of local sports coverage and special programming.

Quincy teacher Jack Raymer took a nomination for Best Educational Program for Inside Quincy Schools. Each edition takes an in-depth look at one of Quincy's public schools, its programs, and its people. School Media Specialist Brian Smith, Continental Educational Affairs Producer Darlene Mendoza, and dozens of young students hosts help with each production.

Continental/QCTV was honored as a finalist in the category of Overall Excellence for its community commitment and quality of local programming.

"This recognition is above all an indication of the dedication, talent and vision of Quincy's community volunteers and staff," said Program Manager Bill McColgan.

Nearly 1800 entries from across the United States and Canada were judged at this year's Hometown Video Festival. Winners will be announced today (Thursday) at the International Conference of the Alliance for Community Media in Washington, D.C.

Farmers' Market To Expand To Saturdays Aug. 24

Quincy Farmers' Market, which is underway Fridays at the John Hancock parking area across from the Quincy Court House, will expand to Saturdays beginning Aug. 24.

"This (Saturday) market is a welcome addition to the residents, who are working during the week, and miss the opportunity on Friday Farmer' Market," said Jolene Lewis, project manager for Mary Smith Associates, Landscape Architect & Planners.

It is the pea of the season for a wide variety of herbs, sweet corn, beets, lettuce, rashes, tomatoes, string beans, summer squash, onions, and flats of bright and pastel flowers ready to plant in window boxes, balconies and backyards.

The second Farmers' Market beginning Aug. 24 will celebrate native Massachusetts fruit and vegetable month.

"Shopping at a festive Quincy Farmer's Market offers an opportunity to slow down and participate in the experience of food shopping," said Diane and Al LeBlanc, of Pemacre Farm of Pembroke. The LeBlancs have been regular growers for Quincy Farmers' Market for 11 years.

Local restaurants are encouraged to visit the farmers' markets, and team up with the growers during the peak season.

Quincy farmers also accept USDA food coupons and WIC Farmer's Market coupons.

Terry Fancher Receives Rotary Club Harris Award

TERRY FANCHER

Terry N. Fancher, C.C.E., general manager of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce in Quincy, has been named a Paul Harris Fellow by the Quincy Rotary Club.

Paul Harris was the founder of Rotary International. The award in his name is given to Rotarians "in appreciation of tangible and significant assistance given for the furtherance of better understanding and friendly relations among peoples of the world."

The award is given by the Rotary Foundation of Rotary International and can either be granted when members make a $1,000 donation to the Rotary Foundation or when the club makes a donation in the name of the recipient.

The recognition was given to Fancher at the Rotary Club's annual installation of officers and directors by outgoing President Michael McFarland.

Fancher has been a member of the club for 12 years, was president of the club in 1994-95 and has served as Scholarship Committee chairman.

A resident of Braintree, lives with his wife Kathleen and daughters Kimberly and Jennifer. He serves as general manager and manager of business development at the South Shore Chamber, the second largest commerce chamber in Massachusetts with more than 2,400 members.

REAL ESTATE MARKET

Vincent Moscardelli Receives Realtor Of The Year Award

Vincent R. Moscardelli, owner/broker of ERA Central Real Estate of Quincy, was named 1996 Realtor of the Year of the South Shore Association of Realtors at recent award ceremonies at Barker Tavern in Scituate.

Moscardelli received the honor for outstanding contributions and dedication to the Realtor Association and the real estate profession.

VINCENT MOSCARDELLI

A member of the Board since 1983, he has been a member of the Board of Directors since 1993 as well as numerous other committees including Commercial & Investment, Multiple Listing Service, Personnel, Programs, Professional Standards, Scholarship, Strategic Planning, and the Golf Tournament. Moscardelli also has served as chairman of the Banking Committee since 1993 and as such has been in charge of the successful annual Realtor/Lender Breakfast.

Moscardelli has been very successful in working to fight muscular dystrophy and not only serves on the Board of Directors for Greater Boston Muscular Dystrophy but also was awarded the "Jerry" Award, a prestigious award named after Jerry Lewis, for his office being in the top 3 percent in the country for having raised over $10,000 for the battle against the disease.

An educator for 20 years, Moscardelli is past principal of Central Junior High School in Quincy and his involvement and interest in children's education is still strong. He is a recipient of the Munroe McLean Award presented by the Quincy High School Basketball Alumni in recognition of his outstanding support of Quincy High's basketball program, participates in the "Eva" program helping mentally challenged children to learn office skills in a business environment, and is the Central and Merrymount Schools Business Representative.

Among those present for the ceremonies were his wife, Leah, and his mother, Nancy Burke, along with other family members, friends, and business associates. More than 140 members, guests and friends were in attendance.

As local Board Realtor of the Year, Moscardelli's name will be placed in nomination for receipt of the Massachusetts Realtor of the Year Award to be presented in September at the Massachusetts Association of Realtors Convention in Boston.

First Time Homebuyers' Workshop Begins July 29

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc., an approved first time homebuyer counseling agency, will hold a series of First Time Homebuyers' Workshops beginning Monday, July 29 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at Quincy City Hall, 1205 Hancock St.

Other workshops are scheduled for Wednesday, July 31, Monday, Aug. 5 and Wednesday, Aug. 7.

Attendance at all four workshops is mandatory in order to qualify for the different mortgage options through the Mass Housing Finance Agency and other financing options.

Agenda will be comprehensive and individualized. Focus will be on different aspects of the homebuying process, including locating a property, making an offer and types of financing.

Advanced registration is required and space is limited. Fee is $35 for all four sessions and covers the cost of the workshop text and all copied materials.

For more information and registration forms, call Debbie Kidd, housing coordinator, at 479-8181 ext. 115.

The workshop is sponsored by the City of Quincy and EOCD.

Realtors Oppose Rivers Protection Bill

Massachusetts Realtors, while voicing support of continued efforts to improve the quality of the state's water and air, have questioned the value of the proposed Rivers Protection Act for the Commonwealth (bill S. 1838).

The Massachusetts Association of Realtors (MAR) has called the proposed legislation "A misdirected zoning and land use plan disguised as environmental policy." The South Shore Association of Realtors (SSAR) supports the MAR's assertion that the Rivers Protection Act does more to inhibit land use and less to improve water quality than its sponsors have argued.

The bill would impose a uniform 150-foot environmental setback provision banning construction and renovation of homes and businesses along 2,027 waters, only 143 of which are defined as rivers. The remaining 1,884 bodies of water are streams, brooks and unnamed tributaries, often located in and around residential areas.

The Rivers Protection Act has remained on Beacon Hill for six years while opponents have worked to educate lawmakers about what they see as its failings and potential fallout. According to real estate industry officials, there is no basis for the 150-foot setback, and there already are nearly a dozen laws and regulations--both federal and state--designed to protect and improve the state's waterways.

Realtors believe another layer of bureaucracy can only add to the already burdensome requirements placed on property owners in developing, selling or otherwise making use of their land. And while environmentalists pressure lawmakers to support the legislation, opponents say the economic realities and ramifications of its passage are far more compelling than any environmental improvements it may or may not achieve.

Opponents claim cities and towns stand to lose millions of dollars in revenue as property owners seek tax abatements for the loss of use and value of their land--a total of more than 350,000 acres of private land--and lawsuits will be filed to seek fair compensations for land-takings.

Also, opponents point to the fact that cities with a population greater than 90,000 are exempt, requiring only a 25-foot setback from waterways. Since the legislation was designed to address "non-point source" pollution, such as septic tank leakage, run-off road salt, fertilizer, pesticides and other pollutants, the less densely-populated areas of the state would shoulder the burden for the greater percentage of pollution sources.

SSAR officials note that the state's Wetlands Protections Act gives local conservation commissions the power to grant or deny permits for construction in wetlands areas. Realtors support legislation, they add, based upon such performance standards and the fair enforcement of existing regulations, not a strict prohibition such as the Rivers Bill.

Accent On Good Buys, Good Entertainment

Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival Opens Today

The 26th annual Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival, featuring good buys and family entertainment, opens today (Thursday) for a three-day run through Saturday.

The event, sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA), will be held on Hancock St. which will be closed off to vehicular traffic between Granite and School Sts.

Today and Friday, the city will offer free parking at the Ross Parking Garage and the Hancock Parking Lot, with the exception of spaces reserved for monthly pass holders. All spaces in both parking areas will be free Saturday.

As in the past, shoppers will be able to stroll down Hancock St. looking over merchandise on the sidewalk in front of participating stores.

Deanna Gazarian, chairman of the QCBPA Promotions Committee, said the festival should be a fun event for people of all ages.

"I'm really looking forward to it," said Gazarian. "There will be a lot of great bargains and some fantastic entertainment. It quite possibly could be the best festival we've ever had."

Entertainment and other activities are scheduled for 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. today and Friday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday.

Mayor James Sheets has been invited to attend the opening ceremonies which will begin today at 10 a.m.

Nearly 100 canopied booths and other attractions will dot Hancock St., giving it a festival appearance for the three days. In all, more than 50 QCBPA member stores and businesses will participate along with other organizations.

A "Center Stage" for entertainers and musical units will be set up in the middle of Hancock St. across from Cottage Ave.

New features this year will include an appearance by "Toy Story" characters Cowboy Woody and the Space Ranger today, an Irish Music Festival on Friday, and the Balloon Man and a concert by the band Group Therapy on Saturday.

Among the returning entertainment will be the country-western band Blue Hill Kickers and WKLV-FM DJ Barry Wood today, a demonstration by O'Malley's Boxing Gymnasium on Friday and Donna Marie and her Puppet Friends who will appear all three days.

Continental Cablevision will broadcast live from the festival all three days. WJDA Radio (1300 AM) will broadcast from the festival today, Friday and possibly Saturday and Eagle 93.7 FM will broadcast on Friday.

Other three-day events will include a Norfolk County Drug-Sniffing Dog Demonstration, Crime Prevention Booth, children's rides, pony rides, artists and crafters, caricature artists, vendor booths.

Scheduled events:

THURSDAY

•Opening ceremonies, 10 a.m.

•Quincy Crime Prevention Booth, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

•Walkabouts by "Toy Story" characters Cowboy Woody and the Space Ranger, 1 to 2 p.m.

•Country Western Program featuring Blue Hill Kickers and WKLV-FM DJ Barry Wood, 6 to 9 p.m.

FRIDAY

•Quincy Crime Prevention Booth, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

•Live broadcast, Eagle 93.7 FM, 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

•O'Malley's Boxing Demonstration, noon to 2 p.m.

•Irish Music Festival, 6 to 9 p.m.

SATURDAY

•Quincy Crime Prevention Booth, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

•Tae Kwon Do Professional Demonstration, 10 to 11 a.m.

•Balloon Man, 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

•Group Therapy concert, 1 to 4 p.m.

SHOPPERS STROLL DOWN Hancock St. during the Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival last year. The annual event is sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

Hancock St. Closed During Sidewalk Festival

Hancock St. from Granite to School Sts. will be closed to vehicular traffic for a three-day period during the Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival.

That section of Hancock St. is scheduled to be closed from midnight yesterday (Wednesday) through Saturday at 7 p.m.

The area will be a "no parking tow zone" during that time. However, the city will offer free parking at the Ross Parking Garage and the Hancock Parking Lot in spaces not reserved for those with monthly parking passes today (Thursday) and Friday and in all spaces Saturday.

The festival opens today and will continue Friday and Saturday.

Activities each day will begin at 10 a.m. They will end around 9 p.m. today and Friday and at 5 p.m. Saturday.

However, during the three-day period, time will be allowed for festival participants to bring in and set up various attractions, a stage, booths and equipment, as well as time for dismantling them when the festival is over.

DONNA MARIE and her Puppet Friends will be among the featured acts at the 26th annual Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association. The ventriloquist will perform today (Thursday), Friday and Saturday from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

BLUE HILL KICKERS will perform as part of a Country-Western Program tonight (Thursday) from 6 to 9 p.m. at the 26th annual Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival. The band has been named WKLV-FM's Band of the Year.

COUNTRY-WESTERN PROGRAM tonight from 6 to 9 p.m. will allow those in the crowd to participate in special dancing.

Country-Western Program Tonight At Downtown Festival

A Country-Western Program featuring WKLV-FM Band of the Year the Blue Hill Kickers and DJ Barry Wood will be held tonight (Thursday) from 6 to 9 p.m. at the 26th annual Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival.

The Blue Hill Kickers have won numerous awards from country music associations both as a band and single vocalists. They have a wide breadth of material written by themselves and industry composers and have played in Las Vegas and locally.

Wood, WKLV's on-air personality, also will be on hand as will Janice Buck who will again lead those on hand in country and western dancing.

Those in attendance also will be able to dine western, as area restaurants will offer special menus in keeping with the musical entertainment.

For more information about the festival, call 471-3232.

LIMITED EDITION CHRISTMAS CARVINGS by artist Howard Bristow will be available at Abigail's Crossing, 1350 Hancock St., Quincy Center on Saturday, July 20 during the annual Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival.

Christmas In July At Abigail's Crossing

Howard Bristow will introduce his 1996 Limited Edition Christmas carvings. "The Old World" style pieces are individually hand carved, painted with an acrylic wash, signed and dated by the artist. Each piece receives several coats of an oil finish to give them a warm, soft look.

Bristow annually adds a little different look to his carvings that the collectors can identify. A large collection has already gone to a private gallery in Houston, Texas, with many other pieces commissioned for fall gallery shows. Last year, the artist distributed his work all over the United States as well as in Germany and Japan.

Last year, Abigail's Crossing was not able to fill all their customers' special requests during the traditional shopping season. The July 20 visit, in conjunction with the Sidewalk Festival, will provide an early start and assure delivery of each customer's first choice.

Irish Entertainment At Sidewalk Festival

Quincy Center will salute the Irish this Friday during the annual Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival.

A full evening of Irish entertainment will take center stage beginning at 6 p.m.

Kicking off the festivities will be The Gannons who will perform a lively session of traditional Irish music. They will be followed by an authentic presentation of Irish Step Dancing by Maureen Haley's dancing troupe. Wrapping up the program will be the Tara Hill Group which will lead an old-fashioned Irish sing-a-long.

After dark, the musical entertainment will continue at Bad Abbotts, which is sponsoring the Irish event.

SUMMER CAR CARE

Your Parking Brake: 'Use It Or Lose It'

ANSWER: Parking brake.

QUESTION: What's the least used component of your car?

Supposing you're about to park on a steep hill; you apply the parking brake and nothing happens. The cable or linkage has become rusted from lack of use. Your only option is to put it in Park (or low gear on a standard transmission), which most of us do as a matter of course.

This can be unsafe on a steep grade. The pressure against the parking pawl on the transmission could make it difficult or impossible to move the shift lever to the Park position.

Regular use of the parking brake helps keep it freed up and working properly. Periodic lubrication and adjustment of the system also is recommended.

Because this is a separate mechanical braking system, it can stop the vehicle in the event of brake failure.

By the end of 1900, there were 13,000 cars on the road in the U.S.

Keeping Cool In Your Car When Freon Is No Longer Available

(NAPS)—As part of a worldwide effort to restore the earth's ozone layer, CFC-12 (also known as R-12 or by the brand name freon) is no longer being manufactured. As the freon supply dwindles over the next few years, owners of cars that develop leaks in their a/c systems will need to consider the choices available to them in order to keep cool.

Many consumers will decide to convert their auto a/c systems to use an alternative refrigerant. If you are faced with this decision, keep the following information in mind.

How do I know if I will ever have to convert? You may never need to convert. If you own a newer car, it may use a non-ozone depleting freon alternative called R-134a. If you own an older car, freon may continue to be available for the remainder of your vehicle's life.

Since freon is no longer manufactured, many car owners may, in the next few years, choose to convert their a/c systems to use an alternative refrigerant.

When do I have to decide whether or not to convert? If your system uses freon, you will need to decide whether to convert to use an alternative refrigerant only if (a) your system requires a new refrigerant charge, and (b) freon is either no longer available, or is so costly in your area that you decide that converting your system may in the long run be less expensive than continuing to use freon.

You may also want to consider having your system converted before freon becomes unavailable if you are having major service performed on your a/c system (for example, if you have been in a front-end collision or have had compressor failure). In that event, the additional cost of doing the conversion over and above the cost of the repair work may be small, because many steps in converting are also necessary in performing a major repair.

How much will a conversion cost me? The EPA estimates that most cars, particulary newer models, will be able to be converted for under $250. Should you decide to convert your vehicle to use an alternative refrigerant, consult your auto manufacturer or a knowledgeable service facility about what steps should be taken and what the conversion will cost. If in doubt, get a second opinion.

What do I need to know about alternative refrigerants? Should you decide to have your a/c system converted, ask your service technician the following: has the alternative refrigerant recommended by my service technician been reviewed and accepted by EPA? is it compatible with my a/c system components? and are other service technicians I might go to in the future going to be familiar with this alternative refrigerant?

For more information about the production ban on freon and converting your car's sytem, you can call the Environmental Protection Agency's Ozone Information Hotline between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m., Monday through Friday, at (800) 296-1996.

Morrisette Tunes Up For Playoffs With Win Over Canton

In one of its biggest games of the season, Morrisette erupted for seven runs in the third inning en route to an 8-5 win Monday at Canton, the first place team in American Legion Zone 6 East.

Following the victory at Canton, Morrisette (11-5-2) was scheduled to host Milton Tuesday night and Randolph yesterday (Wednesday) at 8 p.m. at Adams Field in its regular season finale.

The Zone 6 East/West playoffs begin Friday, with Morrisette's first round opponent yet to be determined as of press time.

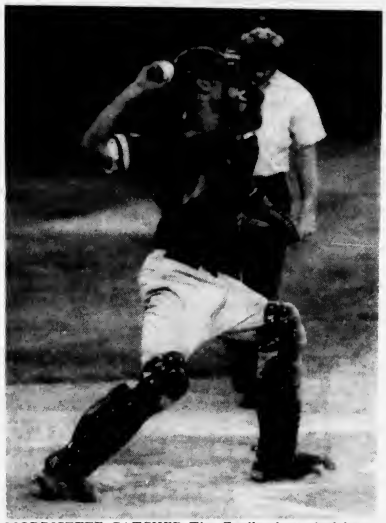
In a tight race atop Zone 6 East, Morrisette stood in fourth place following Monday's action. The top five teams as of press time were Canton (14-5, 28 points), Braintree (13-5, 26), Weymouth (12-6-1, 25), Morrisette (11-5-2, 24) and Milton (11-7-1, 23).

Morrisette could finish anywhere from second to fourth, depending on how it did in its last two regular season games and how the three teams above Morrisette fared in their final regular season contests.

Against Canton, Paul Marnikovic led off the third with a single and moved to second when Jeff Russell reached on error by Canton's pitcher. After Brian Beaton struck out, Erik Fagan bunted and reached on another error by the pitcher to load the bases.

Tom Cunio followed with a two-run double and Ray Cattaneo drove in another run with a single. After Tim Zaniboni singled, Mike Kenney singled in Cunio for Morrisette's fourth run of the inning. Cattaneo scored on a wild pitch, Matt McLoughlin tripled in Kenney, then scored the seventh run on another error.

Canton rallied for four runs in the bottom of the third, knocking Morrisette starter Kenney out of the game. After allowing two runs, Kenney walked two batters and was relieved by Joe McCarthy with the bases loaded. McCarthy surrendered two run-scoring singles before a comebacker and a 4-6-3 double play killed Canton's rally.



MORRISETTE CATCHER Tim Zaniboni reached base twice on errors by Quincy shortstop John Chagnon and scored two runs in a 7-6 loss to Quincy Friday night. Morrisette head coach Mark Kelleher called the defeat "a wake-up call" for the team, which rebounded to defeat first-place Canton, 8-5, Monday night.

"Joe McCarthy did an unbelievable job for us," said Morrisette head coach Mark Kelleher. "He came in with the bases loaded and did a hell of a job getting out of it. It was also nice to see us execute plays we worked on in practice, like that big double play with the bases loaded that ended the inning."

Morrisette added a run in the fifth when Zaniboni reached on an infield error and scored on a double by Marnikovic (two singles, double, RBI).

"Paul worked great with the pitchers, who picked off three runners at second," said Kelleher. "He had some big hits for us, too."

In the sixth, with a run already in and runners on second and third with two outs, McCarthy picked Canton's Brendan Ryan off second to end the game. In earning the win, McCarthy scattering four hits over three innings while walking two and striking out three.

"This was the best game I've seen them play all season, in every aspect--hitting, pitching, fielding, running and defense--from the top to the bottom of the lineup," said Kelleher. "Hopefully this is a step in the right direction, beating a tough team like Canton. We needed this win, and I'm impressed with how the guys played.

"With this win, I think

Quincy Extends Win Streak To Three

With a 7-6 victory over Randolph Monday night, the Quincy Legion baseball team headed into Tuesday's season finale at West Roxbury with a three-game winning streak and a 6-13 record.

"I think this (streak) is a reflection on how hard our team works," said head coach Larry Taglieri. "They understand what's expected of them and keep plugging away, never giving up or packing it in.

"There's no quit in our club. Myself and the other coaches, John Cristiani and Wayne Chambers, are all proud of our kids and how they have played."

Against Randolph, Justin Elwood's triple in the bottom of the sixth knocked in Pat McGann with the game-winning run. McGann (three walks, two runs) had led off the inning with a walk. Kevin Nichol also had a big night with a triple and three RBI.

Dennis Palardy relieved starter John Duffy and recorded his third win in as many games. Duffy went five and two-thirds innings, allowing five hits and striking out three before Palardy came on in relief.

In other recent action, Quincy defeated rival Morrisette and downed West Roxbury.

Quincy scored two runs

QUINCY'S MAL HIGGINS, who pitched seven and two thirds innings of excellent relief, also had two hits and two runs scored in Quincy's 7-6 victory over Morrisette Friday night. Higgins came on with the bases loaded and no out in the top of the first and allowed one run before retiring the side.

MEETING RESISTANCE

If a battery fails regularly, a simple test of the car's electrical wiring may point out the problem. In order for the battery to stay charged, current from the alternator must flow to the battery. If there is a bad connection between the alternator's positive terminal and the battery's positive terminal, the battery can eventually go dead. To see if a bad connection exists, the auto technician will connect a voltmeter to the alternator and the battery's positive terminal. Any voltage reading represents a voltage drop, which is a difference in the voltage provided by the alternator and the remaining charge when it reaches the battery. The negative side must be tested, as well. If high resistance is indicated in either test, the connections must either be cleaned or repaired. Otherwise, the battery may continue to go dead, the car may continue to experience hard starting, or there may be other electrical system problems.

HINT: If testing an alternator with an ammeter (which measures current flow in amps) indicates that an alternator is producing current below specifications at a certain engine rpm, it must be replaced.

People generally put a lot of money into their cars. With the initial purchase price, insurance, tune-ups and repairs, you can end up with a sizable investment. Doesn't it make sense to make sure you have your car's electrical and other systems serviced and repaired by the best technicians around? You and your car deserve the very best and here at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO you'll get it. Stop by 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (843-1550) and get acquainted. Babe Ruth

Granite City, Barry's Deli End Seasons With Wins

Strong pitching by Paul Markarian and a four-run first inning lifted Granite (14-8) to a 5-4 victory over Local 1139 in its final game of the season.

Following a single by Brian Doyle and a couple of walks, Matt Rodenhiser doubled. Doyle added two more singles, Rodenhiser collected a single and Chris Conte chipped in with two singles.

Rodenhiser also made the defensive play of the game with a leaping catch in left field.

In an 8-4 victory over the Police, Mike McEvoy went the distance to pick up the win for Granite. Paul Markarian led off the second with a triple, followed by singles from Jeff Glynn, Chris Conte and Matt Nicklas. Also contributing offensively were Jason Oriola (triple, single), Brian Doyle (double) and McEvoy (single).

Oriola made the play of the game, a diving catch along the third base dugout, then scrambled to his feet and threw to first to complete the double play.

In other action, Barry's Deli posted two victories.

Michael Shaw fired a three-hitter, striking out 11 in six innings to lead Barry's to a 9-2 romp over Houghs Neck. Shaw has had a remarkable season, recording 88 strikeouts in 50 innings.

Shawn Boostrom led the offense with three hits, including two doubles. John Cooper doubled and Shawn Manning and Matt Joyce each singled.

Shortstop Manning and catcher Didier Alther anchored the defense. Matt McCann, David Centrella, Jarrod DeCelle and Conrad Leger all turned in excellent performances.

Barry's edged the Elks, 7-6, in an extra-inning thriller. Michael Shaw opened the bottom of the eighth with a base hit and scored the winning run on outstanding baserunning.

Trailing 6-3, Barry's staged a rally as Matt McCann doubled and Didier Alther and John Cooper singled to tie the game in the bottom of the seventh.

McCann pitched a fine game, scattering six hits over seven innings and helping his own cause with two hits. Shawn Boostrom relieved McCann and pitched a scoreless ninth.

Shaw had two hits and Boostrom, Shawn Manning and David Centrella each singled. Manning and Jarrod DeCelle anchored Barry's defense. Alther, Centrella, Conrad Leger and Matt Joyce also turned in solid defensive performances.

Mike Keddy had three hits in a losing effort for the Elks.

Junior League

Hall Hurls Burke Past Lions

Justin Hall's 13-strike-out performance propelled the Burke Club past the Lions, 4-2, in the first round of the Quincy Junior Baseball League playoffs.

After the Lions jumped out to a 1-0 lead on a Charlie Sorrento double which scored Dave Germain, Burke got Hall all the runs her would need in the bottom of the first.

Dave Duggan and Pat Bregoli started the rally with back-to-back singles and both scored on a double by Hall. Pete Turowski (two hits) then singled in Hall and scored the Burke Club's fourth run on Joe Sudak's groundout. Bill Cosgrove chipped in with a hit for the victors.

Mike Germain led off the third for the Lions with a double and scored on a single by Bobby Muollo.

Hall pitched out of two jams late in the game. Jeff Haslett was left stranded after leading off with a single and Dave Germain was also stranded after belting a triple.

Burke entered the playoffs as the American League champions with a 19-3 record, best in the league. The defending champs won their final two regular season games, topping the Lions, 12-4, and nipping the Police, 5-2.

Bregoli, Turowski and Mark Dondero were the hitting stars against the Lions, collecting three hits apiece. Bregoli, who picked up the win on the mound, had two doubles, a triple and three RBI. Turowski, who earned the save, added two RBI. Hall added two hits and three RBI and Randy Jacobs continued his hot hitting for Burke.

Charlie Sorrento wielded the big bat for the Lions, rapping two hits, including a long double.

Ten-year-old Dan Cosgrove handcuffed the Police in the regular season finale, hurling a two-hitter. Cosgrove benefitted from an excellent defensive performance from his infield, which turned two double plays.

Burke's Danny Duggan turned in the defensive play of the year with a diving stop of a Jim Cashins rocket. Duggan also shone at the plate, going three-for-three, including a double and an RBI. Turowski also doubled in a run while Mike Haines added a double and also caught a fine game.

The Police got a good pitching effort from Paul McAtteer and Cashins. James LaFleur and Shawn Richardson had the Police's hits.

Triple A

Doherty Goes The Distance For Hurley In Title Game

Mike Doherty went the distance, striking out 9 to lead Hurley Insurance to a 22-9 victory over IHOP in the recent Triple A World Series title game.

Eric Bigham caught a good game, making some key defensive plays behind the plate. First baseman George Phipps belted a long home run and made a good defensive play in turning a double play. Mike Brangwynne also played well for the victors.

Hurley, which finished the season at 18-1, is coached by Steve Doherty. The Triple A champions are: Eric Bigham, Marc Bigham, David Boncek, Michael Brangwynne, Michael Doherty, Scott Georgianna, George Phipps, Lori Pinkham, Matthew Ryan, Caitlyn Slowe, Gregory Tragellis, Joshua Worth and Christopher Younie.

Recreation Department Camp Completed

The Quincy Recreation Department boys basketball camp, under the direction of Brian Buckley, Suffolk University assistant coach, was recently completed.

A number of various skills and fundamentals were taught and drilled during the week, which also included a number of competitions. Other staff members included George Dunn, Erica Crawford, Brian McPartlin, Harold Mortel, Patrick O'Donoghue, Sean Warren, Robert Walsh and Severino Tam.

In the foul shooting competition, the team of Sima Junkovic, Kevin Mason and Larry Maguire won the pro division, while Michael Flaherty, Kha Ta and Louis Goldstein were champs in the high school division. In the college division, Steve Ramponi, Nuttapon Promploy and Stephen Pizzi were crowned champs.

The full court competition winner in the high school division was the team of Don Bosco, which included Kha Ta, Moses Lynn, Shannon MacIssaac, Pichaya Promploy and Michael Chan.

The college division winning team was the Boston College Eagles, which included Matthew Ramponi, Michael Conley, Mike Capano, Eric Stanton, Albert Chow, Saad Bhatti and Stephen Price. The Clippers won the pro division with the team of Jonathan Brillo, Greg McGinness, Max Repoff, Kevin Mason, Khalid Hakimjee and Omar Bhatti.

The outstanding camper awards in the three divisions were presented to Kha Ta, Stephen Pizzi and Mike Ramponi by Recreation Director Barry Welch.

Fleet Youth All-Stars Program Open To Local Youth

Quincy youths are invited to participate in Fleet Youth All-Stars, a program designed to encourage and reward young people who undertake local community service projects.

Through the Fleet Youth All-Stars program which runs to Aug. 31, volunteer youth groups working on local community projects will be eligible to win donations up to $10,000 and visits from celebrity sports stars.

Projects which qualify for the Fleet Youth All-Stars program must be designed to display a visible, lasting demonstration of volunteerism and teamwork in the community. Proposed projects could include traditional park and beach clean-ups, planting flowers, painting murals, renovating baseball fields and playgrounds and clearing vacant lots. Fleet Youth All-Stars are limited only by imagination and the initiative of the youth groups that participate.

Youth groups are invited to join the program and may obtain more information by calling 1-800-418-5636.

A new 14 and under girls' fast pitch softball team, the Quincy Stars, recently defeated Weymouth, 33-17, at Pinagree Field in Weymouth.

The Stars, who play in the Junior Olympic Association, were led by Jessica Lorman, who had four hits, including a home run. Kristine Plourde, Julie Burke and Christina Pickering also collected four base hits each as Quincy scored in every inning.

Every hitter in Quincy's order hit safely at least once against Weymouth. Marissa Lentini drove in three runs with a double in the second. Meredith Hutchinson's two-run triple in the third put the game away for the Stars.

Quincy Hosts Soccer Group From Germany

Last Thursday, Quincy Youth Soccer hosted a group of visitors from the Merten Spiel und Sportverein club of Bornheim-Merten, Germany.

The group consisted of 16 teen-age (16 and 17-years-old) soccer players and several chaperones. While an early evening soccer match was the "excuse" for the visit, the true purpose was to engender healthy cultural exchange and friendship.

The German group's day began in the Mayor's office at City Hall where Mayor James Sheets and his staff welcomed the visitors to Quincy. Mayor Sheets presented each player with a proclamation declaring them official citizens of Quincy while they are in the U.S.

Following the Mayor's welcome, the group took a brief walking tour of the Church of Presidents, Adams Academy, through Freedom Park to the Adams Old House on Adams St. The National Park Service was extremely helpful by adding an extra tour of the Old House to their normal schedule for the group.

The group returned to Quincy Square where they were "set free" to browse and shop. At noon, they gathered in Bad Abbot's Pub and Friery for lunch, which was offered at no charge by the restaurant. Then it was off to Nantasket Beach for an enjoyable afternoon.

Back to Quincy, the group prepared for the 6 p.m. match at Varsity Field, which was prepared for play by the Parks and Recreation Dept. It was a well played, highly contested match with the Quincy team supplying most of the pressure in the first half and taking a 2-1 lead into halftime.

The Merten team gathered themselves at halftime and came out in the second half with plenty of fire, jumping to a 4-2 lead. Near the end of the match, Quincy rallied for two goals to tie the game, 4-4, which was how the match ended. While neither team went away delighted nor dejected by this result, it certainly was a good one for international relations.

The goal scorers for Merten were: Andreas Horst (two goals), Thomas Oebel (one goal) and Tobias Paul (one goal). For Quincy, Chris Erler and Bill Norris each had a goal and an assist and Bard Hajrizaj and Charlie Mann scored one goal apiece. Eddie Smith and Joe Miller each chipped in with an assist.

Following the match, there was a cookout at Pageant Field sponsored by Quincy Youth Soccer, with a donation from Konditor Meister European Pastry Shop. The parents of the Quincy players put the cookout together.

The City of Quincy, Quincy Youth Soccer and the parents of our players certainly put their best foot forward that day. The Merten club will return home having enjoyed their visit to our city.

Glenn Gyvisoc Completes 150-Mile Bike Trek For MS

Quincy resident Glenn Gyvisco, 39, recently joined over 1000 cycling enthusiasts from across Massachusetts as part of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society's "Great Mass Getaway."

"The Getaway", sponsored by the Society's Massachusetts chapter, saw the bikers travel on a new 150-mile coastal tour from Boston to Provincetown while raising money to fight multiple sclerosis.

Gyvisco, who rode in "The Getaway" for the fourth time, was excited about being a part of the event and looked forward to riding for MS.

"My father had MS and I know it is not a disease to be taken lying down," he said. "It's more fun to beat it on a bike."

The tour, which began at the World Trade Center, gave riders of all experience levels an opportunity to support MS research while enjoying scenic eastern Massachusetts. For Gyvisco, "The Getaway" offered a chance to both cycle and support multiple sclerosis research.

The tour, which took two days, also gave the riders a chance to relax and enjoy themselves. Massage therapists, music, a raffle and great food helped ensure that participants enjoyed this year's event as much as previous events. Last year, the tour raised over $200,000. This year, the event's organizers expect to raise over $250,000 to benefit the Society.

Morrisette Tunes Up For Playoffs With 8-5 Win

Morrisette baseball is back where it should be, playing with a winning attitude, from the first player to the last. We need to play seven hard innings every game and have everybody give 100 percent every game. If someone's not giving it his all, then he'll come out and I'll put in someone who will."

Kevin Nichol's sharp single to short scored Dennis Palardy from third in the bottom of the eighth to lift Quincy to a 7-6 victory over Morrisette at Adams Field.

Quincy's Justin Elwood had singled in Peter Donnelly to tie the game at 6-6 in the eighth after Morrisette jumped ahead, 6-5, in the top of the eighth. Russell led off with a bad-hop single, and when Beaton (two for three, run) laid down a sacrifice bunt, Russell took off for third, seeing that no one was covering the base. Quincy's second baseman Pat McGann threw the ball in the direction of third base, but with no one covering the throw went into short left and Russell scored the lead run.

Morrisette had a chance to put Quincy away earlier, in the seventh, leading 5-4, but a single by Elwood, an error by Morrisette's Chad Feetham and an RBI single by Nichol allowed Quincy to tie the game and force extra innings.

The visitors fought back from a 4-2 deficit in the top of the seventh, scoring three runs on one hit, two errors, a walk and a hit batsman. Beaton walked and scored on Fagan's bad-hop single to bring Morrisette within one run at 4-3. Three batters later, with the bases loaded, Cunio was hit by a pitch from Quincy reliever Mal Higgins, scoring McLoughlin to tie the game, 4-4. The next batter, Marnikovic, grounded to third, but third baseman Nichol's errant throw to first allowed Zaniboni to score and give Morrisette a short-lived 5-4 lead.

Lost in all the chaos of the last few innings was Cattaneo's strong pitching debut. Cattaneo pitched five-plus innings, allowing four runs (three earned) on four hits while striking out five and walking two. He didn't allow a hit until Higgins singled with one out in the fourth. Chad Feetham relieved Cattaneo with the bases loaded in the bottom of the sixth and surrendered a two-run single to Eddy, which gave Quincy a temporary 4-2 lead.

"Ray did a great job for us for five innings," said Kelleher. "He threw strikes and got the job done. It's good to know we have another pitcher in the rotation we can go to if we need him. He'll definitely help us come playoff time."

In the top of the sixth, Morrisette rallied to tie the game at 2-2 when Zaniboni reached on an error and Cunio followed with a single up the middle to score Zaniboni. Cunio came through in the clutch against Quincy, going two for four with two RBI.

Morrisette got on the board early, scoring a run in the top of the first on three walks and a sacrifice fly. After Fagan, McLoughlin and Zaniboni walked, Higgins relieved Eddy and gave up a run-scoring sacrifice fly to Kenney before retiring the next two batters to end the inning.

Higgins pitched brilliantly for Quincy, allowing five runs (two earned) on seven hits in seven and two-thirds innings. Palardy relieved Higgins in the eighth and stopped Morrisette's rally with an inning-ending strikeout of Kenney with two runners on.

"He (Higgins) was hitting his spots and throwing strikes," said Kelleher. "He wasn't overpowering anyone, but he pitched with confidence, which you have to have at any position."

In a nine-inning game called due to darkness, Morrisette tied Milton, 1-1. Russell pitched an excellent game, allowing one run on six hits while walking none and striking out eight in nine innings.

Trailing 1-0, Milton rallied in the bottom of the seventh to tie the game and force extra innings. Joe Cavalieri ripped a one-out triple to right center, then scored the tying run on a suicide squeeze play.

Morrisette scored its only run in the second when Cattaneo walked, stole second and scored on Beaton's single. Morrisette only tallied four hits, with Fagan collecting two doubles.

Trailing 6-5, a six-run fifth propelled Morrisette to an 11-9 victory over Quincy at Adams Field.

Fagan (three-for-three, three runs), McLoughlin (two-for-four, two runs, two RBI) and Cattaneo (two-for-four, RBI) sparked Morrisette's offense. Also contributing offensively were Zaniboni (single, RBI), Kenney (one-for-three, RBI), Marnikovic (one-for-two, two runs, RBI) and Jim Cunio (one for two, two runs, RBI).

After Morrisette starter McCarthy allowed four runs in the first, Feetham came in and allowed three runs on three hits in three innings, striking out three and walking two to pick up the win. Marnikovic pitched the last two innings, scattering three hits and striking out three to close out the victory.

in the bottom of the eighth to come from behind and edge Morrisette, 7-6, at Adams Field.

Peter Donnelly hustled out an infield single, moved to second when Palardy reached on a sacrifice bunt and scored the tying run when Justin Elwood singled to left. After Pat McGann was intentionally walked to load the bases and Mal Higgins was retired, Nichol ripped a single to short to score Palardy with the game-winning run.

Palardy earned the win in relief of Higgins, striking out Mike Kenney with two men on and two out in the top of the eighth.

Morrisette had taken the lead in the eighth when Jeff Russell led off with a singled and scored when Brian Beaton laid down a sacrifice bunt and was out at first. Russell kept going and scored on an errant throw to third base.

In the bottom of the seventh, Elwood singled to center, Pat McGann reached first on a sacrifice bunt and Nichol sent the game into extra innings with a single, scoring Elwood to tie the game, 5-5. Morrisette had scored three runs in the top of the seventh to take a 5-4 lead.

In the sixth, Quincy broke a 2-2 tie on a two-run, bases-loaded single by Mike Eddy. Morrisette's Tom Cunio had tied the game with an RBI double in the top of the sixth.

Quincy took a 2-1 lead in the bottom of the fourth when Higgins singled, stole second and scored on a double by Ken Hannaford and Eddy drove in Hannaford with a double to left.

Higgins was dominant in relief of starter Eddy, coming on in the first with the bases loaded and no one out and allowing only one run. He worked seven and two-thirds innings and allowed five runs (two earned) on seven hits.

"He hasn't pitched all year because of arm problems, but he sucked it up for the team and did an outstanding job," said Taglieri. "It's a crime he didn't get the win. He got out of that jam in the first, allowing only one run."

Palardy, in his first Legion start, went six and two-thirds innings, allowing six hits and striking out three in a 6-4 win over West Roxbury. Palardy got the victory and Higgins came in to record the save for Quincy.

Offensively, Elwood led Quincy with two hits, a run scored and an RBI. Higgins went one-for-two with a walk, a run scored and an RBI and Kevin Nichol went one-for-three with a double, a run scored and an RBI.

Camera Camp Registration

The Quincy Recreation Department is accepting registration for its camera camp which will be held Tuesdays and Thursdays, July 23-Aug. 1.

Registration will be taken on a first come, first serve basis at the Quincy Recreation Department, 100 Southern Artery, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Camera camp is a basic, hands-on photographic approach for participants to learn and understand different photo techniques and fundamentals. Demonstrations, lectures, and actual photo sessions will provide participants with instruction in use of camera, film, light, and composition. Subjects may include landscape, local events, sites, and people. Finished works will be displayed for the general public. Bring your own camera or a one time use camera will be provided for a nominal fee.

The camp, which is under the direction of John Black, owner of Presidential Camera, is open to boys and girls entering grades 3, 4, 5, and 6. The program will be held at the Quincy Recreation Department's Community Room from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.

The cost of the camp is $20 (which includes processing and printing of a 24-print roll of color film).

For more information, call the Recreation Office at 376-1394.

QCTV Students Present Program On Quincy Tourism

Quincy Tourism Director Jo-An Thomas will discuss the various historical attractions in the City of Presidents, as well as the challenges of her new position, on a half-hour Community Television special this month.

"Tourism in Quincy " will air on Channel 3 in Quincy, on Tuesday, July 23 at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, July 24 at 9 a.m., and Thursday, Aug. 1 at 4:30 p.m.

The program was produced by the latest graduates of the basic production workshop taught at the Quincy Community Television facilities of Continental Cablevision. Students developed the questions, served as the crew for the studio interview, hit the streets to videotape the interesting sights mentoned by Thomas, and then edited that footage into the completed program.

For more information about QCTV Workshop opportunities, call Bette Campbell at 471-3200, ext. 5.

Wanda Kelly Interning At N.E. Aquarium

Wanda Kelly, a senior biology major at Eastern Nazarene College, has recently been awarded two internships with the New England Aquarium.

Kelly is working under the direction of Mark Chandler of the Aquarium and Dr. Philip McLaren, professor of biology at ENC. She is currently working on two studies.

Her primary interest is in the fresh water pond studies which the Aquarium has just begun. Kelly is sampling fresh water plants and animals and identifying these. The data she generates will be used to document the health of New England ponds. Along with learning collecting methods, she is learning to identify fish, invertebrate animals, plants and algae. She is using the microscopy facilities of the ENC Biology Department to document the specimen she collects. Later her work will include video coverage of living animals.

Chandler has also assigned Kelly to work on the Boston Harbor Eel Grass project. For this study she will use her scuba diving skills. Eel grass was once common throughout Massachusetts Bay. But due to a wasting disease and pollution the beds of eel grass nearly disappeared. With the improvement in the Bay, the grass is making a slow comeback. Chandler and Kelly will study the yearly cycle of growth in this important indicator organism.

One of the side benefits of her internship has been the opportunity to be a scuba diver and feed the sharks and turtles in the Giant Ocean Tank at the Aquarium. Kelly is an advanced scuba diver. In fact, her love of diving and the marine environment brought her back to ENC after 22 years in the financial world. She attended ENC as a music major from 1969 to 1973, when she left to enter business.

After developing a successful career in the financial services, she returned to ENC to complete the B.S. degree in biology with the goal of entering marine research.

"After years of doing what others want, I'm going to finally do something I want to do," she said.

This fall she will assist in the instruction of ENC's scuba program offered as a service course to all ENC students, faculty and staff.

Kelly lives with her husband, Jim, on Wollaston Hill near the college.

Registration For Beechwood Kindergarten

Registration for Beechwood's private kindergarten program has begun with full or half day schedules.

Children learn and explore academic concepts through play and guided explorations.

Beechwood features playfields, a new preschool playground, and a new indoor gym facility.

The program provides children the opportunity to participate on a weekly basic, in Beechwood's Elder Action Program. (example: children can join the "Grandma's and Grandpa's" for their exercise and lunch program).

Small class size and excellent staff/child ratios are priorities at Beechwood. Full and half day options are available.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

How often do we express a doubt? How often do you have doubts about your abilities or doubts about other people? It is healthy and wise to have doubts at times about certain things, but when doubts become chronic and cloud simple reasoning, then doubting has deteriorated to a sickness of skepticism.

We all know people of poise and serenity; we see them with all the trappings of faith and dignity and we doubt whether these persons ever have a doubt about anything. They seem so sure of themselves... But, they too have doubts at times.

To doubt is human. This was true from the days of the Psalmists to and through the days of Thomas and is true today. When we find ourselves gripped with uncertainty, we are bound to have doubts. But promiscuous doubting should not be.

Doubts torment us only because we have too little faith. This is true whether it applies to people, science, religion or anything else. Obviously then, the best way to reduce doubts is to increase faith. Sounds simple? It is...

16 Volunteers Complete Tutoring Course At Library

Sixteen volunteers from Quincy and six other area communities recently completed the Basic Reading and Writing training of Literacy Volunteers of America-Quincy at the Thomas Crane Public Library.

The library offers free tutoring to adults in basic reading and writing skills.

New volunteers attended the six-session, 18-hour workshop at the North Quincy branch. The trainees learn methods to help adults learn to read and write and also hear from experienced tutors and students.

Ellen Crevison, assistant coordinator of the program, recently made her debut as a Basic Reading trainer. Among the other tutors are Josephine Crossen of Quincy, Donna Hickey of Weymouth and Nancy Ronan of Marshfield.

Tutors meet with students once a week for two hours a week and make a commitment to tutor for one year. Tutors will be matched with students within the next several weeks.

LVA-Quincy is celebrating its 10th year at the Crane library. Volunteers from Quincy and the South Shore have donated thousands of hours to the program.

For more information about tutoring or receiving instruction, call 376-1314.

Checroune could not be reached for comment. The realtor negotiating on his behalf, Mike Kenealy of Key Realty in Quincy, deferred to the building owner and Ryan.

Ryan told The Quincy Sun last month the building at 1212 Hancock St.-has a number of advantages for the college:

•The number of tenants in the 30,900-square-foot building would allow the college to "ease into the building" as tenants move out, making the transition period less complicated for the school. Among the current tenants are Century 21 Real Estate, TAD Temporary Services, several law offices, and others.

•The building's proximity to the existing campus would allow it to become a "prominent and elegant front door" on Hancock Street. "It would give the college a very nice image," said Ryan.

•The building is handicapped accessible and has a new roof, new elevators, and other modern features.

•By housing administrative/student services offices, the new property would allow the college to make a decision on what torian-style house where those services currently are located. Ryan said the building could be used for other college purposes or simply vacated.

•Additional library space could be utilized without jeopardizing the possibility of a future collaboration between the college and the nearby Thomas Crane Public Library for similar purposes.

•Additional classroom space would allow the college to maintain its current number of classrooms in Coddington Hall. One previous plan called for that building to lose a number of classrooms in a reshuffling of space now available.

Fundraiser Cruise For Senior Programs Aug. 7

Beechwood Community Life Center in Quincy has scheduled a fundraising cruise to benefit the city's Elder Home Repair Program and other senior programs.

The cruise will be held Wednesday, Aug. 7 from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m, according to Beechwood Executive Director Sharron Beals. The event, initiated by Beechwood board member George O'Malley, will be hosted by Marina Bay and co-hosted by American Medical Response.

Beals said the event was organized by Quincy residents concerned about resources for escalating senior service needs in conjunction with Beechwood, a longtime nonprofit provider of senior services.

"This fundraiser is expected to provide resources for resuming the city's Elder Home Repair Program, which was recently suspended due to lack of funds, and expanding other senior programs," said Beals.

In fact, she added, the Elder Home Repair Program will resume next week because of a donation from American Medical Response, which has agreed to match the money raised by the cruise up to $3,000.

Beals said countless seniors benefit from the city's elder programs.

"We have more than 18,000 seniors age 60 or older in Quincy," she added. "Conservative estimates tell us that 8,000 elders are 'older elders'--75 and older--and/or have 'special needs.' Last week, when funding ran out and additional resources could not be found, we had to suspend this vital service. This fundraiser will permit us to resume the Elder Home Repair Program and continue all of our senior services."

Beals said Don Uvanitte, chairman of Beechwood's Development Committee, will oversee ticket sales assisted by committee members Bob Curry, Tom Galvin, Jerry Dacey, John Graham, Jim Mullaney, Bruce MacKilligan, Tom McFarland, Dan Flynn, Ed O'Leary, Doris Sinkevich, Gerry Linskey, Michael Joyce and Sumner Hirshberg.

The Elder Home Repair Project began eight years ago--through a grant award from South Shore Elder Services--providing minor home repair work to Quincy seniors with health and safety repair needs. In recent years, the program has been funded by Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) funds and Beechwood.

"This year, need and requests for services have increased dramatically," said Beals. "Referrals from Quincy Visiting Nurses, Quincy Hospital and South Shore rehabilitation facilities--to assist frail and/or recovering seniors with grab bars, hand rails and other assistance devices--have doubled in the last two years.

"We are proud to provide this special service to our seniors--enabling so many to remain in independent living, in their own homes, as long as possible."

For more information about the Senior Home Repair Program or other senior programs, services and special events at Beechwood, call Mary Centola at 471-5712.

Police Athletic League Elects New Officers

The Quincy Police Athletic League recently elected new officers for 1996-97.

Elected president was Officer John Kelly Jr., a 21-year veteran of the Quincy Police Department. He has been an active volunteer with PAL for many years.

Elected vice president was Officer James Silcox, an eight-year veteran of the department. Silcox has also been an active member of PAL for many years.

Kelly and Silcox recently teamed up and ran the Boston Marathon to raise funds for PAL.

Re-elected secretary was Fran McGann of the Quincy Housing Authority. She has held the title for six years.

Elected treasurer was Officer Gerald Connolly, a three-year veteran of the department and a longtime supporter of the PAL.

Re-elected the national PAL delegate was Detective Bob Clark, PAL co-founder.

Officers who headed up the PAL program for six years who are stepping down include President and Co-founder Officer Bob Hanna, Vice President Jack Dunn of B.C. High, and Treasurer Richard of Corner, Dandrow and Co. of Quincy.

The three former officers will remain on the Board of Directors and continue to support and assist the program.

A WARNING ABOUT ANTACIDS

What could be better for you than a helping of a stomach-soothing antacids? A dose of caution, if you are the type of person who chugalugs milk of magnesia regularly. While antacids are taken for granted in many medicine cabinets, they may be harmful when used excessively. The problem is the magnesium that is often the key ingredient. Antacids and laxatives that contain magnesium are safe when taken as directed, but magnesium in large quantities can be toxic, interfering with heart and kidney function. Symptoms of a magnesium overload may include drowsiness, confusion and nausea. Long-term overuse may result in kidney failure, The elderly and people with kidney disease should be especially cautious.

P.S. Chronic heartburn or constipation can be signs of more serious health problems. Talk to your doctor.

With over-the-counter medication, you must still be careful in their use -- despite your familiarity with them. At COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and I specialize in heart disease. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. Hours by appointment. We're at 700 Congress St., in Quincy. Call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli with questions at 472-2550. I am a member of the American College of Cardiology and the American Heart Ass'n.

Brian Kelly Returns From Overseas Deployment

Navy Petty Officer 1st Class Brian Kelly, a 1980 graduate of Quincy High School, has returned to Norfolk, Va., after completing a six-month overseas deployment aboard the amphibious assualt ship USS Wasp, which included duty in the Adriatic Sea near Bosnia.

Kelly is one of more than 3,000 sailors and marines aboard the ship who completed the 45,000-mile voyage. Kelly's ship led the three-ship USS Wasp Amphibious Ready Group (ARG) which also included the amphibious transport dock USS Shreveport, the dock-landing ship USS Whidbey Island, and the 26th Marine Expeditionary Unit.

While in the Adriatic Sea, Kelly and fellow sailors and marines provided ready support for the peace implementation forces in Bosnia.

During the deployment, they also participated in several multi-national amphibious landing exercises with forces from Albania, Egypt and Tunisia.

Kelly joined the Navy in July 1981.

For Making Illegal Campaign Contributions

Fireman Agrees To Pay $6M Fine

Simon Fireman of Marina Bay and his company, Aqua-Leisure Industries, have agreed to pay $6 million in fines for violating federal campaign finance laws in a plea bargain filed last week with the U.S. District Court in Boston.

Federal prosecutors have recommended Fireman also spend at least six months in jail on conspiracy and campaign finance charges. They believe his desire to become a U.S. ambassador if Bob Dole won the presidency is what prompted Fireman to make thousands of dollars in illegal contributions to presidential campaigns, including $69,000 to Dole's.

SIMON FIREMAN

Fireman, 70, has made no comment on the matter. His lawyer, Thomas Dwyer Jr., has said the matter has been "blown out of proportion" but that Fireman plans to "face up to his mistakes."

Fireman did say in a brief written statement he agreed to plead guilty because he could not "further endure being used as a political tool."

U.S. Attorney Donald Stern said Fireman agreed to plead guilty to conspiracy and campaign finance violations after the FBI turned up evidence of an elaborate scheme for funneling illegal campaign contributions through his top assistant, Carol Nichols of Bridgewater, and employees of his company.

Stern said Fireman wired money from Hong Kong into United States bank accounts upon which Nichols would draw to give money to employees. Employees then wrote $1,000 political contribution checks that Nichols would collect and forward to the campaigns, he added.

Federal law limits individual campaign contributions to $1,000 and prohibits donors from making contributions through employees or others to exceed that amount.

Nichols, 41, has agreed under the plea bargain agreement to pay a $7,500 fine for her part in the scheme. Prosecutors said they will recommendation she be placed on probation.

Stern said between 1991 and 1995, in addition to the $69,000 for Dole committee, $24,000 was given to the Republican National Committee, $21,000 to the Bush-Quayle Committee and $6,000 to the campaign committee for Democratic Congressman Joseph Kennedy.

Stern said there is no evidence the campaigns knew about the system, and no charges will be brought against the Aqua-Leisure employees, who were forced to take part in the system.

Dole and Kennedy campaign officials said the money they received from Fireman will be returned to him.

Fireman has been an enthusiastic to Republican causes since 1980, when he supported President Ronald Reagan even though Carter had appointed him to the U.S. Domestic Trade Advisory Council.

He also is known for his philanthropy, and recently has made contributions of $500,000 or more to Quincy Hospital, Beth Israel Hospital and Hebrew Rehabilitation Center for the Aged.

CHECK RELAY -- Quincy officials present a check for $11,000 to Olympic Bronze Medalist and local resident Karen Cashman who is training for the 1998 Olympic Games in Japan. The money, raised by the city's golf tournament held in May, will help defray Cashman's travel and other expenses. Her short-track speedskating relay team won a bronze medal in the 1994 Games. "Passing off" the proceeds are, second from left, Mayor James Sheets, Recreation Director Barry Welch, Park Director Thomas Koch and DPW Commissioner David Colton.

Burgin Parkway Reconstruction

Reconstruction of a portion of Burgin Parkway began yesterday (Wednesday).

The portion under reconstruction is located between Granite St. and the rear of the Quincy Center MBTA Station. Two major water main breaks this past winter severely damaged the roadway, undermining the road and causing dangerous conditions.

The project is expected to cost $210,000 and is being undertaken by Derbes Brothers Inc. of Quincy. Frank Derbes, project manager, said the work will take approximately seven days to complete. Contingent on beneficial weather conditions, the inconvenience to motorists should end by Aug. 1.

Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton said the southbound lanes of the parkway will be excavated first, with traffic using the northbound lanes. Traffic will be allowed to pass the site in both directions by cutting down to one lane in each direction through the construction site.

Colton added that upon completion of the southbound lanes, the northbound lanes will be excavated and travel patterns will be reversed.

Motorists with questions regarding the construction should call the DPW at 376-1959.

Promenade Marketplace Opens Sept. 8

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The Quincy Promenade, a Faneuil Hall-type marketplace planned for the city's downtown shopping district, will open to the public Sunday, Sept. 8.

The project, which will be located along Ross Way behind the stores on the west side of Hancock Street, is designed to help stimulate business in the downtown. It is planned as a "festive area" to increase foot traffic in the shopping district.

Rodney Spear of the Department of Public Works said the Sept. 8 ceremonies will be held from 4 to 8 p.m. and will include a ribbon-cutting, family activities, live bands, artists and more. Mayor James Sheets and other officials also are expected to attend, he added.

"It should be a great day to get the folks out," said Spear. "It should be a good time."

Sheets said he is looking forward to the ceremonies and the opening of the marketplace.

"It's really a major improvement of that area," said Sheets, who has called the revitalization of Quincy Center crucial to the city's future. "It's going to be dressed up very nice."

The first phase of the project currently underway includes improvements to area lighting, the facade of the Ross Parking Garage, the nearby alley next to the old Hancock Bank--which will be dubbed "Town Brook Alley"--and the street itself. Other planned highlights include new pavement and trees, two new park areas, and possibly an outdoor restaurant and/or a summertime "bandstand" for local performers.

The project, designed by Mary Smith of Mary A. Smith & Associates of Quincy, is being funded by $150,000 included in a bond package passed by the City Council a couple of years ago.

Sidewalk Festival Gives Downtown Big Boost

Downtown merchants had another successful year at the recent 26th annual Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival.

Business owners surveyed by The Quincy Sun gave answers ranging from "decent" to "awesome" when asked how their stores fared during the three-day event sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA).

Among the comments:

Deanna Gazarian, chairman of the QCBPA Promotions Committee that organized the event: "I thought it was wonderful. I was very happy. I think the whole event was one of the best we've had in years."

Joanne Dondero, Abigail's Crossing: "Thursday was slower, but we did twice as much business on both Friday and Saturday. We were lucky that the rain held off Friday. The thing I found was that people weren't buying what I had marked at 50 percent off, they were buying my regularly-priced items."

Joanne Falco, Great Cuts: "We did awesome, especially Saturday. I was very, very, very happy with it. It was well worth the effort."

Charles Ryder, Ryder's Curtain and Drapery Store: "It was excellent. We had our best sidewalk sale in the last three years."

AMONG THE STORES that drew shoppers to the 26th annual Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival was Expose, which will sell discount clothes when it officially opens at the former Cummings store next month.

Council To Honor Officer Brian Tobin

City Council President Peter Kolson has announced the council will honor Quincy Police Officer Brian Tobin at it Sept. 3 meeting for heroic actions during a July 6 fire in West Quincy.

Tobin, the son of former Mayor and current Clerk Magistrate Arthur Tobin, helped rescue 7-month-old Nicholas Leone during the blaze by catching him after the infant's mother tossed him out of a second floor window to save him from the fire.

"Brian exhibited what is required of a Quincy police officer, which is to go that extra mile to serve the needs of the public," said Kolson. "His name will be placed on the Quincy Citizen Hero Award plaque located in the City Council Chambers."

Mid-October Opening Planned

Downtown Restaurant Receives $200,000 In Quincy 2000 Loans

Quincy 2000 has loaned $150,000 to C & F Cousins through the Quincy 2000 Loan Pool to help the firm open an upscale restaurant called Kevin's at the Heritage at the Heritage Building, 1495 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

C & F Cousins also received an additional $50,000 in loans for equipment, in consideration of the job creation potential of the business and its impact on the revitalization efforts of Quincy Center, according to Quincy 2000 Executive Director Joseph Mannarino, who made the announcement this week.

The proprietor of the restaurant will be North Quincy native Kevin Cadigan, former vice president and general manager of Jimmy's Harborside restaurant in Boston. He has more than 15 years' restaurant management experience.

"I've always had a dream to open up a restaurant," said Cadigan, who plans to open his downtown establishment in mid-October. "And Quincy Center is in need of an upscale restaurant with affordable prices."

Modeled after the bistros of Boston's Newbury Street, Kevin's at the Heritage will feature gourmet cuisine, microbrews, and fine vintage wines. It will include an 80-seat dining room, 40-seat cafe-style lounge area, full bar, staging area for a piano or other entertainment and a wine vault in the bank vault used by the former tenant, Bank of New England.

"This is something the South Shore has been starving for," said Paul Talkowski of Daniel J. Flynn and Co. whose president, Daniel Flynn, owns the Heritage Building. "And we're obviously very excited to have it in this building."

Mannarino said the restaurant will be "one of the key components in bringing excitement to the downtown" and fits in well with Quincy 2000's master plan for the area.

"Quincy Center is on the move," he said. "This restaurant will be almost an anchor down here."

The Loan Pool funds will be used to purchase furniture, fixtures and leasehold improvements for the new restaurant. The street-level space at the Heritage Building has been vacant for almost four years.

"This loan represents a commitment by the local banks, which fund the Quincy 2000 Loan Pool, that they are willing to invest in a new Quincy business that will assist the revitalization of Quincy Center and create 25 new jobs," said Mannarino. "Quincy 2000 pledged an additional $50,000 of its own funds in the form of a loan to purchase equipment for the restaurant."

Joseph Donahue, president of Donahue Associates--the Quincy-based architectural firm hired by Cadigan--said, "We intend to rebuild the former bank space into a visually rich environment using quality materials and comfortable lighting. The bank vault, however, will survive the remodeling to be used to display and store wines.

"The natural woodwork of the interior will also be used in a storefront system that can be opened during warm weather."

The $5 million Quincy 2000 Loan Pool was established in November 1994 and is funded by 12 local and regional banks. To date, it has provided about $830,000 in loans to small businesses in Quincy.

Mannarino said plans are in the works for a more streamlined approach for smaller loans of less than $40,000. In addition, he said, the process of screening loan requests will be handled more effectively. Quincy 2000 plans to loan about $700,000 this year, he added.

For more information about the Loan Pool Program, call 847-1454.

Bellotti Beach Cleanup Postponed

State Rep. Michael Bellotti's annual Wollaston Beach Cleanup originally scheduled for Saturday has been postponed due to an unexpected change in the House of Representatives legislative schedule.

Bellotti said he regrets any inconvenience the postponement may cause to those people who planned on participating. He added that he hopes all will be able to participate on the yet to be determined rescheduled date, which will be announced through the media and mailings in the near future.

For more information, call Bellotti at 479-0111.

Citizenship Students To Receive Certificates From Sheets Aug. 3

Students of the first citizenship class sponsored by the Chinese Culture Development and Promotion Council and Chinese Language School in Quincy will receive written test certificates from Mayor James Sheets Saturday, Aug. 3.

The students, who have all passed the written examination in the naturalization process to become citizens, will receive the certificates at 11 a.m. at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, 12 Hunt St., North Quincy.

Following the presentations, there will be Chinese folk dancing and a Chinese Dim Sum lunch.

Durkin Meeting On Standish Ave. Traffic

Ward 5 City Councillor Stephen Durkin was scheduled to hold a neighborhood meeting regarding traffic problems in the Standish Ave. area last night (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. in the second floor Conference Room at City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Durkin said speeding cars in the area have been a major problem and have resulted in the recent death of one neighbor and serious injury to another struck while riding a bicycle.

"Clearly, something needs to be done about the problem," he said.

Durkin has proposed imposing a "Do Not Enter" restriction on Standish Ave. from Hancock St. during morning rush hour and from Beale St. during evening rush hour. He has invited neighbors to express their opinions on the matter.

SUMMERTIME, AND THE STOMACH IS QUEASY

Ah, ice cream cones dripping in the midday sun, cool gin and tonics and heaping platters of barbecued ribs. Ah . . . ouch! It's no wonder that our digestive systems sometimes rebel against the barrage of summertime treats we throw at them. If you find yourself feeling queasy, your stomach may be trying to tell you it needs a rest. Lay off fatty or high-fat foods, both of which take a lot of time and effort to digest. If you are nauseous, you may not feel like eating anything at all, but be sure to keep yourself hydrated. Take sips of soda that has been allowed to lose its fizz, or suck on ice chips or juice pops. Plain saltine crackers will give your stomach juices something to work on. For awhile at least, stick to eating complex carbohydrates such as plain rice, potatoes, pasta and white bread.

P.S. If stomach symptoms hang on for longer than two days, check with your doctor.

Exerting yourself excessively in hot weather can also lead to nausea; take care when exercising or enjoying the summer heat! And Now, Twenty Years Later

Twenty years ago, the scene would have been considered a political "it-will-never-happen."

Back then no one would have dared to predict or bet someday it could happen.

But it did the other day in Siros at Marina Bay.

HANNON

LaRAIA

And, at another table across the room was Walter Hannon with business associates.

Hannon was mayor back in 1975 and was challenged by LaRaia, then a city councillor, in what turned out to a campaign brawl.

It was one of the closest and most bitter campaigns in the city's history.

Casey, Papile and Shaheen were major players in the LaRaia camp.

On election night, Hannon went home the winner by a scant 134 votes: 17,060 to 16,926. Or, so it seemed.

This was back in the days of paper ballots and counting by hand in blocks of 50 votes.

The LaRaia camp yelled "foul" and filed for a recount. The recount, held three weeks later, showed LaRaia the actual winner by 483 votes--17,231 to 16,748.

A court inquiry found mistakes had been made in the original counting of the votes but that there was no wrongdoing.

So, Hannon was out of the mayor's office and LaRaia was in. And the feuding and the hard feelings between the two camps went on for some time like political Hatfields and McCoys. There were those on both sides who wouldn't even speak to one another.

Casey became LaRaia's executive secretary. Papile was named an assessor. Shaheen was appointed a code enforcement inspector in the Building Department.

LaRaia, who was defeated two years later by Arthur Tobin in another campaign slugfest, is a city assessor today. Casey is vice president of the O'Connell Management Co. Papile is still an assessor. Shaheen is city sealer of weights and measures.

Hannon is now an executive with Massport. (There are reports he may be leaving there in the near future.)

Anyway, at Siros the other day, Hannon got through lunch first. On his way out, he stopped at the table where LaRaia, Casey, Papile and Shaheen were seated.

"What are you guys doing," he quipped. "Getting ready to run Joe again?"

They all laughed and then shook hands.

Time, they say, heals all wounds. And, it appears, those old deep political wounds of two decades ago have been healed. (Although there are a still a holdout or two.)

But this old grudge seems to have been put to rest. That's a good place for it.

SHEETS

CAHILL

When he got to Councillor Tim Cahill he put in a plug for him as a candidate for Norfolk County "commissioner."

That was a little slip as Cahill is running for Norfolk County treasurer, not commissioner.

GILLIS

But it was good for a laugh because Quincy's John Gillis is running for re-election as county commissioner. Gillis, who was sitting near Cahill put on a "I-didn't-know-he-was-running-against-me" look.

Sheets quickly corrected himself and someone yelled out to Gillis: "You can relax, John."

Sheets said he wanted to help get Cahill elected treasurer, adding with a smile: "I want to get him out of the City Council."

He noted that things have been going nice and easy for him since Cahill has been so busy campaigning for treasurer.

Cahill has criticized Sheets at times and twice was seriously thinking of challenging him for the mayor's office.

But it was all in good fun at the Boy Scouts breakfast.

"I'm taking that as an endorsement from Jim," said Cahill later. "It sure sounded like an endorsement to me."

ARNOLD PARSEGHIAN who will be opening his Expose LTD fashions store in the old Cummings in August, got the feel of downtown Quincy during last week's Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival. And, liked it.

Parseghian had some of his merchandise on sale out on the sidewalk. And, looking at the opening day crowd, he quipped: "Can we do this every week?"

Parseghian believes that downtown retail districts are on their way back and Quincy is going to be one of the better ones.

He obviously is a smart merchandiser. When the forecast for Friday was rain, he brought in a supply of umbrellas.

Incidentally, Parseghian is a cousin of Ara Parseghian, the former Notre Dame head football coach who led the Fighting Irish to some of their finest seasons.

SPEAKING OF THE Sidewalk Festival, Dan O'Malley of O'Malley's gym put on a crowd pleasing boxing show with a ring set up on Hancock St.

It was billed as a boxing demonstration. But it sure looked like the real thing with boxers in all bouts going toe-to-toe.

Never know what you will find on Hancock St. during a Sidewalk Festival.

IF YOU'RE A coffee drinker and work in the downtown or are in the area often, there's a good deal at Handshakes.

They put your name on a card and each time you buy a cup, the card is punched. Five punches and you get the next cup free. Then you can start over with a new card.

And, the coffee is good.

Four Residents Receive Mass. Maritime Appointment

Four Quincy residents have been offered an appointment to Massachusetts Maritime Academy.

They are:

Sean Hughes, Matthew Knowles, Joseph McCarthy and Timothy Zaniboni.

Massachusetts Maritime is a four year state college that specializes in marine science related majors. Located on Cape Cod, the academy provides two credentials: a fully accredited bachelor of science degree and a professional license

THIS IS A 1915 real photo postcard view of the original Wollaston Yacht Club building. This view, taken at low tide from the mud flats, shows the club's wooden boardwalk, extending on the left to the boulevard at the foot of Beach Street. In the 1920's, this building was expanded on the boardwalk end, but then 30 years later, it was pretty much destroyed by fire. Today only the pilings and a small portion of the expanded section of the original clubhouse survives. Founded in 1898, the first commodore of the club was Frank Burgess, who at that time, lived on Beach Street and owned the Boston Gear Works.

Harry Beede Was A Good Man

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Harry Beede was a good man--and who could ask for any better description of one's life.

A wise man once said, "The true measure of a man's life is displayed for all to see in the manner in which he dies." As an example of a man who had lived a good and noble life, he cited the man who gave his life to rescue another human being from a sinking ship.

Harry A. Beede, who died in Florida in April, did not die rescuing another human being from death. However, his actions in preparation for his death mark him as a good and noble man. Mr. Beede, a former teacher at North Quincy High School and the principal of Central Junior High School and Broad Meadows Junior High School, continued his lifelong devotion to the students of the Quincy Public Schools by allocating 70 percent of his and his wife Louisa's investments to the Quincy Retired Teachers Association Scholarship Fund.

The interest from this bequest will be used to award scholarships to hundreds of future graduates of the Quincy Public Schools. The 70 percent of his estate totals $1,022,000, so you can see Mr. Beede has indeed made a major contribution to the well-being and future education of Quincy's young people.

During his long and fruitful 34 years as an educator, Harry A. Beede made a lasting contribution to the students of Quincy. That contribution will continue in the form of scholarships for years to come.

Yes, Harry Beede was a good man!

Sunflower-Growing Contest Begins At Beechwood Center

A Summer Sunflower-Growing Contest has begun for the second year at Beechwood on the Bay, 440 East Squantum St., Quincy.

The annual "Grow Together" contest began last summer. Beechwood distributed packages of sunflower seeds to children and families with a challenge to see which plantings would produce the tallest sunflower by summer's end.

Last year, more than 100 families entered the contest. The Shields family on Bayfield Rd. in Quincy grew the tallest sunflower, which measured 6 feet 4 inches. The family won a gift certificate from Curry Hardware and family portrait from Presidential Camera Studios.

This year, the giant sunflower seed packets are again being donated by Curry Hardware and are available at Beechwood.

"We're hoping to have at least 200 families planting sunflowers throughout the city," said Beechwood Executive Director Sharron Beals. "Many have memories of family gardening. Today, not too many family yards have space for gardening plots. But almost all of us have enough space to plant sunflower seeds."

The pre-schoolers at Beechwood and the school-aged children who attend Beechwood's after-school programs have planted their seeds. Free sunflower seed packets for families are available at Beechwood and at The Quincy Sun, 1372 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

For more information about the contest, call 471-5712.

Hypnosis-Smoking Cessation Session At Hospital Aug. 14

Manet Community Health Center will offer a hypnosis session for smoking cessation Wednesday, Aug. 14 from 6 to 8 p.m. at Quincy Hospital, 114 Whitwell St., in the Education Center.

Susan Holden-Dodge, M.S.W., certified in chemical dependency and licensed hypnotherapist, will begin the program with an interactive group session discussing nicotine, weight gain, and other concerns and fears encountered when trying to quit smoking. It will be followed by a hypnosis session and further discussion. Comfortable clothing is suggested.

Advance registration is not required. For more information, call 376-4020.

Grossman Quits Congress Race

July 25 - Aug. 1
1958
38 Years Ago

By PAUL HAROLD

Quincy businessman Joseph Grossman dropped out of the Congressional race for the Republican nomination, giving the edge to fellow Quincy resident William Jenness.

Following the announcement by Richard Wigglesworth that he would not run for re-election, there were originally five Quincy Republicans vying for the seat, including Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa, Sen. Charles Hedges and Councillor Thomas Burgin. At the end of this week, Jenness was the survivor.

He still faced opposition from outside the city from Harold Putnam of Needham and former Brockton Mayor Hjalmar Peterson.

GEORGE NOMINATED FOR FREEDOM AWARD

Mayor Della Chiesa nominated Atty. Louis George for the Freedom, Inc.'s annual award. Given out at the state house in conjunction with Constitution Day ceremonies, the award is given to immigrants or sons or daughters of immigrants for outstanding achievement.

Born in Lebanon in 1899, George was a member of the City Council and served for 17 years as chairman of the Quincy Housing Authority.

GOURDIN ELEVATED TO SUPERIOR COURT

Judge Edward Gourdin of Presidents Lane, the judge in the Roxbury Court, was sworn in by Gov. Foster Furcolo to the superior court.

Judge Gourdin thus became the first Negro in New England to serve at the superior court level. Attending the swearing in ceremonies was Thurgood Marshall, chief counsel for the NAACP.

Multi-Cultural Concert At Crane Library Aug. 1

Katy Sullivan will perform in a multi-cultural concert Thursday, Aug. 1 from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. on the lawn of the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

The show will include music from across the continents in many different languages.

Sullivan's rich and varied musical experience is reflected in her work that includes a CD entitled "Nine Lives" available in the library collection. Her compositions range from jazz to rock to sacred, and she has mastered show tunes, The Beatles, and choral music. She plays guitar and piano and has studied violin, double bass, and French horn.

Library concerts are supported, in part, by the Quincy Cultural Council, Massachusetts Cultural Council, and Friends of the Library.

KATY SULLIVAN will perform in a multi-cultural concert Thursday, Aug. 1 from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. on the lawn of the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

John McDermott Concert Will Benefit Homeless Veterans Shelter

Irish tenor John McDermott will perform a concert to benefit the New England Shelter for Homeless Veterans in Boston Thursday, Aug. 1 at the Hynes Convention Center.

With Boston Mayor Thomas Menino serving as fund-raising chairman, the event is designed to generate financing for the creation of 59 units of individual housing within the facility, including its first-ever accommodations for women veterans.

The evening's festivities will kick off with a reception at 6 p.m., followed by dinner at 7:30 p.m. and the concert at 8:30 p.m. Tickets are $100 apiece or $1,000 for a table of 10. Reservations may be made by calling 371-1745 or 770-3310.

Honorary chairmen for the evening are Boston City Council President James Kelly and state Sen. Stephen Lynch.

Spearheaded by the shelter's new executive director, Thomas Lyons, the event is the agency's first major fund-raiser in years. In the past, the shelter has received federal and state funding to conduct its programs, which include education, vocational training, health care, counseling and job placement.

Lyons said McDermott's willingness to participate in the event is a "godsend" in the shelter's time of need.

"When we approached him, we had no idea whether he'd be available or if he did this kind of event," said Lyons. "All he had to hear was that it was to benefit veterans, and he was all for it. In fact, his enthusiasm is rather infectious for all of us."

McDermott, known on three continents, appeared at several events in the Boston area earlier this year. His three Capitol Records album, "The Danny Boy Collection," "Old Friends" and "Christmas Memories" have sold more than 250,000 copies in the United States.

McDermott also has received multiple gold and platinum record awards and international media attention for his sold-out concerts and charity work.

AIDING VETERANS--Irish tenor John McDermott (left) and Tom Lyons, executive director of the New England Shelter for Homeless Veterans, are all smiles following the announcement that the renowned singer will perform at a benefit dinner concert to raise funds for the shelter. The event will be held Thursday, Aug. 1 at the Hynes Veterans Memorial Convention Center. Reservations are available by calling 770-3310 or 371-1745.

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements, the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit photos with their announcements, and when submitting their wedding photo, to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries, beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

QCAP Elects Officers, Board Of Directors

Quincy Community Action Programs (QCAP) Inc., the city's non-profit agency that assists low and moderate income residents in Quincy and other nearby communities, recently elected officers and board members at its annual meeting at The Fours in Quincy Center.

PAUL GRAHAM
QCAP President

More than 100 board members, staff and local elected officials attended the event. Mayor James Sheets addressed the Board of Directors, expressing his support for QCAP's services and complimenting the board for its hard work and dedication.

The Board of Directors elected the following officers: Paul Graham, president; Caryn Smith-Varn, vice president; Zaida Shaw, secretary; Janet Crowley, treasurer and Bruce Figueroa, assistant treasurer.

In addition, the Board of Directors ratified the following slate of directors for the coming year (director represents affiliation listed in parentheses):

•Private Representatives: Abe Cohen (South Shore Coalition for Human Rights), Alicia Coletti (Quincy Public Schools), Bruce Figueroa (Citizens Bank), Gerard Linskey (Hibernia Savings Bank), Mary Lucier (Mass. Rehabilitation Commission), Mary McElroy (Weymouth Planning Commission), James Murdoch (Stop & Shop), Mark Osborne (Hibernia Savings Bank), Linda Robinson (Quincy After School Program), Leonard Varn (CNA Insurance), Jim Stamos (South Shore Board of Realtors).

QCAP also highlighted its 1995 accomplishments, including Community Care for Kids, Energy, Head-Start, Housing and the Southwest Community Center, at the meeting. Of particular note was that the agency was able to secure new grants and funds in the areas of early childhood education, First Time Homebuyer services, a small home repair program, and to purchase six more units of affordable housing in Weymouth.

LOCKING IN ANTILOCK BRAKES

Originally developed and patented in Germany during the 1930s for use in aircraft, antilock braking systems (ABS) were first introduced into passenger cars in the mid-1960s and are now available on all but a small number of vehicles. ABS helps drivers maintain control of their cars in emergency situations by preventing the wheels from locking up under hard braking. The system accomplishes this by engaging and disengaging the brakes rapidly when sensors detect wheel slippage. This technique is similar to the traditional method of pumping the brake pedal to avoid skidding on slippery surfaces, but ABS can perform this task more quickly (up to 18 times per second) and more precisely than the best driver. In order for ABS to work, drivers must keep their feet firmly depressed on the brake pedal without letting up. Any attempt to pump the brake pedal will merely defeat ABS and the improved safety edge that goes with it.

HINT: By some estimates, nearly half of all drivers with ABS-equipped cars do not know how to use the system properly, thereby considerably reducing the effectiveness of this safety device.

For you overall safety, your braking system should be checked often and properly maintained. It is not wise to do anything else. Following Upcoming Drainage

Sheets Sees 'Historic' Potential For Quarry

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Mayor James Sheets said this week he supports a plan to turn the Granite Rail Quarry into a new historic attraction following its upcoming drainage.

The plan, which would turn the site into a "historical demonstration quarry," is the brainchild of Edward Monti of Quincy-based Monti Granite, according to the mayor.

Gov. William Weld announced last week that the quarry will be drained to find out once and for all if the body of missing 19-year-old college student P.J. McDonagh of Ireland is at the bottom. No date for the drainage had been set as of press time.

McDonagh was visiting relatives when he vanished June 27, 1994. A friend has said they were together at the quarry after drinking at a Dorchester bar, and after a brief nap, he awoke to find McDonagh gone.

The state Legislature, at the request of Rep. James Brett (D-Boston), has set aside $1 million to drain the quarry, and Weld has ordered the MDC, which owns it, to have the job done.

Sheets said Tuesday whether the body is discovered there or not, he wants the quarry to remain drained. He added that he is "definitely in favor" of Monti's plan.

Asked why, the mayor said, "Education. I think it's important for people to know how granite was quarried in this city."

He added, "The granite could also be used for new Quincy monuments."

Officials have estimated that it would take three months to drain the quarry at 1 million gallons per day.

Sheets said he is aware that if even the quarry is drained, it will have to be "constantly pumped" in order to keep it dry so that it can be maintained as a historic site.

He added that while he is unsure if the quarry is refilled by a natural spring or by rainwater alone--"there are two schools of thought on that," according to Sheets--pumping would be necessary either way. How that would be accomplished is something that would be negotiated between the MDC and Monti, the mayor said.

Quincy Promenade To Open Sept. 8

ther highlight of the Quincy Promenade will be the inclusion of the Quincy Farmers' Market near the Ross Garage. He said beginning Aug. 24, the market will be open every Saturday as part of the new marketplace.

Spear added that the Farmers' Market will continue to open Fridays at the Hancock Parking Lot in Quincy Center in addition to its appearances at the Quincy Promenade.

Sheets has said the plans for the marketplace have received "widespread support" from the downtown business community.

Sheets Supports Lawsuit Against W.Q. Landlords

Mayor James Sheets and other city officials have voiced support of a state lawsuit seeking seizure of a West Quincy apartment building with a long history of drug trafficking.

Last week, the offices of the state attorney general and Norfolk County district attorney sued Harry and Esther Tatarian and their son, Harry Jr., all of Belmont, the owners of the Wellesley-based Tatarian Realty Trust which includes the 48-unit apartment building at 145 Willard St.

The lawsuit alleges that undercover Quincy police officers or informants bought drugs at the complex at least 15 times over a four-year period. It also states police have been summoned there for other complaints involving robberies, prostitution, and more.

In addition, the suit says the Tatarian knew or should have known about extensive drug use and drug sales at the building and did nothing about it.

Sheets said he hopes the lawsuit will help prevent further criminal activity in the West Quincy neighborhood. Police Chief Francis Mullen also voiced his support, saying his department's Drug Unit have been pursuing the case for some time.

"It's been a tedious process," said Mullen. "But we will work with the city's law office now on behalf of the city. It's a team effort."

Atty. George Burke of Quincy, the Tatarians' lawyer, said his clients have tried to clean up the building and are being treated unfairly. He claimed that most of the activity in question happened four years ago.

City officials, however, said little has been done since 1992.

State law allows forfeiture of rental properties if a landlord is aware of drug use or trafficking on the property and fails to correct it. Nuisance law allows the attorney general or district attorney to take measures against the owner up to seizing and selling the property.

Mulvey Has Throat Surgery At Carney

Building Inspector Mathias Mulvey had throat surgery Tuesday at Carney Hospital in Dorchester to correct a problem he says was responsible for an alleged incident involving erratic driving last week.

The city will not take any action regarding Mulvey until a court decides whether he was driving under the influence of alcohol when arrested by Braintree police July 17.

Mayor James Sheets, said he could not comment for legal reasons.

"It was an unfortunate incident, but because it is a court matter, I'm not going to comment," he said. "Once the matter is decided in court, I'll make any decision I deem necessary."

Sheets added that Mulvey was scheduled to be out of work for seven to 10 days for throat surgery prior to his arrest.

Mulvey was arrested July 17 in Braintree after police stopped him around 2 a.m. for speeding and driving erratically.

He was released from the Braintree police lockup about an hour later after he paid $25 to a bail commissioner.

Mulvey, who returns to court Nov. 11, has said he was not drunk and that recent medical conditions were responsible for his condition. His throat problems have made it almost impossible to breath when he lies down, which is why he had surgery Tuesday to have a part of his palate and uvula removed.

Mulvey pleaded innocent July 17 in Quincy District Court to charges of operating under the influence of alcohol, speeding and failing to drive within marked lanes. Police said he was driving 51 m.p.h. in a 35 m.p.h. zone.

Mulvey also lost his drivers' license for 120 days for refusing to take a breathalyzer test, Braintree police said. He has said he plans to ask for a hearing before the Registry of Motor Vehicles to restore his license while the case is pending and that he expects to be cleared of all charges after presenting his medical records to a judge.

On Drug-Related, Other Violations

Point Pub Shut Down For 21 Days

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The Quincy License Board has closed the Point Pub, 536 Washington St. for 21 days stemming from alleged drug-related and other violations.

The board originally voted unanimously at their February meeting to close the establishment, but the Point Pub appealed to the Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission (ABCC).

At Tuesday's meeting, Chairman Joseph Shea told the board that the ABCC upheld the license board decision to close the pub.

Police Chief Francis Mullen said the pub would be closed "immediatly."

Undercover work by the Quincy Police Department unveiled drug activity conducted at the pub and other violations of the establishments' license.

The following were the findings of the board:

•The violations of 204 CMR 2.05 (2) permitting an illegality on the licensed premises. Violation of Massachusetts controlled drug laws (seven counts).

•In July through Sept. 1995, the local police conducted a surveillance of the licensed premises. During that period, they observed patrons arriving in taxis and staying for only a few minutes at a time. This activity is consistent with that of individuals involved in illegal narcotics.

•On seven occasions, a police agent made twelve purchases of illegal narcotics. All but one purchased occurred while inside the licensed premises.

•The agent observed two women in the men's room snorting cocaine.

•At hearing before the commission, two bartenders testified that they had never observed anyone buying or selling drugs in the licensed premises. The commission finds their testimony to be no credible.

•The licensee knew, or should have known, that illegal narcotics were brought and sold at the licensed premises.

•At hearing before the commission, the local board chairman testified that the penalty was based on a three day suspension for each count, for a total of 21 days.

Based on the evidence heard, the commission finds that the action of the local board was supported by the evidence and was a reasonable exercise of the board's discretion.

The action of the license board was approved.

City To Receive $1.8 M In MWRA Rate Relief

State Sen. Michael Morrissey and Reps. Michael Bellotti, Ronald Mariano and Stephen Tobin along with their fellow MWRA Legislative Caucus members, have secured additional substantial relief for Massachusetts Water Resource Authority (MWRA) ratepayers.

Through the efforts of the legislative delegation, the City of Quincy will receive $1,856,629 in water and sewer rate relief. This year's state budget had an unprecedented $39 million dedicated to MWRA rate relief.

The entire delegation agreed that the amount achieved for rate relief is considerable. The legislators said they were happy about the state's continual commitment, but criticized the Republican Congress for cutting federal assistance.

The MWRA Caucus, now in its fifth year, has again surpassed its own expectations. The $39 million garnered for water and sewer relief in the Fiscal Year 1997 budget surpassed last year's budget by $7 million. The rate relief package this year brings the total funds lobbied by the MWRA Caucus to $115 million.

The Quincy delegation has promised to continue to fight for rate relief as one of their primary objectives.

"We will continue to fight hard to ensure rate relief and protect the people of Quincy from a tidal wave of debt," said Morrissey.

Nancy McArdle, Hancock Tobacco: "We had a very good three days and sold out of everything we put out for sale on the street. Everybody had a good time, and the entertainment was great. I would say it was one of our better sidewalk sales."

Jim Murphy, Quincy Records & Tapes: "We're happy. We think it was a good event. We saw a lot of people we don't usually see. We think they (QCBPA) did a really good job this year."

Jim Antonakas, Angelina's: "Well, we did all right. We sold a few pizzas. It was decent."

Beth Veneto, Ginger Betty's: "Thursday was the slowest day of the three. Friday was kind of iffy because of the weather, but it was still pretty good. Saturday was a beautiful day, and we sold a lot of cookies."

Bruce Ayers, Ward 6 city councillor and president of Ayers Handicap Conversion Center: "It met my expectations as far as the inquiries about our handicapped modifications equipment. I was very pleased. To compare it to our sidewalk shows, I'd say it was right up there."

Maralin Manning, QCBPA executive director: "Overall, we were more than pleased with the attendance, especially on Saturday. We had mobs of people Saturday, and we were surprised with the number of people who attended Friday in spite of the weather.

"The whole thing really had a family feel to it. Everyone was very well-mannered and seemed to be enjoying the ambiance and the entertainment."

Board Grants License For New Italian Restaurant

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The Quincy License Board granted a new liquor license Tuesday to the Agnitti family who plan to open a new Italian restaurant at the former High Rise in Quincy Center.

Paul Slattery and Bill Ryan, former owners of the High Rise vacated the premises in January, 1996, but still hold a liquor license for that site at 1384 Hancock, 6-8 Maple St.,

The license board voted to remove that license because of a lack of premise. Slattery and Ryan can still control the license until the end of the year.

Chairman Joseph Shea told Slattery and Ryan that the board would help in any way they can to relocate the license.

Atty. Robert Fleming representing the Agnitti family called their proposal a "viable enterprise for Quincy Center" and added "a vacancy there is not helping anyone."

He had earlier advised the board before taking their vote that the High Rise license be held as an unassigned license and issue a new licence to the Agnitti family.

Atty. Jeffrey LaPointe representing former owners of the High Rise told the board that this particular license was considered the oldest in Quincy dating back to the Maple Cafe. Slattery and Ryan also own the Presidential Pub LaPointe eluded to the fact that they had "never been before the board for any reason".

LaPointe said his clients only wanted to make sure their "license was maintained."

Fleming told the board that the Agnittis are planning to spend thousands of dollars to renovate the building.

The Agnitti's said they hope to open the restaurant by the end of the year.

40 Post Island Homes Lose Water Following Main Break

About 40 residential homes on Post Island were temporarily left without water following a water main break Tuesday.

Quincy Sewer-Water-Drain Supt. George Clark said the break occurred about 5 a.m. because of corrosion and age in a pipe built around 1904. The problem was further complicated, he noted, when an iron gate used to isolate such problems also was found broken about an hour later.

"It affected all of Post Island," said Clark, adding that age also played a factor in the gate problems. "About 40 houses."

Affected streets included Elcott, Post Island and Poplar Roads, he said.

The gate was repaired by 12:30 p.m. and the work on the water main was completed shortly before 3:30 p.m., he added.

Clark said broken water mains are a common occurrence in the city, with most problems taking place in the winter. Last year, 52 water mains in Quincy broke, he noted.

"We had one break for every week of the year," he said with a laugh.

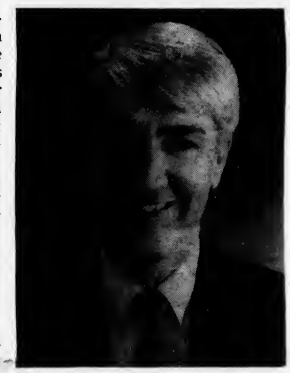
Ed Teague's Eye on Congress

HYANNIS, MA - With all the attention given to Congress these past two years, it is important to remember the biggest job for a Congressman is to get results for those he represents. Congressional candidate Ed Teague's Ten Point Plan for Cape Cod and the South Shore puts into proper perspective the key role for our new representative in Washington. In fact, Ed Teague has set a whole new standard.



Congressional Candidate Ed Teague

Teague's specific plan for fighting crime, reducing wasteful spending, curbing tax increases, protecting the elderly, and reforming welfare makes him the only candidate in Massachusetts' 10th District to offer real solutions and ideas. In an age when most politicians offer voters a "song and dance," Teague's approach is refreshing. And much needed.

At the heart of Teague's Ten Point Plan is his proven ability to fight for our area. Keep in mind that Ed Teague, as a State Representative, is respected by Democrats and Republicans alike on Beacon Hill for his fighting spirit. "People are tired of politicians who don't produce," says Ed Teague. "I've produced."

Indeed he has. Ed Teague, for example, established the Environmental License Plate, which raised two million dollars to help our state's environment. He also wrotethe law cracking down on deadbeat parents and those convicted of domestic violence. "It's all about results," reflected Ed Teague in a recent interview. "My plan to create jobs, fight crime and reform welfare--not empty campaign promises. My record shows that when I set out to get something done, it usually gets done."

Of course, Teague's results are even more remarkable considering he has operated as member of the minority party in Boston. In Washington, however, he will be in the majority party. "It doesn't matter to me," Teague says flatly. "As long as its good for Cape Cod and the South Shore, I'm for it. Otherwise I'll fight them every step of the way."

You can order a free copy of Ed Teague's Ten Point Plan by calling Teague for Congress at 508-790-1200.

SUMMER CAR CARE

A Car's Interior, Exterior Should Also Be Maintained

When most people think car care, changing the oil, tuning the spark plugs, and replacing the air filter are all activities that come to mind. Properly maintaining the interior and exterior of a car is often overlooked.

A full auto detail should be given to your car two to three times per year. A detail will not only dramatically improve the appearance of your vehicle, it will also prolong the interior and exterior of your car.

The interior is an expensive part of an automobile and can deteriorate quickly if not properly maintained. The interior temperature of an automobile may reach 150 degrees in the summer and fall well below zero degrees in the winter.

Under these extreme conditions, upholstery, carpet vinyl, leather, and plastic are composed of material that will fade, dry, and eventually split apart from overexposure and daily use. Protecting and conditioning these surfaces can't prevent deterioration but it will dramatically slow the process.

An auto detail can also preserve the exterior of your car. Modern cars are painted with acrylic enamels or acrylic uerathane in a one or two-stage system. These coatings rarely exceed .008 of an inch.

Without continuous protection, acid rain, UV light, industrial fallout and tree sap will start to break down your car's coat of paint within four years. A full auto detail will provide your car with the proper type of wax coating necessary to prevent this deterioration.

Thrifty Car Rental, 166 Washington St., Quincy Point, has two full-time detailers on staff. For any questions concerning the detail process or to make an appointment, call 984-0693.

Aluminum Heads More Vulnerable To Overheating

Does your car have aluminum cylinder heads? If you don't know, it would be wise to find out, says the Car Care Council.

Aluminum heads are more vulnerable to damage from overheating than the traditional cast iron type. Excessive heat can warp the temperature-sensitive heads, resulting in a major repair expense. And it can happen so fast you may not have been aware your car was in trouble.

The most common causes of overheating is a loss of coolant due to a leak. Another culprit is a sticking thermostat, which prevents coolant from circulating through the engine.

To avoid the expense and inconvenience of trouble on the road, far from home, invest in an annual inspection of the cooling system, because overheating is a leading cause of mechanical breakdown.

The council offers these additional tips on cooling system maintenance:

•Save gas with an efficient vehicle. Your car's engine, like your body, has an optimum operating temperature. Most engines run in the 210 to 240-degree range (Fahrenheit), controlled by the cooling system thermostat. But fuel economy drops 10 to 20 percent when engine operating temperature falls below 125 degrees. The small investment to replace a faulty thermostat soon can pay for itself, not only in gas savings but also in terms of reduced engine wear.

•When the hose or drive belt needs replacing, you're likely to find more in marginal condition. Rubber components under the hood live in a hostile environment, surviving temperatures ranging from sub-zero to more than 250 degrees. Hoses circulate as much as 7,500 gallons of coolant per hour at up to 18 pounds of pressure. They warrant periodic situation.

•The radiator pressure cap serves as the safety valve in the cooling system. The pressure test, available at most service dealers, not only will disclose existing or potential leaks in the system, it also can detect a faulty pressure cap.

For a free pamphlet on cooling system maintenance, send a business-sized, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Car Care Council, Department Cool, One Grande Lake Drive, Port Clinton, OH 43452.

SUMMER CAR CARE

Car Maintenance Report: A Lesson To Be Learned

One of the easiest parts of a car to check is the most ignored, according to a statistical report from the Car Care Council.

Tires topped the list of neglected components during the 1994 National Car Care Month vehicle check campaign. Thirty-one percent of cars had improperly inflated tires or excessively worn tread.

Overall, 87 percent of cars checked failed the inspection for some kind of maintenance neglect. Nearly one out of five failed the emissions test, an important aspect of the vehicle check campaign.

"Excessive hydrocarbons in the exhaust, a sign of poor combustion due to a dirty air filter or worn spark plugs, causes wasted gas and polluted air," says National Car Care Month Executive Director Donna Wagner.

"We've found an increase in other areas as well," she adds. "Each year, from 1988 through 1994, for example, an average 7 percent of vehicles failed inspection due to faulty windshield wipers. In 1994, that percentage had increased to 14 percent.

"Also, 16.2 percent of vehicles failed due to low or dirty fluids (motor oil, transmission, power steering or brake fluid), up from an average of 15.2 percent over the previous four years. Twenty percent had one or more lights inoperative.

"Ninety-four percent of vehicles 10 years old or older needed maintenance," concludes Wagner. "That's the highest percentage we have seen since the project began."

The voluntary inspection program is part of an annual campaign designed to focus public attention on the benefits of proper car care. Maintenance neglect leads to air pollution, wasted fuel and premature wear, emphasizes the Council. Further, a neglected car is a safety hazard.

The statistical report, produced by Car Care Council in cooperation with the Automotive Market Research Council, is based on inspection of 6,569 vehicles in 31 cities.

Revolutionary Technology Offers Double Protection

(NAPS)—An oil filter that represents a brand new technology in engine performance systems is putting more cars on the road to longer life and better performance. (Oil filters increase the engine life by preventing dirt and metal particles from reaching moving parts.)

The new filter contains DuPont Teflon which has an electrostatic charge. This allows it to reduce engine wear and eliminate 96 percent of the dirt running through your car's system.

The new filter, FRAM DOUBLE GUARD, contains DuPont Teflon, an additive that reduces engine wear by guarding against metal-to-metal contact during start-ups. Tests have shown that DuPont Teflon is effective for 50,000 miles under all driving conditions.

FRAM DOUBLE GUARD also eliminates 96 percent of the dirt running through your car's engine system. The average efficiency rating of most oil filters is 74 percent.

For the first time in automotive history, the motorist can buy an oil filter that not only traps dirt, but also helps fight start-up wear. It can be used in new or older cars. There is no break-in time for new car utilization.

The manufacturers of the new filter, Allied-Signal, recommend that drivers continue to change their oil filter every 3,000 miles using FRAM DOUBLE GUARD for at least one filter change a year.

Remember, though, that tune-ups are still an important part of car maintenance. They not only provide better performance, they can give you extra mileage. Experts estimate that engines that are badly out of tune could waste five percent of the gas they buy. For an average driver, that would add up to 35 gallons a year.

At Presidents Golf Course

Marie's Restaurant Is 'Open To The Public'

RENE AND MARIE LUMAGHINI, co-owners of Marie's Restaurant at Presidents Golf Course, 357 W. Squantum St., said the toughest challenge they've encountered in the four years they've been in business is informing the public that the restaurant is open to all.

By LIAM FITZGERALD

"Open to the public."

If Rene and Marie Lumaghini, co-owners of Marie's Restaurant at Presidents Golf Course, could say only four words to inform people about their establishment, those are the words they would probably use.

In their fourth year of operating Marie's, the Lumaghinis, both Quincy natives, said their toughest challenge is letting the public know that they are just as welcome to visit the restaurant as are members of the golf course.

"Our biggest challenge is letting everyone know that we're open to the public," said Rene. "We want to let the public know that this is a county facility. To get the public in here is tough.

"We get a lot of business from the members of the golf course, but we'd also like to get more outside people here. You don't have to be a member of the golf course to come and enjoy yourself. You can play horseshoes, tennis or just come to the restaurant itself."

Rene's wife, Marie, said a possible reason some people don't frequent the restaurant is that since they aren't golfers, they feel out of place.

"Maybe people who don't golf feel intimidated or uncomfortable here around the golfers," said Marie. "It's really a casual place to come, sit down inside or outside and enjoy the view.

"Once people come here, it's no problem getting them to come back. We take their names down with every order and try to become familiar with what they want every time they come in. This makes people comfortable and relaxed when they come to the restaurant."

Those who visit Marie's can dine inside or out on the patio and choose from the inexpensive breakfast menu, with all meals under $4. Among other items, the menu includes six different three-egg omelettes, egg and cheese sandwiches, pancakes and french toast.

The lunch menu is also modestly priced and includes Marie's Lunch Favorites: fresh turkey sandwich, grilled marinated chicken breast, grilled chicken breast caesar salad, Marie's own thin sliced roast beef and oven baked ham and cheese, all for $5.25 or less. Marie's lunch menu also offers fresh salads, jumbo sandwiches, six-ounce black angus burgers and triple decker clubs.

"I go everywhere, checking other places and seeing what the offer at what prices," said Rene. "I don't know of anywhere else that sells the quantity and quality of food that we do at our low prices we offer. Here, we have to make sure the food is good, because we'll hear about it if it's not."

"For the golfers, we know they don't want heavy-type food before they play, so we offer sandwiches and salads, light meals for lunch," said Marie. "The grilled chicken has always been good for us. Everything is cooked fresh, because we want to provide our customers with the best quality food possible. We also offer homemade-style soups and chowder."

In addition to breakfast and lunch, the Lumaghinis also prepare meals for large functions, such as golf tournaments, office parties, showers, christenings, Christmas parties, New Year's Eve parties, cookouts and barbecues or any special occasions. With 225 available seats, functions can held inside or outside, or both.

Rene, who has been involved in the restaurant business for more than 20 years, feels the location of Marie's is perfect, because it is away from all the hustle and bustle of the downtown area.

"It's a hideaway in Quincy," said Rene. "It doesn't really feel like we're in Quincy. I love the relaxed atmosphere up here. On summer nights, there's a great view of the Boston skyline, since we're at the highest point in Quincy."

"I think what attracts people is the calm atmosphere, the quiet setting, where people can sit out on the patio, enjoy their lunch, and relax," Marie added. "There's always a cool, nice breeze that comes around, which the customers enjoy."

Marie said her husband has always loved the restaurant business, and with Marie's Restaurant, every day is different.

"We never get bored, because there's always something else to do," said Marie. "It's also been a lot of fun, because we've met a lot of people from all kinds of backgrounds."

Rene agreed, saying "It definitely has been fun so far numbers-wise and I'm satisfied with how we've done up to this point. There's nothing we really want to change, especially the menu, because we've had good response to it from our customers."

And for those who would rather watch the professionals than take to the links themselves, there are TV's in the restaurant which broadcast the Golf Channel.

The restaurant is closed from Dec. 15 to March 15, though the Lumaghinis host a New Year's Eve party and other functions year round. Marie said she and her husband use the time off to "go over new menu changes, renovations, and visit other restaurants to see what makes them successful."

Marie's Restaurant is located at Presidents Golf Course, 357 W. Squantum St., North Quincy. It is open Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m.

PRESERVING YOUR GOOD NAME

People have the right to protect themselves from untrue spoken or written statements that damage their reputations by bringing legal action. When defamation of character is transmitted through the written word, it is called libel. When the defamatory statement is spoken, it constitutes slander. In order to be actionable, a defamatory statement must be read or heard by a third party and the statement has to be found to be false. And, the truth is an absolute defense in most cases. While all this holds true for the average person, those personalities and celebrities in the public eye are given less protection and have a greater burden of proving libel or slander. Beyond proving that a published statement was false in order to recover damages, a public figure must prove that the falsehoods was made with the knowledge or suspicion of its falsity.

HINT: Everyone has the right to privacy, without unreasonable intrusion into his or her personal affairs.

If you think you're reputation has been injured by another party's spoken or written actions, call my office at 773-2880. I'll examine the facts in the case and determine whether or not there seems to be enough evidence to support your claim. Don't go it alone, let a professional help. Home Improvement Grants, Subsidized Loans Available

Most homeowners are unaware that regardless of their income, there are federal, state and local programs that will help them repair and remodel their homes.

Government at all levels recognizes that neighborhoods are the basis of life in this country. When a neighborhood deteriorates, many things happen both physically and socially. When the homes look shabby, a neighborhood seems more attractive to crime and criminals.

An area in decline is like a spreading cancer. As homes become shabby looking and in need of maintenance, the residents lose their desire to keep up the neighborhood. Streets become receptacles for trash, schools lower their standards and very quickly the selling price of homes in the area drops sharply. This accelerates the cycle of degeneration.

In order to keep and maintain the nation's housing and neighborhoods, government at all levels have programs to give homeowners money (that does not have to be repaid) for repairs or to lend them money at below market levels or at no interest. In many areas utility companies will either do energy conservation work free or at low cost and in other places will lend homeowners money at no interest to pay the contractor of their choice for the necessary work. In addition, there are tax incentives to promote efficient energy use.

The programs are not restricted to low-income people, slum areas or urban neighborhoods. Owners of single or multi-family dwellings are eligible. While the grants do not have to be repaid, most of the loans offer low or no-interest, long terms and low payments.

Some of the other home improvements covered under the programs are: attic and wall insulation, new windows, outerwall siding, security doors and locks, window guards, masonry work, bathrooms and kitchens, electrical and plumbing, new roofs, gutters, and downspouts.

Consumer Education Research Center, a national non-profit consumer group formed in 1969, has just published the 192 large-page, 1996 edition of Consumers Guide to Home Repair Grants and Subsidized Loans ($17.95 plus $3 postage and handling from CERC Grants, 1980 Springfield Ave., Maplewood, NJ 07040 or 800-872-0121) which lists over 6,000 sources of loan and grants programs offered by federal, state and local government, utility companies and others; typical programs offered and the how to qualify. Form letters for inquiries to such loan and grant sources are included as well as detailed instructions on determining one's debt-to-income ratio for eligibility. More information can be found on the World Wide Web http://www.planet.net/cerc. or E-mail cerc@planet.net.

Robert L. Berko, executive director of CERC who was awarded a $5,000 grant and a $4,000 interest-free loan says, "Some programs have no income ceiling and others allow income of as much as $50,000 per year or more. There are even programs for which tenants are eligible and many allow loans to poor credit risks. In many areas, people with disabilities can receive grants to pay for needed repairs such as access ramps and widening of doorways."

Berko was awarded a $5,000 grant and a $4,000 interest-free loan.

Since it is important that the work be done properly, the book includes a section describing the rough cost of many jobs as well as advice on picking a contractor, negotiating a contract, and insuring that the work is done properly and for a fair price. The book also includes a dictionary of terms used by contractors, lawyers and lenders.

What To Look For In A Real Estate Firm

By DANIEL J. FLYNN III

Like choosing any professional service, you look for certain criteria that meets your needs and accomplishes your goals. Choosing a commercial sales and leasing firm should be no different.

As a property owner, research a firm before entrusting your investment in the hands of a commercial sales and leasing firm to make sure that you are satisfied that they are experienced and capable to provide you with a successful transaction. The following are some criteria to be considered when choosing whom to list your property with.

The Firm Itself: Because you are listing our property with a firm and not an individual, evaluate the firm before evaluating the listing broker. Commercial brokerage is a service industry so make sure that you will get superior service. Ask what properties they have sold or leased in the past and what kind of results they have achieved. Ask how many brokers are in the firm, how many support staff and what tools they use to sell property, for example.

In-depth Knowledge: A good commercial brokerage firm should have brokers with an astute knowledge of market conditions, the art of negotiation, financial aspects, zoning and build-out, to name a few. The more knowledgeable a broker the smoother the selling and buying process.

Determination and Creativity: There is a buyer for every property. The trick is finding that user. When choosing the right brokerage firm, pick one whose brokers are motivated and determined to finding the right user for your property. Commercial brokerage is not a 9 to 5 occupation. It is seven days a week, 365 days a year. We've had brokers show property on Christmas Eve as well as 11 p.m. in some cases. Creativity is another strong factor. A good broker will have the ability to see potential uses for any building, and coupled with their knowledge of space planning and construction will be able to find the right fit for your building.

Marketing Ability: Marketing is essential in attracting buyers to your site. Utilize a firm that has a strong marketing background who can formulate an integrated campaign to attract the optimum amount of interest. Ask a firm what methods of promotion they utilize. Obviously site signage is essential, but make sure marketing activities go beyond that. Advertisements, direct mail, press releases, telemarketing, site tours and special events are all imperative when promoting a sale. Make sure the brokerage firm is property tapped into the co-brokerage community and they also market your property to other brokerage firms. Even though your broker may not have a buyer in his or her own pocket, another broker from a different office may.

Accountability: Make sure your commercial broker keeps you abreast of all developments pertaining to your property, such as amount of interest from potential users, showings, marketing activities, etc. Your investment should be just as important to the broker as it is to you.

While all the aforementioned criteria are equally important, you really want a brokerage firm that looks to establish long-term relationships with clients as opposed to a deal-by-deal firm. Developing relationships develops a strong commercial base. Some of the people my firm sold property for in 1985 we're selling for today.

A firm that has an ongoing clientele can attest to its successes. Deciding in a firm that will meet your criteria will provide you with a sense of comfort and will help ensure a quick and profitable sale.

Steel Homebuilding A Growing Industry

(NU) - More and more homebuilders nowadays are trading in their nail guns for screw guns and building with steel.

One key reason is that diminishing lumber supplies have resulted in rising prices and in the deteriorating quality of wood due to the harvesting of younger, less dense trees.

Steel, on the other hand, is in abundant supply and has been largely stable in price. Steel also will not burn, rot, warp, split or crack, making it a higher quality and longer lasting material with which to build.

TIM ZANIBONI, the Morrisette catcher, drove in a run and also ripped a one-hop double off the fence during Saturday's 8-3 loss to Needham in the American Legion playoffs. In his final series for Morrisette, Zaniboni excelled defensively, throwing out a runner at third to kill a rally and blocking the plate on another play to save a run.

NEEDHAM'S ANDY HOPKIN ducks under the throw from Morrisette catcher Tim Zaniboni, as pitcher Joe McCarthy covers the plate. The throw actually hit Hopkin and rolled away, allowing another run to score in Needham's four-run sixth inning. All four runs scored on one play as Morrisette made three errors and fell behind, 8-3.

MORRISETTE STARTER Joe McCarthy, in his final appearance, allowed five earned runs on just four hits in game one of the first round of American Legion playoffs Saturday against Needham. McCarthy took the loss, however, as Needham scored four runs on one hit and three errors in the sixth to put the game out of reach.

Drops Two Straight To Needham

Early Playoff Exit For Morrisette

Legion Baseball

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Despite a valiant effort by starter Jeff Russell, who pitched a complete game in his final appearance, the season came to a close for the Morrisette American Legion baseball team in a 7-3 loss at Needham Sunday.

The win secured for Needham, the first-place team in Zone 10, a two-game sweep of Morrisette in the first round of the Legion playoffs. Morrisette dropped the first game, 8-3, Saturday night at Adams Field after Friday's game at Needham was rained out.

The first-round exit was the earliest that Morrisette, the 1992 American Legion state champions, had been knocked out of the playoffs this decade. This season also marked only the second time in the 1990s that Morrisette did not capture the Zone 6 title. This year, the team finished fifth and in 1994, Morrisette placed third.

"We expect to win every game, and everyone worked hard and gave 100 percent all season," said Morrisette first-year head coach Mark Kelleher. "They made it an easy transition for me in my first year as coach. I respect them all deeply and appreciate all their hard work. We finished with a disappointing record, but it won't happen again. I'll guarantee you that."

Sunday, Needham's Dan Hopkin pitched a complete game four-hitter with 12 strikeouts, and also belted an inside-the-park home run to left to put Needham ahead for good, 4-3, in the bottom of the third inning.

Needham added two more runs on two hits and two errors that inning and scored another run in the fifth to put the game away. In picking up the series-clinching victory, Hopkin allowed three runs (one earned) and walked only two.

"He did a nice job against us," said Kelleher. "We had our opportunities to get some big runs, but once he settled down, he was tough. He had command of his curves and had us baffled."

Hopkin's teammate Dave Fusaro tied the game at 3-3 in the second when he ripped an inside-the-park home run to center.

After falling behind 2-0 in the first, Morrisette rallied with three runs in the second on two hits and three Needham errors. Mike Kenney led off with a grounder that second baseman Kevin Keith misplayed and moved to second when Ray Cattaneo hit a bouncing ball that third baseman Rich Smith couldn't handle.

Shortstop Paul Marnikovic followed with a double to center, scoring Kenney. When the throw from shortstop Mike Smith sailed past third, Cattaneo and Marnikovic scored on the two-base error.

Needham jumped ahead in the first, scoring two runs on three hits. After leadoff hitter Andy Hopkin struck out, Dan Hopkin singled to third and advanced to second on Russell's balk. The next batter, Mike Smith, singled to right, driving in Hopkin with the game's first run. Smith moved to third on a double by Cliff Goodband and scored on a groundout by Mark Daoust. On the same play, Goodband was thrown out at third by catcher Tim Zaniboni to end the inning and prevent any further damage.

Russell scattered 10 hits over six innings, surrendering seven runs (six earned) while walking none and striking out four.

"He battled for us, like he has all season," said Kelleher. "He's pitched good, consistent baseball all year and given his heart for the team every time he takes the mound. He pitched good enough to

Quincy Hopes Season Is Building Block

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Following his first season at the helm, Quincy American Legion baseball coach Larry Taglieri is looking ahead to next year, hoping the team can build on its strong finish this season.

After losing 13 of its first 16 games, Quincy (7-13) wrapped up the season with four consecutive wins, including a 19-4 romp over West Roxbury last week in the season finale. John Breska picked up the win, allowing four runs on four hits in five innings.

Leading the offensive onslaught for Quincy were Justin Elwood (two-for-four, two RBI, two runs), Malachy Higgins (two-for-three, RBI, three runs), Kevin Nichol (one-for-four, two RBI, three runs), Dave Rowell (two-for-three, two RBI, two runs) and John Chagnon (two-for-four, two RBI, one run).

Reflecting on the season, Taglieri was pleased with how the players never quit or got down on themselves, despite the rough start.

"If ever a group could have folded, this was the group, having started off 3-13," said Taglieri. "But that never happened. They came to play every day and kept a good attitude. They battled back and played well down the stretch."

Taglieri noted the main problem this season was that the team did not gel right away and play as a unit, which resulted in more than a few tough losses (including five by one run).

"We definitely did not get off to a good start," said Taglieri. "We made our own mistakes and gave away a few games, but as the season went on, we got on the right track towards the future.

"There's still a lot of room for improvement, but we're heading in the right direction."

The first-year coach gave a lot of credit to Quincy's other coaches, John Cristiani and Wayne Chambers, citing the dedication and enthusiasm they brought to the team.

"I definitely can't do it alone, and these guys did a great job helping me out," said Taglieri about Cristiani and Chambers. "In his first year of coaching, John worked well with the kids and brought tremendous enthusiasm to the team. He's a valuable asset for us.

"Wayne served as our pitching coach and worked hard all season with our pitchers. He's a tremendous competitor, and it showed in our pitching staff."

Regarding the 18-year-old's who finished their Legion careers last week, Taglieri said he will remember the group for its

Junior League

Burke Club, Jaehnig Club In League Championship

The Quincy Junior League defending champions, the George Burke Club, faced off against the Jaehnig Chiropractic Club for the league championship yesterday (Wednesday) at McCoy Stadium.

If Jaehnig Chiropractic won, the two team would meet again today (Thursday) in the second and deciding game.

The Burke Club advanced to the finals with a 3-0 record by defeating Keohane's, 4-2, and Jaehnig Chiropractic, 20-2.

Peter Turowski got the win against Keohane's, yielding only three hits while fanning 12.

Keohane's jumped out to an early 1-0 lead as pitcher Wayne Monynian singled and later scored on an error. Burke responded with two runs after Pat Bregoli walked and Justin Hall reached on a two-base error. An errant appeal play to first alloweing both runners to score.

Ten-year-old Jake O'Donnell provided the winning margin for the Burke Club when he blasted a home run high off the left field screen at McCoy. Steve O'Brien's fourth inning run provided Burke with an insurance run. O'Brien led off by beating out a drag bunt and advancing to second on an over throw. Dan Duggan's single plated O'Brien.

Moynihan, who allowed only six hits, had two hits for the losers.

Burke used six hits and seven walks in the first inning in exploding for a 13-0 lead against Jaehnig Chiropractic.

Duggan and Bregoli scored on Hall's double, After Turowski walked, Joe Sudak singled in a run. Sean Moriarty walked to load the bases and Bill Cosgrove followed with a three-run triple and scored on the overthrow.

Mike Haines then walked and was followed by consecutive singles by Brian Rooney and O'Donnell to load the bases again. Duggan and Bregoli both walked, forcing in a run. Turowski then belted a grand slam over the left field screen.

The Burke Club added six more in the third. After Bregoli singled and Hall doubled, Turowski walked. Sudak singled in a run, as did Moriarty. Randy Jacobs and O'Brien each walked, forcing in a run.

Jaehnig was paced by Bryan Thornton, who had two hits and Mark Maher, who hit a long home run to center. Patrick Jaehnig, Tom Buckley, Jeff Butts and Mark Tobin all collected base hits in a losing effort.

Hall got the win, allowing six hits while striking out 10.

Patrick Jaehing's no-hit pitching and a clutch, last-inning base hit by Patrick O'Brien lifted the Jaehnig Club over Kiwanis, 2-1, and into the finals against the Burke Club.

In the semifinals against Kiwanis, Kiwanis jumped out to a 1-0 lead in the first inning. With two outs, Keith Doherty walked, stole second, went to third on an infield error and scored on a throwing error. Doherty was the last Kiwanis player to reach base as Jaehnig retired the last 16 batters in a row.

He struck out eight, recorded five assists, two put-outs and did not alllow a ball to be hit to the outfield. Second baseman Chris Ham snared the only hard-hit ball, making a nice play on a hot grounder.

The Chiropractic Club tied the game in the second on a walk, a single and a perfectly executed squeeze bunt by Tobin. The Chiropractic Club won the game in dramatic fashion in the last inning. Butts led off with an infield single, went to second on a walk and scored on a sharp single to center by O'Brien. Butts just beat a strong throw as he slid under the tag to set off a wild celebration.

Thornton and Butts each had two hits for the winners, while Jaehnig, Maher and Buckley also hit safely.

Danny Sheehan pitched an outstanding game for Kiwanis in a pressure packed situation, striking out eight. Shortstop Matt Donovan, third baseman Eric Ronstrom and catcher Walter Berry were solid defensively.

Before the 20-2 loss to the Burke Club, the Chiropractic Club romped over Kiwanis, 15-3. Maher blasted two home runs and a double and collected four RBI. His first home run was a tape measure shot, hgh onto the trees in right center at McCoy. Patrick Jaehnig also crushed his second playoff home run onto the parking lot in left center to go along with a double, a single and four RBI.

Thornton's bases loaded triple in the first got things rolling for the Chiropractic Club offensively. He also ripped a double, collected four RBI and pitched a strong game, allowing four hits, to pick up the win. Tom Buckley (triple, single) and Tobin had two hits while Butts, O'Brien and Steve Kelley hit safely.

For Kiwanis, Berry, Doherty, Mark Tucker and Nick Duke all hit singles.

The Chiropractic Club started the playoffs strong with a 10-4 victory over Keohane's. Patrick Jaehnig crushed a home run and two doubles and had four RBI to pace the offensive attack.

Buckley had two hits and two RBI and O'Brien and Butts had two hits apiece. Tobin, Thornton, Maher and Dave Buttomer all hit safely and Kelley had a big RBI.

Patrick Jaehnig struck out 11 to record the victory and Ham made several nice defensive plays.

For Keohane's, Mark Tetreault and Charlie Vidali had two hits each and Ryan Donahue and Steve Hettman had one hit apiece. Mike Neuman kept the game close with some excellent relief pitching.

Babe Ruth

Granite City, Golden Print Square Off In Finals

After losing the first six games of the season, Golden Print won six of its last seven regular season games, and in the playoffs advanced to the Babe Ruth League finals against Granite City. The finals were scheduled for Tuesday and yesterday (Wednesday).

In a game that decided which team would meet Granite City in the finals, Print, the No. 4 seed, defeated Fire, the No. 1 seed, 10-6. Fire jumped out to a quick 4-0 lead but it didn't last long as Print scored two in the first, three in third and four in the fourth.

Print ace Brian Deptula pitched another excellent game, striking out 13 for the complete game victory. Deptula has compiled 107 strikeouts in 77 innings this season. Offensively, Print was led by Tony Staffier, who went three-for-three with five RBI and Deptula, who had two hits and three RBI.

Nathan Dorosario turned in the play of the game when Staffier threw the ball to Dorsario for the out. Dorosario then fired a perfect strike to nail the runner trying for third for an inning-ending double play. Dorosario, Ryan Barrett, Matt Regiannini and Jeff Stevens had key hits in the fourth for Print. Devin O'Brien played excellent defense behind the plate.

With its back to the wall following a 5-3 loss to Granite City, Print advanced to the semifinals with a 11-10 win over Barry's Deli. Chris Carthas got the win and O'Brien picked up the save. Carthas left after walking two in the seventh with no outs. O'Brien came in and walked the first batter he faced before the next batter hit into a 4-6-3 double play. The next batter popped up to Deptula behind the plate for the final out.

In other playoff action, Barry's Deli defeated Local, 12-7. Michael Shaw's potent bat paced Barry's offense. Shaw had three hits, including a double and a grand slam over the right field fence.

Shawn Manning pitched a fine game, scattering five singles. Manning also had two hits, Matt McCann doubled and Shawn Boostrom singled.

Catcher Didier Althor continued his excellent play, throwing out two runners attempting to steal.

Matt Graham, David Centrella, John Cooper, Jarrod DeCelle, Matt Joyce and Conrad Leger all played well and contributed to the win.

Peter Dawidow and Sima Junkovic had two hits apiece for Local. Third baseman Steven Rochon had a base hit and starred defensively.

hard work and never-say-die attitude.

"As a group, they were all I could ask for," said Taglieri. "They will always be a special group to me, because they're my first group of 18's. I know they'll be successful, whether it's in baseball or their education or their careers.

Quincy's 18's were: Higgins (shortstop), Nichol (third base), Elwood (center field), Rowell (infielder-designated hitter), Chagnon (pitcher-infielder-outfielder), Ken Hannaford (catcher) and John Duffy (pitcher). Higgins led the team with a .391 average (18 hits in 46 at-bats) and also scored 16 runs and collected 11 RBI. Nichol was another solid contributor, hitting .313 (20-64), scoring 11 runs and driving in 14.

One of the more intriguing players on the Quincy squad was Elwood, who led the team in hits (26), runs (17) and RBI (16) and finished with a .388 batting average in his only Legion campaign.

"He hadn't played in two years, so we only had him as an 18," said Taglieri. "I'm glad for him, because he hadn't played in a while and came out and had a year of fun baseball."

Leading the pitching staff was 16-year-old Dennis Palardy, who finished the year at 3-1 with one save and a 3.86 ERA.

Returning in the spring along with Palardy will be Breska, Mike Eddy, Pat McGann, Stephen Wiltshire, Peter Donnelly, John Caliri and Sean Sperber, who played this season as a 14-year-old.

As far as next season in concerned, Taglieri is excited about his team but knows the teams must be prepared before the season starts if it is to be successful.

"Without a doubt, I'm looking forward to next season," said Taglieri. "I think this season we built a solid foundation for the future. The team made strides and improved as the season progressed.

"I look for the returning players to be ready to go on day one, understanding how we approach every game. We started to get going at the end of the season, but next season we need to to be ready to go from the get-go."

Quincy Stars Fall To Braintree, 29-20

The Quincy Stars, a 14 and under girls' fast pitch softball team, recently lost to Braintree, 29-20, at Lakeside Park in Braintree.

Meredith Hutchinson led the Stars' offense with a double, a single and a walk. Kathlyn Gates, Jessica Lorman and Sheila Foley also collected two hits apiece in a losing effort. Kelly Doherty contributed a double.

The Stars, who play in the Junior Olympic Association, staged a go-ahead 10-run rally in the third inning. The first 10 batters in the inning reached base safely.

Jen Jacques, Casey Ridge and Allison McGrath turned in outstanding defensive performances. Jacques also keyed a seventh inning rally with a two-run single.

Quincy Red Sox Start Strong, Defeat Jamaica Plain

The Quincy Red Sox got off to a strong start, defeating Jamaica Plain, 10-7. Scott Alden, Matt Connors, Jim Dunn and Sean Boyle played a great game.

The Sox dropped their next two games, losing to Roxbury, 8-7, and to West Roxbury, 16-14.

The team played Jamaica Plain yesterday (Wednesday) before returning to Quincy for the next four games.

Quincy Coaches Scott Alden, Ron French and Kevin Ryan look forward to having at least four new teams next year.

Early Exit For Morrisette

win, but we just didn't get the job done. The reason we lost was we only got four hits, which has been the story with this team all season.

"We just haven't gotten the hits in the big situations. If we got some big hits in close games, we'd have four or five more wins. All season, the defense and the pitching has been phenomenal, but we seemed to come up a few hits short. We're very close to being a very good team, but we're not there yet."

Saturday night, Morrisette took a 3-0 lead into the third inning, but Needham rallied, scoring a run in the third, three in the fifth and four in the sixth en route to an 8-3 victory at Adams Field.

In the top of the fifth, Chris Casavant led off with a walk and stole second. With one out, Dan Hopkin singled sharply to second and moved to second when Casavant was thrown out at home by Morrisette starter Joe McCarthy.

Dan Hopkin then scored on Cliff Goodband's single, which moved Mike Smith, who had walked, to second. After a double steal put runners on second and third, Daoust doubled to right, driving in two runs and giving Needham a 4-3 lead.

Needham added four runs on a strange play in the top of the sixth. With the bases loaded and one out, Mike Smith grounded to Marnikovic, whose throw home eluded Zaniboni, allowing two runs to score. What happened next caused Morrisette head coach Mark Kelleher to be ejected from the game.

Zaniboni tossed to McCarthy, who was covering the plate, but the throw hit the runner, Andy Hopkin, and rolled away, allowing the third run to score. Kelleher said that interference should have been called and the play ruled dead, preventing the third runner from scoring. Kelleher also said the on-deck hitter, Goodband, picked up the bat, interfering with the action occurring around home plate.

After Zaniboni's throw hit the runner, first baseman Mike Kenney threw the ball past Zaniboni, allowing Mike Smith, the batter, to score the fourth run of the inning.

When the play ended and four Needham players had crossed the plate, Kelleher argued with the home plate umpire that interference should have been called. He was eventually ejected for arguing about the non-calls.

In his final appearance, McCarthy was charged with the loss, going six innings and allowing eight runs (five earned) on four hits while walking nine and striking out seven. Feetham came in and pitched a scoreless seventh in his last Morrisette outing.

"Joe McCarthy pitched a hell of a game," said Kelleher. "He gave a great effort and pitched great out there. It was a good way to go out."

Also closing out their Morrisette careers Sunday were Zaniboni, Marnikovic, Kenney and Tom Cunio.

Morrisette ended its regular season last week with losses to Randolph and Milton, both at Adams Field.

Randolph's Al Pierucci tossed a four-hit complete game, allowing one unearned run in a 5-1 victory over Morrisette. Pierucci, who walked six and struck out 10, worked his way out of two bases-loaded jams without allowing a run.

Again, Morrisette's Cattaneo pitched well, hurling a complete game but suffering the tough loss. He scattered 11 hits, allowed five runs (four earned), walked four and struck out six. He also pitched his way out of two potential big innings. In the second, after Randolph scored twice, Cattaneo struck out Tom Lok and induced Jeff Warren to fly out with the bases loaded to stop the threat. Cattaneo later worked out of a no-out, bases-loaded jam by striking out Lok, Warren and Pat Clapp to end the fourth inning.

Randolph jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the top of the second. After Matt Berryman and Chris Da Camara singled and Mark Fitzmaurice reached on an error, Bob Callahan's bloop single to right scored the game's first run. Da Camara scored on a groundout to give Randolph a two-run lead.

Morrisette scored its only run in the bottom of the second when Zaniboni ripped a double to left, moved to third on a wild pitch and scored on catcher Da Camara's throwing error.

The visitors added an insurance run in the fifth when Da Camara walked, stole second and scored when catcher Mike Russo's throw to second sailed into center field.

Randolph scored twice more in the seventh to give Pierucci a four-run cushion. Berryman led off with a single to center and scored on Da Camara's triple over center fielder Brian Beaton's head. Fitzmaurice followed with a sacrifice fly to left to plate Da Camara. Da Camara was the hitting star for Randolph, going three-for-three with three runs scored and three RBI.

Morrisette had opportunities to come back, loading the bases in the third and fifth innings, but came up empty, leaving 10 runners on base for the second straight game. In the third, Zaniboni came up with the bases full and two outs and fell behind 0-2 before Pierucci struck out him out on a good fastball.

Two innings later, Zaniboni came up with the bases full and one out, but Pierucci got him to pop to short. The next batter, Mike Kenney, struck out to end the inning. In the seventh, with two on and one out, Zaniboni flied to center and pinch-hitter Jim Cunio struck out to end the game.

In a 9-3 loss to Milton, Morrisette starter Russell pitched well enough to win, but poor defense and ineffective relief pitching combined to do Morrisette in.

Trailing 3-1 in the fifth, Milton scored a run and added two in the sixth to take a 4-3 lead. In the fifth, Ed Fletcher singled to short, and when Marnikovic's throw to first eluded Kenney at first base, Brian Bowe scored. The next inning, with two on and two out, Feetham relieved Russell and surrendered a two-run single to Burke before striking out Greg Grant to stop the rally.

Russell suffered the defeat, pitching five and two-thirds innings, allowing four runs (three earned) on six hits while walking four and striking out four.

The visitors put the game out of reach in the seventh, scoring five runs on three hits and two Morrisette errors. Jeff Adams, who went four-for-four with two runs scored and three RBI, had the big hit, singling to center and driving in two runs.

After Joe Caveleri walked for the fourth time in the game to load the sacks, Marnikovic relieved Feetham. Scott Pittman grounded to first, scoring Ligums. The next batter, Jim Burke, grounded to second, but an error by second baseman Eric Wirtz allowed Adams to score Milton's eighth run. Burke stole second, and when shortstop Fagan dropped the throw, Caveleri scored from third.

Morrisette took a 3-1 lead after four, scoring one in the third and two more in the fourth. In the third, Fagan walked, moved to third on catcher Liam Stanton's two-base throwing error and scored on a wild pitch. With the bases loaded in the fourth, Tom Cunio grounded to third, but third baseman Burke's throw eluded Stanton, allowing Marnikovic and Jim Cunio to score.

Grant picked up the win in relief of starter Brian Carlson, giving up two runs (neither earned) on four hits over three and two-thirds innings.

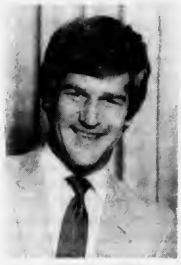
Orr Guest Of Honor At Doyle Fundraiser

Former Boston Bruins star Bobby Orr will be the guest of honor at the Philip Doyle Fund's raffle drawing and reception Aug. 20 at the Summer House at Marina Bay.

The event, which will be hosted by Quincy residents Wally Glendye, Mike Linnane and Martin Nicholson, is being held to raise funds to assist local children like eight-year-old Philip Doyle of Weymouth who are afflicted with leukemia and their families.

The Philip Doyle Fund was established in March by members of the L Street Running Club to give children like Philip the financial assistance required to beat leukemia.

Doyle, who has been undergoing treatment for acute lymphoblastic lymphoma since 1992, will join Orr in drawing the grand prize, first class airfare for two to anywhere in the United States, at approximately 9:45 p.m.



BOBBY ORR

Prior to the drawing, a silent auction with numerous prizes and gift certificates available will be held from 7:30 to 9:45 p.m. Sports celebrities, including former NHL standout Paul Stewart, will be at the event, signing autographs and greeting those in attendance.

WHDH-TV's Liz Claman will serve as the event's emcee. Music will be provided for dancing and entertainment.

A $5 admission will be collected at the door the night of the event. A limited number of raffle tickets will be available the night of the drawing, so those interested are advised to purchase tickets in advance for admission to the drawing with Orr.

Registration For Track, Field, Distance Camps

Recreation Director Barry Welch announces the Quincy Recreation Department is accepting registration for its track, field and distance camp which will be held July 29-Aug. 2.

Registration will be taken on a first come, first serve basis at the Recreation Department, 100 Southern Artery, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. as long as openings exist.

The camp focuses on the basic fundamentals of sprinting, relay racing, hurdling, distance running and all field events. Athletes will have daily lectures in training, diet and nutrition, sports psychology, rules and regulations and sports medicine as well as group instruction and participation.

The program, under the supervision of Geoff Hennessy, Quincy Track Club and North Quincy High School head coach, will be held at Veterans Memorial Stadium from 8 a.m. to noon. The program is for those age 8 to high school and cost is $30.

For further information, call 376-1386.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Did you ever read the poem written by Ella Wheeler Wilcox in the early 1900's - entitled, "Which Are You?"

"There are two kinds of people on earth today; just two kinds of people, no more, I say ... Not the sinner and the saint, for it's well understood - the good are half bad, and the bad are half good ... Not the rich and the poor, for to rate a man's wealth - you must first know the state of his conscience and health ... Not the humble and the proud, for in life's little span - who puts on vain airs, is not counted a man ... Not the happy and the sad, for the swift flying years - bring each man his laughter and each man his tears. No; the two kinds of people on earth are the people who lift, and the people who lean ... Wherever you go, you will find the earth's masses - are always divided in just these two classes ... And oddly enough, you will find too, I mean - there's only one lifter to twenty who lean ... In which class are you? Are you easing the load - of overtaxed lifters, who toil down the road? ... Or are you a leaner, who lets others share - your portion of labor, worry and care?"

Don't you agree the thought is just as true today as it was almost a century ago? ...

Your Social Security

Frequently Asked Disability Questions

By CAROL BOYLE

How much do you know about your disability protection under Social Security? Not much? And yet statistics say that one out of four young workers will become disabled sometime during their lifetime. Following are the first most frequently asked questions about disability benefits:

How does Social Security define disability?

Disability under Social Security is based on your inability to work. You will be considered disabled if you are unable to do any kind of work for which you are suited and your disability is expected to last for at least a year or to result in death.

Who may receive disability benefits?

People who worked under Social Security long enough and recently enough can receive Social Security disability benefits at any age. Certain members of your family may also qualify for benefits on your record. They include:

- Your unmarried son or daughter, under 18, or under 19 if in high school full time.
- Your unmarried son or daughter, 18 or older, if he or she is caring for a child of yours who is under 16 (or disabled before age 22) and receiving checks.
- Your spouse who is 62 or older, or any age if he or she is caring for a child of yours who is under 16 (or disabled before age 22) and receiving checks.
- Your disabled widow or widower 50 or older. The disability must have started before your death or within seven years after your death. (If your widow or widower caring for your children receives Social Security checks, she or he is eligible if she or he becomes disabled before those payments end or within seven years after they end.)
- Your disabled ex-wife or ex-husband who is 50 or older if the marriage lasted 10 years or longer.

How long do you have to work to qualify for disability?

To qualify for Social Security benefits, you must have worked long enough and recently enough under Social Security. The number of work credits needed for disability benefits depends on your age when your become disabled. (In 1995, earnings of $640 constitutes a credit of work; you can earn up to four work credits a year.) The rules are as follows:

- Before age 24--You may qualify if you have six credits earned in the three-year period ending when your disability starts.
- Age 24-31--You may qualify if you have credit for having worked the time between 21 and the time you become disabled.
- Age 31 or older--In general, you will need 40 work credits. Unless your are blind, at least 20 of the credits must have been earned in the 10 years immediately before you became disabled.

Will a pre-existing condition keep a person from receiving Social Security disability benefits?

If an individual meets the definition of disability under Social Security and has earned the required number of work credits, he/she needs only to serve a 5-month waiting period before benefits begin.

Why is there a five-month waiting period?

The program assumes that working families have access to other resources to provide support during periods of short-term disabilities, including workers compensation, insurance, savings, and investments. It is designed to provide a continuing income to you and your family when you are unable to do so. Benefits continue as long as you remain disabled.

BUSINESS

Hibernia Savings Bank Receives Approvals To Form Holding Co.

The Hibernia Savings Bank has received the approvals required from the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston and the Commissioner of Banks Office of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts to form a holding company.

Mark Osborne, chairman of the board and CEO, said, "The formation of the holding company, Emerald Isle Bancorp Inc., will be completed during the third quarter of 1996. A number of filings remain to be completed with the Securities Exchange Commission and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation before the formation of the holding company can be formalized.

"The holding company will allow the bank to continue to expand its operations and build its franchise."

Shareholder approval for the formulation of the holding company was obtained at the corporation's annual meeting in April.

"The formation of the holding company was a complementary strategy to our continuing program of expanding our branch network which is a necessary component of developing our franchise. Our newest office at 71 Main St. in Hingham opened May 13, and we have broken ground at 63 Franklin St. in Quincy and are expecting to open our eighth branch office at that site during the fourth quarter of this year."

The Hibernia Savings Bank, founded in 1912, is a full-service, state-chartered, stock savings bank. The main office of the bank is located at 731 Hancock St., Quincy. The bank's administrative offices are located at 730 Hancock St.

Retail branch banking facilities are located in Quincy, Boston, Braintree, Weymouth, Hingham and Stoughton and loan centers in Quincy and Braintree. All deposits are insured in full by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC)/Deposit Insurance Fund (DIF).

Two Residents Honored At BU Recognition Dinner

Two Quincy residents were honored at Boston University's recent annual Employee Service Recognition Dinner.

They are: Deborah A. Northall and James V. Vitagliano.

The ceremony recognizes employees who are retiring or who have given 10 or 25 years of service to the university.

Northall was presented with a mantle clock for 25 years of service. The director of fiscal and administrative affairs at the university's College of Communication, she is a member of the Quincy Historical Society, Boston Fencing Club and Archaeological Institute of America.

Vitagliano received a crystal bowl for 10 years of service. The records manager at the School of Fine Arts of Administration Office, he serves as the faculty advisor for Kappa Kappa Psi and the Boston University Dance Team and is a member of the board of directors for Drum Corps International and Winter Guard International.

Barbara Frey Joins Garber Travel Staff

Bernard Garber, president and founder of Garber Travel, announces the appointment of Barbara E. Frey as payroll administrator for Garber Travel.

Frey was most recently management compensation analyst for the Prudential Insurance Co.

A resident of Wollaston, she received her B.S. degree in business education from Bloomsburg University.

LORETTA DeGRAZIA, president and owner of East Coast Petroleum in North Quincy, is flanked by state Rep. Michael Bellotti and Sen. Michael Morrissey who recently presented her with citations from the Great General Court of Massachusetts. DeGrazia was recognized for her professional achievements, company growth, and civic innovations during the past 10 years as a retailer in the heating fuel oil industry.

THE TRIAL COURT
PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT DEPARTMENT
Norfolk Division
Docket No. 96E0072-PP1

To C. Genevieve Smith of Westwood, Clementina Brill of Quincy, Josephine DeAngelis of Quincy, Gerald DeAngelis of Quincy of Quincy, and John DeAngelis of Quincy all within the County of Norfolk, and Domenick DeAngelis of Abington in the County of Plymouth and to all other persons interested.

A petition has been presented to said Court by Ann DeCoste of Sarasota, Florida representing that she holds as tenant in common an undivided part or share of certain land lying in Quincy in said County of Norfolk and briefly described as follows: A certain parcel of land, with the buildings thereon, shown as Lot A on a "Compiled Plan of Lane in Quincy, Mass.," November 2, 1948, Ernest W. Branch, Inc., recorded herewith and bounded and described as follows:

NORTHEASTERLY by Fensmere Avenue, thirty-three (33) feet; NORTHERLY and NORTHEASTERLY by three lines totaling three hundred forty-six and 45/100 (346.45) feet; WESTERLY by Quincy Bay; SOUTHWESTERLY by three lines totalling two hundred fifty-two and 80/100 (252.80) feet; and SOUTHERLY by Central Avenue and land of Nason by two lines totaling one hundred eighty-eight and 50/100 (188.50) feet.

Title to said land is recorded with the Norfolk Registry of Deeds at Book 7018, Page 496 setting forth that she desires that--all of said land may be sold at private sale for not less than $225,000 dollars and praying that partition may be made of all the land aforesaid according to law, and to that end that a commissioner be appointed to make such partition and be ordered to make sale and conveyance of all, or any part of said land which the Court finds cannot be advantageously divided, either at private sale or public auction, and be ordered to distribute the net proceeds thereof.

If you desire to object thereto, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham, 649 High St., P.O. box 269, Dedham, MA 02027-0269 before ten o'clock in the forenoon on the seventh day of August 1996, the return day of this citation.

QUINCY'S KOREAN WAR MEMORIAL engraved in 23-karat gold leaf with the names of the 38 Quincy men who gave their lives in a war "no longer forgotten" was dedicated Saturday beside Veterans Memorial Stadium. (Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Bosworth)

Korean War Memorial Dedicated

'No Longer Forgotten War'

By HENRY BOSWORTH

The "forgotten war" is forgotten no longer.

That was the solemn theme woven through the dedication ceremony of Quincy's Korean War Memorial Saturday at Hancock St. and Southern Artery beside Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The names of the 38 Quincy men who gave their lives in Korea are engraved in 23-karat gold leaf on the handsome 10-ton black polished granite memorial. But it is also a tribute to all Quincy residents who served in the Korean War.

The names of the 38 were read by Korean War veteran Kenneth Lotterhand as an honor roll and each name was answered with a salute and an "accounted for" by members of the 126th Signal Company of the Massachusetts National Guard headquartered in Quincy.

The flags of the United States, Korea and the United Nations were raised on the three flagpoles on the brick-lined site. Also raised were the U.S. POW and the Korean Veterans flags. The national anthem of the U.S. was played by the Canton Legion Band and the Korean national anthem by tape. A rifle salute was fired by members of the 2nd Marine Division. Taps were sounded by Robert Coviello and by Steve Crane as the echo.

Several hundred attended the dedication, which capped a three-year effort by a committee headed by John (Butch) Mahoney and appropriately was held on the 43rd anniversary of the ending of the war. Originally downplayed as a "conflict" and a "police action," it was a real war that claimed the lives of 54,000 Americans and wounded many thousands more.

Shinil Park, Counsel General of the Republic of Korea, one of the speakers, had warm praise:

"A stunning memorial...an achievement to be proud of--a particularly meaningful memorial because 43 years ago today, the guns were silenced in Korea."

Park paid tribute to "the brave men from Quincy and across this fine country who sacrificed their lives for freedom, justice and peace."

"Freedom is not free...54,000 Americans lost their lives...a heavy price and one we can never repay.

"This war is not

Despite Recent Problems

Hospital Still Plans To Merge

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Quincy Hospital is still planning to merge with Milton Hospital or another institution despite recent problems that have resulted in investigations by several medical boards.

Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday he does not feel an operation by two surgeons that resulted in the removal of a healthy kidney from a patient, or the more recent linking of a third doctor to three surgeries that resulted in questionable deaths, will jeopardize any future merger.

"Quincy Hospital officials have taken action in both instances, and I think other hospitals understand that," said Sheets. "Quincy Hospital has acted properly as a hospital in both cases."

Bernice Mader, Sheets' administrative assistant and his representative on the Quincy Hospital Board of Managers, agreed. She cited several examples of human error at well-known Massachusetts hospitals--including a well-publicized incident last year at the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute that resulted in the death of a patient--that have not destroyed the credibility of those institutions.

"I feel very sorry for what happened and the families that have been affected," said Mader. "But mistakes sometimes happen. People are human."

Quincy Hospital Director Ralph DiPisa also expressed confidence the institution still will be able to merge with another hospital.

Presidents Place Sale Reaction:

Downtown Hotel Seen Step Closer

City officials say the recent purchase of Presidents Place and other downtown properties by a Texas firm has increased considerably the chances for construction of a Quincy Center hotel.

Lincoln Properties, a Dallas-based real estate management company, announced last week it has bought three properties--Presidents Place, a 1.5-acre vacant lot that has been considered for a downtown hotel, and the main brick building leased by Quincy College--from Citizens Bank. The deal is worth about $38 million, according to Citizens Regional President John O'Connor.

Mayor James Sheets, who has called the construction of a hotel in Quincy Center "absolutely crucial" to the future of the downtown, said at press time he sees the deal as one that is very important.

"I think that it's a tremendous step forward that it's been sold," said Sheets. "We couldn't have a hotel there without it."

Thousand Buddha Temple Holds Inauguration Ceremony

The Thousand Buddha Temple, located at the former Montello's, 53-55 Mass. Ave., Quincy Point, held an inauguration ceremony Sunday.

Revs. Xian Ming, Jan Hai and Wing Sing traveled from Hong Kong to offer their services for a full inauguration. Approximately 2,000 people attended the event.

Among those on hand for the ceremony were Mayor James Sheets, City Councillors Timothy Cahill and Paul Harold, Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi, former Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan, Quincy Crime Prevention Officer Bob Hanna, Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton, Quincy Hospital Public Relations Director Renee Buisson, and Mrs. and Mrs. Jack Lydon with Arthur Keough of Quincy's Committee for Immigration and Refugees.

Events included a Lion Dance followed by a ribbon-cutting ceremony as well as opening remarks, songs of Buddhist praise and fruit offerings by visiting reverends. The ceremony concluded with a vegetarian lunch for guests, families, friends and honored attenders.

"When I arrived in Quincy, I immediately saw the great diversity and sought a need to build a temple," said Sik Phuong-Yin, In-house Master Reverend at the temple. "After six years, my dream is realized today through the help of supporters and volunteers. I am eternally grateful for everyone's help and hope the entire city benefits from all our hard work."

Officials said it cost nearly $700,000 to move the temple to its new home.

Established in 1994, The Thousand Buddha Temple is supported by more than 300 volunteers and followers and the Massachusetts Budhi Siska Society. The largest temple in the New England area, it provides services with a vegetarian lunch every Sunday from 9 a.m. to noon.

Currently, the temple houses one in-house master reverend and one assistant reverend. It offers two large prayer halls, a library, conference room, cafeteria and living quarters for visiting reverends.

Hospital Still Plans To Merge

"I think the recent events and our ability find a partner are really unrelated," said DiPisa. "I think that (merger plan) absolutely will move forward. We're still trying to determine who the best partner will be.

"When all of this is said and done, Quincy Hospital will still be standing."

Earlier this year, Quincy Hospital was considering merging with Carney Hospital in Dorchester. That plan, however, was placed in limbo when Cardinal Bernard Law announced that the Daughters of Charity--an order of Catholic nuns that owns Carney--will be selling the hospital for reasons unrelated to Quincy's subsequent problems.

Sheets has said in order to financially survive in today's health care market, Quincy Hospital must merge with another institution. Among those he has cited as possible partners are Milton Hospital and South Shore Hospital in Weymouth.

Milton Hospital Vice President of Corporate Services Richard Brooks said Milton Hospital has discussed the possibility of merging with Quincy Hospital and other institutions and that future talks with Quincy Hospital are planned.

"We are talking with Quincy Hospital along with a number of other hospitals," said Brooks. "Regarding Quincy's current problems, I'd rather not comment. However, we're continuing our discussions with them. Our talks are very preliminary, and both we and Quincy Hospital are talking to other hospitals."

South Shore Hospital Senior Vice President Paul Taylor said while discussions have been held between South Shore Hospital and several other institutions, Quincy Hospital has not been not one of them.

"But we're willing to talk with any organization in the region," said Taylor. "Nothing that has happened would prevent us from talking to Quincy Hospital."

Quincy Hospital's recent problems have resulted in investigations by the state Department of Public Health (DPH), the Joint Commission on the Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations (JCAHO), the Board of Registration in Medicine and Quincy Hospital itself.

One incident involved a May 20 operation when two surgeons, Drs. William Helfrich and Tomas Divinagracia, removed the wrong kidney from a 76-year-old patient. Although the matter has since been attributed to a clerical error, the two doctors agreed not to operate again until after yesterday (Wednesday).

DiPisa said the Board of Registration and Medicine would announce any decision it makes regarding the future of the two surgeons before the hospital makes its own announcement.

A second problem for Quincy Hospital is the situation of Dr. Jeffrey Zisk. DPH officials--who discovered the incident while investigating the matter of the May 20 kidney operation--said three of Zisk's elderly patients died during operations in 1994 and 1995 after he was warned surgery would be too risky. Zisk's lawyer, Paul Cirel, said the surgeon has agreed to not see any patients until the investigation is complete.

In addition, the hospital has been placed on "conditional accreditation" by the JCAHO for its paperwork procedures, Mader said.

DiPisa said the hospital has devised a corrective action plan that should address all of the boards' concerns and return the hospital to its normal accreditation status. Quincy Hospital Board of Directors Chairman Robert Griffin also has pledged that the hospital will more carefully oversee patient care.

Second National Night Out August 6

Mayor James Sheets, in conjunction with Quincy Police Chief Francis Mullen, announces Quincy's second annual celebration of National Night Out, Tuesday, Aug. 6.

On that day, the city will host a number of events throughout the city's six wards. Mayor Sheets and Chief Mullen will travel through the city with a cavalcade of police motorcycles and cruisers, visiting each ward, encouraging citizens to become more involved in Crime Prevention and Neighborhood Watch programs.

The following events will be held between 1 and 3 p.m.: Council President Peter Kolson will host a cookout at the Germantown Community Center, Palmer St.; and Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi will host a cookout at 1000 Southern Artery.

The following events will be held between 6 and 8 p.m.: Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott will host a cookout at the Safford St. Park on Beale St.; Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico will host a cookout at the Ward IV Community Center; Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin will host a cookout at Beechwood Knoll School, 225 Fenno St.; and Ward 6 Councilor Bruce Ayers will host a cookout at Beechwood on the Bay, East Squantum St.

ASK YOUR LAWYER

by Kevin F. O'Donnell
ATTORNEY AT LAW

TREATED LIKE A GUEST

While the definition of a trespasser is someone who enters or remains on someone else's property without the owner's express or implied consent, a licensee is defined as someone who is allowed to enter or remain on the property with the owner's express or implied consent. Among those who fall into this latter category is the social guest, to whom the owner owes a duty that is somewhat higher than that owed to the trespasser. That is to say that in order to establish negligent liability, a trespasser must prove that the owner acted willfully in causing an injury to a trespasser. If a social guest is injured while on another's property, however, he or she must show that the owner failed to warn of a hidden danger or peril, which was known to the property owner but unknown and unobservable to the injured party as he or she exercised reasonable care.

HINT: If a social guest observed that a walkway at his or her host's home was icy or otherwise slippery, yet still ventured forth upon it, it is unlikely that he or she could recover damages because the condition that caused the injury was observable.

Even if you are unsure whether there is a remedy available to you under the law, it is important for you to seek the advice of a lawyer. I have the expertise and track record to help you successfully assess the situation and determine where the responsibility of safety lies. To schedule and appointment, call 773-2880. My office is located at Gridley Bryant Office Condominiums, 111 Willard Street.

Bob Colman: One Of A Kind

If you wanted to get a laugh out of Bob Colman all you had to do was say something to him like:

"You know, Bob, I'm glad you're not twins. I don't think I could take two of you at the same time."

And, he would come back with something like: "Better than triplets."

BOB COLMAN

Bob Colman was a one-of-a-kind individual--a rare collector's item in the human beings department.

Some people didn't understand him. He had his critics and his faults.

But don't' we all? If you got to know Bob, you couldn't help liking him and appreciating him as a friend.

You always knew where he stood on an issue because he let you know where he stood.

He had no tolerance for deadbeats, teen-age punks, repeat criminals and judges who let them off with light sentences, flag abusers, welfare abusers, etc.. "If you don't like this country why don't you leave!"

He never ducked a question. He told you what he thought--and why. And if you didn't see it his way, no hard feelings. In fact, the more you challenged him, the more he liked and respected you.

I always had a sneaking suspicion that he was also part actor playing the role of a tough and gruff businessman. He looked like it sometimes and sounded like it sometimes.

But inside, he was more pussycat than tiger. He was a softie when it came to family, friends and kids in need.

I remember one Labor Day a few years ago when we had the Muscular Dystrophy Telephone pledge center here at The Sun.

WJDA was covering the telethon live from The Sun and giving updated reports on how we were doing in pledges and fishbowl receipts. At one point we were trailing behind expectations.

Bob heard that on his car radio and drove over. "Here," he said, "maybe this will help," and handed me a check for $100. "It's a good cause."

And he was always there to donate a baseball glove or some other sports item to raffle off to help raise funds for the fight against muscular dystrophy.

Bob had deep Quincy roots and loved the city. Even after he closed his Colman's Sporting Goods store, he never lost his interest in the downtown business community or the city itself.

Not even during his illness. He was living in Walpole and had a mail subscription to The Sun. Whenever he read of a proposed plan or project for the city, he would call.

"That sounds good," he might say. "It should help. We need something like that."

But if he didn't think it was a good idea, we'd get a call that went something like this:

"Hey, Hen, what's going on over there? What are they trying to do? You going to let them get away with it?"

He was a fighter to the end.

A hard worker all his life, he started out as a clamdigger at age 10. After serving as a Navy pilot during World War II, he went into business with a small Army-Navy surplus store that was the beginning of Colman's Sporting Goods, which became one of Quincy's most famed stores.

He took a strong leadership role in the business community and was chosen by his peers as the first president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association in which he remained active until his illness.

Bob loved to sail and to fly and was both an avid boatsman and pilot. His love for the sky was evident last week following his death just a couple days before his 76th birthday.

There, in his breast pocket at his wake at the Sweeney Brothers Funeral Home were his flight glasses.

Bob Colman is gone but isn't apt to be forgotten.

He was that rare-one-of-a-kind.

And for those of us who really knew him, he will be missed.

Downtown Hotel Seen Step Closer

(Cont'd from Page 1)

Director Joseph Mannarino agreed.

"It definitely is a step in the right direction," he said.

Both Sheets and Mannarino said they envision construction of a "mixed use building" at the vacant lot: one that not only would include hotel space, but also commercial, retail, or office space, dining facilities or other uses. The two men said that would make the new facility more economically feasible than a simple hotel.

The mayor and Mannarino also said they have spoken with officials from Lincoln Properties who seemed receptive to the idea of putting some kind of hotel space on the site.

"I'm optimistic," said Sheets. "I feel that we're going to be able to work out a hotel for that site. I think they (Lincoln Properties) have been impressed with what's been going on recently in the downtown, and that's why they bought the property. It's a great opportunity for the city."

"I got the feeling that they're willing to work with us," added Mannarino. "They feel the city has an honest interest in economic development. Obviously, we're very excited about that."

Both men said they plan to sit down in the near future with Lincoln Properties officials to discuss the possibility of a hotel at the site. Asked about a timetable, Sheets said it is too early to think about a definitive schedule but noted that he would like to see ground broken for a hotel "as soon as possible."

The mayor added that while there are other nearby sites where a hotel conceivably could be built, the vacant lot in question is perfect because of its proximity to downtown businesses, several historic sites, the MBTA Quincy Center Station and the site of a planned Old Colony Rail Station.

"It's absolutely an ideal location," said Sheets.

Mannarino said if a hotel is built at the site, it could be developed by Lincoln Properties or another company selected by the Dallas firm. A major hotel chain would manage the hotel division of the building, he added.

Mannarino also noted that Lincoln Properties owns 75 million square feet of property in 30 cities, including Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Dallas and Washington, D.C.

Stephen Picarski Receives Navy-Marine Corps. Medal

Navy Petty Officer 3rd Class Stephen P. Picarski, son of Kathleen and Stanley Picarski Jr. of 34 Hawthorne St., Quincy, recently received the Navy and Marine Corps Achievement Medal.

Picarski was cited for superior performance of duty while serving aboard the submarine USS Gato, homeported in New London, Conn. Picarski was singled out for a Navy and Marine Corps Achievement Medal because of his initiative in making a significant contribution to the accomplishment of the command's mission.

A 1987 graduate of Quincy High School, he joined the Navy in May 1992.

THIS IS A 1913 postcard view of Moore's Summer Ballroom at the far end of Sea Street in Houghs Neck. Peterson's grocery store is on the left and the roof of the Pandora Hotel can bee seen in the background to the left of the large sign. Great Hill is in the distance on the right. Before Coca Cola became popular, Moxie's name was on the sign of almost every commercial business. The men standing here were early dance hall arrivals probably waiting for the ladies coming in on the trolley's from Quincy Square or perhaps hoping to meet some of the local ladies summering in this once popular resort area. This building later became Taylor's Ballroom and Bowling Alley and then DiMarzio's Skating Rink. Today this site is a park.

Welfare Reform Plan Needs Revisions

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The Welfare reform plan currently before Congress falls into the same trap that Massachusetts and other states have in punishing poor children for their parents' behavior.

The problem is the child exclusion clause, or the family cap, which withholds cash grants for children conceived on welfare. This provision not only increases abortions, but it also ravages the children who are born with deeper poverty, greater health deficits, and stunted educational opportunities.

Make no mistake: The current system does need to be changes; it does provide too many of the wrong incentives. The lives of dependent children, our coming generation, are too important, however, to allow chaotic experi-mentation inspired by a selective approach to morality.

ProPAW Thanks Supporters Of Wildlife Protection Petition

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Protect Pets and Wildlife (ProPAW) wishes to thank the 200,000 Massachusetts voters who signed the initiative petition to protect wildlife in the Commonwealth.

It was, according to the office of the Secretary of State, the most successful initiative petition in Massachusetts history and will now become Question 1 on the November ballot. There were no paid petitioners; volunteers obtained all 200,000 signatures.

Question 1 would enact three reforms. First, it would ban cruel and indiscriminate body-gripping traps, including the steel-jaw leghold trap. The state Fisheries and Wildlife Board legalized steel traps on land for the first time since 1974, jeopardizing not only furbearing wildlife, but also family pets caught in these deadly devices.

Second, Question 1 would ban the hound hunting of black bears and bobcats. A small group of trophy hunters chooses to hunt these relatively rare animals with packs of dogs. The dogs drive a bear or bobcat into a tree and the hunter then shoots the trapped animal at close range. There is no sport in shooting an animal in a tree.

Finally, Question 1 would eliminate the statutory requirement that hunters and trappers hold five of seven seats on the Fisheries and Wildlife Board, which establishes regulations and policies affecting all wildlife in the Commonwealth. No state in the nation stacks the deck so heavily in favor of one user group. Question 1 would eliminate this quota and allow the governor to select any qualified resident of the state, whether or not the individual hunts or traps.

ProPAW, a coalition which includes The Humane Society of the United States, the MSPCA, and the Massachusetts Audobon Society, urges all residents to vote "yes" on Question 1 in November.

Piracy Ring Broken Up

Aug. 1 - 7

By PAUL HAROLD

Quincy police broke up a piracy ring of two men, one youth and one juvenile who had stolen $3,000 worth of outboard motors and boating property during the past month.

The break in the case came when patrolmen Kenneth Borst and Joseph Cortese came across a car on a street off Sea St., traveling with dits lights out. When they stopped the car, they found a large quantity of stolen goods and burglary tools.

McINTOSH HONORS ON 75TH BIRTHDAY

A public reception was held at the Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce honoring Councillor David McIntosh on his 75th birthday.

A. Wendell Clark, vice chairman of the school committee, was chairman and master of ceremonies. Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa and the four other living mayors were honorary chairmen: Joseph Whiton, Perley Barbour, Thomas Burgin and William Bradford.

McIntosh was "dean" of Quincy elected officials having served for 43 years as councillor, state representative, state senator, mayor and chairman of the school committee.

BAKERS QUESTION SUNDAY HOURS

Quincy bakers sought an opinion from the Master Bakers' Association concerning action that could be taken in connection with a crackdown on Sunday hours.

Quincy police last week warned bakers that they would enforce the state law requiring bakeries to close between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. on Sundays.

Ernest Montilio said that shops used to be open from 8 a.m. to noon on Sunday, and that the required 10 a.m. closing was making it difficult in deliveries of wedding cakes.

PAINTINGS SUCH AS this one by William Beyer of the Quincy Art Association will be on display at the first annual "Arts Affair on the Boardwalk" at Marina Bay Saturday, Aug. 10 from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. and Sunday, Aug. 11 from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

'Arts Affair On The Boardwalk' At Marina Bay Aug. 10, 11

The first annual "Arts Affair on the Boardwalk" at Marina Bay will be held Saturday, Aug. 10 from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. and Sunday, Aug. 11 from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

The exhibit will feature works by members of the Quincy, Weymouth, Milton and Randolph art associations. Nearly 300 pieces will be displayed on driftwood and lattice.

Exhibitors are both professional and amateur artists, some of whom will be painting on location throughout both days.

Judging will be held in three categories: oil and acrylic, watercolor, and mixed media. Mayor James Sheets will present ribbons at the Awards Ceremony Aug. 11 at noon.

Mary Callahan, a professional artist and watercolor instructor at the South Shore Arts Center in Cohasset and the Duxbury Art Association, will serve as judge.

The event is chaired by Marina Bay watercolorist William Beyer. Michael Domina, exhibit chairperson, is a renowned watercolorist and president of the Weymouth Art Association.

Signed and numbered prints by Beyer will be available to commemorate the first annual event. Proceeds will be used to encourage arts awareness.

Participating artists have been invited to a preshow cocktail party given by the management of Boardwalk Realty Trust.

Sponsoring the "Arts Affair" are Bank of Boston, Boston Financial Data Services, Thomson & Thomson, WaterWorks, Amelia's, Siro's, Peter and William O'Connell, and Giarrusso, Norton, Cooley & McGlone.

In the event of inclement weather, the event will be held at the Corporate Park Building, 500 Victory Rd., Marina Bay.

Singer-dancer Brian Gillie will present a program entitled "Rhythm & Music" Thursday, Aug. 8 from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

Gillie's one-man show features a diverse variety of songs from periods such as the Roaring '20s, the Swing Era, and the heyday of rock 'n' roll. Among the highlights are ballads by Irving Berlin and George Gershwin and an impersonation of Elvis Presley.

The free performance is supported, in part, by the Quincy Cultural Council, the Massachusetts Cultural Council, and the Friends of the Library. All are welcome.

BRIAN GILLIE

Storyteller At Library Aug. 6

Storyteller Leeny Del Seamonds will present a program entitled "Tales, Trials and Tribulations" Tuesday, Aug. 6 at 7 p.m. in the Children's Room at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

The show is designed for a family audience with children age 5 and older. Del Seamonds' first appearance in Quincy will include folk tales, story-songs and story-poems from around the world.

Also at 7 p.m., storyteller Dottie Moynihan will present a "Teddy Bear Tales" preschool storyhour in the library's Art Gallery. The program is for children ages 2-5 who are welcome to bring teddy bears and other stuffed animals. The program will be interpreted in American Sign Language.

Both programs are sponsored by the Quincy Arts Council.

Other children's programs are being held at various library branches. For more information, call 376-1300.

SHINIL PARK (center) Consul General of the Republic of Korea, with Lawrence Norton, committee vice chairman, and John (Butch) Mahoney, chairman, in front of the Korean War Veterans Memorial. "A stunning memorial, an achievement to be proud of," Park said.

Quincy Korean War Memorial Dedicated

forgotten. This memorial in Quincy pays tribute to all Korean War veterans and the 38 from Quincy who sacrificed their lives to fight Communism and tyranny.

"We thank you. We honor you. We remember you. God bless you and God bless America."

Mayor James Sheets said the memorial will serve as a reminder to all of the sacrifice and dedication of those who "fought in what is no longer the forgotten war."

"We want you to know that we here in Quincy and the City of Presidents will never forget the sacrifices you made."

Paul Comi, a three Purple Hearts veteran of the Korean War in real life and as an actor in the movie "Pork Chop Hill" lamented:

"The average person's consciousness of this war emanates from the television show M.A.S.H. where the Korean War is presented as a romantic comedy."

Comi, a 1949 graduate of North Quincy High School who flew from California where he now owns an international flavored coffee and cappuccino business said:

"Forty three years have passed since the guns went silent in Korea. Forty three years have passed since we buried these men. But their memory lives on in the hearts of their families and in the hearts of those of us who fought beside them."

Comi criticized revisionists who would change history and called for a return to family and country values of that year.

He said:

"In the books of the revisionists, the story of World War II is no longer about the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor, the Bataan Death March or the enormous loss of American life in the bloody battles of the South Pacific.

"It is principally an indictment of America's use of the atomic bomb. Monday morning quarterback perspective by people, most of whom never fought in a war or were not even alive (at the time).

"In the case of Korea, they don't even mention the war at all, in some vain hope, I suppose, that it will fade from your collective memory.

"My generation is called naive and apathetic. The so-called know-nothing Eisenhower years. But for the record, there was no debate over what constituted character or family values.

"It was a generation that believed in duty, family, honor of flag and country. And, the nation would be well served to return to that time of unambiguous integrity.

"So, this is the essence and the importance of what you do here today. With this memorial you give dignity and meaning to the sacrifice of these men. And, more than that, you do not let the memory of their sacrifice die, nor be denied.

"You are passing that memory on to be cherished and venerated by future generations."

Comi commended Mahoney and his committee members, Mayor Sheets and the people of Quincy "for their heartfelt dedication."

"May I say," he added, "you have all won a place in the hearts of Korean Veterans everywhere."

Retired Marine Lt. Col. Frank Colleton, a decorated veteran of three wars--World War II, Korea and Vietnam said:

"I am overwhelmed by this memorial. It is such a fitting memorial."

Colleton, a 1945 graduate of North Quincy High School, now semi-retired in Florida, recalled the celebration July 27, 1953 on Korea's Hill 228 at the 10 p.m. ceasefire.

"Rockets were fired into the sky "in the greatest display of fireworks I have ever seen," he said.

Among Colleton's military awards are the Silver Star Medal, two Bronze Star Medals, two Purple Hearts, Navy Commendation Medal, Vietnam National Honor Medal and Vietnam Cross of Gallantry.

Rev. Keijo Aho gave the invocation and Fr. Daniel Hart the benediction, the latter based on the hymn "Let There Be Peace In The World." James "Jim" Colclough sang "God Bless America."

A collation followed the dedication at the Bryan VFW Post.

The 15 foot wide, 7 1/2 feet high memorial was designed by Mahoney and created by the A. Monti Granite Co. of Quincy. More than $40,000 was raised for the project through the sale of engraved bricks and other items.

Donations may still be made to help defray "hidden costs" and to maintain and upkeep the memorial site.

They may be sent to: Korean War Memorial Fund, P.O. Box 0161, Quin-cy, MA 02169.

For Committee A Dream Come True

The dedication of the Korean War Memorial Saturday was a dream come true for the committee that worked three years planning and raising funds to make it a reality.

Mayor James Sheets was honorary chairman and John (Butch) Mahoney the chairman. Lawrence Norton was vice chairman and Jack Beaton, treasurer.

Members of the committee were:

A moment of silence was observed during the dedication ceremony in memory of Martin Flaherty, Nino Maddalese and Henry Roche who died before the project was completed.

MAYOR JAMES SHEETS said the Korean War Memorial will serve as a reminder of the sacrifice and dedication of those who "fought in what is no longer the forgotten war."

PAUL COMI, who was awarded three Purple Hearts in Korea, said the memorial committee and Quincy have "won a place in the hearts of Korean War veterans everywhere." Seated are committee member Carmine (Chuck) Antonellis and retired Marine Lt. Col. Frank Colleton, decorated veteran of three wars who was one of the speakers.

Mark Spinosa Honorary Constitution Crew Member

Mark A. Spinosa of Quincy recently was aboard the USS Constitution as an honorary crew member as the ship took a historic tug-powered cruise around Boston Harbor.

The 90-minute ride is one of 10 cruises this summer hosting citizens from across the country as a prelude to the ship's bicentennial celebration in 1997.

Spinosa is among 100 civilians from New England selected via a drawing to participate in the once-in-a-lifetime opportunity aboard "Old Ironsides," the oldest commissioned warship afloat.

The ship, berthed at the Boston National Historical Park in Charlestown, is managed by the National Park Service and open to the public for free daily from 9:30 a.m. to sunset. Still a commissioned warship, the Constitution is manned and operated by the U.S. Navy.

Medically Speaking

SALTING AWAY FOLK REMEDIES

Salt may be one of the oldest "medicines" known to humanity, used since the beginning of recorded history to treat and prevent all manner of ills. Even today, many people swear that a daily gargle of warm saltwater can ward off sore throats and protect against illness. As with much folk wisdom, there is a grain of fact in this belief, but also a dose of fiction. Salt does not kill viruses or bacteria, so it cannot prevent a sore throat or cold. It can however, soothe an inflamed throat, as the warmth of the water helps relax throat muscles and the salt can draw out water from the surface tissue, reducing inflammation somewhat. Vigorous gargling may also help wash away the secretions of post-nasal drip.

P.S. If gargling with saltwater helps you feel better, use a teaspoon of salt per quart of water. Be sure to spit it out and don't swallow it.

When you want to know what you can do about a medical condition, it's best to consult with your physician, rather than relying on folk wisdom–which may not help your condition at all. For more information, visit COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, located at 700 Congress St., in Quincy or call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli at 472-2550. Office hours by appointment. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. We enjoy serving your needs. Taking care of your health and well-being is our primary concern.

Teague Asks Clinton For Shipyard Funds

Massachusetts House Republican Floor Leader Ed Teague (R-Yarmouth) has written a letter to President Clinton urging him to make federal loan guarantees available for development of the Fore River shipyard.

A commitment of $230 million in loan guarantees from the U.S. Maritime Administration was made in 1993, but those guarantees have not yet been granted, Teague said.

"The existence of such guarantees will almost certainly guarantee the reopening of the shipyard and revitalization of the South Shore," he wrote in his letter. "The absence of such guarantees will definitely put an end to what is being viewed as the last possible chance to reopen the shipyard."

The loan guarantees would enable potential developers of the shipyard to borrow money at attractive interest rates. The federal government would not spend any money, but would promise to repay the money if the borrower defaults.

"The loan guarantees are essential to the reopening of the Fore River shipyard," wrote Teague. "I urge you to make these guarantees available to ensure the best future for the South Shore."

Development of the shipyard is part of Teague's "Ten Point Plan for the Cape and the South Shore," a statement of goals Teague has set for the 10th Congressional district. For a copy of the plan, call (508) 790-1200. It is also available on the Internet at http://www.-capecod.net/teague.

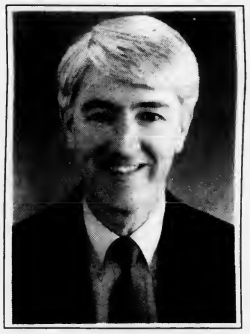
Ed Teague's Eye on Congress Congressional Reform



Congressional Candidate Ed Teague

HYANNIS, MA. — It seems today everyone running for elected office is talking about congressional reform. With all their promises, we're fortunate to have a congressional candidate who has not only vowed to change the way thing get done in Washington, he has made congressional reform a centerpiece of his Ten Point Plan for the Cape and South Shore.

Ed Teague's detailed proposal to clean up Washington analyzes the current pension system — a pension that is more generous than 90% of the retirement plans for executives of Fortune 500 companies. It's an aspect of congressional service that many self-proclaimed reformers refuse to discuss. But Ed Teague is setting out to break the silence.

The $80,666 average annual pension for a U.S. Representative is augmented by an annual cost of living adjustment — a luxury unavailable to most retired. "The pension system makes winning a congressional seat like winning a lottery," Teague said. "It is hard to believe the laws even allow former mem-bers who have been convicted of a felony to continue drawing their pension."

Ed Teague's proposals would make the 34 former members of Congress convicted of felonies ineligible to receive a pension. "Dan Rostenkowski receives a monthly pension of $8000 while behind bars," Teague said. "That's wrong. And I'll fight to stop it." Dan Rostenkowski receives a monthly pension of $8000 while behind bars," Teague said. "That's wrong. And I'll fight to stop it.

Ed Teague has not just called for change — he has actually proposed a way to reform congressional pensions. "Members of Congress should not be treated as an elite class," Teague said. "They should have to enroll in the same pension plan as other employees."

Teague believes bloated congressional pensions are also preventing Congress from saving the Social Security system. "Politicians aren't worried about it because they'll never have to live on it."

Ed Teague can promise to change Congress. Why? Because he has built his career around shaking up the status quo. On Beacon Hill, Teague fought to shorten the legislative sessions to get Representatives back in their communities where they belong. He also said no to raises for Cabinet Secretaries. Teague even led the fight against Speaker and convicted felon Charlie Flaherty.

If you would like a free copy of Ed Teague's Ten Point Plan please call Teague for Congress at 508-790-1200.

SUMMER CAR CARE

New Cars Sound Warnings, But Is Anybody Listening?

Recent commercials advertise new cars that appear virtually maintenance free. Many have message centers that warn drivers about everything from an inoperable brake light to low oil level.

With these impressive advancements, is the need for regular checks a thing of the past?

"Hardly," says Don Midgley, president of the Car Care Council. "Computerized message centers should help owners maintain safer, more efficient cars. But these warnings are worthless if the motorist ignores them."

Whether or not your vehicle is equipped with all of the bells and whistles that technology has to offer, it is wise to check, or have checked, the following items:

Cooling System--Flush, drain and replace antifreeze. Test, inspect and replace needed parts.

Engine--Diagnostic and tune-up services needed. Oil and filter change (check all fluids).

Tires, Wheels and Brakes--Rotate, inspect and balance tires. Check alignment and suspension components. Inspect braking system.

Vision--Replace/aim headlights. Replace worn windshield wiper blades.

"With over 15,000 parts in a vehicle and eight out of 10 cars needing some type of maintenance, it's amazing that more motorists don't have problems," says Midgley.

Over 2,000 traffic fatalities a year are directly attributed to mechanical failure due to neglect. It only takes one defective tire or faulty wiper blade to put your car, your billford, and possibly your safety on the line. It may be tough to rush to an automotive technician every time a warning light blinks, but to do otherwise is to play Russian roulette with your car.

For more information on recommended checks and services, send for a free pamphlet, "How To Find Your Way Under the Hood and Around the Car. Send a business-sized, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Car Care Council, Dept. UH, One Grande Lake Drive, Port Clinton, OH 43452.

Judging Auto Repair Shops: Ten Tips From the Pros

(NU) - Motorists are increasingly reluctant to perform their own auto repairs, as family life continues its frenetic pace and today's cars, sport utilities and mini-vans grow ever more complex. Instead, people are turning to well-run repair establishments with professional auto technicians to protect their substantial automotive investment.

To help make the search for good automotive repair a bit easier, here are 10 tips from the experts at the nonprofit National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence on what to do and what to look for.

1. Start shopping for a repair facility before you need one.

2. Ask friends and colleagues for recommendations; consult local consumer organizations.

3. Arrange for alternate transportation so you will not feel forced to choose a shop based solely on its location.

4. Repair shops are seldom spotless; instead, look for overall orderliness and modern, well-kept equipment in the service bays. Check out the parking lot, too — it's encouraging to see vehicles equal in value to yours.

5. Look for courteous, professional-looking personnel, including a service writer willing to answer your questions.

6. Ask if the repair facility specializes, if it usually handles your type of repair work, or your make and model.

7. Check out the customer waiting area for customer service awards and signs of civic involvement.

8. Look for evidence of qualified technicians, such as trade school diplomas and certification by the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence. ASE-certified technicians wear blue and white insignia and carry credentials listing their areas of expertise, while employers often display the ASE sign and post technicians' credentials.

9. Make sure you understand policies regarding labor rates, diagnostic fees, guarantees, etc. Keep a log of your repairs and service; keep all paperwork.

10. Reward good service with repeat business.

For a free brochure on ways to select a repair shop, send a self-addressed, stamped, #10 envelope to: ASE, Repair Shop Brochure/NU-F96, 13505 Dulles Technology Drive, Suite 2, Herndon, VA 22071.

We Can Save On Insurance Premiums By Turning In Fraud Artists

(NAPS)—The purpose of insurance is to restore things to the way they were before the claim occurred. The fraud artists want to go beyond that—by making a profit.

There are two types of insurance fraud. "Professional" fraud is usually committed by career criminals, often in league with others who can help create or compound the "incident" that leads to claims.

Examples include staged auto accidents aimed at producing (usually phony) injury claims; auto theft-related fraud, such as insuring cars that exist only on paper, then reporting them stolen; and arson-for-profit.

By calling a toll-free number, you may be able to keep insurance costs down for everyone.

"Amateur" fraud is committed by ordinary insurance policyholders who may sincerely believe they're doing nothing wrong.

An Insurance Research Council survey showed 23 percent of Americans believe there's nothing wrong with padding an auto insurance claim to cover collision deductibles. And 20 percent think it's OK to inflate claims to make up for premiums paid in years when they had no claims.

These folks don't seem to understand that they—and you—end up paying for their dishonesty with higher insurance premiums.

The National Insurance Crime Bureau is spearheading the fight against fraud. If you suspect fraud, call its toll-free fraud hotline at 1-800-TEL-NICB.

SUMMER CAR CARE

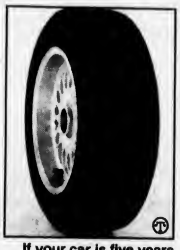
Touring Tires: Performance And Comfort

(NAPS)—Think about it. The only contact your car has with the road is through its tires. Every maneuver you want your vehicle to make—whether it's stopping , turning, or avoiding an accident—is accomplished by four, relatively small patches of tread contacting the road surface.

Yet, tires are probably the least appreciated and most misunderstood components of an automobile.

Even though they may all look pretty much the same to the casual observer, tires come in a variety of types, each designed to fill a particular need.

One of the newest is the touring tire, developed in response to consumers who said they liked the look and handling of a performance tire, but also wanted the smooth, quiet ride and long mileage of an all-seasonal radial.



If your car is five years old or newer, there's a good chance that you're already on touring- type tires.

In the less than ten years that they've been on the market, touring tires have evolved to include a number of choices to match specific needs.

As an example, let's look at the touring family offered by BFGoodrich, which developed the world's first touring tires for General Motor's performance-oriented sedans and coupes.

The BFGoodrich brand offers a wide range of performance levels in their touring T/A line. The touring T/A SR4 is original equipment on touring sedans such as Chevrolet Lumina.

Offering enhanced performance is the Touring T/A TR4. The next step up is the Touring HR4, followed by the Touring T/A VR4, which is appropriate for cars such as the Jaguar XJ12.

A good rule of thumb in choosing the right replacement tire is to refer to the tires that came as original equipment on your vehicle. If those tires carry an H-speed rating, the replacements should be rated H or higher. This will ensure the vehicle's level of handling and performance is maintained.

If your car is five years old or newer, there's a good chance that you're already riding on touring-type tires. If you like the way your car performs, make sure you buy touring tires when it comes time for replacements. If you don't have touring tires, you may want to consider them if you want to change the performance characteristics of your vehicle, either to upgrade handling from your all-season tires, or to upgrade ride comfort from all-out performance radials.

Don't Hang Out In The No-Zone

(NAPS)—When you're on the road, a good rule is to stay clear of a truck's blind spots. The area around large trucks where cars "disappear" into blind spots is known as the "No Zone."

According to the U.S. Department of Transportation (DOT), more than 250,000 crashes involving cars and trucks occur every year. Many could be avoided by keeping these important points in mind:

- Trucks have much larger blind spots on both sides than cars do.
- Trucks also have deep blind spots directly behind them. If you're driving behind a truck and you can't see one of its side-view mirrors, the driver can't see you.
- Truck drivers sometimes need to swing wide to the left to safely make a right turn. Don't cut in between them and the curb or shoulder to the right.
- Trucks can't stop as quickly as cars. When passing, look for the whole front of the truck in your rear-view mirror before pulling in front ...then don't slow down.

If you're behind a truck and can't see its side-view mirrors, the driver can't see you.

For a free brochure about the No-Zone and sharing the road with trucks call the No-Zone Hotline at 800-644-1744.

Four Builders Assn. Members Earn Graduate Designation

Four members of the Builders Association of Greater Boston recently earned the Certified Graduate Builder designation from the Graduate Builders Institute (GBI), the educational arm of the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB), through a course offered in Quincy.

Robert Henderson of Henderson Builders in Upton, Ann Miles of Ann Miles Builder Inc. of Andover, Gary Ruping of Ruping Builders in Burlington, and Gary Litchfield of Litchfield Co. in Burlington have all graduated from the professional certificate program.

In addition, Miles achieved the Certified Graduate Remodeler (CGR) designation, a separate certification for remodelers. All four have joined a group of more than 1,800 builders nationwide who have sought such credentials as a means of distinguishing themselves as professionals in the home building and remodeling industries.

The GBI certificate is a national honor which recognizes a builder's commitment to a high level of professionalism, management ability, customer service, and technical expertise. In order to qualify , a builder must successfully complete a series of nine courses, which are offered locally at the Quincy headquarters of the Builders Association of Greater Boston.

Hibernia Savings Bank To Open Franklin St. Office

The Hibernia Savings Bank has announced plans to open a branch office at 63 Franklin St., Quincy.

The bank, which recently received the required approvals from the Quincy Zoning Board of Approvals to begin construction, will establish a full-service banking facility that will more conveniently serve Quincy's business districts and surrounding residential neighborhoods.

"The consolidation of our local banking industry has created a void," said Mark A. Osborne, chairman and CEO. "We are expanding our facilities network in order to enhance our ability to deliver products and services to the people of Quincy."

"The Hibernia Savings Bank is a welcome addition to the area," said Anthony L. Agnitti, president, Agnitti Insurance Co., 21 Franklin St. and chairman of the Quincy Business Council. "The bank has taken a dated building much in need of repair and is replacing it with a new, attractive, functional property. This is a highly trafficked area and close to historic sites. What The Hibernia Savings Bank is doing is a plus for both business and tourism in the city."

MARK OSBORNE

Construction of the Franklin St. branch office is underway with an anticipated opening date later this year. The new branch will have five teller stations, a vestibule ATM, a drive-through ATM, a night depository, safe deposit boxes and will be fully accessible.

The new location will be the eighth branch office for The Hibernia Savings Bank. The bank opened its seventh branch office May 13 in Hingham.

Founded in 1912, The Hibernia Savings Bank is a full service, state-chartered, stock savings bank. The main office is located at 731 Hancock St., Quincy. The bank's administrative offices are located at 730 Hancock St.

Retail branch banking facilities are located in Boston, Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth, Hingham and Stoughton. All deposits are insured in full by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC)/Deposit Insurance Fund (DIF).

To keep your air conditioner running in tip-top shape, clean the filter once a month or change it during air-conditioning season.

James Brendan Connolly Won 100 Years Ago

Quincy Relatives Remember The Very First Olympic Gold Medalist

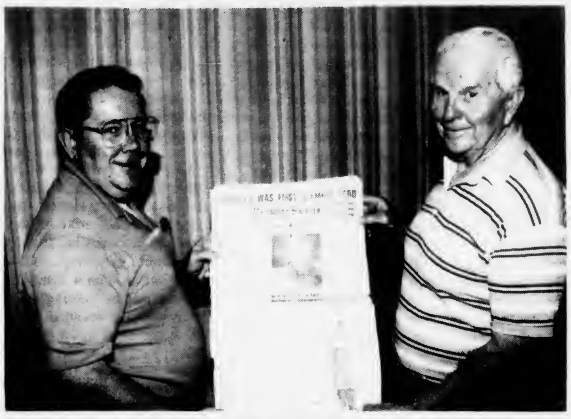
By LIAM FITZGERALD

Bill O'Donnell of Quincy was just a teenager when he recalls meeting his famous second cousin, James Brendan Connolly.

"My father had him over for Sunday dinner every once in a while," said O'Donnell, 77, whose grandfather, John M. O'Donnell, was Connolly's uncle. "He lived over at Cleveland Circle on Beacon Street, near Boston College, so either one of my brothers or I would go pick him up, since he didn't drive.

"He was a real nice person to talk to. My father told me a lot about him, since he saw him more than I did. I was always impressed with what he had done in his lifetime."

Connolly, who grew up in South Boston, was the first gold medal winner of the modern Olympic Games in Athens, Greece in 1896, which also made him the first American Olympic champion. He captured the gold medal in the first event, the hop-step-and-jump, with a leap of 44 feet, 11 3/4 inches at the first Olympics in 1.500 years.



HENRY BRADLEY, left, and his uncle, Bill O'Donnell, both of Quincy, flank an old copy of the former Boston Traveler newspaper with a story and photograph of James Brendan Connolly, the first U.S. Olympic champion and the first gold medalist of the modern Olympic Games. The headline at the top reads "Connolly Was First Olympic Hero." O'Donnell, who is a second cousin of Connolly's, remembers Connolly as a "perfect gentleman." (Quincy Sun photo/Robert Bosworth)

"In one jump, I had become the first Olympic champion in modern times," Connolly told Boston Traveler sportswriter Tim Horgan in November 1956.

One hundred years later, O'Donnell recalled the hardship Connolly endured just to reach the Olympic Games, let alone bring back a gold medal.

"First off, he quit Harvard when they wouldn't give him a leave of absence," said O'Donnell, a Quincy policeman for 30 years before retiring 13 years ago. "Years later, he wasn't sure if he had made the right decision, but it seemed to turn out alright."

After leaving Harvard, Connolly looked to the Suffolk Athletic Club to support his trip to the Olympics, but when the club could not come up with the money, Connolly had to raise it by other means.

The parish he belonged to in South Boston, St. Augustine's, held a bake sale to raise the money Connolly needed to get on the German freighter bound for Naples, Italy. While on board the ship, Connolly had his wallet stolen and nearly missed the train from Naples to Athens.

Once he reached the Olympics, he thought he had two weeks to prepare for his event, arriving in Athens on March 23 by the American calendar. However, according to the Greek calendar it was April 6, which meant Connolly had to jump the next day.

QHS-NQHS Football Hall Of Fame To Meet Aug. 7

The Quincy High School-North Quincy High School Football Hall of Fame committee has scheduled its first meeting of the season for Wednesday, Aug. 7 at 7:30 p.m. at the Bryan VFW Post, Quincy.

A number of items will be discussed at the meeting, including possible rule changes to reduce the number of years before eligibility, how to get more participation from younger members, updating and improving the "Wall of Fame" at the stadium, and putting the nomination process in full gear.

QHS, NQHS Athletes Win Medals At Bay State Games

Quincy High School sophomore Jared Downey and freshman Leanne Martin and North Quincy High School juniors Michael Johnson and James Cheung recently received medals in the Bay State Games.

The four athletes competed in a series of tryouts to win a position on their Metro Bay State Teams (scholastic division).

Martin competed with the Metro soccer team, which defeated the West, 2-0, in the finals to capture the gold medal. Before a recent game, Major League Soccer's New England Revolution featured the gold medal winning Metro team in pre-game field activities as well as presenting the team with tickets to the game.

Downey, Johnson and Cheung were members of the Metro Volleyball team which defeated Northeast, 15-11, 12-15, 15-10 to win the bronze medal.

Bregoli Paces Mariners AAU Squad In Canada

Chris Bregoli, a 15-year-old member of the New England Mariers AAU baseball team, had a fine series in the Mariners' six-day tour of Montreal and Quebec City.

Bregoli went three-for-five with six RBI in the Mariners' 11-7 victory over the Montreal Marquis. The Mariners also split a series with the Montreal Select team.

The Mariners, in their final tune-up before the National AAU Championship in Charlotte, N.C., defeated the Connecticut Baseball Academy, 8-2. The game was played at Dodd Stadium in Norwich, Conn., the AA facility of the New York Yankees.

Bregoli went one-for-two in the victory with an RBI.

Quincy Relatives Remember First Olympic Gold Medalist

England and Prince George of Greece as judges, Connolly captured the gold on his first attempt and added a silver and a bronze before heading home an American Olympic hero.

"It's almost like being honored to have someone with such drive and perseverance in the family," said Henry Bradley, a nephew of O'Donnell's. "He stuck to it, and all his friends in Southie managed to help him get over there, and thank God they did."

Two years later, Connolly was far from home again, serving his country as a member of the 9th Massachusetts Infantry in the Spanish-American War. According to O'Donnell, Connolly served under former President Theodore Roosevelt during the siege of Santiago, Cuba in 1898.

"He was with Teddy Roosevelt on San Juan Hill," said O'Donnell. "They got to be very good friends over the years. James was Teddy's personal representative when he toured the world with the White Fleet."

Roosevelt so admired Connolly that he was once quoted as saying: "If there is one man who may serve as a model for my children, it is Jim Connolly."

Connolly, whose parents immigrated from Ireland's Aran Islands, went on to write several books about the sea, which interested him at a young age.

According to O'Donnell, his grandfather took Connolly on fishing trips in Gloucester when the latter was only seven years old. During these trips, O'Donnell's grandfather encouraged Connolly to write about the sea. The young man took the advice and went on to write hundreds of short stories and numerous novels, most of which dealt with the sea.

"He could make the sky sound like the most beautiful place in the world," O'Donnell said. "He could do the same with the water and with all of nature, especially the ocean."

Among the writers who praised Connolly's work were Rudyard Kipling, T.S. Eliot, Booth Tarkington, Kenneth Roberts and Joseph Conrad, who called him easily the best sea story writer in America, according to an article in the Gloucester Daily Times in 1992.

In addition to his successful writing career, Connolly also served as a correspondent for the United Press and the Associated Press, O'Donnell said.

"He lived a very active life," said O'Donnell, who was born in South Boston and has lived in Quincy more than 50 years.

Adding to the Olympic champion's legacy, O'Donnell recalled a headline in the Boston Post soon after the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor that read "Connolly Predicted War With Japan 39 Years Ago."

"In the story it was reported that James said the U.S. would go to war with Japan in 50 years," said O'Donnell. "He visited Japan just after the turn of the century, when Roosevelt sent him over there."

Bradley, who remembered Connolly as a "graceful older gentleman," said it was not until he was older that he realized how much success Connolly had achieved in his lifetime.

"I remember him when I was a teen-ager in the early 50s, and we'd sit in the parlor at our house in Neponset and talk about all kinds of things," Bradley. "I remember being impressed with the fact that he had been in the Olympics.

"It wasn't until later on when I started finding out about all the books he had written and everything else he had done that he was quite an accomplished man."

Connolly, who died in 1957 at the age of 88, was elected to the South Boston Hall Of Fame in 1990 and also had a memorial dedicated in his honor at Columbus Park in South Boston.

"He was a perfect gentleman," said O'Donnell. "He was somebody whose company you thoroughly enjoyed. He never talked bad of anyone, always spoke about the nice things in life.

"I remember him as a great man, a perfect gentleman. He had the flowery voice of an Irishman that makes everything sound nice."

Junior League

George Burke Club Clinches Back-To-Back Championships

Sparked by the gutsy pitching performance of Pat Bregoli, the George Burke Club edged Jaehnig Chiropractic, 5-4, in the Quincy Junior League baseball championship game, giving Burke back-to-back championships.

Bregoli was immense throughout, striking out 13 while allowing only six hits. Bregoli saved his best for last, however.

With Burke (23-3) holding a one-run lead entering the sixth, Jaehnig's Chris Ham lined a single to left, his second hit of the game. Pat O'Brien then reached on an error. Tom Buckley followed with a bunt that Bregoli fielded and threw to third. Ham was called safe at third on a controversial play, loading the bases. Bregoli bared down, striking out the next three batters, the last on a foul tip which Joe Sudak held on to, giving Burke the heart-stopping victory.

Burke Club scored first as Dan Duggan led off with a walk. Bregoli forced him at second. Peter Turowski, who had seven RBI in the playoffs, singled home Bregoli for the team's first run.

In the bottom of the second, Burke scored four runs to build a 5-0 lead. Sean Moriarty, Mike Haines and Dan Cosgrove walked and Brian Rooney followed with a solid single down the left field line. Duggan and Bregoli each drew bases loaded walks to drive in a run apiece. Billy Cosgrove then greeted the new pitcher with a sharp single to center, scoring Rooney with the eventual winning run.

Bregoli cruised into the fourth, allowing only a single by Dave Buttomer. However, after Mark Dondero snared a Pat Jaehnig rocket to third, Mark Maher crushed a Bregoli changeup deep over the center field wall. Jeff Butts and Ham followed with singles. Butts scored on an error and Jaehnig executed a delayed steal at home with Ham scoring easily. Mark Tobin, who reached on the error, scored on an overthrow to the outfield on the same play.

Ham excelled on the mound, allowing only two hits in three and two-thirds innings of relief. Jaehnig had a hit for the Chiropractic Club and was robbed of an extra-base hit when Rooney made a running catch in the first.

Babe Ruth

Dorosario's Double Captures League Title For Golden Print

Nathan Dorosario's double scored Jeff Stevens in the bottom of the seventh to lift Golden Print to an 7-6 victory over Granite City in the Babe Ruth League championship.

"Jeff had been struggling up until the playoffs, but he really came through for us in the playoffs," said first-year Golden Print coach John Chagnon. "I'm really happy for Nathan. That's one great way to end his 15-year-old Babe Ruth career--having the winning hit and RBI."

Golden Print (16-11-1), which started the season 0-6, rebounded to win 13 of its last 15 games to capture the league title.

"I'm proud of all the kids on the team, but especially the 15-year-olds who helped turn the season around," said Chagnon. "It's a great way to end the season."

Before Granite City tied the game at 6-6 in the top of the seventh, Golden Print took a 6-5 lead in the sixth when Sean Fitzpatrick laced an RBI double and Matt Reggiannini hit an RBI single. Defensively, Chris Carthas and Reggiannini both nailed runners trying to score to keep Print ahead.

Print starter Brian Deptula cruised into the sixth with a 4-1 lead, but Granite City scored four runs in the sixth to take a 5-4 lead when Deptula walked a couple and a few errors were committed.

Heading into the championship, Granite City was undefeated in the playoffs and Golden Print had one loss, so Print had to beat Granite twice to clinch the league title.

In the first game against Granite City, Print trailed 6-2 in the seventh but scored seven runs on six hits to force a second game.

Reggiannini started the rally with a single and scored on a hit by Carthas. Dorosario followed with a two-run hit and Ryan Barrett and Tony Staffier added RBI singles. Sean Fitzpatrick then drove in the eventual game-winning runs with a long double.

Defensively, Stevens turned in the best defensive play of the season, fielding the ball in right and throwing out the Granite City runner to end the game and seal the win for Dorosario.

"That was a great game to be a part of," said Chagnon. "The kids stayed with it. They were determined to advance. I'm proud of each and every one of them."

Babe Ruth Travel Team Splits Two Games

The Quincy Babe Ruth 13-year-old travel team, playing in the Milton Summer Baseball League, split two games in recent action.

In a 16-7 victory over Hingham at Merrymount Field, Quincy (2-4) broke open a one-run game with an eight-run outburst in the second inning. The game was halted after the top of the fifth due to darkness.

Leading the hit parade for Quincy were Chris Walsh (single, double), Billy O'Toole (double, two runs scored), T.J. Traietti (single, double, walk, two runs scored), Christopher Doherty (double, three runs scored) and Conrad Leger (double, two runs scored).

Doherty also excelled on the mound, scattering four hits while walking five and striking out two to pick up the win.

Milton scored five runs in the first, added single runs in the fifth and seventh, and held off Quincy, 7-4, at Merrymount Field.

Traietti took the loss, allowing five runs on five hits, walking three, striking out two and throwing two wild pitches in three innings. Brendan Bowes came on in the fourth and struck out the side in order. Bowes worked four innings, allowing only two hits and two walks while striking out four.

Pacing Quincy offensively were Bowes, who collected two hits and scored a run, Joe Duffy, who doubled and scored, Leger, who doubled and Chris Walsh, who added two singles.

Defensively, Kyle Piazza, who gunned down a runner at home from second, also made two unassisted and two assited putouts at first and on the front end of a double play to Traietti at third. Leger and Jim Constas made several putouts in the outfield. Shortstop David Riley combined with three of six putouts with Chris Doherty anchoring first.

Girls' Softball

Quincy Stars Lose To Randolph, 19-4

The Quincy Stars, a 14 and under girls' fast pitch softball team, recently were defeated, 19-4, by Randolph at Atlantic Field.

The Stars, who play in the Junior Olympic Association, started fast, with a three-run outburst in the first inning. After Kathlyn Gates and Jessica Lorman singled, Julie Burke hit a sacrifice fly. Kelly Doherty singled home Lorman and Sheila Foley doubled to score Doherty.

The Stars did not score again against the hard throwing Randolph hurlers until the fourth inning, when Marissa Lentini walked, stole second and scored on Maria Coughlin's sharp single to right.

Kristine Plourde made some fine defensive plays in the outfield. Gates was outstanding at first base.

Babe Ruth Tournament Underway Aug. 10

The Quincy Babe Ruth Baseball League announces its fourth annual Ray Cattaneo Invitational Baseball Tournament starting Aug. 10.

It is a double-elimination tournament, with trophies awarded to the winning team. Semi-finals and finals will be played under the lights at Adams Field.

Wally Glendye, Martin Nicholson Run 'Brutal' Marathon In Alaska

Runners Raise $11,000 For Leukemia Patient

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Quincy residents Wally Glendye and Martin Nicholson recently raised $11,000 for Philip Doyle, an eight-year-old Weymouth resident suffering from leukemia.

For raising over $3,500 apiece, Glendye and Nicholson received a trip to Anchorage, Alaska.

Instead of kicking back and enjoying a relaxing vacation, however, they ran a marathon on a course Glendye described as "brutal" with "rocky trails and foot bridges."

For many, this would not be in the travel itinerary, but for Glendye and Nicholson, the "aches and pains were nothing" because they knew the right people were benefitting from their actions.

"We knew what it was for, so it meant a lot to us knowing that it was for the right cause," said Glendye, 37. "It wasn't for me, it was for someone else."

Glendye and Nicholson, members of the L Street Running Club, received flyers in the mail from the Leukemia Society about the trip to Alaska for whoever raised $3,500 for the group.

"We went to Dedham and they explained to us that there were only four people on the payroll and that 97 percent of the funds would go towards leukemia research," said Glendye, who has lived in Quincy for 31 years.

"We heard from a family who has a kid with leukemia, and it was a real tear-jerking story, so we decided to go out and raise some money. I lost my mother a year ago at age 58, so I decided it was time to do something for a kid."

It was through the Leukemia Society that Glendye and Nicholson met eight-year-old Philip Doyle of Weymouth, who has undergone treatment for Acute Lymphoblastic Lymphoma for the past four years.

"We met Philip and his family, and found out that they had lost their home, their cars and had been wiped out fighting the disease," said Glendye. "It made us decide to go full force and raise some money for him and his family.

"I sent out 800 letters to members of the L Street Running Club and around State Street Bank, and raised $6,000. Martin runs the Eire Pub, so he had no problem raising $5,000 on his own. This is something we'll definitely do every year."

Glendye and Nicholson's fundraising efforts inspired others to do the same. Quincy resident Mike Linnane heard what they had done and wanted to get involved, so he and some friends from Nynex decided to raise money for the family by running the Boston Marathon. The Nynex group raised $4,000.

A golf tournament was also held to help Doyle and his family bounce back financially. The tournament, which had 144 entries, raised $12,000 for the family and brought the Doyle family "completely out of debt," said Glendye.

WALLY GLENDYE, left, and Martin Nicholson, both of Quincy, recently raised $11,000 for eight-year-old Philip Doyle of Weymouth, who suffers from leukemia. As their reward, they received a trip to Anchorage, Alaska. Later this month, Glendye, Nicholson and Mike Linnane will host the Philip Doyle Fund's reception at the Summer House at Marina Bay to benefit children with leukemia and their families.

Now that the Doyle family is out of debt and young Philip Doyle is "doing better," Glendye said it is time to look for other families who have children suffering from leukemia and help them deal with the financial burden leukemia places on a family. Next year, Glendye said he and Nicholson will find another patient and start another fund.

Since Doyle's health "is coming back," Glendye also said that the Philip Doyle Fund will be renamed the Philasaurus Fund for two reasons. First, because Doyle likes dinosaurs and second, so people will know that the money raised will go to help other children with leukemia.

The latest function Glendye and Nicholson are involved in is the Philip Doyle Fund's raffle drawing and reception Aug. 20 at the Summer House at Marina Bay. Among the celebrities who have confirmed their attendance are former Boston Bruins star Bobby Orr, who will be the event's guest of honor.

"It took a lot of phone calls, and it's great that they all are donating their time to help us out," said Glendye. "Orr was the greatest of all. He asked it we could change the date to the 20th because he couldn't make it the 13th. So we changed the date just so he could make it. He's just a great guy."

From this function, Glendye hopes to raise $30,000 and find families with children suffering from leukemia who need financial assistance.

"Hopefully we'll raise a lot of money with this function at Marina Bay," said Glendye, who along with Nicholson and Linnane will host the reception. "We have Jim Lonborg, Paul Stewart, Jeremy Roenick and more celebrities scheduled to attend. It should be a good time.

"For a $5 donation, you can meet celebrities, enjoy the night's events, maybe purchase some of the sports memorabilia for a decent price. Hopefully everyone will come out of the event pretty happy.

"You don't want to sting people for $30 or $40 at a time. This costs just $5, and while you have a good time, the money goes to the right place, so everything works out well for everyone."

A silent auction, which will include hockey equipment donated by Chicago Blackhawk and former Boston University star Tony Amonte and footballs signed by New England Patriot quarterback Drew Bledsoe, will be held from 7:30 to 9:45 p.m.

At approximately 9:45 p.m., Orr and Doyle, whose family will attend the event, will draw the grand prize winning ticket, first class airfare for two to Hawaii.

WHDH-TV's Liz Claman will serve as the event's emcee. Music will be provided for dancing and entertainment. Glendye said that 30-40 members of the L Street Running Club, which established the Philip Doyle Fund back in March, will attend and help the event run smoothly.

With the possibility of 1000 people attending the raffle drawing and reception, Glendye appreciated the efforts of Ed Kane, who donated the pavilion at the Summer House for the event.

"That's a pretty big thing, letting us use the pavilion for the night," said Glendye. "He also helped us with the hors d'oeuvre and has done a great job for us."

Despite all the hard work and long hours spent organizing such an event, Glendye remains enthusiastic about helping those less fortunate.

"I'm going to do this forever, only because I know where the money is going," said Glendye. "It's not going to pay salaries, but to research and development and to the families with kids who have leukemia. We want to help those who want to help these kids.

"These people can only do so much, and they can't do it all. If the kids want to play Nintendo, we'll bring that in, or if a family need money for dinner, we'll give them money to go out and eat. Insurance only pays for so much, so when people need help, we want to be there for them."

As long as the right people are helped and the money raised ends up in the right hands, Glendye is satisfied.

"Everything goes back to charity, that's our motto," said Glendye. "The money goes right back to the community to help these kids."

Burke All-Stars Second In Nipper Maher

The Burke Club All-Stars finished second in the Nipper Maher Baseball Tournament recently held in Waltham.

In the championship game against North Waltham, Burke fell, 7-2, despite Keith Doherty and Pat Bregoli combining for a three-hitter.

Two key errors combined with three walks gave the champions an early 5-0 lead. Burke bats were also silent as only Duggan, Bregoli and Justin Hall collected hits.

Phil McGillicuddy tossed a three-hit masterpiece, striking out 10, in a 6-2 triumph over the Waltham Dodgers. James LaFleur had a big day at the plate with three hits while Maher chipped in with two. Bregoli had two RBI on the day. Dan Duggan, Doherty and Hall also had hits for Burke.

In an opening round game, Burke defeated Wayland, 12-3, behind the pitching and batting of ace Justin Hall. Hall fired a five-hitter and struck out nine while collecting three hits of his own.

After trailing early, a Chris Lockhead double and a Duggan double evened the score. In the fourth, Hall led off with a double and Mark Maher then doubled him home. After a walk to Pete Turowski, McGillicuddy doubled in a run. Walks to Lockhead and Matt Donovan forced another run home.

Greg McGuinness then cracked a double to drive in two more runs and Duggan and Bregoli followed with RBI singles. Lockhead and LaFleur each drove in a run in the fifth to ice the victory.

TRAILER NOTES

If hauling a trailer behind the family car or truck is in your vacation plans, here are some hints that may ensure safe motoring: To begin with, avoid the possibility of overloading by understanding that the maximum Gross Vehicle Weight Rating (GVWR), which is comprised of the weight of the loaded vehicle including cargo and passengers, should not be exceeded. Nor should the listed Gross Combined Weight (GCW) of the vehicle and trailer be exceeded. To do so, risks compromising safety and causing damage to the vehicle. When loading the trailer, place 60 percent of the cargo weight in the forward position, balance its side-to-side distribution and keep the cargo low to the floor. Be sure to inflate the tires in both the tow vehicle and trailer to the precise recommendations of the tire manufacturer for your particular load. Finally, shorten the maintenance intervals for the tow vehicle.

HINT: Automobile engines lose two percent of the power for each 1,000 feet of elevation that they climb in mountainous altitudes.

Towing a trailer safely requires some special attention and preparation to your car or truck. LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO invites your inquiries about most anything connected with the care of your car or light truck. Our highly trained, ASE Certified technicians never take any short cuts and will do everything necessary to keep your vehicle in safe, running condition. We use the All-Data, CD-Rom based manual system for the very latest in service and maintenance bulletins on all makes of cars here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (843-1550). We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. Hours: Mon-Fri 6am-9pm, Sat 7am-9pm, Sun 9am-5pm.

Maureen Rogers QCAP Development Director

Quincy Community Action Programs (QCAP) Inc. has named Maureen A. Rogers its new development director.

Rogers will be responsible for the group's long-range planning, grant applications, fundraising, and media relations.

Previously, Rogers worked as community development manager and most recently as chief lobbyist and government affairs manager for the South Shore Chamber of Commerce. During her tenure there, she was a member of a variety of civic groups, most notably as treasurer of the Quincy Affordable Housing Corporation, treasurer of the Quincy Partnership, chairman of the Quincy College Advisory Committee, and coordinator of the (Save The Base) South Weymouth Naval Air Station Committee.

Prior to her work at the Chamber, she was the Training and Placement Director at South Coastal Career Development Administration.

Rogers grew up in Braintree and brings 20 years experience and knowledge of not only Quincy but the South Shore community.

MAUREEN ROGERS

"Maureen has extensive experience in fundraising and events planning and her background in working with and for non-profits makes her a perfect match for our organization. I am proud to have her join our management team," said Rosemary Wahlberg, executive director of the Quincy Community Action Programs.

Rogers has a master's degree in public administration from Northeastern University and currently resides in Abington.

Weld Signs Bill For Domestic Violence Victims

Gov. William Weld called for tough prison sentences to protect battered women from violent abusers during a visit last week to the Quincy Police Station.

Joined by Mayor James Sheets, Police Chief Francis Mullen, state Secretary of Public Safety Kathleen O'Toole, victims of domestic violence and other South Shore police, Weld urged the Legislature to reject measures in a Sentencing Commission report that could get tough sentences for domestic abusers.

"A man who beats his wife is a man who ought to be behind bars, plain and simple," Weld said. "We shouldn't wait for the second, third or fourth time a woman is abused before we throw the book at her abuser. One time a woman is abused is one time too many and her cold-hearted batterer should feel the cold steel bars of a jail cell."

Weld also signed a bill to protect victims of domestic violence and rape. The bill makes the addresses of locations and domestic violence victims programs and rape crisis centers confidential and prohibits them from being revealed in any criminal or civil court proceeding.

"Too many victims of domestic violence and rape are barred from reporting the crime because they fear retribution from their attacker," Weld said. "This bill provides the critical protection they need to report the crime without fear of being victimized again."

Weld branded as "unacceptable" proposed sentencing guidelines that could allow a man convicted as many as five times for beating his wife severely enough to hospitalize her to serve no jail time. The governor urged the Legislature to reject such a measure and instead to demand tough prison sentences for the violent crimes of domestic abuse.

"Our laws must say it loud and clear: domestic violence is not just a family matter. Abusing your wife, girlfriend or children is more than wrong, it is a crime that will put you behind bars," said Lt. Gov. Paul Cellucci, chairman of the Governor's Commission on Domestic Violence.

Weld praised the Quincy law enforcement community, which has served as a national model for its severe treatment of domestic batterers and aid to victims of domestic abuse. He urged the Legislature not to undermine the progress of communities like Quincy by weakening the sentencing guidelines for batterers.

Weld also said the Legislature should reject measures that could weaken tough standard sentencing standards for rape, child molestation and drug offenses.

Quincy Selected For N.Y.-N.J. Massachusetts Summer Promotion

Quincy is one of four Massachusetts communities that has been chosen for a New York-New Jersey area Massachusetts Summer Television Promotion.

A viewer of WWOR-TV in New York and New Jersey will win the Toyota-Massachusetts Weekend Getaway to Quincy. Other WWOR viewers will win trips to Plymouth, Springfield/Holyoke, and Williamstown.

Produced by Howl at the Moon Productions of Montclair, N.J. and Houston, Herstek, Favat Agency for the Massachusetts Office of Travel and Tourism (MOTT), the promotional spot aired recently throughout the Westchester County, New York City and New Jersey areas. The Quincy Tourism and Visitors Bureau put together one of four winning packages MOTT awarded for free.

The Quincy spot's estimated advertising/promotional television value is $65,000.

The getaway winner will receive a brand new Toyota 4-Runner, two nights at the Sheraton-Tara, breakfast daily, a horseback riding excursion through the Blue Hills, admission to the Adams National Historic Site, a VIP luncheon and tour of the USS Salem. The value of the Quincy package is $396.

Quincy also participated in MOTT's in-state radio promotion. Tickets for the Adams National Historic Site and for the U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum were given out, as part of the promotion, to listeners of Boston radio stations WBOS, WMJX, WOAZ and WZLX.

Summer Vacation Security Tips

During vacations or other trips, follow these helpful hints to make your home appear occupied. They will help to discourage burglaries.

AKS A TRUSTED NEIGHBOR TO:

- Park in your driveway or in front of your home.
- Occasionally place rubbish in your rubbish can.
- Mow your lawn or shovel sidewalks.
- Check your home for anything unusual.
- Pick up your mail and newspapers. Never tell the newscarriers that you will be gone. Cancel the paper rather than enter a "vacation stop."
- Either use automatic timers or recruit a trusted neighbor to turn lights on at dusk and off at your normal bedtime.
- Leave your drapes in the normal position. Have a neighbor close them at night, open them at daylight and reposition them every day or so.
- Set the bell on your telephone on low. A loudly ringing unanswered phone is a sure sign no one is home. If you have a portable phone remove the phone from the wall. Once this is done the phone's bell will not ring.
- Keep your garage door closed and locked so on one can see your car is gone or other equipment in your garage.

ALSO:

- Tell a neighbor where you can be reached in an emergency.
- Don't let your travel plans widely known.
- Tell police about your plans. Most police departments will gladly keep an eye on your house when you are gone.
- Consider joining a Neighborhood Watch program. Contact your local police for details.
- Always lock your doors and windows when you leave your home--even if you are just going across the street.

Oscar J. Toye, 93
Lawyer; Planning Board Member; Co-Founded Holocaust Museum

A funeral service for Oscar J. Toye, 93, of Quincy, was held Sunday in the Schlossberg & Solomon Memorial Chapel, Canton.

Mr. Toye died June 25 in Quincy Hospital after a long illness.

He was a charter member of the Holocaust Museum and the National Museum of American Jewish Military History, both in Washington, D.C.

An attorney and Quincy resident for more than 50 years, he practiced general law after his admission to the Massachusetts Bar in 1937. He was a graduate of Boston schools, Northeastern University and Suffolk Law School.

During the early 1960s, he served a single term on the Quincy Planning Board but resigned because of concerns over conflict of interest.

A World War II veteran, he was Massachusetts department commander of the Jewish War Veterans of the U.S.A. in 1950 as well as a past regional vice commander of the organization. He was also a member of the American Legion in Quincy.

Mr. Toye was an active member of Beth Israel Synagogue of Quincy for many years as well as an honorary member of Congregational Adas Shalom of Quincy and a member of the Religious Zionists of America.

Born in Ukraine, he emigrated to the United States at Thanksgiving in 1921 when pogroms forced him to flee Russia. He settled in Dorchester before moving to Quincy.

During World War II, Mr. Toye, although 38 years old, served in the Army in the Judge Advocate's Office in Boston.

At Beth Israel Synagogue, he assisted during High Holiday services and often read the Torah. A learned scholar of the Torah, he tutored students and published pamphlets on how to read and interpret it.

Mr. Toye received a citation from the Israeli Bond office for his recruitment of volunteers for drives that raised the money to found the state of Israel in the late 1940s and early 1950s. He lost most of his family in Russia in the Holocaust during World War II, which sparked his interest in the founding of the Holocaust Museum and the National Museum of American Jewish Military History, to which he made many contributions.

One of the Jewish war veterans posts many years ago sponsored an Eagle Scout troop and named Mr. Toye their Man of the Year.

Three weeks ago, the Milton-South Shore Jewish War Veterans Post in Randolph presented him an award for serving as post commander 50 years ago.

He is survived by his wife, Rose (Levy) Toye; many nieces and nephews, and numerous friends.

Burial was in Sharon Memorial Park.

Donations may be made to the Jewish War Veterans Museum for American Jewish Military History, 1811 R St. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20009.

Mildred F. Benn, 74

A funeral service for Mildred F. (Moore) Benn, 74, of Quincy, was held yesterday (Wednesday) in Houghs Neck Congregational Church.

Mrs. Benn died July 26 at South Shore Hospital in Weymouth after a brief illness.

A member of the Mothers Club and other clubs at Houghs Neck Congregational Church, she was also active in the Cub Scouts. Mrs. Benn enjoyed reading.

Born and educated in Quincy, she was a lifelong resident of the city and lived in Houghs Neck for 56 years.

Wife of the late Woodward Benn, she is survived by a son, Robert R. Benn of Quincy; three daughters, Joanne M. Bythrow, Patricia A. Shea, and Theresa M. Schofield, all of Quincy; two brothers, John W. Moore of Island, N.Y., and Russell J. Moore of Norwalk, Calif.; a sister, Beverly Aristide of Bullhead City, Ariz.; 10 grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren.

Burial was in Maplewood Cemetery, Stoughton.

Funeral arrangements were by the Hamel, Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St.

Donations may be made to Massachusetts Eye Research Foundation, c/o Quincy Lions Club, P.O. Box 27, Quincy, MA 02170.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

WITNESS! Let's think about the word, not necessarily in a religious sense, but from an earthly view of human reaction. All of us witness things everyday. We see varying circumstances, situations and attitudes all around us, both good and bad. As we witness these things in other people, wouldn't it be a good idea for us to ponder what other people see or witness in us? Each of us individually sets a standard of behavior, thought and expression linked to ourselves. In doing this, we naturally provide a scene or knowledge for others to witness. The things we do and the things we say cause people to talk about us favorably or gossip about us unfavorably.

We create our own image, good or bad. We control the destinies of our image in the minds and thoughts of others. When we can be rightfully proud of what others witness in us, we gain an inner gladness that automatically portrays a better, more likeable image...

Alzheimer's Documentary To Be Shown At Beechwood

"Complaints of a Dutiful Daughter," an Academy Award-nominated documentary about Alzheimer's disease, will be shown in August at Beechwood Community Life Center, 440 East Squantum St., Quincy.

The film chronicles the stages of Alzheimer's as seen through the eyes of a daughter. Her initial desire to "set right" her mother's confusion evolves to an understanding and acceptance of the disease.

The 45-minute documentary will be shown at Beechwood Tuesday, Aug. 13 and Thursday, Aug. 15 at 2 and 7 p.m. and Tuesday, Aug. 20 at 2 p.m. All are welcome.

The Elder Service Program at Beechwood includes an Alzheimer's Support Group that meets the third Thursday of each month at 2 and 7 p.m. Meetings provide information and offer support to families and friends going through the ordeal Alzheimer's can bring.

Beechwood is a recognized support group in the Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Association of Eastern Mass. Inc. and the largest Alzheimer's support group south of Boston.

For more information, call Mary Centola at 471-5712.

LEGAL NOTICE

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
THE TRIAL COURT
PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT DEPARTMENT
Norfolk Division
Docket No. 96E0072-PP1

To C. Genevieve Smith of Westwood, Clementina Brill of Quincy, Josephine DeAngelis of Quincy, Gerald DeAngelis of Quincy of Quincy, and John DeAngelis of Quincy all within the County of Norfolk, and Domenick DeAngelis of Abington in the County of Plymouth and to all other persons interested.

A petition has been presented to said Court by Ann DeCoste of Sarasota, Florida representing that she holds as tenant in common an undivided part or share of certain land lying in Quincy in said County of Norfolk and briefly described as follows: A certain parcel of land, with the buildings thereon, shown as Lot A on a "Compiled Plan of Lane in Quincy, Mass.," November 2, 1948, Ernest W. Branch, Inc., recorded herewith and bounded and described as follows:

NORTHEASTERLY by Fensmere Avenue, thirty-three (33) feet; NORTHERLY and NORTHEASTERLY by three lines totaling three hundred forty-six and 45/100 (346.45) feet; WESTERLY by Quincy Bay; SOUTHWESTERLY by three lines totaling two hundred fifty-two and 80/100 (252.80) feet; and SOUTHERLY by Central Avenue and land of Nason by two lines totaling one hundred eighty-eight and 50/100 (188.50) feet.

Title to said land is recorded with the Norfolk Registry of Deeds at Book 7018, Page 496 setting forth that she desires that–all of said land may be sold at private sale for not less than $225,000 dollars and praying that partition may be made of all the land aforesaid according to law, and to that end that a commissioner be appointed to make such partition and be ordered to make sale and conveyance of all, or any part of said land which the Court finds cannot be advantageously divided, either at private sale or public auction, and be ordered to distribute the net proceeds thereof.

If you desire to object thereto, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham, 649 High St., P.O. box 269, Dedham, MA 02027-0269 before ten o'clock in the forenoon on the seventh day of August 1996, the return day of this citation.

Witness, David H. Kopelman, Esquire, First Justice of said Court at Dedham, this second day of July, 1996.

Bank Of Braintree Recognized For Community Involvement

The Federal Home Loan Bank of Boston recently recognized Bank of Braintree for its participation in the Community Investment Program.

Under this program, developed by the Federal Home Loan Bank of Boston, Bank of Braintree has set aside $4,505,000 to provide below market financing to low-to-moderate income consumers in and around the city of Boston. Loans provided by Bank of Braintree through this program offer more flexible underwriting and down payment requirements.

"Our participation in the Community Investment Program demonstrates that Bank of Braintree is serious about helping consumers with special credit needs realize their dream of home ownership," said Donald C. Olson, president and CEO of Bank of Braintree. "We're working hard to make sure that the message is clear to consumers--Bank of Braintree is here to help."

Bank of Braintree, a wholly owned subsidiary of Walden Bancorp, Inc., offers a full range of commercial and consumer financial products and services to business and individuals

ST. JUDE'S NOVENA

May the Sacred Heart of Jesus be adored, glorified, loved and preserved throughout the world now and forever. Sacred Heart of Jesus, pray for us. St. Jude, helper of the hopeless, pray for us. St. Jude, worker of miracles, pray for us. Say this prayer 9 times a day for nine consecutive days without mentioning the favor. On the eighth day your favor will be granted, no matter how unobtainable it seemed. Publication of this prayer must be promised.

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN
(Never Known to Fail)

Oh most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful vine, splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, Assist me in my necessity. Oh Star of the Sea, help me and show me herein you are my mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, show me herein you are my mother. Oh Mary conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (3x) Holy Mother, I place this cause in your hands (3x) Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, light roads so that I can attain my goal. You who gave me divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all instances in my life you are with me. I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things as you confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy toward me and mine. The person must say this prayer 3 consecutive days. After 3 days the request will be granted. This prayer must be published after the favor is granted.

We don't suggest you go kicking Saturn doors shut all the time. That's what door handles are for. But when you have stuff in one arm and a baby in the other, well, that's what our polymer bodyside panels and flexible paint and primer are for. And to see all these great features and a whole lot more in a relaxed, affordable, no-pressure environment? That's what our retailers are for. Hope to see you soon.

USED CARS from SATURN

Your Saturn retailer puts every qualified used car through an extensive 150-point inspection. It's then cleaned, reconditioned and given an oil and filter change. To top it off, it's backed with a limited warranty, 3 day money back guarantee and a 30 day/1,500 mile trade-in policy. Of course, every now and again, your retailer may have a car or two in what's called "as is" condition. These cars are clearly marked and sold, not surprisingly, as is. 'Diverse Retail And Service The Key'

Coordinator Sees Vibrant Downtown

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Bruce Arons, Quincy's new downtown development coordinator, is confident the business district has a vibrant future.

Arons, in an interview with The Quincy Sun, said he is certain the city's plans for revitalizing Quincy Center will be successful.

Arons' newly-created post is being funded by Quincy 2000 and the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

"I know we're going to make a difference together," he said. "I'm excited to be here."

Arons, 54, began working through Quincy 2000, the city's public-planning private corporation on July 15. He was selected from a field of 60 applicants last month.

Arons' background includes the management of the Plymouth Downtown Harbor Corporation--an organization similar to Quincy 2000--as well as service on the Plymouth Board of Selectmen. He also has operated his own business and served as an economic development and small business consultant in the town.

BRUCE ARONS (left), the city's new downtown development coordinator, points to the Hancock Street shopping district--which he sees as his first priority--on an aerial shot of Quincy Center. At right is Joseph Mannarino, executive director of Quincy 2000, through which Arons will work in cooperation with the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

Quincy 2000 Executive Director Joseph Mannarino said Arons' primary responsibility will be to implement the comprehensive Strategic Action Plan for Quincy Center which is being prepared by Quincy 2000 and Sasaki Associates of Watertown. He added that the plan is currently in draft form and should be finalized by October.

The key to the revitalization of Quincy's downtown, according to Arons, is the development of a diverse retail and service mix through what he calls "R & R," or retention and recruitment. Basically, that means using Quincy 2000's resources to upgrade and improve existing Quincy Center businesses while also trying to attract new ones to the area.

"R & R" is one of the tools he and other members of the Plymouth Downtown Harbor Corporation used to revitalize that community's shopping area.

"We had something like a 45 percent vacancy rate there at first," said Arons. "But then we got it down to between 6 and 8 percent. I do believe, that through retention and recruitment, it will be a big success in (Quincy's) downtown."

City Preparing For Use Of New Voting Machines

The city is preparing to familiarize election workers with the recently-purchased, state-of-the-art voting machines that will be used for the first time in next month's state primary election.

City Clerk Joseph Shea said a training period for election workers and his office staff will begin Monday, Aug. 26 and last about two weeks. That should be plenty of time, he noted, for all concerned to become acquainted with the new machines before the Sept. 17 primary.

"They [the employees] are very adaptable," said Shea. "They'll be ready."

Shea also plans to hold demonstrations for voters on how to use the new machines before the primary. To vote, residents need only to fill in the remainder of a broken arrow pointing to the candidate of their choice on the ballot with a marker that will be made available at the polls.

The city purchased 33 machines--one apiece for each of Quincy's 30 voting precincts and three back-ups--from Dallas-based Business Records Corp. Shea noted that the $169,000 used to pay for the machines was included in a bond package put

City To Be Reimbursed For School

The city has received confirmation from the state that it will be reimbursed for 63 percent of the construction costs of a planned elementary school in Quincy Point.

School Supt. Eugene Creedon said he was pleased to learn the project has been placed on the state's School Building Assistance Priority List.

"It's exceptionally good news for us," said Creedon. "I'm extremely happy."

The new school, scheduled to open in January 1998, will cost more than $10 million to build. Creedon said the reimbursement money from the state will begin coming into the city within three to five years.

As is customary with the state's reimbursement policy, however, it will take some time before the city receives the entire $10 million. Creedon noted that the payback for a $17 million North Quincy High School addition was only completed in the last fiscal year, even though the project was completed in the late 1970s.

QCBPA President Asks Mayor For 'Graffiti Czar'

The president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA) has asked Mayor James Sheets to appoint a "graffiti czar" to address the spreading problem of graffiti in the city.

Daniel Flynn, president of Daniel J. Flynn & Co., said Tuesday he thinks such an appointment is necessary to address the issue, particularly at the "gateways" to Quincy such as Route 3A, the Neponset River Bridge, West Quincy, and the city's four MBTA stations.

"I've written to the mayor about it, and he recognizes that it is a problem," said Flynn. "It's a serious problem. I think it sends the wrong message, aesthetically, for a city so rich in history. And the bottom line is, it brings down property values."

DANIEL FLYNN

Flynn added that while he feels a "graffiti czar" is necessary to lead the effort, combating the problem will require a partnership between business owners, the mayor's office, the police and, ultimately, the courts.

"If kids are caught doing it, they should be prosecuted," he said. "Ultimately, it's the judiciary that has to punish them and show them they won't just get a slap on the wrist."

Sheets could not be reached for comment at press time.

Two Named To Chamber Board

Elena Kirkiles of Kirkiles and Associates/Persona Insurance Agency and John T. Reed of Business Solutions have been named to the board of directors of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce in Quincy.

Kirkiles is principal of Marshfield-based Kirkiles and Associates, an executive search and operations management consulting firm, and vice president of Persona Insurance Agency, specializing in worker's compensation costs. She is vice chairman of the Chamber's Ambassadors Group and on the board of South Shore Hospital Health and Education Foundation.

Reed is founder and owner of Braintree-based Business Solutions, a cost containment consulting firm that analyzes operating expenses. He was formerly the chair of the Chamber's Ambassadors Group, and is president of the Quincy Lions Club. A Quincy resident, he is the host and producer of The Business Show, a local cable production.

Concourse Committee Meeting To Be Held Aug. 25

The Quincy Citizens Advisory Committee (CAC) for the Quincy Center Concourse will meet Thursday, Aug. 15 at 3:15 p.m. in the second floor Conference Room of City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The agenda will include a public forum at which time any interested Quincy resident may make a presentation or submit written comments and recommendations relative to the proposed roadway connector.

The $5.9 million roadway, to be built with state and federal funds, will link Burgin Parkway with Hancock St. in the downtown business district.

CAC Chairman David Ezickson said the meeting will include a review and discussion of highway and environmental reports relative to the concourse that were recently submitted to city officials.

Ezickson added that the work of the CAC, which met monthly for the past two years, is on schedule but that much remains to be done before groundbreaking for the project, according to a work plan, commences in Sept. 1997.

He reiterated that public input is essential before the design phase of the roadway is completed.

Disability Commission To Meet Aug. 12

The Quincy Commission on Disability will meet Monday, Aug. 12 at 6:15 p.m. in the second floor Conference Room at City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Meetings are open to the public. For more information, call Judie Dacy at 472-7528.

POINT-WEBSTER SCHOOL students will be the beneficiaries of renovations to Lancaster Street and other area improvements designed to increase safety and beautify the area. Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymondi (left), a former student of the school, initiated the project. Also in photo are general contractor Robert Derbes, another former student whose firm, Derbes Bros., is performing the work and his grandson, Jeffrey Ohlson, who will begin attending the school in the fall.

Point-Webster School Area Improvements Underway

Improvements to the area in front of the Point-Webster Elementary School in Quincy Point are underway.

Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymondi, who came up with the idea for the project nearly two years ago, said Derbes Bros. of Quincy began work about two weeks ago.

"This has been ongoing," he said. "I've worked with city and school officials, parents and residents on this. I'm thrilled that it's finally happening."

Raymondi said the two main goals of the project are to make the Lancaster Street side of the school safer for children, pedestrians and vehicular traffic, and to make it "more aesthetically pleasing" to the eye through the addition of trees and other landscaping work.

"The key component is safety," he said. "The kids will be safer, and it will enhance the schoolyard."

Raymondi said the following changes will help make the area safer upon completion of the work:

•The road will be widened the width of a car in order to make possible the creation of a "drop-off" section so a child who steps out of a vehicle is removed from traffic.

•A bus "turn-in" section on the school property will allow children to get off a bus right in front of the school.

•Lancaster Street from Fowler to James streets will be made "one way" during school hours.

"It's an extremely congested area, and it has been an ongoing problem for many years," said Raymondi. "We're very fortunate there hasn't been a tragic accident there."

The project, which totals more than $100,000, is being funded by money included in a bond package the City Council passed in June. Raymondi said it is possible some of the money may be reimbursed because of special permits that made possible the Granite Crossing shopping center in Quincy Point--which includes a Roche Bros. Supermarket and a yet-to-be-built Wal-Mart--but it is presently unclear how

"My family and I have been preparing for the opening of Hancock Park for 60 years."
-Richard Welch

When Hancock Park in Quincy opens in October, it will be the newest Healthcare and Assisted Living Center on the South Shore. But this isn't a story about bricks and mortar. It's the story of one women's vision of what community healthcare could be. And should be.

My grandmother, Florence St. John, RN

It all began in 1935, right here in Quincy in my grandmother Florence St. John's parlor. As a Home Health Nurse, she saw first hand the unique difficulties many of her elderly patients faced. Often what they needed most was emotional support and care in a warm, unthreatening environment. In those days, there were few facilities prepared to provide that. But my grandmother was.

So she began caring for seniors in her home. From these modest beginnings, the Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group has become the leading provider of healthcare services on the South Shore.

Which brings us to the point of this story.

The opening of Hancock Park will be both a homecoming for us and a living memorial to the ideals that were so important to my grandmother. We're obviously very proud of her. And we're absolutely committed to making sure everything about Hancock Park reflects that pride.

To learn more about Hancock Park or about Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group, please call us at (617) 878-6700. We'll send a you a free copy of our Welch Family Guide to Senior Care.

Regional SHINE Office Moves To Quincy Council On Aging

The South Shore's Regional SHINE Program (Health, Information Needs of Elders) has moved its administrative offices to the Quincy Council on Aging offices at 1120 Hancock St., Quincy.

The program offers free and confidential health insurance information, counseling and assistance to any senior citizen or Medicare beneficiary.

SHINE'S health insurance counselors have been trained and certified by the Executive Office of Elder Affairs to provide accurate and unbiased information about health care options available to senior citizens.

SHINE counselors volunteer their time to assist others to understand the range of benefits available under the Medicare system, Medicare supplement, ("Medigap") policies, Medicare Health Maintenance Organizations (HMOs), Medicaid, and long term care insurance. Call any local Council on Aging to arrange a private face-to-face counseling session. Persons may also call the Regional SHINE Program offices. The new telephone number is (617) 376-1247.

THE PROBLEM WITH THE PROSTATE

What breast cancer is to many women, prostate cancer often is to men: a subject of fear and uncertainty. For men, concerns about the prostate can be especially worrisome, since most men can expect problems related to prostate enlargement at some point after age 45, and these symptoms may mimic those of prostate cancer. Enlargement of the prostate gland is called benign prostatic hypertrophy (BPH). BPH is a natural part of aging, and rarely causes problems for men under age 60. However, the enlargement can interfere with urination, resulting in such problems as weak or interrupted urine floe, difficulty starting to urinate and blood in the urine - signs that may also indicate an abnormal growth of cells, or cancer. Early diagnosis of such symptoms can ease the uncertainty, point toward effective treatment and possibly save a life.

P.S. In mild cases of BPH, it may help to drink at least eight glasses of water a day and avoid liquids near bedtime.

Early diagnosis is key when it comes to dealing with prostate problems--be sure to have your annual checkup with your physician as you enter the later part of life. At COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and I are dedicated to comprehensive preventative care. We are conveniently located at 700 Congress St., in Quincy. Council Bid For McCauley?

Paul Harold's surprise entry into last year's City Council at-large race jolted that political campaign.

And there may be another jolt coming next year, this one by the name of: Frank McCauley.

McCAULEY

The former mayor and councillor and present school committeeman reportedly is giving serious thought to running for the at-large seat Tim Cahill is expected to vacate.

Harold, former state senator, stunned the city political scene in 1995 by getting into the council at-large race after a 17-year absence from the council. He left the council in 1978 after being elected senator and gave up the senate seat to make an unsuccessful bid for Congress in 1992.

HAROLD

Harold came back with a bang, topping the four-man field for councillor at-large with just two votes shy of a 2,000-vote margin over second place winner Cahill. Michael Cheney won the third spot, 2,164 votes behind Harold.

Harold dashed Larry Chretien's hopes of moving up from Ward 3 to an at-large seat. He finished fourth and out of the money.

CHRETIEN

One of the three seats was open: Joseph LaRaia vacated it to accept appointment as a city assessor.

Chretien would have won that seat if Harold wasn't in the picture.

The setting could be similar next year if McCauley, who ran unopposed for the two-year school committee term last year, decides to make a council run.

Cahill will definitely give up his at-large seat if elected Norfolk County treasurer this year and is rated a strong chance to do just that. He had earlier indicated this would be his last council term, anyway.

CAHILL

So apparently there will be another open seat to intrigue prospective contenders--especially ward councillors who like to make a move when opportunity knocks.

Mentioned as potential at-large contenders are: Peter Kolson (Ward 1), Dan Raymondi (Ward 2), Steve Durkin (Ward 5) and Bruce Ayers (Ward 6).

And, it wouldn't surprise anyone if Chretien, who doesn't give up easily, makes another run at-large.

But all of them would have to consider McCauley a serious obstacle--a big enough one for some of them, at least, to stay put and wait for opportunity to knock again some other day.

McCauley is a four-term mayor with a name still well-known city wide, and with political clout to go with it. That was evident last year when no one challenged him for the two-year seat on the school committee.

If McCauley did run and win, he wouldn't be the first mayor to return to the City Council.

At least two others come to mind: Thomas Burgin and LaRaia.

Never a dull moment in politics.

Between 1960 and 1980, the average male became almost an inch taller and almost four pounds heavier.

CITY SOLICITOR Steve McGrath isn't thinking about running for district attorney. But, if coincidences mean anything, maybe he should.

McGRATH

McGrath and his wife, Jane, are buying a house on Warren Ave. Right next door to George Burke. Both McGrath and Burke are former Ward 5 councillors.

BURKE

And just down the street is the house in which the late Mryon Lane, another Ward 5 councillor, lived. Lane and Burke both went on to become district attorney.

Bill Delahunt, present district attorney, who is running for Congress is also a former Ward 5 councillor. Delahunt plans to give up the DA's office win or lose in his bid for Congress.

DELAHUNT

Does that give you any ideas, Steve?

PAUL COMI, who left North Quincy for a successful career in the movies and on TV, is now busier than ever with a whirlwind schedule as a West Coast businessman.

COMI

He and his wife who live in San Marino have a flourishing flavored coffee company, Caffe D'Amore Cappuccino doing business here and overseas.

Comi, a member of the NQHS class of 1949 and recipient of three Purple Hearts in the Korean War, flew in to be one of the speakers at the recent Quincy Korean War Memorial dedication.

He arrived on Friday, spoke at the dedication Saturday noon, and left at 4 p.m. to return to the West Coast. And when he got there, he immediately took off for China where his company has distributors.

During his acting career he appeared with Tony Curtis in "Pork Chop Hill," one of the Korean War's big battles.

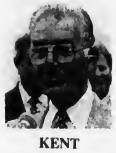
YOU'RE A YOUNG old-timer if you remember Don Kent's first weather reports broadcast from Kent's Carpetland on Quincy Shore Drive at Wollaston Beach.



KENT

The building was destroyed by fire and the area is now, appropriately, the MDC's Don Kent Park.

Kent began his weather forecasting with WJDA when the station first went on the air in September, 1947. Back in those days, he went by the name of Don Dixon which was the name WJDA designated for its weather forecasters for a number of years.

Kent then, of course, went on to WBZ radio and television where he used his own name which soon became a household one throughout New England.

And, he's another one of those nice guys who made it big.

Scientists estimate quintuplets occur only once in every 85 million births.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1913 postcard view of Squaw Rock in Squantum Park. The wooden structure on top of the rock served as an observation deck from which you could see the expanse of Boston Harbor. A ramp ran down the other side to the water where floats were used by local residents to keep their boats. Nearby this spot was the Old Squantum House, a resort hotel complete with its own pier for regular steamboat service from Boston.

Delahunt And The Media

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

It is thought by some astute observers, that "corporate America" and their paid lobbyists compromise the fourth and co-equal branch of government. Perhaps they are correct, but I often think that it is certain segments of the media that covet and co-opt that role. This sense becomes particularly pronounced during the election cycles when the bias of certain media outlets, in what appears to be an attempt to control the outcome, erupts like so much adolescent acne. It's annoying, it's in your face and it won't go away.

Though I am perhaps something less than a neutral observer, one candidate who I believe has been on the receiving end of this bias is Bill Delahunt. Time-released stories, like some form of Chinese water torture, emanating from a major Boston daily newspaper, have sought, I think without merit or success, to tarnish his campaign with minutia and irrelevancies.

Scurrilous scrutiny in search of a scintillating story often filled with manipulated half truths, I surmise, might deter the best and brightest from considering public life. Our system of democracy becomes thereby diminished. Cui bono? Who benefits? All considered it is quite possible that had FDR or JFK been the subject of the relentless scrutiny endured by today's candidates for office, they may not have been elected. It is not a question of the Trumanism of standing the heat or getting out of the kitchen. It is more a question of hanging in there and finding yourself served up as the main course of cannibalistic journalism.

What is truly disturbing is the fact that far more than any one individual suffers from this sullying of reputations. We have become a skeptical and cynical people and those in political life are gauged to be rogues and rascals. Small wonder there is so much apathy in this great and wonderful democracy; so many who are eligible to vote don't register (in Boston only 52 percent are registered) and so many who are registered don't vote.

This is not to suggest that as Jefferson wrote about George III in January 1776 that when considering those given a place in history "it is the duty of those about as to carefully veil from the public eye the weaknesses and still more the vices of our character." But how much do we need to know? Cui bono? Who benefits? I for one have grown weary, better yet, nauseated by the search and destroy missions embarked upon by some in the media. Unfortunately, as we have learned from Joe Klein's recent revelations, not all in the media can be trusted to impart the truth.

As for Bill Delahunt, in my 18 years of experience in the court system, I have known of his strong sense of commitment and his accomplishments in so many areas that ultimately affect the safety and security of all of us. He's a genuine, decent, caring and compassionate public servant. I would suggest to him what Thomas Jefferson wrote to Wilson Nicholas, June 13, 1809: "I laid it down as law to myself to take no notice of the thousand calumnies issued against me, but to trust my character to my own conduct and the good sense and candor of my fellow citizens..."

Commission Pushes For NASA Headquarters

By PAUL HAROLD

Aug. 8 - 14
33 Years Ago

The Quincy Industrial Commission set up a subcommittee to make a bid for the proposed NASA (National Aeronautics and Space Administration) headquarters that the Kennedy Administration planned to build in the Boston area.

With 1,860 acres available for development in the city, the commission said Quincy would be a prime site. Two parcels, the 363 acres at the former Squantum Air Station and the 135 acres at Broad Meadows, were seen as the best parcels for the $50 million headquarters.

The committee was made up of James Donovan, an executive with the Grossman Company; William Short, secretary of the Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce; and granite manufacturer Peter Ruscitto.

ART THEATER DEMOLITION PLANNED

Charles Herbert, DPW commissioner, announced that bids would be opened for the demolition of buildings on Granite and Hancock streets for the construction of a new parking lot.

The northerly extension of the Ross parking area required the removal of the Art Theater on Hancock St. and the row of retail buildings on Granite St. The new parking area would add 161 spaces for downtown parking.

BETHLEHEM STEEL CONTRACT TO BE VOTED

With a proposed 16 cents an hour increase, shipyard workers in Local 5 and Local 90 scheduled meetings of their membership to accept a three-year contract with Bethlehem Steel.

In addition to the 16 cents, union leaders said the new contract actually provided for an increase of 29 cents an hour because it included two additional holidays and added health and welfare benefits.

The new contract was proposed for the 15,000 workers in the steel company's six East Coast shipyards.

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements, the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit photos with their announcements, and when submitting their wedding photo, to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries, beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

John Sheskey Elected To Hibernia Savings Board

JOHN SHESKEY

John M. Sheskey, AIA, president of John M. Sheskey & Associates Inc., Quincy, has been elected to the board of directors of The Hibernia Savings Bank, announces the bank's chairman and CEO, Mark A. Osborne.

"It is my pleasure to welcome John Sheskey to our board of directors," said Osborne. "John is personally committed to our local community which is a reflection of our corporate commitment and operating philosophy. His involvement and knowledge will help us better understand and meet the financial needs of both existing and potential customers. John will be an invaluable resource to our bank."

"I am delighted to join the board of directors of The Hibernia Savings Bank," said Sheskey. "It is very exciting to be part of an institution that is so deeply involved with the communities it serves."

Sheskey founded John M. Sheskey & Associates Inc. in 1981. The firm has served as architect-of-record for more than $400 million of construction on the South Shore and in metropolitan Boston.

Among many business, professional and civic associations in which he participated, Sheskey is currently a member of the American Institute of Architects, the Boston Society of Architects, and the Massachusetts State Association of Architects. He also serves as a director of Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Company and the South Shore YMCA and a trustee of the Hingham Public Library.

Sheskey holds a bachelor of architecture degree from Pennsylvania State University and studied urban design at the University of Florence, Italy. He lives with his wife, Anne, in Hingham.

The Hibernia Savings Bank, founded in 1912, is a full service, state-chartered, stock savings bank. The main office of the bank is located at 731 Hancock St., Quincy. The bank's administrative offices are located at 730 Hancock St.

State Elder Affairs Secretary Keynote Speaker

Senior Citizens Conference At Beechwood Knoll Sept. 21

FRANK OLLIVIERRE

The Quincy Council on Aging and the Quincy Commission on the Family will sponsor the city's first annual conference for senior citizens, "Focus On Aging: Serving Quincy's Senior Population," Saturday, Sept. 21.

The conference will be held from 8:30 to 1:30 p.m. at the Beechwood Knoll School, 225 Fenno St., Wollaston. It will include a keynote address by state Secretary of the Office of Elder Affairs Frank Ollivierre and 14 workshops on various elder affairs topics.

Elsie Frank, president of the Massachusetts Association of Older Americans and Mayor Michael Trafficante of Cranston, R.I., where the Cranston Senior Center has become a national model, will be among the workshop speakers. Workshops also will include a number of speakers from Quincy.

The idea for the conference came from Quincy Council on Aging Chairperson John Noonan and Director Brian Buckley who were inspired by a similar event they attended in Washington, D.C. They suggested the organization of a local conference to Mayor James Sheets, who endorsed the plan.

Registration, including coffee and pastries, will be held from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m. Ollivierre will speak from 9:30 to 10 a.m. Workshops will be held from 10:15 to 11:15 a.m. and 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Luncheon will be served from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m.

Cost is $5 per person. Registration is limited to Quincy residents. Transportation will be provided from many of the city's senior housing complexes. For a brochure and registration form, call the Council on Aging at 376-1240.

Two Residents Graduate From Rennselaer Institute

Two Quincy residents recently graduated from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, N.Y.

They are: Julie M. MacNeil, 165 Highland Ave., who received a bachelor of science degree in management and Florin E. Neamtu, 18 Wallace Rd., who received a bachelor of science degree in mechanical engineering.

IN AN EMERGENCY

While a physician is free to choose whom he or she will or will not accept as a patient, a hospital emergency room is obliged to treat those who show up at its doors with a serious or life-threatening problem. Hospitals with emergency rooms open to the general public must treat anyone requiring emergency room care for a serious injury or illness. Failure to do so in a true emergency leaves the emergency room liable for damages in the event that the untreated patient suffers further injury due to a delay in treatment that results from having to go to another hospital. Moreover, in a true emergency, an emergency room cannot refuse to examine or treat a person in need of emergency treatment on the basis of an inability to show proof that he or she is able to pay the bill. That is to say that the hospital must treat an emergency-room patient first, then worry later about the patient's ability to pay.

HINT: Medical malpractice is not limited just to physicians, but also to health care providers of all kinds.

If you become injured, my best advice is to seek medical assistance immediately with your own physician or at the emergency room of the nearest hospital. If you have questions on a personal injury case and would like to schedule a free consultation, please contact my office at 773-2880. I'm located at Gridley Bryant Office Condominiums, 111 Willard Street. All personal injury cases are handled on a percentage fee basis. We only receive payment if recovery is made on your behalf.

Artist Bill Beyer Finds His Dreams In Watercolors

By SHIRLEY KAWA-JUMP

Some people realize their dreams late in life--they hit that plateau where everything makes sense and their work is enjoyable and meaningful.

For Marina Bay artist Bill Beyer, that point came after he retired from 27 years in commercial art. He took a class in watercolor at the Fuller Museum of Art in Brockton and realized what all his years in art school meant.

"Doing the watercolors was similar to doing layouts but in other ways, it was very different. As I painted, a couple of the colors would run together and it would make the piece beautiful."

His skills as a watercolorist have placed him in high demand at boat shows where he does portraits of boats and marinas for people. He also does paintings of children and pets from pictures, helping many of his customers hold onto memories.

"When I see people who've bought a painting go down the boardwalk, there's a smile on their face. They're just as happy as I am."

Beyer is currently preparing for the upcoming Quincy Art Association 1996 Boardwalk Arts Affair at Marina Bay Saturday and Sunday. No stranger to the show or competing, his colorful still-life of fruits, vegetables and an enormous watch won the Grumbacher-Koh-I-Noor award at last year's show. His painting of a carousel came in second at the annual art association show in May.

The Boardwalk Arts Affair will feature hundreds of pieces of art from area art associations. All the work will be hung together in display units anchored to the boardwalk. For the first time this year, photographs will be taken of some of the exhibited pieces and compiled by Ray MacDonald in a photo program.

Part of the proceeds from works sold at the show will be donated to the artist's art association.

Beyer said the world of artists is vastly different from the corporate world in which he used to work. He has found that artists support each other and are willing to learn from each other.

At a demonstration one year, Beyer's easel collapsed. There were no moments of embarrassment, as there might be at a board meeting. Rather, another artist offered him an easel and the show went on.

"This has opened up a whole new world for me," Beyer said. "I'm not in that business world where they demand a certain piece at a certain price and never thank you for it."

He has also completed several large projects. For a restaurant on Marina Bay, Beyer did a 24-foot drawing of Boston Harbor in reverse on tracing paper. The drawing was then sandblasted onto an enormous mirror at the back of the restaurant.

His latest project is a series of murals for a law office in the marina. He is painting a 9-foot by 4-foot watercolor of the view from the conference room. There will also be several smaller paintings around the room featuring courthouses in the state.

Beyer devotes part of his painting time to fundraisers. He creates a painting of municipal buildings and attractions of various towns. The painting is copied by an offset lithography method and made into prints which are then sold by the organization doing the fundraising. A benefit for Quincy Hospital netted over $15,000 for 1,000 prints sold.

Beyer's work has been exhibited all over the country and has won him national and international awards. Still, it is in the quiet studio at Marina Bay that he is happiest. Every day, he can look out the window at the boats bobbing in the harbor or the skyline just beyond him and find inspiration.

"I've had such a varied career," he said. "But now I'm doing things I never thought I could do. When I'm painting, I suddenly realize that this is what I've always wanted to do."

SNUG HARBOR SCHOOL students recently took part in the Junior Achievement Program, a curriculum that teaches about economics through hands-on activities. The program was funded by Clean Harbors Environmental Companies. Among the students who received awards for their participation were, from left, Vinh Le, Dennis Trenh and Chris Jacques.

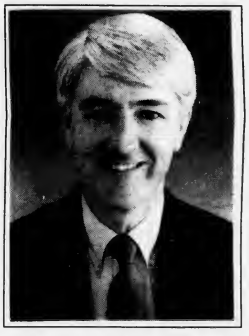
Ed Teague's Eye on Congress Fighting Crime



Congressional Candidate Ed Teague

HYANNIS Ma -- Last week the Massachusetts Legislature passed a Sex Offender Law which requires convicted sex offenders to register with local authorities. The leader of the effort to pass the new bill was State Representative and Congressional Candidate Ed Teague (R-Yarmouth). "I'm obviously very proud to have been the sponsor of this bold new initiative," Teague said. "Now parents can feel a bit safer in their own neighborhoods."

Passage of the Sex Offender Law through the State House has taken much of Ed Teague's time in recent weeks, but it is not the only anti-crime initiative Teague has proposed. In his campaign for the U.S. Congress, one of the questions he is most frequently asked is: How does he plan to confront the growing problem of crime? His answers are contained in Ed Teague's Ten Point Plan for the Cape and South Shore.

Although there are no easy answers to the complex challenge of fighting crime, Teague has addressed the crime problem at several levels. In developing his plan, Teague looked into the causes of crime, ways to deter potential criminals and punishing criminals when crimes are committed.

Teague's vision is to return to a time when neighbors left their front doors open without fear. With that clear goal in mind, he crafted an anti-crime package which combines the reduction of furloughs and paroles, inmate work requirements, restitution of victims, deportation of alien criminals, and, when warranted, the death penalty.

"Unfortunately, criminals aren't deterred from committing crimes because local police often don't get the tools they need to fight crimes," Teague said. "To make matters worse, criminals aren't locked up when they are caught and the few we are locking up are allowed to relax in luxury while they plan their next crime."

"It's a broken system that sends one clear message to criminals: Crime Pays," Teague continued. "Until we are willing to lock up those who are holding our neighborhoods hostage, we will have the same violent criminals committing the same crimes over and over again."

You can obtain a free copy of Ed Teague's Ten Point Plan by calling Teague for Congress at 508-790-1200.

REAL ESTATE MARKET

DeWolfe Announces Record Second Quarter Revenues

The DeWolfe Companies Inc., the largest residential real estate firm in New England, has announced quarterly financial results for the second quarter that ended June 30.

The company reported the best quarterly results in its history, exceeding all prior quarters in revenues, net revenues, net earnings and earnings per share.

DeWolfe's 1996 second quarter revenues increased by 10 percent to $28,817,000 from $26,257,000 in 1995, while year to date revenues increased by 13 percent to $11,552,000 in 1996 from $10,216,000 in 1995. Year to date revenues increased by 19 percent to $19,811,000 in 1996 from $16,612,000 during the first six months of 1995.

Second quarter earnings increased by 93 percent, to $1,549,000 in 1996 from $801,000 in 1995. Year to date earnings increased by 215 percent, to $1,755,000 in 1996 from $558,000 during the first six months of 1995. Second quarter earnings per share (EPS) increased by 83 percent, to 44 cents in 1996 from 24 cents in 1995, while year to date EPS increased by 177 percent to 50 cents in 1996 from 18 cents during the first six months of 1995.

Richard B. DeWolfe, chairman and CEO, said, "I am pleased to report that our efforts to improve profit margins are beginning to show positive results. A stronger real estate market, combined with our company's reorganization and cost management program, resulted in our best quarter ever.

"All of our business units and market areas showed improvement. We are committed to building on this success, as we continue our strategy of measured growth and diversification, while increasing value for our shareholders."

The DeWolfe Companies Inc. is a provider of integrated homeownership services including residential real estate services, mortgage banking and specialized services to corporations facilitating employee homeownership, including relocation services. The company offers those services throughout eastern Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Connecticut, southern Maine, and northern Rhode Island.

First Time Homebuyer's Workshops To Begin Sept. 17

Quincy Community Action Programs Inc. (QCAP), an approved first time homebuyer counseling agency, will hold a series of First Time Homebuyer's Workshops beginning Tuesday, Sept. 17.

The series will continue Sept. 19, 24 and 26. All workshops will be held from 6:30 to 8:30 a.m. at Randolph Town Hall, 41 South Main St., Randolph.

Attendance at all four workshops is mandatory in order to qualify for the different mortgage options through the Mass Housing Finance Agency and other financing options.

The agenda will be comprehensive and individualized and will focus on different aspects of the homebuying process, including how to locate a property within one's budget, how to make an offer and the types of financing best suited to one's needs.

Advance registration is required and space is limited. Fee of $35 for all four sessions covers the cost of the workshop text and all copied materials.

The workshop series is sponsored by the City of Quincy and EOCD. For more information, call Debbie Kidd, housing specialist, at 471-8181, ext. 115.

Asian First Time Homebuyer Workshop To Be Held Sept. 9

Quincy Community Action Programs Inc. (QCAP) will hold an Asian First Time Homebuyer Workshop Monday, Sept. 9 from 7 to 9 p.m. at City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

QCAP is an MHFA-approved homebuying counseling agency. The program is designed to introduce the first time homebuyer to many of the mortgage programs available, including the Soft Second Program offered by many cities and towns.

The agenda will be comprehensive and individualized and will focus on different aspects of the homebuying process, including how to locate a property within one's budget, how to make an offer and the types of financing best suited to one's needs.

Advance registration is required and space is limited. The workshop is free to all interested potential first time homebuyers.

To register, call Leslie Kwan at 446-7976 or Nixon Lu at 745-6285.

Repairing Concrete Is Easy

Extreme temperatures and age can cause concrete to crack and flake. With a little know-how and the right tools, do-it-yourselfers can repair damaged areas easily. To get started, you will need the following tools: cold chisel, hammer, trowel, broom and brush, goggles and gloves, sand mix, concrete bonding adhesive or vinyl concrete patcher. Follow these easy steps from the experts at The QUIKRETE Companies for some of the most common concrete repair projects.

Resurfacing thin, cracked and flaked concrete

Chip away all cracked and crumbled areas to a solid base. Apply a thin layer of vinyl concrete patcher. Finish or smooth the surface with a trowel.

Resurfacing depths up to two inches

Clean the damaged area and apply concrete bonding adhesive to old concrete. When adhesive is dry, pour the sand mix, level and smooth with a trowel.

Repairing broken steps

Clean and remove all dirt and loose concrete. Build up the surface with vinyl concrete patcher. With a trowel, finish and smooth the corners flush with the adjoining surfaces.

Repairing wide cracks

Chip away all cracked concrete to a depth of at least one inch below the surface. Square all of the edges. For cracks up to 1/4 inch deep, use vinyl concrete patcher. For deeper cracks use sand mix and concrete bonding adhesive.

Free Brochures

To learn more about repairing concrete or other concrete-related projects, call The QUIKRETE Companies at 1-800-282-5828.

SUMMER CAR CARE

Tips For Trouble-Free Driving

(NAPS)—Taking proper care of your car can put you on the road to a safer and more pleasant driving experience. Here are some helpful tips from car maintenance experts.

Your Lubrication System

• Check Engine Oil Level– Maintaining the proper oil level in your engine is not only important for operating your car safely, it helps the engine start more efficiently. Check the oil level each time you fill the gas tank.

• Use The Appropriate Performance Level And Viscosity Grade Of Engine Oil–Follow the lube oil recommendations for your vehicle described in the owner's manual. Because Americans are keeping cars longer, there is a rising interest in synthetic motor oils that help prolong engine life. Experts at Texaco, the company that has just introduced Havoline Synthetic Motor Oil SAE 5W-40, recommend you look for a label on the container which defines both its performance level and fuel economy characteristics. New Havoline Synthetic Motor Oil, for instance, is engineered to provide superior protection against lubricant breakdown and give excellent performance at extreme hot and cold temperatures.

For safety and more efficient starts, check the oil level each time you fill the gas tank.

• Keep Engine Oil And Filter Clean–As a car is driven, the level of contaminants in the engine oil constantly increases. As a result, it becomes more difficult for it to protect the engine. Regardless of the season, engine oil should be changed before it reaches a level at which damage can result.

Fuel System

• Maintain A Clean Fuel System–A dirty fuel system can contribute to poor acceleration and driveability. Clogged fuel filters should be replaced.

• Aim For Fuel Efficiency–If you keep baggage to a minimum and comply with the speed limits you'll get better mileage. Sudden acceleration and stop-and-go situations result in poor mileage.

Following these simple suggestions can help make your next drive safer and more enjoyable.

The 'California Car' Controversy

by Jim Lust, President, National Automobile Dealers Association

Washington, D.C., (NAPS)—Cleaner air, a better chance of holding the line on car and fuel prices and more model choices, may be available in more places if other states keep from copying certain California automotive regulations.

California may be a trendsetter for many things, but when it comes to cars, it's unique. California car standards were specifically designed for California's special climate, geography, population pattern and severe air pollution problems. In most respects, these standards are tougher and more costly to implement than are federal standards. They may not be suitable for other states, though a number of states have adopted or are considering adopting them so as to meet Clean Air Act Amendments of 1990 requirements. These states see the California car standards as a way to reach compliance despite being unable to fully control emissions from factories and other stationary sources.

These California standards call for:

• progressively tougher emission standards that add to the cost of new vehicles, from $100 per vehicle in 1994 to $1,000 or more by 2001, according to industry estimates;

• the use of cleaner-burning "reformulated" gasoline costing an additional 12 to 20 cents per gallon;

• beginning in 1998, aero-emission vehicles (ZEVs). The only vehicles that currently qualify as ZEVs are electric, which may be less suited for use in many areas of the country because of their limited range and limited heating and air-conditioning capability.

Because of its milder climate, California standards for carbon monoxide (CO) emissions are less stringent than federal standards. Unhealthy concentrations of CO are typically found at high altitudes such as Denver and in cold climates such as New England. For such places, California car rules may be less effective than federal standards in reducing air pollution.

Aside from the added difficulty and cost of supplying California cars to other states, auto manufacturers and dealer groups have challenged those laws in states which have deleted the California requirement for costlier reformulated gasoline. Automakers say producing a car to meet California emission standards without California reformulated gasoline would require a hybrid "third car," which is prohibited under the Clean Air Act.

The automotive industry has an excellent record of technological achievement in pollution control. Air quality goals are not well served when the cost, confusion and disruption caused by regulations far exceed any benefit to the environment. Tough new federal clean air regulations should be given a chance to work and California Cars—and rules—should remain in California.

SPOTLIGHT ON BUSINESS

'A Nice Family Place'

Mike's Fruit Store: Reviving The Old Way

MIKE BEDROSSIAN, proprietor of Mike's Fruit, 690 Hancock St., Wollaston, is attempting to bring back the old style family fruit store he remembers growing up in Watertown. Bedrossian, 23, said his goal is "to run a successful business where our prices will be competitive with the big supermarkets and where the customer always comes first."

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Mike Bedrossian is attempting to revive the old style family fruit store, where the customers and the employees enjoy a friendly rapport in a relaxed, family atmosphere.

At the recent grand opening of Mike's Fruit in Wollaston, Bedrossian met a lot people who live in the neighborhood, people he hopes will become repeat customers once they get to know the store's employees.

"I want it to be a nice family place," said Bedrossian, 23. "I remember the old style, when places delivered and built a good relationship with the customers, who then kept coming back. People seem to have gotten away from that, and I want to try and bring that back. I think people like that.

"I'd like it to be a place where the customers and I know each other and they feel comfortable coming in. Our top priority is making sure the customers are happy."

Bedrossian, who lives in Watertown, said he liked the store's location, having frequented the area to visit friends. He also felt the neighborhood lacked a small fruit and vegetable store, and decided it was the perfect place to open one up.

"This is a nice neighborhood, with a lot of nice people," said Bedrossian. "It looked like it needed a fresh fruit place, a small fruit store where people could come in, get what they want, and leave, without the long lines like supermarkets. It's a nice business area and I like the environment. We also get a lot of foot traffic by the place."

The young entrepreneur credits his parents, who owned and operated a produce business in their native Lebanon, with helping him get his first business venture off the ground.

"They told me the basics of produce, how the produce business works," said Bedrossian. "Produce is a tricky business, and they helped me out a lot. It's nice to be able to rely on someone who knows a lot more about the business than I do.

"This is my first venture, and I'm excited about making it as successful as possible. We're only going to sell top of the line produce and our main objective is to have the best quality foods at our store."

Among the foods that will be available at Mike's Fruit include "a big line of Mediterranean food, including grape leaves, Syrian bread and taboule and Armenian salad made with parsley and tomatoes and no lettuce," which Bedrossian said is "very healthy."

Bedrossian said Mike's Fruit also carries "all types of gourmet cheeses, regular cheeses, deli food, small produce market, all the basics. We know that health is the big thing now. We want to offer the healthiest food to our customers."

Bedrossian prides himself on knowing the quality of the food and how it benefits those who eat it.

"I know what they want, what each food does, what's healthy and what's not," said Bedrossian. "We're definitely going the health route, with milks, eggs and chesses. We also offer sugar free candy, fat free foods, dry fruit--imported and domestic, some glazed with honey.

"The fact that fruits and vegetables are good for you is one of the main reasons I decided to go into the business. I eat healthy and want other people to eat healthy, too."

Mike's Fruit offers free delivery to Quincy residents and also has Super Wednesday, when senior citizens can receive 10 percent off everything in the store and also have it delivered.

As far as freshness is concerned, Bedrossian said the store receives fresh deliveries of up to 20 cases a day, right from the market.

"We try to stay local as far as produce is concerned, since we want to help out the farms as much as possible," said Bedrossian, who added that the store makes its own nuts and roasts the nuts themselves. In addition, Mike's Fruit offers fruit baskets and will create special orders for their customers.

Now how did someone with an accounting degree from Northeastern University get involved in running a fruit store?

"I liked the idea of running my own place, and when the opportunity came up, I just went for it," said Bedrossian. "I've been interested in the produce business all my life, having grown up around it.

"I've also done research on nutrition to see what fruit does what. Fruits are really happening now. You can eat as much fruit as you want and nothing will happen to you. It's always good for you."

Despite the fact he has grown up around the produce business and received guidance and support from his parents, Bedrossian said people questioned someone so young starting his own produce business.

"A lot of people thought I was too young, but I've grown up in the business and I know what's good and bad about the produce business," said Bedrossian. "I also think the marketing and accounting I studied in school will help me in building relationships with the public.

"I'm not really sure what to expect. We'll have a suggestion box, so if someone wants something, he or she can let us know. My goal is to run a successful business where our prices will be competitive with the big supermarkets and where the customer always comes first."

Mike's Fruit is located at 690 Hancock St., Wollaston. It is open Monday through Saturday from 8 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. and Sunday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Keli Mahoney In 1,049-Mile Endurance Test

Quincy Native Training For Ultimate Challenge: Iditarod Dog Race

By LIAM FITZGERALD

It all started when Roy Mahoney and his wife, Frances, and their daughter Keli embarked on a cruise to Alaska 10 years ago.

"We went on a helicopter sightseeing ride and she fell in love with the beauty of the place," said Roy Mahoney, 70, a Quincy resident and former Delta Airlines electronic technician. "I was surprised when she told me she was going to move there, but five years later, she moved to Alaska with her dog and fiance and has loved every minute of it."

A decade has passed since the trip, and Keli, now 28, is a dog kennel owner and sightseeing flight service operator in Talkeetna, Alaska. A 1986 graduate of Quincy High School, she is the owner, pilot and manager of McKinley Air Service and the owner, musher and manager of McKinley Kennels. She co-owns the air service and dog kennel with her business partner, LeeAnn Wetzel.

In addition to her two businesses, Keli also competes in dog sled races and will soon prepare for one of the toughest tests of human endurance--the Iditarod dog sled race. The race, which begins in early March, covers 1,049 miles from Anchorage, Alaska to Nome, Alaska.

Despite the fact she has only competed in dog sled races for a few years, her father is not surprised his daughter is going to compete in the world renowned Iditarod next spring.

"She's the kind of girl who makes up her mind to do something and then she does it," said Roy, a South Boston native who has lived in Quincy since 1970. "It's a challenge, but it's something she's always wanted to do, and now she'll have her chance."

Between now and then, though, Keli has a lot preparation to do, according to Roy. Firstt, she must raise $20,000 for expenses ranging from new sleds and new dogs to a snowmachine and drag and team dog food for the season.

Roy said his daughter has a few sponsors, including her own company, McKinley Air Service, among others in Alaska, but is interested in acquiring sponsorship in Quincy as well, Roy said. To help defray the cost of participating in such a prestigious race, Roy said he is planning to host a fundraiser in late October. Those interested in sponsoring Keli are encouraged to call Roy at 479-8116.

In addition to raising the money, Keli will also devote most of her time to a rigorous training session in November, December and January, Roy said, to get ready for her first Iditarod competition.

Having never raced more than 300 miles in competition, the Iditarod race will more than triple her longest journey, meaning she will need to train well to be ready for the race. Roy said she hopes to finish in 12 days, possibly finish in the top 20 and collect prize money.

"I'll be there," said Roy. "I've been there for the last three or four race starts when she's been involved in other teams. Everyone's all excited for her. Several members of our family, including my wife, will go watch her race."

The race itself begins the first weekend in March in downtown Anchorage and takes the 65 participating teams (16 dogs a team, no substitutions) from the southeast corner to the northwest portion of the enormous state. Roy said competitors cross part of the Bering Sea and face what Roy called the toughest area of the race, the Pacific side of the Alaska Range.

Weather conditions obviously play a large role, Roy said. In extreme conditions, the temperature can drop to minus-forty and the winds can howl at 100 miles per hour.

"It's definitely a test of one's endurance," said Roy. "You race about six hours, stop, make sure the dogs are fed and also check for injuries before you get to eat and rest yourself.

"Usually, they race about 100 miles a day (16-

KELI MAHONEY, right, with her parents Frances and Roy Mahoney of Quincy, will participate in her first Iditarod dog sled race next March in Alaska. Keli, who moved to Alaska five years ago, will train for three months over the winter to prepare for the race, which covers 1,049 miles from Anchorage to Nome. Roy, who visits Keli twice a year, is planning on hosting a fundraiser in late October to help defray the cost of competing in the Iditarod.

WITH THE ALASKAN countryside as the backdrop, former Quincy resident Keli Mahoney poses next to her dogs, who each have their own compartment in the back of her truck. In addition to competing in dog sled races, Keli also co-owns McKinley Air Service, a sightseeing air taxi, and McKinley Kennels, a racing kennel which currently consists of 30 Alaskan huskies.

Babe Ruth Tournament Underway Saturday

The Quincy Babe Ruth Baseball League's fourth annual Ray Cattaneo Invitational Baseball Tournament gets underway at Adams Field Saturday.

At noon, Great Bay takes on Weymouth, followed by Hingham against Pembroke at 2:30 p.m. South Boston battles Randolph at 5 p.m., and the host team, Quincy, plays Cedar Grove under the lights at 8 p.m.

Sunday, Bridgewater will play the winner of the Hingham-Pembroke game, while Milton goes up against the winner of the South Boston-Randolph contest.

Games will be held at 5:30 and 8 p.m. all next week, starting Monday.

It is a double-elimination tournament, with trophies awarded to the winning team. Semi-finals and finals will be played under the lights at Adams Field.

First Annual NQHS Football Alumni Golf Tournament Friday

The North Quincy High School Football Alumni will hold its first annual Alumni Golf Tournament Friday at 8 a.m. at the Ponkapoag Golf Club in Canton.

Nearly 100 alumni from the 1940s through members of the 1992 Superbowl team, along with many supporters, are expected to attend.

Approximately 30 local businesses and others are sponsoring the tournament, including Foley Chrysler Plymouth, which has offered a car as a hole in one prize. Local restaurants are donating gift certificates to the tournament.

The NQHS Football Alumni was started in January by seven former players to help further finance the program.

Up to this point, the association has donated $500 to one of its own who has taken ill, obtained Boston Univer-sity's Mike Boyle for a strength and conditioning clinic and paid for the team to play in a summer league. The association's long term goal include building a new weight room at the school and starting a scholarship fund.

HOT TOPIC

During the hot summer months, car owners should keep an eye on their dashboard temperature gauges. It is not uncommon for engines to overheat in hot weather, particularly in stop-and-go traffic, when hauling a trailer, or when climbing steep hills. Overheating can leave motorists stranded by the side of the road, or it can lead to engine damage if not properly attended to. In the event that the temperature-gauge needle crosses over into the red area of the gauge, drivers should pull off to the side of the road to allow the engine to cool before continuing. If a stop is not possible, an effort can be made to stabilize heat buildup by turning the heater to its maximum setting and setting the fan to high speed. This will serve to divert some of the heat from the engine compartment until it is safe to stop. Allow the engine to cool before adding water to avoid subjecting the block and cylinder head to thermal shock.

HINT: Take note of where the temperature-gauge needle sits under normal conditions so that the difference can be noted if the engine starts to overheat.

SATURN OF QUINCY, 54 Miller St., is currently holding its cycle-recycle program, where people are encouraged to donate bicycles which in turn will be distributed to underprivileged children at the Boston Boys and Girls Clubs. Saturn Of Quincy Recycling Bicycles

Saturn of Quincy, 54 Miller St., recently began a cycle-recycle program, which encourages people to donate bicycles which will be fixed up and presented to underprivileged children at the Greater Boston Boys and Girls Clubs.

The program, run in conjunction with the Summer Olympic Games and Sports Illustrated, has been successful, according to Brian Roberts, Saturn general sales manager.

With a week remaining, Saturn has collected 150 bicycles, according to Roberts.

"It's been great," said Roberts. "We're just running out of space to put the bikes now."

The bicycles will be brought to Quincy Cycle Inc., 247 Quincy Ave., where they will be repaired and brought to the Boys and Girls Clubs.

Last Saturday, Saturn of Quincy held a barbecue to celebrate the program's success.

"We had a ball on Saturday," said Roberts. "It was a great time. We had the Quincy Fire Department over here and they also donated a bicycle."

The program came about when Sports Illustrated contacted Saturn about doing a joint effort for underprivileged children in communities across the country, Roberts said.

Roberts added that Sports Illustrated has run advertisements for the program through the Summer Olympic Games, informing the readers that it is a nationwide event.

Saturn's participation in the cycle-recycle program is another way the company is getting involved in the Quincy community.

"We'd like to establish ourselves as a member of the community," said Roberts. "This is our first full year of operation, and we're striving to become more community-oriented as the years progress."

Girls' Softball

Quincy Stars Rally, Down Milton

Julie Burke's three-run homer in the final inning helped the Quincy Stars overcome a two-run deficit and defeat Milton, 19-16, at Milton's Cunningham Park.

After Jessica Lorman walked, Kelly Doherty and Meredith Hutchinson hit back-to-back singles to trim Milton's lead to 16-15. Burke followed with the three-run homer to give the Stars a 18-16 lead.

The Stars, a 14 and under girls' fast pitch softball team, added an insurance run when Kathlyn Gates singled, stole second and scored on a single by Amy Satkevich.

Nicole Grazioso turned in a fine relief pitching performance, keeping the Milton batters in check until Quincy had a chance to climb back in the game. Jill Nagueira's two fine defensive plays at second base during Milton's last turn at bat helped preserve the victory for the Stars, who play in the Junior Olympic Association.

Tabitha May YMCA Youth, Family Director

Tabitha May of Quincy has been named youth and family director at the South Shore YMCA, 79 Coddington St., Quincy.

May will direct and oversee all youth programs and events for those ages 18 months to 18 years at the YMCA.

She joined the YMCA facility one year ago as a pre-school instructor where she worked to restructure and expand programs.

"Working for the South Shore Y has changed my whole career path. It has given me many opportunities in the community and has put me in a new direction," said May. "Some of the events we have planned are a bake and craft sale to raise funds for the Youth Room, and a Halloween Party for children and their families."

May is a 1995 graduate of Clark University in Worcester where she received a bachelor's degree in psychology and education. She is currently earning her master's degree in school psychology and seeking her certification in advanced graduate study at the University of Massachusetts in Boston.

Quincy Native Training For Ultimate Challenge: Alaska's Iditarod Dog Race

18 hours) then rest six to eight hours before starting up again. There are some mandatory 24-hour rest periods to allow mushers to rest and recuperate."

Racers must finish with at least eight dogs, Roy said. Any injured dogs must be dropped off at any of the checkpoints, located approximately every 200 miles. There are veterinarians at each checkpoint to tend to the injured dogs, according to Roy. It is vital, Roy said, to check the dogs for injuries, because they are "your engine for the trip." In addition, any participant who loses a dog is automatically disqualified from the competition.

Roy, who visits his daughter twice a year, marvels at how she keeps her spirits up despite the long hours she keeps.

"She always has a smile on her face," said Roy. "She's up at 6 a.m. to feed the dogs, flies for about 12 hours, then comes back to care for the dogs, maybe take them out for some exercise. It's hard work when you care for 16 dogs, feed them twice a day and clean and care for them every day."

Keli has always been an active person, Roy said, noting that she was the first female member of the Savin Hill Yacht Club and a member of the Quincy High volleyball team that finished second in the state.

"I'm not only proud of what she has done, I'm astounded that she has done so much at such a young age," said Roy. "It's unbelievable. She even graduated from Bridgewater State College in three years, not four. She was a very good student, very intelligent."

Keli received a bachelor's degree in aviation science from Bridgewater State, where Roy said she took and taught flying classes.

"She's always been interested in flying, so I'm not surprised she does it for a career," said Roy.

Did Roy ever want his daughter, an FAA licensed pilot, to fly commercial instead of running a sightseeing flight service?

"I did want her to fly commercial, but she didn't want to, because it wasn't as exciting as flying through the mountains and looking at all the scenery in Alaska. She's hooked and I can see why. The beauty and excitement of Alaska are tremendous.

"You also get to meet people from all over the world. In the course of an hour, I met people from Germany, France, Austria, Japan, Korea, Mexico and Switzerland."

Having spent a decade thousands of miles from home, has she ever wanted to leave Alaska and come back and live in Quincy?

"She never got homesick and didn't want to come down to Florida with us either, with all its boring flatland," said Roy. "Up there, she has the mountains and the gorgeous scenery. It makes for great vacation trips for the family, on flights through the mountains, where the scenery is mind boggling."

Besides the cruise, was there any other motivating factor in Keli's decision to move to Alaska and fly sightseeing planes?

"Well, there was a book I bought for her, "Wager with the Wind" by Don Sheldon, that got her seriously thinking about moving to Alaska," said Roy. "He wrote about the early days of flying up there, about landing on glaciers to rescue climbers trapped on Mount McKinley. Once she read that, she made up her mind that that was what she was going to do, and she's done it."

Matt Messing Memorial Golf Tournament Sept. 25

The Matt Messing Memorial Golf Tournament will be held Wednesday, Sept. 25 at Pembroke Country Club on West Elm St., Pembroke. Tee-off time is 7:30 a.m.

A donation of $100 per player includes cart, greens fee, surprises and dinner. The youth rate is $65 for those in high school and under. For $30, non-golfers are welcome to attend the dinner, which will follow the golf at 1 p.m.

Prizes will be awarded to men's and women's first, second and third place winners, men's and women's closest to the pin and longest drive.

All proceeds go to benefit the Matt Messing Scholarship Fund.

For more information and registration forms, call 472-9365 or contact the Messings at 51 Utica St., Quincy.

Bike Bill Backed By Bellotti Signed Into Law

State Rep. Michael Bellotti announces that a bill he helped move through the state Legislature last year recently was signed into law.

The bill requires the State Highway Department to provide access for pedestrians and bicyclists. Bellotti hailed the measure as a key ingredient in accommodating all the users of Massachusetts roads.

The new law will require that when roads are constructed, reconstructed, or renovated, plans must be developed to build in reasonable accommodations for pedestrians and bicycle.

"Reducing automobile traffic is one of the easiest and cheapest ways to respond to the Clean Air Act," said Bellotti, a member of the Natural Resources Committee. "Safe passage on our roads for walkers and bikers means a reduction in the use of cars for short trips and an improvement in the quality of life for everyone."

Passage of the bill was achieved by a bipartisan effort of the House and Senate, he added.

"It was good to work with both parties on this issue, which is an important step in promoting bicycle use as a practical safety alternative. I am confident that the Massachusetts Highway Department will live up to the letter and spirit of the law," said Bellotti.

City Preparing For Use Of New Voting Machines

together by Mayor James Sheets that the City Council approved last June.

Shea said the electronic scanner machines will be a vast improvement over the punch-card system previously used by the city. They will save both time and money, he said, by cutting an average of about two hours in overtime pay for custodians, police officers and election workers--as well as other, minimal expenditures such as electricity--per election.

"It will probably save between $3,000 and $5,000 on each election night," said Shea.

In addition to being faster and more cost-efficient, the new machines will more accurately count ballots by giving people who accidentally vote for too many candidates in a given race--such as School Committee or city councillor-at-large--the opportunity to vote a second time. Shea said the machines will give ballots back to those who have "overvoted," and they will have the chance to correct their mistakes.

He added that those who "undervote" will not receive their ballots back. For example, if someone votes for only two councillor-at-large candidates instead of three, the two votes will be recorded while the third non-vote will be counted as a blank, which is the same way the punch-card system worked.

Shea said in the event one of the machines should fail, one of the the three backup units will immediately be utilized. In the event of an election night power failure--which he noted is virtually unheard of in the days of modern technology--the ballots can always be counted by hand.

"I mean, if we had a hurricane, there could be a power failure," said Shea with a laugh. "So if there's a hurricane on election night, we'll count them by hand."

The clerk, who lobbied Sheets for the money for the new voting machines--which are used in more than 100 cities and towns in Massachusetts, including Braintree, Hingham, and Randolph--added that he is glad to have them in Quincy.

"I'm excited," said Shea. "The mayor and the City Council were very supportive, and I'm looking forward to it."

Sheets said he is confident the machines will live up to their billing.

"It's a state-of-the art system," said the mayor. "They were some glitches in the old system, and it's good to know we won't have them anymore. These new machines are worth the money."

Coordinator Sees Vibrant Downtown

He added that while he would not mind attracting a large retail "anchor store" to Quincy Center, he sees smaller specialty shops as being equally important to the future.

"It would be great to have a key anchor store if the demographics exist," he said. "But we need a mix."

One thing that will it easier to turn plans for the downtown into reality, Arons noted, is the fact that the city "already has a lot going for it." As examples, he cited ongoing Quincy 2000 efforts such as the Building Renovation Program (a component of the Strategic Action Plan) and the Loan Pool designed to help businesses, reliable public transportation (MBTA), and constant, sincere efforts by Mayor James Sheets and other elected officials to improve the city.

Other pieces of the downtown puzzle Arons views as important:

•Quincy College. "The college is creating a built-in service base for us," he said. "Now we have to provide those services."

•Historic sites/tourism. Arons said while tourism will not be the major factor it is in Plymouth, it will play a role in the city. (He added that although tourism is less important in Quincy, the city is more advanced in term of economic development.)

•Development of a Quincy Center hotel, something city officials long have advocated. Last week, officials announced that Lincoln Properties of Dallas has bought Presidents Place, the main brick building leased by Quincy College, and a downtown vacant lot being considered as a hotel site, for about $38 million--a deal that could clear the way for the planned hotel.

"In my estimation, this is a user-friendly community," said Arons. "There's so much in place. There are some hidden gems here, and we have to polish them, shine them and make people aware of them. I envision Quincy Center as being a destination area, not a pass-through area."

Arons said he does not want to discuss too many specifics of the Strategic Development Plan until it is finalized and presented to the City Council in the fall. He predicted, however, that "within nine to 12 months of the City Council's endorsement of the plan, you will see tangible effects in the downtown."

"The City Council's endorsement will be a key step in making this plan a reality," he said. "It will show the new businesses we're recruiting that the plan is endorsed by City Hall, and that's very important.

"Quincy is a great city. The people here feel very positive about their community and they're very receptive. The people are very open-minded here. Everyone has a very positive vision."

OBITUARIES

Edward W. Kubera, 51

Security Guard; Shot During Robbery

A funeral service for Edward W. Kubera, 51, of Randolph, formerly of Quincy, was held Aug. 4 in the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

Mr. Kubera, a security guard, died July 31 after being shot during an armored truck robbery outside the Star Market in Somerville.

He had worked as a security guard for Dunbar Armored Inc. of Boston since April.

Mr. Kubera had taken early retirement from the MBTA in 1991 after 32 years as a fare collector and train operator. He was a member of the Carmen's Union and a former shop steward.

He was a veteran of the Army Reserves.

Born in Boston, he lived in Quincy before moving to Randolph five years ago.

He is survived by his wife, Karen (DeBellis) Kubera; two sons and a daughter, Michael E. Kubera, Mark Kubera and Cheryl A. Kubera, all of Quincy; four brothers, Carl Kubera of South Boston, Phillip Kubera of Cape Cod, Robert Kubera of Maine and Christopher Kubera of Dorchester; and two sisters, Janice Freda of East Boston and Eleanor Labombard of Quincy.

Donations may be made to the Salvation Army, 6 Baxter St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Edna R. Donovan, 96

Sears, Roebuck & Co. Employee

A funeral Mass for Edna R. (Doris) Donovan, 96, of Quincy, was celebrated Aug. 3 at St. Joseph's Church.

Mrs. Donovan died July 31 at the Colonial Nursing Home, Weymouth.

A retired employee of Sears, Roebuck & Co., she worked 25 years for Sears in Cambridge before retiring in 1965.

Born in Cambridge, she lived in Quincy for 23 years.

Wife of the late James H. Donovan, she is survived by a friend, Marie F. Burke of Quincy.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

Glen S. Sherriff, 25

Partner In Film Company

A funeral service for Glen Steven Sherriff, 25, of Jamaica Plain, a Quincy native, was held Aug. 3 in Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St., Quincy.

Mr. Sherriff died July 31 from injuries received when the bicycle he was riding collided with a car July 30 in Boston. He never regained consciousness.

An aspiring film director, he was working on a film and video project with his partners in Blazing Aardvark Productions.

A 1989 graduate of Quincy High School, he was a member of the student yearbook committee and shot most of the pictures for the book, according to family members.

He attended a workshop program at the New York Film Academy and produced four short films while a student there.

In his younger years, he attended the Milton Academy weekend program for gifted students.

He filmed many services at his church, Quincy Point Congregational, and often responded to short notice calls from the church to do filming. Some of his work was shown on cable television.

Mr. Sherriff worked for a time after high school at the law offices of Newman, Heineman and Itzkowitz.

He loved to travel and was especially fond of Amsterdam.

Mr. Sherriff followed the careers of a number of Boston musicians and was particularly interested in reggae.

He is survived by his parents, Glen and Debra (Hynes) Sherriff of Quincy; a brother, Christopher Sherriff of Quincy; his grandmother, Jean Sherriff of Weymouth; and several aunts, uncles, and cousins.

Burial was in Pine Hill Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Hamel, Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St.

Donations may be made to the Massachusetts Brain Injury Association, 484 Main St., No. 325, Worcester, MA 01608.

Dimitrios Makridis, 82

Baker For 13 Years In Boston

A funeral service for Dimitrios Makridis, 82, of Quincy, was held Aug. 2 at St. Catherine's Greek Orthodox Church.

Mr. Makridis died July 30 at home following a long illness.

A former baker at Quinzani's Bakery in Boston, he worked for 13 years before retiring in 1978.

Memorial Mass Friday For Jane E. Labys, 52

Teacher; In TWA Plane Crash

A memorial Mass for Jane Elizabeth (Reardon) Labys, 52, of Morgantown, W. Va., formerly of Quincy and Hingham, will be celebrated Friday at 10 a.m. in St. Paul's Church, Hingham. The Mass will be celebrated by Bishop John Boles, former paster of St. Paul's Church in Hingham and former chaplain of the Harvard-Radcliffe Catholic Student Center.

Mrs. Labys died July 17 in the crash of Paris-bound TWA Flight 800.

A private graveside service for Mrs. Labys was held Aug. 3 at St. Vincent's Arch Abbey in Latrobe, Pa.

Mrs. Labys began her teaching career at a boys choir school in Nottingham, England, in 1967. After returning to the United States, she lived in Concord and Rhode Island while her husband, Walter Carl Labys, Ph.D, taught at MIT and the University of Rhode Island. The couple had lived in Hingham while Prof. Labys taught econometrics for the U.S. Department of Energy at MIT.

Mrs. Labys co-founded the Mountain Center for Foreign Languages where, for five years, she taught foreign language to elementary school students. She also taught German and French at Fairmont College in West Virginia.

Mrs. Labys then became a Realtor for Dorsey & Kiger Realtors in Morgantown, a job she had held for 14 years at the time of her death.

She was also a partner in B & J Ltd., a firm that built five houses in West Virginia.

Mrs. Labys was president of the Monogalia Historical Society in Morgantown.

Mrs. Labys belonged to the West Virginia University Choral Union and had sung in a church choir in Habere-Lullin and at St. Paul's Church in Hingham.

Born and raised in Quincy, she attended St. John's School and lived in Quincy until 1964 when the family moved to Hingham. She graduated from Thayer Academy in Braintree in 1964 and from Wellesley College in 1966 with a bachelor's degree in history. She received a master's degree in German studies in 1967 after a year of study in Tubingen, Germany.

She is also survived by a son and daughter, Walter Paul Labys of Philadelphia and Charlotee "Lottie" A. Labys of Cambridge; her mother, Ann L. (Leich) Reardon of Hingham; two brothers, David C. Reardon of Hancock, N.H., and Thomas Reardon of Newton; a sister, Martha Reardon of Hingham; an uncle and an aunt, George D. Reardon and Mary A. Reardon, both of Hingham; and many cousins, nephews, and nieces. She was the daughter of the late Associate Justice of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, Paul C. Reardon, who died in 1988, and the sister of the late Robert "Bobby" Reardon, who died in 1951 when she was 3.

Burial was in St. Vincent's Cemetery, Latrobe, Pa.

Funeral arrangements were by John Lopatich of Latrobe, Pa.

Donations may be made to Christian Help Inc., 219 Walnut St., Morgantown, WV 26505 or Christian Help, P.O. Box 240, Naugatuck, WV 25685.

Clare Cahill, 83

A funeral Mass for Clare (Flanagan) Cahill, 83, of Quincy, was celebrated Aug. 3 in St. John the Baptist Church.

Mrs. Cahill died July 30 at the Colonial Nursing Home in Weymouth after a brief illness.

A lifelong resident of Quincy, she attended St. John's School and graduated from the Woodward School for Girls.

Wife of the late Lawrence A. Cahill, she is survived by two sons, G. Lawrence Cahill of Fullerton, Calif., and Stephen R. Cahill of Brighton; a daughter, Nancy C. Walty of Quincy; 11 grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren.

Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St.

Donations may be made to Quincy Visiting Nurse Association, 10 Granite Place, Quincy, MA 02169.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Have you ever had the terrifying experience of running out of gas on a busy road or highway? There you are - hoping you can at least coast to the curb - with horns honking, people yelling and perhaps a policeman saying, "How come?"

Let's take this situation and think about the possible kinship between this traffic problem and the moral and spiritual situation many people find themselves in today. There are many people who do not have any power within themselves. They can be pushed and pulled around. As far as their own motive power is concerned they are helpless. Sadly, they have developed nothing which makes life go for them . . .

Beware of emptiness. Whether the emptiness is emptiness of thought or emptiness of heart, or emptiness in life, be sure that it is just as unnecessary as for any of us with normal common sense to allow ourselves to run out of gas . . .

Djerf Christian Pre-School Receives Accreditation

Djerf Christian Preschool, 65 Roberts St., Quincy, was recently granted accreditation by the National Association for the Education of Young Children (NAEYC).

The accreditation is achieved by about five percent of childhood programs nationwide--some 4,500 programs as of November, 1995.

"We are pleased with this honor which validates our commitment to providing a high quality program for young children and their families," said Jeanne Satterlund, program director.

NAEYC is a rigorous, voluntary process by which early childhood programs demonstrate that they consistently meet national standards of excellence. Child care centers, preschools, kindergartens, and before- and after-school programs are eligible to seek NAEYC accreditation. Approximately 8,000 programs are engaged in seeking accreditation.

Programs seeking accreditation undergo an intensive self-study, collecting information from parents, teachers, administrators, and classroom observations. They receive an on-site visit, conducted by early childhood professionals specially trained by NAEYC, to validate their self-study results. All of this information is independently reviewed by a team of national experts who grant or defer accreditation. Accreditation lasts for three years.

Point-Webster School Area Improvements

much, if any, of the funding will be repaid.

The Lancaster Street renovations are part of a "master plan" for the entire school area devised by Mary Smith of the Quincy-based landscape architecture firm Mary A. Smith Associates, according to Raymondi. He said the rest of the plan currently has been placed on hold because the city plans to convert Point-Webster into a middle school when a new Quincy Point elementary school opens in January 1998. Some points of the master plan would then be rendered moot, since the city does not bus middle school students.

Raymondi said, however, that neighbors and parents alike have agreed that going ahead with the Lancaster Street work is best, since there will be elementary-level students traveling to Point-Webster until the new school opens.

Bids will be received until 10:00 A.M. on August 29, 1996, in the Park Department, Richard J. Koch Family Park and Recreation Complex, 100 Southern Artery, Quincy, MA 02170.

Copies of the bid package can be obtained by calling (617) 376-1252 from the City of Quincy Park Department from 9:00 A.M. to 4:00 P.M. beginning Wednesday, August 7, 1996.

8/8/96

INVITATION FOR BIDS

INVITATION TO BID

The Department of Public Works for the City of Quincy, Massachusetts will receive sealed bids for Watermains Reconstruction Contract - Summer 1996 on Thursday, August 22, 1996, at 10:00 AM at the offices of the Commissioner of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, Massachusetts 02169, at which time and place all bids will be publicly opened and read aloud.

The work under this Contract includes, but is not necessarily limited to the removal of approximately 4950 l.f. of existing watermains of different sizes and installation of new mains in the same trenches. The various watermain lengths and sizes consist of approximately 1340 l.f. of 6-in. new ductile iron (D.I.) watermain; and 3504 l.f .of 8-in. new ductile iron (D.I.) watermain, including temporary bypass pipes, all valves, valve boxes, fittings, hydrants, appurtenances, connections to existing watermains, residential/commercial service connection, watermain cleaning, pressure testing, testing of all materials for quality and workmanship, disinfection, chlorination of the newly installed piping and all else incidental thereto.

All work shall be performed in accordance with the Massachusetts Highway Department Standard Specifications for Highways and Bridges and Construction Standards, and the American Water Works Standards, all as last revised, unless specified or directed otherwise.

A non-refundable deposit of $75.00 in cash or check payable to the City of Quincy, Massachusetts will be required for each set of contract documents. Bidders requesting contract documents by mail shall also include a separate non-refundable deposit payable to the City of Quincy, in the amount of $15.00 per set to cover the costs of shipping and handling.

The contract documents may be obtained during the business hours of 8:30 AM to 4:30 PM at the offices of the Commissioner of Public Works, Engineering Division, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, MA 02169 on or after Wednesday, August 7, 1996. A Mass. Highway Pre-Bid Qualification Certificate is required for obtaining plans & specifications for this contract.

Each bid shall be accompanied by a bid security in the amount of five percent (5%) of the total value of the bid in the form described in the Instructions to Bidders. The Successful Bidder shall be required to furnish a one hundred percent (100%) Construction Performance Bond and a one hundred percent (100%) Construction Payment Bond from a surety company acceptable to the City.

No bidder may withdraw his bid for a period of 60 calendar days after the actual date of the bid opening. All work under this contract shall be completed in 180 calendar days.

The bidding and award of this contract shall be in full compliance with Massachusetts General Laws, Chapter 30, Section 39M, as last revised. Bidders attention is called to the requirements as to conditions of employment to be observed and minimum wage rates to be paid, as determined by the Commissioner of Labor and Industries, under the provisions of Mass. General Law, Chapter 149, Sections 26 to 27D, inclusive.

All Federal, State and local regulations in relation to Minority Business Enterprise, Women's Business Enterprise, Minority Work Force, Employment of Quincy Residents, as required under City Ordinance No. 532, and Minimum Wage Rates shall be complied with.

Goals for this project are as follows:

1. The Contractor shall maintain of this project a not less than ten percent (10%) ration of minority employee manhours to total manhours in each job category.

2. A minimum of ten percent (10%) Minority Business Enterprise (MBE) and five percent (5%) Women's Business Enterprise (WBE) participation by state-certified MBEs and WBEs will be required and maintained on this project. The bidder shall submit complete MBE/WBE forms and SOMWBA certification letters with the bid.

3. The City of Quincy's ordinance requiring contractors working on City-supported construction projects to hire a certain percentage of Quincy residents is mandatory.

4. All workers on this project shall be paid the "Minimum Wage Rates" as mandated by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Department of Labor and Industries for each type of work classification.

Failure to comply with these requirements may render the bid non-responsive and thus ineligible for further consideration. No waiver for any of these provisions shall be granted.

The City of Quincy reserves the right to waive any informality in or to reject any or all bids when such an action is deemed in the best interests of the City. The City does not condone submissions of unbalanced bids. Such bids may be summarily rejected.

2nd Annual National Night Out

NATIONAL NIGHT OUT was held Tuesday in Quincy for the second consecutive year. Mayor James Sheets and police officials traveled to each of the city's six wards to encourage residents to become more involved in Crime Prevention and Neighborhood Watch programs, and ward councillors held cookouts. The mayor and police also traveled to Boston and Cambridge as part of the day.

$30,485 Paid Back

225 Ambulance Claims Received

Residents overbilled by the private ambulance company that offers service to city residents through Quincy Hospital have been reimbursed $30,485.

Paul Hines of the city solicitor's office, the attorney coordinating the reimbursement program, said Tuesday he has received 225 claims from people who say they were overbilled. So far, $30,485 has been repaid to 169 residents, with reimbursement amounts ranging from $5.89 to $1,274.60, he said.

There are also 35 claims with outstanding balances that will be credited by the ambulance company, Hines said. He added that there are 21 Medicare claims pending totaling $2,304.

Claims are still being accepted. Those who think they have been wrongly billed can write to Paul Hines-Esq., Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy, MA 02169 or call him at 376-1505.

The overbilling problem was discovered in May of last year by Quincy Atty. Daniel Raymondi, who initially learned that two of his clients had been overcharged by Norfolk-Bristol ASA/Ambulance Systems of America. The company's contract with the city bars billing indigent or uninsured city residents or trying to collect any balance not paid by private insurance or Medicare.

The Quincy Sun was the first media outlet to report about the situation.

Following an auditing process, the company admitted that it had mistakenly overbilled more than 100 clients and agreed to pay the city of sum of $500,000 which would be used to repay those wrongly charged. The money has been placed in a special escrow account controlled by the city.

Hines has said that after all residents are reimbursed and administrative costs pertaining to the process are paid, any leftover money will be put in the city's general fund to be used at the discretion of Mayor James Sheets and the City Council.

After NQ Improvements Completed

Point, S. Quincy Projects Planned

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Mayor James Sheets says that after an improvement project currently underway in the North Quincy business district is completed, other commercial areas including Quincy Point and South Quincy will receive similar renovations.

Sheets made his comments Tuesday while discussing the $3.5 million North Quincy project which began last week. Although completion of the project will mean the end of a three-pronged business district improvement program--Quincy Center and Wollaston already have been upgraded--the mayor said Quincy Point, South Quincy and possibly other areas should be improved as well.

Specifically, Sheets identified Washington Street in Quincy Point and the Independence Avenue area of South Quincy near the Adams Birthplaces as "prime areas" that he plans to have renovated.

"If we get shipbuilding back at the Fore River shipyard, and we see the type of rejuvenation we're expecting, that will demand some good things happening down there," he said.

Asked what would happen if shipbuilding does not return, Sheets said the Washington Street area will remain a priority.

"Obviously, something's going to happen with the shipyard," he said.

As for Independence Avenue, Sheets said it makes sense to improve that area because of the historic value of the birthplaces of Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams.

"That's a natural," he said.

Improvements to both areas would be similar to what has been done to Quincy Center and Wollaston and what is currently underway in North Quincy: road resurfacing, new sidewalks, trees, Colonial lights, accent bricks, and benches.

Sheets said he is pleased to see the improvement of the city's three major business districts entering its third and final phase.

"When I first took office (1990), I wanted to do the downtown, then Wollaston, then North Quincy," he said. "When we complete this current project, the whole program will be completed."

The mayor said he hopes the North Quincy improvements will both attract new businesses as well as encourage merchants already there to make improvements to their own businesses.

"How can you ask a businessperson to put money into his or her shop if you're not willing to put money into the area? That's the simple logic of it," he said.

The first phase of the North Quincy project--which began last week and should be completed by December--will include 1,020 feet of Billings Road from the MBTA train tracks to within 25 feet of the Billings Road/Felton Street intersection. The second phase, set to begin in the spring and be completed by the end of 1997, will encompass

'Whoa!' On Horse And Carriage Plans

Plans for a horse-drawn carriage that would take tourists and residents to several Quincy historic sites are currently on hold.

Ned Murtagh of Quincy, owner of Boston Handsome Cabs--the company that would provide the service--said problems currently interfering with his Boston operation have forced him to delay his Quincy debut.

Murtagh, who already has received approval to operate in Quincy from the City Council and the License Board, said he still is eager to begin working in the city.

"Everything in Quincy has been very good," he

Quincy 2000 Loans Metal Fabrication Plant $60,000

Quincy 2000 loaned $60,000 to a small, but growing metal fabrication plant, New England Steel Company, according to Quincy 2000 Executive Director Joseph Mannarino.

The company was recently awarded the task of fabricating and delivering to the designated stations on both the Plymouth and Middleborough lines respectively, all canopy supporting steel and all handrail required for the Old Colony Railroad Restoration Project, Mannarino said. "However, New England Steel Tank Company soon found that while good fortune had smiled on them in the form of a lucrative contract, their welding equipment left a lot to be desired." said Mannarino. "The project will involve 14 stations overall, beginning in Braintree and will take six months to complete. Estimates on the weight of steel required for the project are put at over 700 tons."

JOSEPH MANNARINO

"This is the largest singular contract that this company has secured in its 68 years of existence, and we were in dire need of updating our welding equipment to meet the demands of a tight schedule," McCarthy said.

McCarthy went on to say "Fortunately, Quincy 2000 have put their shoulders to the wheel with us and in doing so have not only ensured that we have the tools to do this project, but now we feel more confident going forward in bidding other work of the same scale; knowing we have the welding power to accomplish it".

New England Steel Tank Company is located at 111 Brook Rd. off Water St. in West Quincy, and has been in Quincy since 1953. The company was founded in South Boston at the turn of the century, and while it retains the name, it has a reputation of providing a lot more than the name suggests. One of its more well-known pieces adorns the top of Boston's Custom House, the 35-foot tall stainless steel pyramid which was installed several years ago.

In addition to the rail station finishes, the company has contracts for six 50 foot aluminum boat cradles for the US Coast Guard, and last month launched the first pair of 40 foot steel tugboats for a local tug contractor.

"Quincy 2000 is pleased to have the funding available to assist a growing company like New England Steel Tank in modernizing its manufacturing equipment", said Mannarino. "The manufacturing sector is very competitive both within the region and around the world; therefore, we need to be able to respond quickly to the needs of the Quincy business community."

The collaborative effort of Quincy 2000 and New England Steel Tank Company ensures that an industrial trade that almost faded into history will remain a presence within the City of Quincy, ensuring gainful employment for this and future generations, Mannarino added.

Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico was pleased to hear the loan had been approved for New England Steel Tank Co., a business which is located in his ward.

"Quincy is fortunate to have the kind of public/private partnership in Quincy 2000 that can provide resources for business opportunities. I am very pleased that through the efforts of Quincy 2000, New England Steel Tank Company will be able to hire and train 12 to 15 new employees", said D'Amico.

15 Firefighters Sworn-In

Fifteen new Quincy firefighters were sworn-in by City Clerk Joseph Shea during a ceremony last Friday in the City Council Chambers at City Hall.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman said the new men will replace retirees and one deceased department member. They took the required fire examination--which gives priority to disabled and other veterans before other candidates are selected on the basis of their scores--about three years ago, he added.

The 15 new firefighters will bring the department's total to 208, Gorman noted.

Those sworn-in, in the order of their selection, are: Arthur M. Collings, 29; Mark P. Kennedy, 26; John A. Malvesti, 31; Michael Nostitz, 51; Paul Deshler, 27; Joseph W. Graham, 32; Christopher A. Barry, 27; Richard W. Bryan, 27; Patrick J. Dee, 25; Robert H. Laracy, 27; James F. Leonard, 25; William D. O'Neil, 36; Paul W. Ratti, 29; Robert Reney, 34 and Edward W. Rossini, 28. All are Quincy residents except Ratti, who is from Weymouth.

Gorman said he was pleased to welcome the new department members and thanked Mayor James Sheets for his support.

"The mayor has always been good to me in replacing the ranks," he said. "The City Council has also been very supportive. This is a great day for the City of Quincy."

Sheets praised the new recruits for being selected.

"You're the best," he told them. "We went through the list, and we were very careful, very choosy, because a firefighter today is on the 'cutting edge.' The job requires young people who are adaptable and have the ability to adjust."

The mayor added that the Quincy Fire Department has a long history of success and the told the 15 new firefighters they will be expected to "carry on that tradition."

"I want you to know, we have the greatest respect for each and every one of you," said Sheets.

Gorman said the 15 men will spend eight weeks at the Quincy Fire Training Center at the Fore River shipyard before their Oct. 4 graduation. City Personnel Director James Chiccino said the starting annual salary for a Quincy firefighter is $28,199.

'Whoa!' On Horse And Carriage Plans

said. "I'm just hoping to work out these problems in Boston."

Murtagh explained that normally, his company operates 11 carriages which utilize the same number of parking spaces in the Faneuil Hall area of Boston. However, Boston officials recently took away his parking privileges for safety reasons concerning the nearby Central Artery project, he said.

Since then, Murtagh said, his revenue has been cut by about 50 percent, which for the moment has squelched his plan to fund his Quincy carriage service with money from his Boston operation.

Another, related problem is that Murtagh recently had his name taken off a waiting list of a company that builds new carriages for such services.

Although he hopes to use a newer, more modern type of carriage for his introduction to the City of Presidents ("I want to make the best possible entrance"), he asked that his name be removed from the list because of his problems in Boston.

Still, things could now be looking up. Boston officials, after meeting with Murtagh, have given him several of his parking spaces back, and he said he could have the rest back by the end of this week. He added that he hopes to borrow a carriage from another local service to be used in Quincy for as much of the remainder of the year as possible.

Murtagh said he plans to start in Quincy with one carriage and expand his service in the city if the demand is there. That is, as soon as all current loose ends are tied up.

"I'm in constant contact with Jo-An Thomas (Quincy's tourism director, who has worked to bring the carriage service to the city)," said Murtagh. "We're trying desperately to get something done."

ASK YOUR LAWYER

by Kevin F. O'Donnell
ATTORNEY AT LAW

REASONABLE ASSUMPTIONS

One of the most important factors that juries use to determine negligence verdicts is the reasonable-man doctrine. This somewhat subjective test for negligence under common law asks juries to deliberate on how a reasonably prudent person would have conducted himself or herself in the situation that both plaintiff and dependent find themselves. By seeing events in light of the reasonable-man doctrine, jury members can weigh the evidence in terms of what actually occurred and what should have happened if all parties acted with proper regard for their own safety and the safety of others. In terms of personal injury, a negligent act occurs when a party is obliged to act prudently and carefully, but fails to do so.

Hint: "Proximate cause" means that someone may be responsible for precipitating an injury, but did not actually perpetrate it.

You may be able to recover damages for personal injuries by another person's negligence. These damages are meant to compensate you for your economic and non-economic losses. Such items include, but are not limited to, medical expenses, lost wages, physical and emotional suffering and the loss of spouse's affection. Call 773-2880 for a free consultation. Our office is located at Gridley Bryant Office Condominiums, 111 Willard Street.

Gallagher Fights For Debate Spot

Susan Gallagher, who is taking on John Kerry and William Weld for the U.S. Senate seat this year, doesn't want to watch the TV debates.

GALLAGHER

She wants to be in them.

The Wollaston real estate agent and former chairman of the Quincy Republican City Committee who is running as the Conservative Party candidate, says she is getting the royal run-around as far as the debates are concerned.

"They're trying to squeeze me out," she says.

Kerry and Weld don't want her participating, she says, because they know she is going to take votes away from them and with TV exposure she would take a lot more.

Gallagher says that Candy Altman, news director at WCVB-TV (Ch. 5) which is televising the next debate coming up Aug. 19 told her "it's a Kerry-Weld thing."

She says Walter Robinson, Boston newspaper editor and debate coordinator, told her she would be invited to participate if she got the required number (10,000) of certified signatures on her nomination papers.

"I got more than enough," she says. "I have filed 12,248 certified signatures with the Secretary of State's office so far."

She says she expects to have somewhere between 13,000 and 14,000 before the final filing deadline Aug. 27.

And, as insurance, she has over 100 names stashed away in a safety deposit box which she will file by Aug. 27.

She says she has a receipt from Secretary of State William Galvin's office showing that she filed the necessary number of certified names and notification that her names will appear on the ballot in the Nov. 5 election.

"I'm a legitimate candidate," Gallagher says, "but they don't want me in the picture.

"Now that I have the required names, they've moved the goal posts. I was on the one-yard line going for a touchdown an they moved the goal posts back."

She says Robinson moved them by requesting needed "additional criteria" for her to be included in the debates. Including: a paid staff rather than a volunteer staff, a campaign office at a separate location from her business office and a greater amount of money to conduct her campaign.

"What difference does it make whether I have a paid or unpaid staff," she asks. "Volunteers are genuinely interested in the candidate--more so than those being paid to work for a candidate. My volunteers don't think this is just a Kerry-Weld thing."

Gallagher, a mother of four and now a Milton resident, says she can win it because Kerry and Weld are too much alike and have lost touch with the middle class.

She is against abortions, affirmative action and special rights for any group--including gays, minorities, women and illegal immigrants--and sending American troops overseas under the United Nations flag.

She's for the Constitution, pro-life, family values, protection for the flag, and the right to bear arms.

"About guns," she says, "just remember that the first thing Hitler did was to disarm the people. And you know what happened after that."

Although she says she believes she can win in November, she doesn't have much company on that among political observers.

But they do think that in a close Kerry-Weld match, she could take enough votes away from one or the other to be the spoiler.

Meanwhile, she's still battling to make at least one or two of the remaining debates.

The trio are Senator Michael Morrissey, Alicia Coletti, chairman of the Democratic City Committee, and Janet Coughlin, an aide in Morrissey's office.

They are among the six delegates from the 10th Congressional District.

A REPORT HERE last week that former Mayor Frank McCauley is seriously thinking of running for the City Council next year included the fact that at least two mayors returned to the City Council after leaving the mayor's office.

The two mentioned were Thomas Burgin and Joseph LaRaia.

Well, it seems, at least three other mayors also returned to the City Council.

Russell Sears, who served a one-year term as mayor in 1898, went back as a councillor at-large in the first Plan A council in 1917.

Charles Bryant, mayor in 1902-04, returned as a councillor at-large from 1908 to 1912.

Joseph Whiton, mayor 1917-1918, returned as Ward 1 councillor in 1932-33.

IT'S FUNDRAISING TIME: Mayor James Sheets had a 6 to 8 p.m. clambake scheduled at the Adams Inn, North Quincy, Wednesday with tickets $100 per.

Ward 4 Councillor Mike D'Amico had a 7 p.m. "summer reception" at the Common Market, Willard St. with tickets $20 per person.

And a barbecue money-raiser for Tim Cahill, candidate for Norfolk County treasurer, will be held tonight (Thursday) 5 to 10 p.m. at the Adams Inn pool deck. This one is being hosted by city council colleagues, Bruce Ayers, Pat McDermott and Steve Durkin. Tickets are $15 per person and $25 per couple.

MILESTONE: Sharron Beals, the energetic executive director of the Beechwood Community Life Center, has a new title: Granny.

BEALS

Her daughter, Stacy, and son-in-law Gus Johnson, presented Sharron and her husband, Bob, with their first grandchild, Cole, in Nashville, Tenn., July 29.

Sharron has been in Nashville getting acquainted with the new arrival.

Wonder if she will drop by the Grand Ole Opry while there for a few new ideas for the Beechwood Center?

Congratulations, Granny.

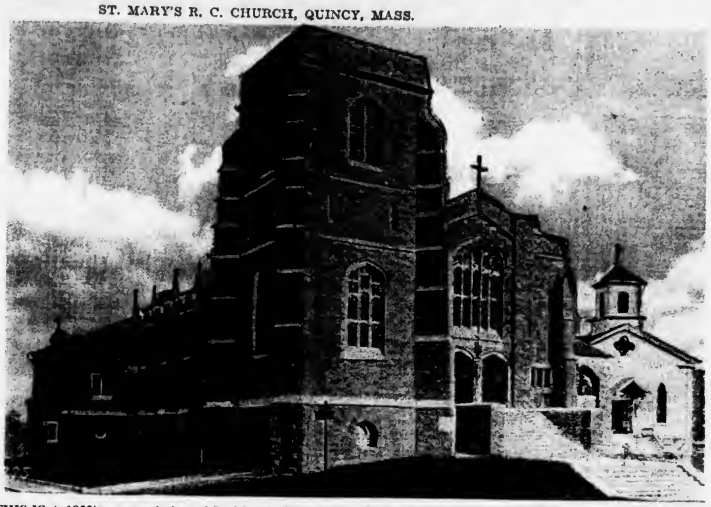
AND, congratulations to another Beechwood Life Center grandparent: Atty. William Macdonald, vice president of the Beechwood Board of Directors and his wife, Ann, are grandparents for the fifth time.

Daughter Nancy and son-in-law Steven McDonald presented them with their third grandson, Robert Purcell McDonald, July 29 at Brigham & Women's Hospital in Boston.

Nancy didn't have to change her name very much when she married Steven. She went from Nancy Macdonald to Nancy McDonald.

Scenes From Yesterday

ST. MARY'S R. C. CHURCH, QUINCY, MASS.



THIS IS A 1920's postcard view of St. Mary's Church in West Quincy published by Drohan News on Copeland Street. On the right, on what is now a parking lot, can be seen the original wooden church built in 1841. It had a tall pointed steeple when it was first built. St. Mary's was the first Catholic church south of Boston and the parish included most of the South Shore. People came from as far away as Plymouth. The granite church shown here was originally built only to the white line around the base. The upper level was added several years later.

WQ Residents Got 'Raw Deal' From MDC Commissioner

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The article in the Boston Herald which recently reported that MDC Commissioner Balfour bought himself a $30,000 Tahoe sports utility vehicle as well as a fleet of other vehicles should have been headlined:

"MDC Commissioner Balfour gets a great deal on his new $30,000 Tahoe sport utility vehicle while residents of West Quincy get a raw deal."

This information causes such a feeling of betrayal and resentment to those of us in West Quincy who have been trying for months to work with the MDC to renovate recreational facilities at the Shea Rink. In recent correspondence, Commissioner Balfour indicated that "it was not much of a park anyway and was not a priority"--how insulting to us. The sales tax paid on that car could have been used to transform this mess into a fabulous neighborhood park. This "low priority, not much of a park" is all our children have within walking distance.

Commissioner Balfour also indicated that the MDC was much too busy with miles of beaches, etc., to deal with this area. Guess what, Commissioner Balfour--we began our efforts long before any beaches were open! Mayor Jim Sheets has proposed that the City of Quincy be allowed to maintain this area. We have a plethora of talent willing to contribute (clean, paint, plant flowers, help install equipment, raise money for basketball hoops or street hockey nets).

We are blessed with bright, talented children, many of whom are old enough to understand what is going on. What kind of message are we sending them? Are we asking for too much? We want a play area that our children can walk to, where they will be safe and not more than a few doors away from a neighbor in case of need?

It is obvious our pleas are falling on deaf ears. Rep. Mike Bellotti has performed yeoman tasks working on this project. It's a shame his efforts have also been overlooked.

Teague's Rules Violation Was Wrong

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Rep. Edward Teague, Republican candidate for Congress in the Tenth Congressional District, has violated the rules of the House of Representatives by having other Republican legislators vote for him while he campaigns for Congress, which is wrong.

He owes an apology to the voters of Massachusetts who are paying him $68,000 a year to have him present when voting. They are not paying him this salary to campaign for Congress. Ed Teague is wrong to think the voters of the Tenth Congressional District are naive.

Teague has been criticized by both parties for violating the public trust. The House should initiate an investigation and review his campaign schedule over the past six months and compare it with his voting record to determine how long this fraud has been perpetrated.

I can recall another prominent Republican who, while running for office, felt that our rules, laws and Constitution did not apply to him. His name was Richard Milhous Nixon. If Ed Teague thinks nothing of breaking these rules, where will he draw the line? Can we gamble our future on someone who disregards the rules and makes such poor judgements?

I, for one, believe that the voters of the Tenth Congressional District are intelligent enough to know the real Ed Teague. They will not elect a Congressman who may repeat the same mistakes of politicians who who have overly ambitious in their quest for power in the past.

St. Ann's School To Remain Open

Aug. 15 - 21
1969
27 Years Ago

By PAUL HAROLD

Officials at St. Ann's School notified the School Committee that 350 students have registered for September.

When the Sisters of Charity of Nazareth, who taught at the school for 12 years, announced in December they were leaving their teaching duties, the fate of the school was uncertain.

The School Committee was concerned that the closing would have forced the school's students to attend public schools.

STATE BOARD PUTS COLLEGE ON HOLD

The state Board of Regional Community Colleges withheld its approval of the proposed $15 million South Shore Community College, pending more information on the site and foundation work costs.

The college site of 147 acres overlapped the Quincy-Braintree line, off Quincy Ave.

Mayor James McIntyre expressed concern that the delay could put off the project for a year since the legislature was near adjournment and the needed funding would have to be voted this session.

The community college was planned to serve 4,000 to 7,000 students.

NORTH QUINCY AUTO DEALERSHIP OPPOSED

Strong opposition was hear by the License Board to the proposed Morrissey Blvd. Volkswagen franchise on Quincy Shore Dr.

Councillor Vincent Smyth vigorously opposed the 600 car dealership, favoring instead homes and apartments in the area.

Abutters noted that the filled land resulted in the flooding of neighboring properties, while William O'Connell, executive secretary of the Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce, opposed the plan saying it was inappropriate for the area.

QUINCY-ISMS

Building Inspector Allan MacDonald issued 122 building permits this month for construction totalling $2.9 million. The largest project was that of the Hazeltine Corporation for its $1.6 million laboratories and offices off Quincy Ave... Some 500 youngsters were the guests of Rep. Post Island Beach Assn. Celebrates Centennial

The Post Island Beach Association recently celebrated the 100th anniversary of its founding.

A centennial ceremony was held with the association president, Michael Healy, presiding. He welcomed residents, guests of past summers and City Councillor Paul Harold. Healy then referred to Donald Hunter, who briefly noted the change of the area from a summer colony to all year round residents.

The association had recognized the 75th anniversary of the "Island" in 1971 and Hunter pointed out that only four families remained from that date.

Harold spoke on the long history of the area, saying it had a history going back to when Quincy was Braintree.

PIBA Vice President Richard Stuver then hoisted a new flag to which was attached a burgee with the inscription: "PI-100." The children of the island then led the crowd in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Games for children on the waterfront lawn and a Tex-Mex barbecue were also held for over 100 residents and guests. Kenneth Fernald, William O'Connell and many more assistants were the chefs and waiters.

Medically Speaking

EXERCISE AND HIGH. HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

Exercise and diet changes have long been part of the standard treatment for people with moderately high blood pressure. Patients with more severe hypertension, meanwhile, have often been treated with medications and advised to avoid exercise, for fear of straining the heart. New research may change that formula. In one study of men with untreated blood pressure of 180 over 110 or higher, medication was used to lower blood pressure to more normal levels (140 over 90). Participants then followed a carefully monitored exercise program using exercise bicycles three times a week. The result was a lowering of the diastolic pressure (the lower of the two numbers) by an average of five points below what the medication achieved. After several months in this program, some men were even able to reduce their medications by as much as 40 percent.

P.S. Anyone under a doctor's care for a health condition should check with his or her doctor before beginning an exercise program.

Making sure your body has the proper exercise can help prevent a whole host of health problems. At COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and I specialize in treating heart disease. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. Hours by appointment. We're at 700 Congress St., in Quincy. Call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli with questions at 472-2550. Marion Eisenberg Director Of QCAP Southwest Center

MARION EISENBERG

Quincy Community Action Programs Inc. (QCAP) has named Marion Eisenberg as its new Southwest Community Center director which serves Quincy and the South Shore area.

Eisenberg will be responsible for a network of services to help combat complex problems. She will supervise the emergency food center, provide adult basic education for low-income adults and support services for adults enrolled in job training programs, Housing Search and social services for homeless elderly persons, benefits advocate for disabled adults and information and referral services for anyone in crisis.

"We are excited to have Marion join our staff. She comes to Quincy Community Action Programs Inc. with over 15 years of experience in the fields of adult education, child welfare and refugee services and community organizing," said Rosemary Wahlberg, executive director.

Eisenberg recently worked as an organizational consultant and director of international services for Lutheran Social Services. She is currently an instructor/adjunct professor at Boston University School of Social Work and teaches a graduate level course entitled "Communities and Organizations: Analysis and Intervention."

Eisenberg began by teaching English as a Second Language in Manhattan, spent four years in London working in settlement houses helping to establish a battered women center, and lived a year in Romania working to establish a community-based system of care for orphaned and abandoned children.

Concourse Committee Meeting Today

The Quincy Citizens Advisory Committee (CAC) for the Quincy Center Concourse will meet today (Thursday) at 3:15 p.m. in the second floor Conference Room of City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The agenda will include a public forum at which time any interested Quincy resident may make a presentation or submit written comments and recommendations relative to the proposed roadway connector.

The $5.9 million roadway, to be built with state and federal funds, will link Burgin Parkway with Hancock St. in the downtown business district.

CAC Chairman David Ezickson said the meeting will include a review and discussion of highway and environmental reports relative to the concourse that were recently submitted to city officials.

Ezickson added that the work of the CAC, which met monthly for the past two years, is on schedule but that much remains to be done before groundbreaking for the project, according to a work plan, commences in Sept. 1997.

He reiterated that public input is essential before the design phase of the roadway is completed.

Heather Rendle In Honor Society

Heather Rendle of Quincy is a member of the Bucknell University chapter of Kappa Delta Phi, an international honor society for education majors.

"My family and I have been preparing for the opening of Hancock Park for 60 years."
-Richard Welch

When Hancock Park in Quincy opens in October, it will be the newest Healthcare and Assisted Living Center on the South Shore. But this isn't a story about bricks and mortar. It's the story of one women's vision of what community healthcare could be. And should be.

My grandmother, Florence St. John, RN

It all began in 1935, right here in Quincy in my grandmother Florence St. John's parlor. As a Home Health Nurse, she saw first hand the unique difficulties many of her elderly patients faced. Often what they needed most was emotional support and care in a warm, unthreatening environment. In those days, there were few facilities prepared to provide that. But my grandmother was.

So she began caring for seniors in her home. From these modest beginnings, the Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group has become the leading provider of healthcare services on the South Shore.

Which brings us to the point of this story.

The opening of Hancock Park will be both a homecoming for us and a living memorial to the ideals that were so important to my grandmother. We're obviously very proud of her. And we're absolutely committed to making sure everything about Hancock Park reflects that pride.

Committee To Meet After Labor Day

Ward 2 War Memorial Planned For P-W Site

By MICHAEL WHALEN

City officials are planning to have a monument in memory of all Ward 2 residents who died fighting for their country built on the grounds of the Point-Webster Elementary School.

Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymondi said Tuesday he plans to form a committee after Labor Day with Quincy Housing Authority Executive Director John "Jake" Comer--who is also past national commander of the American Legion--School Committee Vice Chairman Ronald Mariano, and other area residents to discuss the matter.

Raymondi said he hopes to see the monument built by the end of the year.

"We want to dedicate a portion on the Lancaster Street side of the school to the men and women of Ward 2 who went to war and never came home," he said. "We're talking about all wars."

Raymondi added that the memorial would consist of a flagpole and a stone or granite monument bearing the names of the Ward 2 men and women who died during wartime. He said he does not yet have the names or number of those people but hopes to obtain that information soon through the Quincy Veterans Department.

Raymondi noted that while the precise type of monument will be determined by the committee, the project will not be as elaborate as the recently-dedicated Korean War Veterans Memorial in front of Veterans Memorial Stadium in Wollaston.

"It's not going to be of that magnitude," he said. "We don't have as much space. But I envision an appropriate memorial."

He also said it will fit in well with other work that is being done to improve safety conditions and to beautify the Point-Webster area which is being funded by a bond package passed by the City Council in June.

"It will be very much complementary to what's happening there," said Raymondi. "It's an appropriate setting. And being from the area, most of those individuals (being honored) probably would have gone to the school.

"It's important for young people to remember those who went to fight for their country and never came home, all of those brave men and women. And it's also a suitable setting because all of the values those people fought to protect--freedom, education, family, all those kinds of values--are happening on this particular site."

Raymondi said he plans to discuss the proposed project with Mayor James Sheets and School Supt. Eugene Creedon. It would also have to be approved by the School Committee.

Raymondi added that funding for the monument would come from a fund-raising effort led by the soon-to-be-formed memorial committee. He could not estimate a cost, he said, because the committee will first have to determine what kind of monument will be built.

The flagpole, however, could be another matter, according to Raymondi. Since two flagpoles were originally part of the original master plan for improvements to the school site--much of which has been put on hold because of plans to convert Point-Webster to a middle school when a new elementary school is built in Quincy Point--Raymondi said he is hopeful the city will pay for the flagpole installed with the monument.

Raymondi estimated the cost of the flagpole to be around $1,500.

Jeffrey Austria Supporting TWA Flight 800 Search

Navy Seaman Jeffrey B. Austria, son of Ruben and Julieta Austria of 34 Avon Way, Quincy, is continuing his support in the search and recovery of TWA Flight 800 while assigned onboard USS Grasp.

Homeported in Little Creek, Va., the salvage and rescue ship was tasked to assist the National Transportation Safety Board's efforts following the plane crash.

Using the data collected by its remotely operated vehicle (ROV), USS Grasp has been instrumental in the location and recovery of wreckage and victims from the fatal July 17 crash off Long Island, N.Y.

Austria, a 1992 graduate of Boston College High School, joined the Navy in June 1994.

Coalition Says Federal Grant Extended For Another Year

New Project Director, Office For Impact Quincy

As Impact Quincy prepares to celebrate the beginning of its sixth year of community building with its annual meeting in October, the IQ Leadership Team announces several changes for the coming year.

IQ recently received verbal onfirmation that its federal grant has been extended for another year, allowing it to operate with a slightly reduced budget for the coming year. IQ also continues to receive funding from the Massachusetts Control Project, which funds its efforts at tobacco prevention and education.

"We are grateful that we have used our resources wisely during the last five years," said IQ Chairperson Jon Simons. "This has allowed us the opportunity to continue to fund our many important efforts throughout the city for another year."

Impact Quincy has appointed a new project director who will succeed Mitch Finnegan. Finnegan, who has served as project director at Impact Quincy for almost four years, will leave that position in the coming weeks to accept a teaching position in Boston.

"We are very grateful to the service that Mitch has given to the Coalition," Simons said. "While we are saddened by our loss of his dedication and efforts, we are very happy for Mitch, who has often spoken of his desire to return to teaching in public schools."

Finnegan has accepted a teaching position at the Renaissance Junior Academy, a public charter school in downtown Boston that serves inner-city children.

Replacing Finnegan will be Alejandro Rivera, who served as program director of the Youth Prevention Program at Bay State Community Services for several years.

"Alejandro brings many years of experience as a community organizer and prevention specialist to this position," Simons said. "He has also been involved in the work of the Coalition as an active member of several of our alliances and task forces, and we look forward to the talents that he will bring to us on a full-time basis."

The most visible change for the coming year is the moving of the Impact Quincy office at 15 Cottage Ave. On Aug. 1, IQ moved for its second floor offices to the fifth floor in the Bay State Community Services building.

"In light of our need to consolidate some of our activities, this move allows us to consolidate space and share some expenses with the lead agency," Simons said. The new space includes office space for the Coalition staff and two meeting rooms for Coalition and community groups.

Impact Quincy's challenge, from its inception, has been to develop a community wide coalition that was self-supporting, and primarily reliant upon the efforts of community members, rather than upon paid staff, Simons said.

"Each of these changes present us with their own challenges for the future, and with both the opportunity and the obligation for each of us to step forward to assume a little more responsibility for the growth of our Coalition. The Leadership Team is confident that with everybody's continued commitment, we can continue to create a healthier and more caring community."

Impact Quincy will celebrate some of the accomplishments of its first five years, as well as the efforts of other community members, at their annual meeting in October. At that meeting, IQ will once again present the annual Community Hero Awards to individuals and organizations that have made contributions to the community.

At that meeting, the Coalition will also officially welcome Rivera to his new position, and recognize Finnegan for his efforts. Details of the annual meeting will be finalized in the coming weeks.

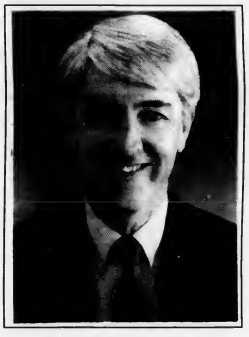
Ed Teague's Eye on Congress Tax Reform



Congressional Candidate Ed Teague

HYANNIS Ma -- For the first time in recent memory the Cape and South Shore is in the midst of a race for an open U.S. Congressional seat. And it's no surprise to anyone in the 10th Congressional District that taxes have emerged as a major issue. It's also not a surprise that Ed Teague is the only candidate who has introduced a comprehensive plan for cutting taxes.

Ed Teague's Ten Point Plan for the Cape and South Shore details exactly what he'll do to cut taxes for working families. "Americans are working harder, but they're taking home less money," Teague said. "By cutting taxes, every working person will see their wages increase because they'll be keeping more of their paychecks."

When it comes to cutting taxes, Teague is no Johnny-come-lately. For years he has pushed for tax cuts in the State House of Representative. Now he's putting his experience to work as a Congressional Candidate in the debate on federal taxes. "It's outrageous that today's tax burden amounts to a third of the typical family's income," says Teague.

Among Ed Teague's tax cutting initiatives is a $500 per child tax credit and a $500 credit for families who care for an elderly parent or grandparent. He would also increase the maximum IRA contribution to $2500 and eliminate the tax penalty on married couples. At the same time, Teague has pledged to fight for a Super Majority Law which requires a two-thirds majority vote for Congress to increase taxes. "We simply must make it harder for big spending politicians to take our money," states Teague.

One of Teague's most interesting proposals deals with the approximately 1% of Americans who actually feel they are undertaxed. Teague would change the tax forms to allow these taxpayers to contribute more of their own money instead of advocating higher taxes for the rest of us. He'd also allow them to direct their additional contributions to the government program of their choice.

Ed Teague is proud to be the only candidate in the race who has said he would cut taxes, and detailed how he would do it. "Cutting taxes and giving money back to those who earned it is the first step toward restarting our economy," Teague said. "And improving the economy is the first step toward getting all of America back to work."

You can obtain a free copy of Ed Teague's Ten Point Plan by calling Teague for Congress at 508-790-1200.

First Time Homebuyer's Workshops To Begin Sept. 17

Quincy Community Action Programs Inc. (QCAP), an approved first time homebuyer counseling agency, will hold a series of First Time Homebuyer's Workshops beginning Tuesday, Sept. 17.

The series will continue Sept. 19, 24 and 26. All workshops will be held from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at Randolph Town Hall, 41 South Main St., Randolph.

Attendance at all four workshops is mandatory in order to qualify for the different mortgage options through the Mass Housing Finance Agency and other financing options.

The agenda will be comprehensive and individualized and will focus on different aspects of the homebuying process, including how to locate a property within one's budget, how to make an offer and the types of financing best suited to one's needs.

Advance registration is required and space is limited. Fee of $35 for all four sessions covers the cost of the workshop text and all copied materials.

The workshop series is sponsored by the City of Quincy and EOCD. For more information, call Debbie Kidd, housing specialist, at 479-8181, ext. 115.

Improving Property Value

If you are interested in gaining a significant return on your home improvement costs, plan to add a bathroom or remodel your kitchen. But if you're like most people today, you may be more interested in a new home office an entertainment center, or an in-ground pool with all the accouterments of a luxury pool yard.

How can you know whether the money you spend on your home will actually improve the property value? And do you really care? Those are the two questions you should be able to answer before choosing which improvement projects to plan, according to the South Shore Association of Realtors.

Research shows some home improvements are better than others in bringing a return on an investment, and that some luxury additions actually can be a drag on the home's ability to sell, according to Mary Dawson, president of the South Shore Association of Realtors. An in-ground pool for example, may be viewed by some as an asset, but families with infant children may see it as a safety problem, and seniors might shy away from the maintenance. This $12,000-$15,000 investment will only add about $4,000 to the value of your home, but if you are planning to stay awhile and enjoy backyard vacationing, this is still a good project for you.

On the other hand, if you are planning to move soon and are looking for home improvement projects to smooth the sale, you might better consider a minor kitchen remodeling (approximately $9,500), which offers a projected return of 110 percent.

A second story addition, major kitchen remodeling, and bathroom remodeling topped the list of projects that most improve property value, according to a recent New York marketing firm report. A home office might cost $9,000, but is projected to return only 56 percent of that cost, while a bathroom might cost $14,000 and should yield about 84 percent on investment. Additionally, a family room addition is projected to yield 91 percent of its approximate $38,500 cost, while new siding may cost $6,300 and will only return about 50 percent of that cost at time of sale.

Some home improvements are important to the long term value of your home, whether or not you realize a hefty return on the investment. Replacement windows are projected to give a 73 percent return, but windows, siding and roofing are mandatory to the overall condition of your property.

Making your home more marketable and increasing its curb-appeal can be accomplished without a large investment. Consider replacing worn carpeting and floor coverings, replace dated fixtures, and apply a clean coat of paint (in neutral colors) to make your dollars stretch farther, or to give yourself the feel of a new home without the investment.

If you are interested in more ambitious projects, however, like structural additions, you may want to consider the cost of design and construction and then compare the return you might realize against the cost of buying a home that already has the amenities you desire.

"These days the trend is 'nesting'," said Dawson.

Families are inclined to pursue improvements that complement leisure activities.

"This is a good reason to invest in your home, but do it because you will enjoy the results. If you are happy in your current home and have no desire to move, you can realize a return on your investment in the form of greater comfort and pleasure," said Dawson.

If your are planning improvements designed to keep your home both comfortable and competitive, the South Shore Association of Realtors suggests you start with those projects which will bring the best return: kitchens, bathrooms, bedrooms and family rooms; or those jobs that must be done to maintain the integrity of the building: windows, siding and roofing. But if significant rebuilding is the only way to get what you want, consider the cost of your home improvement projects and the potential return on investment, then ask a Realtor to show you some homes for sale with the desired amenities. You may decide it makes more 'cents' to move.

Quick Hints For Slow Drains And Clogs

(NAPS)—If your motto has always been, "Down the drain with slow drains and clogs," you're probably not alone. In most drains, over time, a coating of grease, soap scum and other materials builds up along the walls of the drainpipes. Eventually, this build-up restricts the flow of water and causes drains to run slowly and clog more easily.

Unfortunately, while regular drain openers remove clogs, they flow past this build-up. Happily, a new treatment for slow drains and tough build-up has been developed. Called Drano® Professional Strength Build-Up Remover, it uses natural enzymes that won't harm pipes, garbage disposals and septic systems. The enzymes break down grease and other residues that can cause drain slowness and clogging.

Here are some helpful hints on how to use this build-up remover (which works everywhere, including top and sides of your drain, not just at the bottom of the pipes):

If you have a slow running drain...

- Just run warm water (not hot) through the drain for one minute.
- Turn off the water and pour 1/3 of a bottle directly into the drain.
- Briefly run the water again to activate and distribute formula along pipe walls.
- Allow the enzyme to work overnight or while at work before running water in drain again.
- Repeat, using one capful every two to four weeks to help prevent clogs.

Those who have used it say this procedure can help keep small plumbing problems from turning into big and costly repair jobs. More aptly put, it's an inexpensive way for homeowners to say "goodbye" to slow drains.

Dolbere Fires Complete Game At Cattaneo Tourney

Pat Dolbere tossed a complete game, striking out 12 to lead Quincy's Babe Ruth team to a 4-1 victory over Cedar Grove in the fourth annual Ray Cattaneo Tournament.

Billy Walker, Sean Manning and Tommy Daly had the big hits to lead Quincy offensively Sunday at Adams Field.

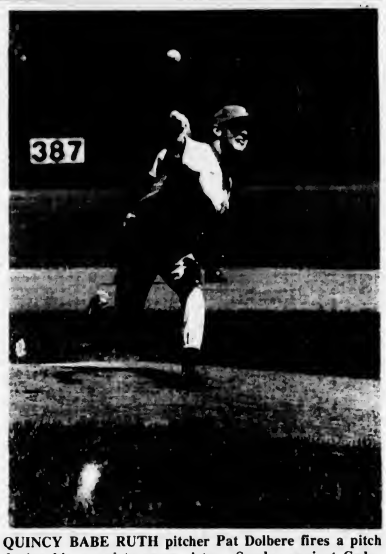
Quincy was scheduled to take on South Boston Tuesday at 8 p.m., preceded by Hingham against Sanborn (N.H.) at 5:30 p.m. Both games were rained out and rescheduled for the same time yesterday (Wednesday).

Games were also scheduled for today (Thursday) and Friday at 5:30 and 8 p.m., Saturday's game will be at either 5:30 or 8 p.m. All games are at Adams Field.

In other action, Randolph defeated Milton and Weymouth knocked off Bridgewater Monday. With the losses, Milton and Bridgewater were eliminated from the tournament.

On Sunday, South Boston downed Milton, Hingham topped Bridgewater, Randolph eliminated Cedar Grove and Weymouth knocked Pembroke out of the tournament.

On the tournament's opening day, Saturday, South Boston defeated Randolph, Hingham triumphed over Pembroke and Sanborn (N.H.) downed Weymouth.



QUINCY BABE RUTH pitcher Pat Dolbere fires a pitch during his complete game victory Sunday against Cedar Grove. Dolbere dominated, striking out 12 as Quincy won, 4-1, in the opening round of the fourth annual Ray Cattaneo Tournament at Adams Field. Quincy's game against South Boston Tuesday night was rained out and rescheduled for yesterday (Wednesday) at 8 p.m.

Orr Guest Of Honor At Fundraiser

Former Boston Bruins star Bobby Orr will be the guest of honor at the Philip Doyle Fund's raffle drawing and reception Aug. 20 at the Summer House at Marina Bay.

The event, which will be hosted by Quincy residents Wally Glendye, Mike Linnane and Martin Nicholson, is being held to raise funds to assist local children like eight-year-old Philip Doyle of Weymouth who are afflicted with leukemia and their families.

BOBBY ORR

Street Running Club to give children like Philip the financial assistance required to beat leukemia.

Doyle, who has been undergoing treatment for acute lymphoblastic lymphoma since 1992, will join Orr in drawing the grand prize, first class airfare for two to Hawaii, at approximately 9:45 p.m.

Prior to the drawing, a silent auction with numerous prizes and gift certificates available will be held from 7:30 to 9:45 p.m. Sports celebrities will be at the event signing autographs and greeting those in attendance.

WHDH-TV's Liz Claman will serve as the event's emcee. Music will be provided for dancing and entertainment.

A $5 admission will be collected at the door the night of the event. A limited number of raffle tickets will be available the night of the drawing, so those interested are advised to purchase tickets in advance for admission to the drawing with Orr.

For information on purchasing tickets, call any of the local members of the fundraising committee: Quincy City Councillor Paul Harold (773-6785), Wally Glendye (471-5847), Mike Linnane (770-0166), Martin Nicholson (471-0055) or Beth Doyle (331-8753).

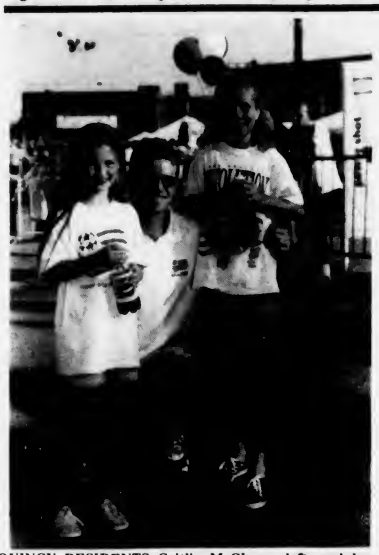
Quincy High Cheerleaders Honored



QUINCY RESIDENTS Caitlin McCleary, left, and her sister, Christie, meet New England Revolution goalkeeper Aidan Heaney at the recent "Meet the Revolution '96" festivities at Foxboro Stadium. The event began with a Pepsi Soccer Celebration, which included an obstacle course, table top soccer and a dunking booth. The fans also toured the locker rooms, the press box and took part in an autograph session with the Revolution players.

The Quincy High School varsity cheerleaders recently completed a National Cheerleaders Association summer camp where they were selected as the top team of the camp.

The camp, the country's largest privately held cheerleading organization, was held at Weymouth High School and attracted cheerleaders from surrounding towns.

The NCA selects a winner at each of the 1,000 camps it administers around the world each summer. Teams compete on the last day of camp with a cheer they have learned during the week. Technical skills, as well as the ability to lead the crowd, are judged to select the winner.

As a top team award winner, Quincy High varsity cheerleaders are eligible to travel nationally with NCA and be featured in the Hula Bowl All-Star Football Classic in Honolulu, Hawaii.

The varsity squad also received a trophy for the Chant Champion award. In addition, the squad earned the NCA Sprint Stick, three superior blue ribbons and two outstanding red ribbons for various events.

Varsity members Christine Caporale, Jamie McCarthy, Elizabeth Dunlea, Nicole Trabucco, Kristen Perry and captain Lisa Robertson were selected to try out for All-American cheerleaders. Out of 12 nominated, Robertson was selected as one of the four winners.

Also attending the camp was the newly formed junior varsity squad. During the week, the girls took home the trophy for most improved squad, a superior award for group cheer, an outstanding award for group cheer and two red excellent awards for group chant.

Registration For Swimming Camp At Lincoln-Hancock Pool

The Quincy Recreation Department is accepting registration for its Competitive Swimming Camp to be held Aug. 19-23 at the Lincoln-Hancock Community School Pool from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Registration will be taken on a first come, first serve basis at the Recreation Department, 100 Southern Artery, Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The camp is open to boys and girls age 10 through high school. Cost is $32.

The camp director will be Yvonne Bonness, director of Quincy Middle School Intramural Program, assistant swimming coach at North Quincy High School and member of M.I.A.A. Swim Committee.

The camp is a competitive program with an emphasis on refinement of competitive skills, with an exposure to a number of different types of training. All applicants are expected to be able to swim and acclimate themselves to the rigors of training. Some of the areas that will be covered are: strokes (freestyle, backstroke, butterfly and breaststroke), starts and turns.

For more information, call 376-1386.

St. John's Golf Outing Attracts Over 100 Parishioners, Friends

Over 100 parishioners and friends participated in the recent St. John's Golf Outing at Presidents Golf Course.

Sheila McIntyre, Helen Duffy, Joan Matthews and Patricia Marella captured the women's division and Joe Manning, Bill Barbazon, Jim McGettrick and Sean McGettrick took first place honors in the men's division.

The first place mixed team was comprised of Fr. Bill McCarthy, Jim Hubbard, Bill Manning and Yolanda Romanelli.

Vin Flaherty took closest to the pin on the 18th hole and Les Duggan won closest to the line on the 12th.

A steak bake and awards banquet followed the outing at St. John's Church Hall.

In-line Skating Exhibition Aug. 21 At Ruth Gordon Amphitheater

On Wednesday, Aug. 21 at 2 p.m., Quincy Community Television's "Fit Time" exercise and fitness show will present a live in-line skating exhibition at the Ruth Gordon Amphitheater.

The exhibition, which will feature professional in-line skaters, is open to the public.

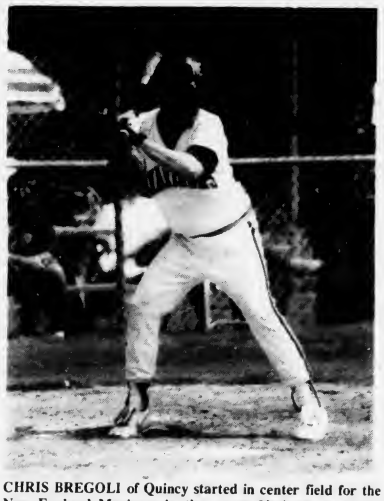
"Fit Time" is hosted by Cindy Long, aerobics instructor at the South Shore YMCA. Following the skating exhibition, Long will host a show featuring exercise for children. The programs will be taped for broadcast on channel 3, local programming for Continental Cablevision and will feature the participation of the Quincy Recreation Department's Summer Television Workshop Camp students.

Recreation Department Pool Show Friday

The Quincy Recreation Department will present its 21st annual pool show at the Lincoln-Hancock Community School Pool Friday at 1 p.m.

Barry Welch, director of recreation, announces that this year's show will be a salute to American pride. The show will feature participants from the summer long instructional program supervised by the Recreation Department. Over 700 persons, from beginner to advanced, are enrolled in this year's program. The show marks the completion of the summer program.

The show is free and is open to the public. The show is under the direction of Water Safety Staff, Maryann Ashworth, Marianne Blaikie, Tim Burke, Laura Cadogan, Marybeth Feeney, Erin Flaherty, Dan Francis, Tom Gildea, Dan Hughes, Bob Johnston, Katie Keating, Bill Lebo, Jennifer Lewis, Jim Melchin, Janine Miller, Matthew Radzevich and Katie Sullivan.



CHRIS BREGOLI of Quincy started in center field for the New England Mariners in the recent National AAU 15-under Baseball Tournament in Charlotte, N.C. Bregoli, who hit .286 with five RBI in the tournament, also pitched for the Mariners, who finished 16th in the country.

Quincy Stars Second In Junior Olympic Playoffs

The Quincy Stars, a 14 and under girls fast pitch softball team, recently finished second in the Junior Olympic Association playoffs in Braintree.

The Stars lost their opening game to Weymouth in the double elimination series. They rebounded to defeat Milton, 14-12, and Weymouth, 15-10, before losing the championship game, 20-4, to Braintree.

In the Milton game, the Stars rallied for seven runs in the fourth to break a 6-6 tie. After Kelly Doherty singled and Kristine Plourde doubled her home, Heather Lynch and Elise Bowes walked to load the bases. Singles by Maria Coughlin and Jen Jacques put the Stars ahead, 9-6, and loaded the bases.

Amy Satkevich then belted a towering home run over the left field fence to give the Stars a 13-6 advantage. Satkevich led Quincy's offense in the playoffs with seven base hits.

Sheila Foley pitched the complete game victory for the Stars, keeping the Milton batters off balance with good control, allowing only two walks.

The Quincy defense provided strong support. Kathlyn Gates was consistently solid behind the plate. Meredith Hutchinson threw out six batters at first base from her third base position. Lynch was outstanding at first base with 10 put-outs.

In the victory over Weymouth, Foley pitched another complete game for the win, allowing seven base hits and six walks. Quincy erupted for eight runs in the third inning to put the game out of reach. Kathryn MacRitchie and Jacques opened with singles.

With one out, Gates, who had three hits in the game, singled. Satkevich, Hutchinson and Jessica Lorman followed with singles. Hutchinson's hit was one of six that she had in the series. Foley tripled and Plourde singled, subsequently scoring the final run of the inning.

The defensive gem of the game came in the third inning when Lorman threw out a Weymouth runner at first base from her center field position to prevent a would-be single.

The fine performance by the Stars in the playoffs capped a successful season for coach Greg Burke's first-year team.

Chris Bregoli Shines For N.E. Mariner AAU Team

Chris Bregoli of North Quincy High School had a fine showing for the New England Mariners in the recent National AAU 15-under Baseball Tournament in Charlotte, N.C.

Bregoli started in center field for the Mariners, who finished 16th in the country. He batted .286 with five RBI.

He also saw some action on the mound. Against the West Sound Baseball Club of Washington, Bregoli came on in relief, giving up two runs in three and a third innings while striking out five to preserve a 6-2 Mariner victory.

North Quincy Girls' Soccer Names Tri-Captains

The North Quincy High School girls' soccer team has elected tri-captains for the 1996 season.

Seniors Hillary O'Donoghue, Lisa Bragg and Laura Shea will lead the Red Raiders, who hope to improve upon their 8-9-1 mark of last year.

O'Donoghue will play a midfield spot. A starter as a junior, she scored several big goals for North last year.

Bragg, who will mind the net, started most of last season with her best game coming against Old Colony League champion Bridgewater-Raynham.

Shea, who started several games last year, is slated to play a midfield spot this fall.

Jim Nelson Tufts Grad

John W. Nelson, 221 Whitwell St., Quincy, recently graduated from Tufts University in Medford.

Nelson, who majored in mechanical engineering, received a master of science degree.

Arts In Parks Concert Tonight At WM Playground

The Quincy Park and Recreation Board's weekly summer concert presentation of Arts in the Parks postponed Tuesday night due to inclement weather, will be held tonight (Thursday) at the Wendall Moses Playground in Squantum.

The show will begin at 6 p.m. and last until approximately 8:30 p.m.

The show features the summer sounds of Barbeque Brass, the Broadway show tunes of the Riverside Theatre Works, and the big band music of the Alumni Band of Quincy. Free ice cream and lemonade will be provided by the Quincy Police Athletic League. There will also be a face-painter on hand to entertain young children. The entire evening is free of charge.

The show will be the last of this summer's six Arts in the Parks concert series. It is recommended that viewers bring their own lawn chair or blanket to sit on during the presentation.

"Tonight's show will be our last opportunity to view one of the most enjoyable family events that this city has," said Park and Recreation Board Chairman Peter Kenney. "I recommend that everyone come down to the Wendall Moses Playground and join us for a wonderful evening of family fun."

Brian Hayden Joins Army Through Delayed Enlistment

Brian S. Hayden has joined the U.S. Army under the Delayed Enlistment Program at the Army Recruiting Station in Quincy.

The program gives young men or women the opportunity to delay enlistment into the Army for up to one year before reporting to basic military training.

The enlistment gives the new soldier the option to learn a new skill, travel and become eligible to receive as much as $30,000 toward a college education. After completion of basic training, soldiers receive advanced individual training in their career specialty.

Hayden will report to Fort Leonard Wood in Waynesville, Mo., for military basic training July 19.

He is the son of James V. Hayden of Weymouth and Christine Lowry of 75 Arthur St., Quincy.

Faulkner Now Out Of The Picture

Search Continues For Quincy Hospital Partner

Plans to merge Quincy Hospital with Milton Hospital or another institution are still intact, but Faulkner Hospital in Jamaica Plain will not be Quincy's partner.

Mayor James Sheets said this week Faulkner Hospital and Milton Hospital were the two institutions Quincy being primarily targeted as possible partners. Other institutions he mentioned are South Shore Hospital in Weymouth and Brockton Hospital.

Faulkner Hospital, however, has no plans to merge with Quincy Hospital or any other institution, according to Faulkner President David Trull.

In a prepared statement, Trull said, "Faulkner, as is the case with most community hospitals, is evaluating a number of strategic options. We are not considering an alliance or merger with any other community hospital."

Quincy Hospital has been searching for another institution with which to form an affiliation since plans to do so with Carney Hospital in Dorchester were placed in limbo earlier this year. That happened when the Daughters of Charity, an order of Catholic nuns which owns Carney, announced plans to sell the 133-year-old Dorchester hospital.

Although Quincy is looking elsewhere for a partner, Sheets has said the Carney deal is not necessarily dead because that hospital is to be sold to a non-Catholic buyer. Cardinal Bernard Law expressed reservations about the Quincy-Carney affiliation because of abortions that have been performed at Quincy Hospital.

CORROSIVE EFFECTS

Automobile exhaust systems wear out due to corrosion. To the casual observer, the primary culprits in this rusting process are rain, snow and/or humidity as well as road salt used on the icy roads of northern states. While all these elements may play roles in the creation of external rusting, the greatest amount of corrosion occurs internally, mostly in the muffler. This rusting inside the exhaust system largely owes itself to the fact that water and acid are by-products of the combustion process. They combine to quickly rust the system from the inside out. Until the exhaust system reaches operating temperatures, moisture condenses on the cool surfaces of the exhaust. Then, as the surfaces become hot, the moisture evaporates. This is why short trips that are not long enough in duration to get the exhaust system hot are more likely than long drives, to create corrosion problems for the exhaust system.

HINT: To reduce corrosion, most manufacturers are turning to rust-resistant coatings and/or special alloys for their exhaust-system components.

A leaking exhaust system can affect your safety and that of your passengers. LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO should be your full service auto care center for most every system in your car. Whether you simply want us to perform routine maintenance, or repair your exhaust system, our professional. ASE Certified technicians have the ability and necessary skills to handle it. A Thought For The Week

It has been said that no one can enrich his own personality by concentrating on himself, but if he directs his thinking toward a friendly enrichment of other personalities, he, himself, has gained as much as he has given to others.

All of us know people with a bubbling-over personality. It seems everybody likes them. Did you ever wonder what causes their popularity?

To start with, they respect the other person's opinion. They let the other person do his share of the talking; they are good listeners. When age variance exists, they never say, "I'm older than you, therefore know more than you." They listen to the other person's problems; don't minimize the problems by citing, comparing (or exaggerating) their own. They never give unasked-for advice, but are ready to give a suggestion when asked. They give subtle praise without evidence of flattery. They have good humor; can and do laugh at themselves; laugh with, but not at the other person.

Check these traits with the people you know that posses 'personality plus.' You will find they have most of these 'goodnesses.' We know a lot of people like this and we're always glad to meet more of them . . .

John Barbour, 84

Builder; Son Of Quincy Mayor

A private funeral service for John Barbour, 84, of New Bedford, was held Aug. 7 in Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

Mr. Barbour died Aug. 1 at St. Luke's Hospital following a long illness.

A self-employed builder in the home construction industry for many years, he was the son of the late Perley E. Barbour I, mayor of the City of Quincy during the late 1920s, and the late Mary (Graham) Barbour.

Born in Quincy, he lived in Florida and on Cape Cod for several years before moving to New Bedford three years ago. He was educated in Quincy and Exeter, N.H., schools.

He is survived by a daughter, Mary Anne Carley of Braintree; six grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. He was also the father of the late Perley E. Barbour II.

Funeral arrangements were by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave.

Mary Ferris, 76

Registered Nurse

A funeral Mass for Mary (LaHage) Ferris, 76, of Quincy, was celebrated Monday in St. Joseph's Church.

Mrs. Ferris died Aug. 9 at Robbin House Nursing and Rehabilitation Center in Quincy after a long illness.

A registered nurse, she worked at the Fore River shipyard during World War II and later at Quincy City Hospital until her retirement in the 1970s.

She was a member of the Sons of Lebanon Club and Great Books of Quincy.

She was a lifelong resident of Quincy Point.

Wife of the late Philip Ferris, she is survived by a son, Michael Nahas of Brookline; a daughter, Billie Jean Woodford of Brockton; and four grandchildren.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were by the Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St.

Mary Lou Herr, 56

N.E. Telephone Supervisor

A funeral Mass for Mary Lou (Savage) Herr, 56, of Quincy, was celebrated Monday in St. Boniface Church.

Mrs. Herr died Aug. 8 in Quincy Hospital after a brief illness.

A former supervisor for New England Telephone, she worked 28 years for the company before retiring in 1984.

She enjoyed gardening and knitting. Mrs. Herr also donated many items to St. Boniface Church that were given to families in need.

Born in Boston, she lived in West Roxbury before moving to Quincy 17 years ago. She graduated from the Roxbury Academy of Notre Dame in 1957.

Mrs. Herr is survived by her husband, John R. Herr; a stepson, Lawrence J. Herr, and a stepdaughter, Dianne M. Vasquez, both of Dorchester; a sister, Adrienne L. Savage of West Roxbury; a nephew and three stepgrandchildren.

Thomas S. Bowers, 31

NYNEX Administrative Asst.

A memorial service for Thomas S. Bowers, 31, of Quincy, will be held at a later date.

Mr. Bowers died Aug. 5 at the home of his sister, Jacqueline P. Rivera. He had been diagnosed as having AIDS four years ago and died from complications of the disease.

An administrative assistant for NYNEX and a roller coaster enthusiast, his health began to decline seriously in May, but he managed a ride on the Carousel Under the Clock in Hull three weeks ago.

The former Paragon Park at Nantasket Beach in Hull was one of his favorite places and he hoped to ride the Paragon roller coaster at its new location in Maryland.

A member of the Chicago-based American Coasters Enthusiast Club, he traveled to Ohio, Texas, California and New Jersey to ride roller coasters. His favorite was the Magnum at Cedar Point in Sandusky, Ohio, but he had a special fondness for the old wooden roller coaster at Nantasket.

Although he was a temporary employee at NYNEX, he worked there several years in the telecommunications department.

Born in Boston, he grew up in Dorchester and attended Boston schools.

He is also survived by his parents, George and Rena (Lane) Bowers of Dorchester; three brothers, George W. Bowers and Donald E. Bowers, both of Quincy, and David J. Bowers of Dorchester; two other sisters, Beverly F. Rogers of Weymouth and Rena M. Devine of Rockland; and several nephews and nieces.

Funeral arrangements were by the Cremation Society of Massachusetts in Quincy.

Donations may be made to the Hospice of the South Shore, 100 Bay State Drive, Braintree, MA 02184 or to ACE Preservation Fund, P.O. Box 8226, Chicago, IL 60680.

Joseph J. Perry, 86

Truck Driver; Company Owner

A funeral service for Joseph James Perry, 86, of Quincy, was held Monday in Bethany Congregational Church.

Mr. Perry died Aug. 9 in Quincy Hospital after a long illness.

He worked 40 years as a truck driver for Bianchi Motor Transportation before his retirement 17 years ago. At one time, he owned Perry Trucking Co. in Quincy, which is still being run by family members.

As a young man, Mr. Perry also worked for a brief time at the Fore River shipyard in Quincy.

Your Social Security

Long-Range Projections Steady

By CAROL BOYLE

The 1996 Social Security trustees report tells us that the Social Security long-range financial projects are holding steady.

As past and current program beneficiaries can attest, Social Security has always met its beneficiary obligations. And it always will. Even with no changes in current law, Social Security will be able to continue paying benefits for more than three decades into the future.

Specifically, the 1996 annual report states that the combined Old-Age and Survivors Insurance and Disability Insurance Trust Funds are rapidly accruing reserves and will be able to meet all benefit obligations through 2029.

The 2029 date is a year earlier than was reported in last year's Trustees Report. But that change is due primarily to a technical correction, and the 2029 date is the same "trust fund exhaustion" date that was reported by the trustees in 1994.

It is important to note that in 2029, contrary to what many people think, Social Security will not be "broke." Annual tax revenues will be enough to cover 77 percent of annual expenditures.

The fact that the financing situation is now stable does not, of course, alter the fact that some corrective action will have to be taken in the future. The trustees state in their report that the shortfall must be addressed, but there is "ample time to do so with deliberation and care."

There is no crisis situation. The Social Security trust funds have enough revenue to meet all beneficiary obligations for the next 33 years. There is time to discuss alternative solutions and to devise an approach that has the full support of the American public.

Social Security is the most successful domestic program in the nation's history. It provides protection against the loss of earnings due to retirement, death, or disability. It covers about 142 million American workers and pays benefits to more than 43 million beneficiaries. And it represents a financial foundation upon which both older Americans and young families can plan their lives. It has served this country well for 60 years. The trustees urge careful examination and discussion of the Social Security program to ensure that the program will continue to serve all Americans for the next 60 years.

(Carol Boyle is Social Security manager in Quincy.)

Lydon Funeral Home Plants Memorial Trees

Lydon Funeral Home of Quincy, since its affiliation with the Lofty Oaks Association, has planted 250 trees on public lands in Massachusetts as living memorials to honor the deceased.

The program is part of a large endeavor, in cooperation with the other conservation efforts in Massachusetts, to restore the landscape and our environment with the eternal beauty of living trees. The memorial trees are planted in the spring and fall.

After each service, close family members and friends are informed that the memorial tree has been arranged for by the Lydon Funeral Home. Once certified nurserymen have planted the tree, the designated relatives and friends will be sent an official certificate of planting suitable for framing and keeping in the family's history forever.

Fr. Bill's Place is seeking volunteers to assist with direct care services to homeless guests in local shelter. Variety of hours available: mothers hours, early evening hours, weekends. We are building our resources of personnel for fill-in shifts and upcoming special events. No experience necessary. Please call April after 6:00 pm at 617-770-3314 for more information or send letter of interest to QISC, Dept V, 38 Broad St., Quincy, MA 02169

BUSINESS

GROUNDBREAKING WAS HELD recently for a new 10,000-square-foot building for Bob's Speed and Auto Parts at 240 Willard St., West Quincy. The building is scheduled to open in October. From left are Scott Galvin of Galvin Construction Co., Mayor James Sheets, Ward 4 City Councillor Michael D'Amico, Robert Pacino and Bob Pacino of Bob's Speed and Auto Parts, and Sean Galvin of Galvin Construction Co.

Ground Broken For Bob's Speed And Auto

Galvin Construction Co. recently broke ground on a new 10,000-square-foot building for Bob's Speed and Auto Parts at 240 Willard St., West Quincy.

Bob's, one of the businesses displaced when Shaw's Supermarkets opened its new store on Hancock St. on the North Quincy-Wollaston line, is temporarily located at 14 Hayward St. in North Quincy until the new location is ready. The new, larger store is expected to increase retail business and improve service to wholesale customers.

Mike Kenealy of Key Realty, who brokered the land sale, worked closely with Bob Pacino, owner of Bob's Speed and Auto, to find a suitable new location in Quincy.

"We've been in Quincy for 29 years and it has been our desire from the beginning to keep our business in Quincy," said Pacino. "We worked closely with (Ward 4 City Councillor) Mike D'Amico to ensure that we were an appropriate use for this site and that we would be a good fit."

Galvin Construction, a Quincy development and contracting firm, expects to complete the store by late October.

Bank Of Braintree Assists New Venture At Marina Bay

Bank of Braintree recently participated in a ribbon-cutting ceremony to celebrate the official grand opening of the WaterWorks nightclub at Marina Bay, one of its major commercial loan clients in Quincy.

On hand to celebrate to key Bank of Braintree officials, WaterWorks partners, and Quincy area business owners.

Bank of Braintree celebrated its expansion into the Quincy area in January of this year, as it acquired a number of Quincy branch locations when it became affiliated with The Co-operative Bank of Concord. The two banks joined forces in December 1995 under the newly-formed holding company Walden Bancorp.

Since the affiliation, Bank of Braintree has seen a marked increase in its commercial lending portfolio.

Commenting on the bank's commitment to the Quincy community, Don Olson, president and CEO at Bank of Braintree said:

"Bank of Braintree is truly committed to strengthening and building Quincy's business environment. We are extremely proud of the reputation and relationships we have built since our recent expansion into the Quincy area. This most recent commercial transaction with WaterWorks further symbolizes Bank of Braintree's unique commitment to the communities in which we do business."

Bank of Braintree ensured the transaction was finalized in time for WaterWorks' June 25 grand opening.

"Bank of Braintree is extremely pleased and excited about our new relationship with the Quincy based-business owners at WaterWorks, at Marina Bay," said Jim Barbieri, senior vice president of the bank. "This business and banking partnership is a prime example of Bank of Braintree's commitment to the success and profitability of Quincy area business owners, as well as all small businesses on the South Shore."

With nine branches offices operating along the South Shore in Quincy, Braintree, Hanover and Randolph, Bank of Braintree, a division of Walden Bancorp, has strategically positioned itself for future growth and increased recognition as the premier commercial lending institution on the South Shore.

Gaetano Brancaccio Completes Six-Month Navy Deployment

Navy Petty Officer 3rd Class Gaetano Brancaccio, son of Gaetano and Catherina A. Brancaccio of 39 Sullivan Rd., Quincy, has returned to his homeport in Norfolk, Va., after completing a six-month deployment aboard the aircraft carrier USS George Washington.

Brancaccio is one of 5,500 sailors and marines who completed the more than 44,200-mile voyage aboard the carrier.

Serving as the flagship of the 14-ship USS George Washington Battle Group, the George Washington first supported the U.N. peace efforts in Bosnia and later enforced the no-fly zone over Southern Iraq.

A 1991 graduate of Brockton High School, he joined the Navy in July 1991.

No one ever walks into a store and says, "You know, I really wish they'd sell me something in here." That's because normal people don't shop that way. You want to look around, compare, maybe get a little information. So when you come into Saturn to look at our new 1996 models, don't be surprised if you're allowed to shop at your own pace. And if you need anything like a soda, or engine specifications, just ask. Hope to see you soon.

To Improve Conditions

QHA To Hire Management Consultant

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The Quincy Housing Authority plans to hire a management consultant to help improve the condition of some of the authority's federally subsidized apartments, the authority's executive director said Tuesday.

The consultant would perform a comprehensive organizational assessment of the authority and prepare and assist in the implementation of both a management improvement plan and a strategic plan.

The consultant's hiring and other improvement steps were outlined in a letter from Executive Director John (Jake) Comer to officials at the Department of Housing and Urban Development on Monday.

The plan of action, which is an amendment to the authority's Comprehensive Grant Program for FY 1996, is in response to a recent HUD review which faulted the QHA's method for tracking routine maintenance and repairs; its failure to make yearly inspections of all apartments; and its general upkeep of buildings.

"I'll do everything that I possibly can as long as HUD supports my tenants. We have to work together," QHA Executive Director John (Jake) Comer told The Quincy Sun Tuesday.

The HUD review was particularly critical of conditions in Germantown, where nearly one-third of the 580 apartments are managed with federal money. The rest are subsidized by the state.

HUD must approve funding for the consultant's hiring. If approved, the QHA's Board of Commissioners would need to support the concept of hiring a management consultant. Comer said he anticipates approval from HUD and the commissioners.

"We foresee that our consultant will suggest items such as training for our employees in professional property management, construction management, business and strategic organizing, mortgage lending, real estate development, community organizing, maintenance training, proposal writing, public relations, financial

City Finalizing Body Piercing Ordinance

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The city is in the process of finalizing an ordinance that would regulate the procedure of body piercing in Quincy.

The City Council will take up the issue next month. The ordinance is being prepared by Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue, who will forward it to City Solicitor Stephen McGrath for review before it is presented to the council.

Gallahue, at the request of Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers, submitted a draft of the ordinance to the council in June.

The new law is being created as the result of the opening of the Body Xtremes piercing shop at 414 Hancock St. in North Quincy. City officials have expressed concerns about the safety of body piercing and want to make sure it is properly regulated.

Ayers, whose ward includes the piercing shop, said health concerns are the main reason he asked Gallahue to write the ordinance.

"Being a small businessman myself, I'm not against anyone trying to make a living," said Ayers. "I'm not trying to shut him (Body Xtremes owner Mik Miller) down. But the neighbors have

Work To Start In Spring

You'll Be Driving On The Concourse In 1998

By HENRY BOSWORTH

If all goes according to accelerated plans, you will be driving on the Quincy Center Concourse in early 1998.

City DPW Commissioner David Colton said Tuesday that construction of the bridge across the MBTA tracks will begin by May of next year, signaling the start of the state financed $8.6 million roadway project.

The bridge will allow the connecting of the roadway's west side link from Burgin Parkway to Hancock St. in downtown Quincy.

Colton said construction of the west side link will begin in the summer or fall of 1997 and take about six months to complete.

"It should be open by late spring or early summer of 1998," he said.

The east side link from Hancock St. to Southern Artery will be started in the summer of 1998 and should be completed and open by late fall of that year or by early 1999, he said.

"It is an aggressive schedule," Colton said. "But I think we can do it."

The long talked-about project got a surprise six months early green light from the state.

First, a recent state ruling eliminated the need for a long environmental impact study.

And, the state approved $2.6 million for construction of the bridge.

The state is picking up the $8.6 million tab for the construction and land-taking. The city is paying about $400,000 for the design work. Colton said it is possible the city may be reimbursed for that work.

Colton said land-taking for the project will cost an estimated $2 million.

Property involved will include the Tanline building in Parkingway, and the lot where the Mutual Building which housed the Kincaide

Hearing Continued To Sept. 10

Beer-Wine License For Stop & Shop Opposed, Supported

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

After hearing more than three hours of arguments for and against a beer and wine license at the new Stop & Shop on Newport Ave., the Quincy License Board continued Tuesday's hearing until Sept. 10.

While officials said the new Stop & Shop is the "flagship store" with construction underway to be completed by Nov. 1, opponents asked them to withdraw their application or ruin their reputation as a family oriented market.

Officials called the new store a "one stop shopping event" where everything could be purchased under one roof.

Opponents who lined up at a packed city hall Tuesday cited the saturation of liquor stores in the Wollaston area and that a "wrong message is being sent to the kids".

Proponents said they would welcome such a trend as a "convenience" "without the problem of having to go to a liquor store to purchase beer and wine.

Ward 3 Councillor Pat McDermott told the board that in the beginning, when Stop & Shop first was issued a license to construct the supermarket, there was "no mention at all about beer and wine". McDermott said the permits probably would not have been given if that were known at the onset.

He read a letter from the Quincy Citizen's Association in opposition of the license.

McDermott said he received over 150 letters and more than 200 phone calls from constituents opposing the request. He urged the board to render a "negative vote."

Several children from D.A.R.E. (keep kids off drugs) also addressed the group in opposition. They spoke of being educated about alcohol and drugs and said if the Stop & Shop sells beer and wine, they would stop going there.

One resident, Kevin Coughlin brought a petition with 850 signatures from the Wollaston-Montclair area opposing the license and asked the license board to deny the license.

In conclusion Coughlin said "what adults start, kids continue."

School committee member Linda Stice spoke in opposition and said "kids don't go into liquor stores" but would go to the market where they would be liquor available right in the middle aisle.

One opponent said the board should "keep the cover over the can of worms."

Police Chief Francis Mullen told Stop & Shop officials that he was "not comfortable" with the location of the beer and wine being in the center of the store. He cited the liquor store at Osco's as being apart from everything else with its own cash register. and more "control."

After conferring with officials from Stop & Shop, Atty. David Mahoney told the board that they would meet with the merchandising department in an attempt to please the board and relocate the beer and wine in a more isolated area of the store. He said it would be ready for the Sept. 10 hearing.

A perplexed chairman Joseph Shea said the rule of the license board is to have two hearings when a new liquor license is issued. Shea also noted that board member and building inspector Matt Mulvey is still recuperating from surgery and would be back by Sept. 10.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman said he was all set to vote today, but Shea reiterated that the board always has two hearings for first time licenses.

ENC To Buy HoJo Factory

Eastern Nazarene College is purchasing the former Howard Johnson candy factory on Old Colony Ave.

President Kent Hill said the purchase is part of the college's expansion plans.

The vacant candy factory is on a three-acre lot located behind the Presidents' City Motel and the Egg & I Too Restaurant at 853 Hancock St. which the college bought last year.

The college also purchased the former Winfield House restaurant, a long-time popular dining landmark, last year. The old restaurant may be demolished, Hill said.

The purchases will give ENC approximately six acres for new classroom space and other needed buildings.

The Wollaston campus of East Elm Ave. comprises 15 acres but with little room for expansion there.

Hill said the four-year college needs more dormitories and science labs in addition to athletic fields.

The college has had a 13 percent increase in enrollment the past four years. Undergraduates number nearly 700 and graduate students 100.

Offices, 'Wet Shelter,' Beds To Be Added

Sheets: City Will Assist With Fr. Bill's Expansion

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The city will offer any assistance possible with the planned expansion of Father Bill's Place, Quincy's homeless shelter, according to Mayor James Sheets.

Sheets said the Department of Public Works will do whatever it can to aid the firm eventually chosen to do the work.

"It's a city-owned building, so some of the work can be done by the DPW," he said. "We'll do anything we can to facilitate the construction."

Joseph Finn, executive director of the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition (QISC)--which operates the shelter at 38 Broad St. near the Quincy Police Station--said the expansion will allow the QISC to move its administrative offices from the JFK Health Center on Hancock Street back into the shelter. Other changes will include the additions of four more women's beds and a 24-hour "wet shelter" designed to help people who are intoxicated.

Preliminary design work, Finn added, has been done by Artisan Architecture which has offices in Weymouth and Scituate.

Finn said he plans to meet with city officials to discuss the project, including the exact parameters of the job and how the construction firm will be chosen, in September. Once all of the paperwork is completed, he said, he hopes the work can be done quickly.

"I would like to get it started as soon as possible," said Finn, who added that although he hopes the job can be completed by the end of the year, that may not be a realistic expectation.

Finn said the job would probably cost about $150,000 without in-kind services but he is hopeful some of the necessary services will be donated. Sheets said the city will assist the QISC with any fund-raisers it may hold for the project, but does not plan to commit any city money.

Finn noted that the wet shelter, in particular, will be a welcome addition at Father Bill's Place.

"Right now, we don't have a 24-hour capacity to help people who are actually intoxicated," he said. "So that will be kind of a 'no frills' shelter."

The mayor also applauded plans for the wet shelter.

"The current process of picking up someone who is drunk and putting them in jail for the night creates a number of problems for the police department," said Sheets. "That particular program is better off at Father Bill's Place. You'd have the same security control, and you'd have people at the shelter who can actually do something to help the person who is drunk."

Sheets added he is pleased to see the QISC administrative offices will be returning to the shelter.

"That's where they belong," he said.

Father Bill's Place, named after Fr. William McCarthy, the former pastor of St. John's Church in Quincy, first opened to the public in 1988 and serves between 800 to 1,000 people a year, Finn said.

STATE SURVEY results recently released by MASSPIRG (Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group) showed that 79 percent of state residents support expanding the Bottle Bill to cover juice, iced tea, and bottled water containers. A poll of over 250 Quincy residents revealed similar support in the city. MASSPIRG officials and others on hand for the announcement in front of City Hall included, from left, Christa Marlowe, Johanna Wilkie, state Sen. Michael Morrissey, Kate Holbein, Quincy Recycling Center Chairman Larry Chretien, Christine Bianchi, Carol and Bob Brainerd, and Brandie Smith.

Asian Voter Drive Underway

The Quincy Asian American Association (QAAA) has kicked off an Asian voter registration drive that will last until next month.

QAAA Chairman Tackey Chan said he has no concrete number in mind regarding how many people he wants to register.

"I just want to get as many people as possible," he said. "As many as I can get my hands on."

Chan said of the approximately 11,500 Asians who live in Quincy, only about 700 are registered to vote.

"That's a pretty low number," he admitted. "Voting is one of the benefits of becoming a citizen. It's your right to vote, and you should take the opportunity to do so. I think it definitely would give the Asian population more of a voice in the city."

Of course, Chan noted, having Asians register to vote is only step one.

"I want to get them registered first," he said, "and then figure out how to get them to the polls later."

Battle Of The Bulge Veterans Plan Reunion

The Veterans of the Battle of the Bulge Inc. (VBOB) will hold its annual reunion in Hyannis Sept. 8-11.

VBOB is an international non-profit organization which is composed of members who served in the World War II battle which rebuffed Adolf Hitler's strongest offensive and turned the tide of the war, their friends and family members and history buffs. In its 15-year existence VBOB has enrolled over 14,000 members. It affords members the opportunity to renew and develop friendships, exchange information and assist in initiating efforts to see that the battle is never forgotten.

The Battle of the Bulge has been called by many "America's greatest battle." It was fought during the bitter cold and snow of the heavily-forested Ardennes area of eastern Belgium and northern Luxembourg from Dec. 16, 1944, through Jan. 25, 1945. Six hundred thousand American soldiers fought in the great battle with 81,000 resulting casualties, including 19,000 killed.

In Hyannis a memorial plaque will dedicated to all who served in the Battle of the Bulge. The memorial will be unveiled by Mrs. Jean E. Gavin, wife of General James M. Gavin, who was the youngest commander of an American division--the 82nd Airborne--one of the over 400 units who served in the Battle of the Bulge.

For more information, write to VBOB, P.O. Box 11129-P, Arlington, Va., 22210-2129.

SINUSES UNDER SIEGE

One look at the puffy face, glassy eyes and pained expression and you might make a good guess about what is bothering someone: sinuses. This is the time of year when sinus troubles often kick into high gear, due mainly to the timing of the cold and allergy season. When a cold or other infection strikes, the four pairs of sinuses that surround the eyes may swell up. This can block the drainage, allowing mucus to stagnate and bacteria to grow. When an allergy is the culprit, sinuses may also swell. Over time, this swelling can prevent the cilia (tiny hair-like projections) from doing their job of clearing out mucus. In either case, the result may be headaches, breathing difficulty, postnasal drip, coughing and chronic fatigue. If the blockage cannot be cleared via medication or by other means, surgery may be an option.

P.S. Other possible causes of blocked sinuses may include a polyp (sac of swollen tissue) or deviated septum (crooked nose partition).

Sometimes locating what the allergen might be can help you adjust your life so as to increase your comfort; other times, nothing but medication will help. At COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, we treat hypertension, offer cholesterol screening and know all there is to know about heart problems. We're at 700 Congress St., in Quincy (472-2550). Bellotti Eyes State Auditor Run

The Bellotti name may be on another state-wide election ballot.

Rep. Michael Bellotti, son of former Lt. Gov. and Atty. Gen. Frank Bellotti, has his eye on the state auditor's office for a bid in 1998.

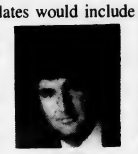
MIKE BELLOTTI

FRANK BELLOTTI

"I am giving it serious consideration," Bellotti acknowledges. "And I am beginning to lay the groundwork."

That should be enough to start the maneuvering for his First Norfolk District representative seat which he would have to vacate to make the run.

Potential candidates would include City Councillors Bruce Ayers, Patrick McDermott, Michael D'Amico and former Councillor Larry Chretien.



AYERS

McDERMOTT

Part of the groundwork Bellotti is laying is raising money to finance a statewide campaign. He estimates he would need at least $200,000 in the kitty by January, 1998.

D'AMICO

CHRETIEN

He apparently is taking the first step to that goal with a fund-raiser being planned for October in Boston. Tickets will be $100 per.

The state auditor's office will be up for grabs in 1998 as incumbent Joe DeNucci cannot seek re-election under the new term limits law. He reportedly is thinking of running for state treasurer.

DeNUCCI

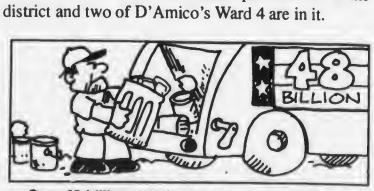
DeNucci and Bellotti's father are close friends and political allies. And, it would seem, he would give young Bellotti a helping hand if he does run for auditor.

Bellotti is being encouraged by State House colleagues to make the run for auditor, among them, Rep. Ron Mariano of Quincy.

The Bellotti name, they point out, is still well known state wide with vote getting magic and Frank Bellotti would be there to help his son in a campaign. It is also a name that can generate the necessary financial support for a campaign.

Bellotti's state representative seat would probably be the most tempting for Ayers. All of his Ward 6 is in the Bellotti district.

McDermott and D'Amico would have some interest. Three of McDermott's Ward 3 precincts are in the district and two of D'Amico's Ward 4 are in it.



Over 48 billion metal cans are used by citizens of the U.S. every year.

Two of Steve Durkin's Ward 5 precincts are in the district but he isn't. His home precinct is out of the district. He wouldn't be eligible to run unless he moved into the district.

DURKIN

Chretien, whom Bellotti defeated for the Democratic nomination in 1992 and then went on to win the final election against Republican Mike Cronin and independent Pat Conroy, would be a serious contender if he made another run with Bellotti out of the picture.

"I will make my final decision on running for auditor sometime next summer," says Bellotti. "And that will give anyone thinking of running for my House seat time enough to mount their own campaigns."

Bellotti has been mentioned as a future candidate for Norfolk County sheriff but says he would rather run for auditor.

"The involvement campaign wise would be pretty much the same," he says.

But winning the auditor's office would be a bigger political prize and a much bigger step toward higher state office. Maybe even governor--the one office that eluded his father.

"If I think the auditor's office is doable, I'll go for it," Bellotti says.

MEANWHILE, Sal Giarratini is thinking about 1997 and the city election coming up that year. He says right now he is leaning toward another run for the School Committee but may go for the Ward 6 City Council seat if Bruce Ayers decides to run at-large.

GIARRATINI

DONALD HANSEN, assistant city solicitor under Mayor Frank McCauley from 1985 to 1990, is a candidate for Register of Plymouth Probate Court.

Hansen, who is still a practicing attorney in Quincy with a law office on Elm St., is unopposed for the Republican nomination.

Hansen's background includes an appointment to the Selective Service Bureau by President Ronald Reagan and to the Massachusetts Security and Privacy Council by Gov. Edward King and three elective terms as Norwell Town Moderator.

TWO FAMILIAR FACES have been back at City Hall to help short-handed staffs during the vacation period.

GIUNCHIGLIA

Grace Giunchiglia, who retired in 1995 as Mayor James Sheets' personal secretary, returned to fill in in the law department where she worked at the beginning of her City Hall career and then became secretary to Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa.

CARNALI

Josephine Carnali, who retired in July as secretary to City Clerk Joseph Shea, has been coming back to help out in that office where she served 35 years.

John Quincy Adams was also known as the Old Man Eloquent.

We Need To Be Quincy

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I recently read The Quincy Sun story (Aug. 8) on the city's new downtown coordinator who expressed confidence that the business district has a vibrant future.

Bruce Arons comes to Quincy from Plymouth where he managed the Plymouth Downtown Harbor Corp., an organization, I'm told, that is similar to Quincy 2000. Joe Mannarino, the Quincy 200 executive director says Arons' main job will be to implement the comprehensive Strategic Action Plan for Quincy Center that should be finalized by October.

Personally, as someone not born in Quincy but who chose it as the place to raise my family back in 1984, I often see both more hype about the past and daydreams about the future. Arons says he sees a vibrant downtown, is this the same downtown I see which rolls up its sidewalks at 5 p.m.? Is this the same downtown that is overloaded with hair salons and Chinese restaurants? Nothing against getting your hair cut or eating Asian food but isn't there more to downtown life than this?

And what about the retail districts in Norfolk Downs and Wollaston Center? Last year Wollaston Center was torn up and "revitalized" but it isn't any more consumer-friendly today than before the construction work, is it? In fact, many see the area losing its energy. Norfolk Downs makes Wollaston Center look great. In this last decade this North Quincy area has really slipped.

Back on July 3 in The Quincy Sun, after returning from a U.S. Conference of Mayors meeting in Cleveland, Mayor Sheets said Cleveland was a good example for Quincy's downtown district. There has also been the effort in getting horse-driven carriages and trolleybuses to attract tourists the way it's done in Boston. Boston is Boston. Cleveland is Cleveland. And Quincy is Quincy. We should be aspiring to be the best that we can be. We don't have to copycat Boston's Quincy Market. We shouldn't be expecting the same hordes of tourists flocking here who do Boston's Freedom Trail. The USS Salem is not Old Ironsides.

Growing up in Roxbury and living in Charlestown for a dozen or so years has given me a passion to criticize things I see as seemingly wasting time and energy.

We need to be Quincy. We are a good midsized city. We have a lot of character. We have liveable neighborhoods. We have a good quality of life. We have good public schools. We treat and respect our seniors great. We don't have to be Boston and we surely don't have to be Cleveland. Our vibrancy should be in ourselves. It is our spirit to constantly improve ourselves for ourselves and for our children. For this we don't need comprehensive master plans, we need common sense.

A Cast Of Real Heroes

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I daresay one could scour the country and couldn't find three finer humanitarians than William Helfrich, the kid who grew up in Houghs Neck or the "youngster" from Cranch Hill, Simon Fireman, and his kind, compassionate wife Norma. These are three of my all-time heroes because of their unswerving concern for the health and well-being of others, most of whom are total strangers.

The Firemans are renowned for their altruistic philanthropy, contributing millions of dollars to help enhance the health of folks they will never even meet. That, to me, is the epitome of selflessness and demonstrates a caring concern for others. And so, to Simon and Norma I say: May your tribe increase!

And, speaking of that skilled and dedicated surgeon, Dr. William Helfrich, I am particularly indebted to him, for it was he who detected my prostate cancer and arranged for me to have the best of care at, first, Dana-Farber Cancer Institute and then 36 radiation treatments at Deaconess Hospital under the direction of Dr. Maryann Stevenson, who couldn't have been more efficient or more professional. In short, I'm convinced that Dr. Helfrich was instrumental in extending my life, and may even have saved it. (In collaboration with all others who provided life-saving services.)

That's why the above-mentioned triumvirate are, I think, worthy of honorable mention along with my other heroes: Robert E. Lee, Dwight Eisenhower; Walter Johnson and Lou Gehrig of baseball fame; my dad, Will Spargo, whose life was cruelly cut short at age 47 after he had toiled day and night to support a family of 11.

Next comes our family's paternal grandmother, "Saintly Granny" Spargo and deservedly so because, in her 89 years she never spoke ill of anyone, and never was heard to raise her voice in anger. Certainly saint-like qualities.

And last, but by no means least, the youngest of seven Spargo siblings, John Alden, who distinguished himself flying Navy dive bombers in the Pacific during World War II and later had a fine career as a physician.

That's my idea of a cast of real heroes.

$50 Million Project Planned Downtown

Aug. 22 - 29
1974
22 Years Ago

By PAUL HAROLD

Atty. Nathaniel Sherman, spokesperson for the Buccheri Family Trust, announced plans for a $50 million office and condominium complex in Quincy Center.

The announcement for the development came at a public hearing at which the establishment of the Quincy Center Historic District was debated. The Buccheri property along with options was located on Hancock St. running down Faxon and Saville Avenues and would be included in the new zoning plan.

Preliminary plans for the project had not yet been filed with city planner Geoffrey Davidson.

OLD COLONY LAUNDERERS CLOSES

Forest Neal, Jr, president and treasurer of Old Colony Launderers on Quincy Ave., announced the closing of the 78-year-old company.

He cited inflationary costs and rising employee costs as the reasons for shutting down the plant. Inflation had driven up the cost of number six fuel oil, the largest single supply item of the business. It employed 75 people.

LOTTERY DRAWN AT CITY HALL

Two hundred people stood in a steady drizzle in front of City Hall to watch city officials and members of the audience draw winners in the state's weekly lottery game.

There were 10 $5 winners and one $25 winner present.

Those picking numbers included Mayor Walter Hannon, Rep. Clifford Marshall, Joseph Brett and William Delahunt and Councillors John Lydon and Vincent Smyth.

Italian Squash And Then Some

Our neighbors Brian and Allison supplied us with some sumptuous vegetables from their garden. One day they brought some green peppers and Italian squash. (the brightest yellow we ever saw).

I had some zucchini and egg plant to mix with it all and it was so delicious, colorful and "diet friendly."

Italian Squash and then some.
1 large sliced Italian squash
1 small egg plant (cut in squares) (optional)
1 large sliced zucchini
2 cups tomato sauce
1 large can of artichoke hearts
2 garlic cloves
1 medium sized onion
2 tablespoons olive oil
salt and pepper to taste

Saute the garlic and onion and add all the other vegetables. Cover and cook for about five minutes. Add the tomato sauce. Cook covered until tender. (takes about 15 to 20 minutes) depending on the size pan.

Before serving. sprinkle some grated cheese over the top.

This dish can be served over rice or pasta or just with some crusty bread.

Outdoor Learning Center Opens At Beechwood

Beechwood on the Bay, 440 East Squantum St., Quincy, recently held a ribbon-cutting ceremony to open its aviation-themed Outdoor Learning Center for children.

Among those in attendance were Mayor James Sheets, Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers, Norfolk County District Attorney William Delahunt, Beechwood Executive Director Sharron Beals, other Beechwood and community officials and local children.

The center features a "tower" for preschoolers and a "hangar" for infants and toddlers. It was custom designed with the developmental needs of children and the site's history in mind.

The airplanes at the Outdoor Learning Center, for instance, are placed in "historically correct" position, pointing in the direction of the Dennison Air Strip at the Dennison Airport which was formerly located at the Beechwood site.

"AMELIA EARHART" and Mayor James Sheets were among those in attendance for the opening of the new aviation-themed Outdoor Learning Center at Beechwood on the Bay, 440 East Squantum St., Quincy. The real Earhart flew from the Dennison Airport, formerly located at the current Beechwood site, from 1925 to 1928.

Amelia Earhart, the only woman on staff at the Dennison Airport, from from the site from 1925 to 1928. She flew in the first official opening flight from Dennison, was a primary stockholder in the city's only commercial airport, and bought her "Friendship" plane from Admiral Richard Byrd while working in Quincy.

Earhart worked with small children at the Dennison Settlement House in Boston during the week and flew at the airport on weekends.

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements, the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flowergirls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit photos with their announcements, and when submitting their wedding photo, to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries, beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

Downtown Revitalization District Expanded

The state's Division of Housing and Community Development has approved the city's request for an extension to the Quincy Center Commercial Area Revitalization District (CARD), announces Quincy 2000 Executive Director Joseph Mannarino.

CARD is an economic development tool established by the state to assist communities with older downtowns by stimulating public and private investment.

In April, Quincy 2000 requested to extend the boundaries of the Quincy Center CARD, currently stretching from Bridge St. (just south of Furnace Brook Parkway) to School St. and from Granite St. to Washington St., to include areas that were adjacent to but outside the current limits of the district. The areas include the westerly side of Quincy Avenue from School St. to Granite Electric; the southerly side of School St. from Quincy Ave. to Franklin St.; the easterly and westerly sides of Franklin St. from School St. to Pearl St. The new areas lie within Ward 2 and Ward 4.

"Quincy 2000 prompted to seek the CARD extension by the requests of business and property owners in those areas who were ineligible, by reason of their location, to take advantage of some of Quincy 2000's programs," Mannarino said. "The city of Quincy's Department of Planning and Community Development was instrumental in applying for this extension and renews the existing CARD plans bi-annually."

Earlier this month, city and Quincy 2000 officials received word that the extension had been approved by the state in its entirety.

"This is a great benefit for the merchants and property owners in those areas of Quincy Center that have seen the benefits of the CARD program, but, because of their location, have been unable to participate in Quincy 2000's programs," said Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi. "As the city's business districts grow, I hope the state will approve more of these extensions; ensuring future development doesn't negatively impact the historic commercial areas of the city."

Ward 4 Councillor Mike D'Amico, whose ward includes the westerly side of Franklin St, also supports the CARD extension.

Planning Director Richard Meade and Assistant Planner Elizabeth Harrigton spearheaded the effort to extend the CARD with the assistance of Quincy 2000.

"The mayor, my department and Quincy 2000 have recognized the ability of the CARD program to revitalize the core business districts in the city. The inclusion of these areas will give us the tools we need to improve the areas through programs like Quincy 2000 and the mayor's streetscape improvements," Meade said.

Quincy 2000 develops incentive programs, such as the Commercial Building Renovation Program and Signage Improvement Program, to reverse the cycle of commercial disinvestment. The programs provide matching funds for improving the exteriors of commercial buildings within the CARD areas.

Other Quincy 2000 programs, such as the loan pool, are not limited to the CARD boundaries.

QHA To Hire Consultant

management and computer services. We have increased our staff training budget in anticipation of this," Comer said.

Comer said $25,000 a year for three years has been set aside for the management consultant. "We feel this long-term approach is needed to fully implement the changes that will be recommended," the director said.

The QHA's plan of action also calls for a hand-held computerized physical inspection system which was suggested by HUD as well as a physical needs assessment/marketability study of housing stock.

In addition, money has been set aside in areas to be addressed now, specifically the acceleration of a computer system implementation, improvement of vacancy turnover, and development of a maintenance plan for preventive and cyclical maintenance, the director said.

HUD wants an integrated computer system up and running, linking all departments of the authority, including annual inspections, work orders, and physical inventory as soon as possible.

"We have been told this finding will remain open unless an inspection report resulting in a work order can be traced through the entire system. We are currently using in-house staff to train and implement. We will do more training and have maintenance employees work overtime to input necessary data," Comer said.

Vacancy turnovers have been on hold because of the deleading of the units at Riverview, the director said. Money has been set aside to complete this project, Comer said.

In addition, Comer said money has been budgeted for developing a preventive and cyclical maintenance plan and for training staff. Money has also been reallocated into the authority's Resident Initiatives Program which helps residents become more employable, Comer said.

The director said the administrative staff is "already exploring ideas to ensure that our housing programs will be viable, less subsidy dependent, and able to stand on their own. We are discussing a program to implement a rent structure, which should promote a transition from a fully subsidized form of housing to a reduced subsidy as the rent structure begins to provide an internal subsidy.

"We know this will take much more work in the form of vacancy refurbishing and making our units more attractive in the local housing market," Comer continued. "We feel this initiative will work, as Quincy has wonderful oceanfront property.

"We expect to work with our consultant to formulate a strategic plan, implement the plan, and be ready to transform our housing into units that are able to stand on their own without risks created by lack of adequate capital."

Comer said the QHA has addressed some specific deficiencies addressed in HUD's letter to QHA dated Aug. 2. The authority has:

- Added handicapped accessible units to its high rises.
- Removed an apron and insulated pipes under the countertops of three community kitchens.
- Removed door and frame of the laundry room at Pagnano Towers and replaced it with an archway that brings the doorway into accessibility compliance.
- Replaced bathtub caulking at no additional cost.
- Repaired kitchen ceilings following the caulking repair.

Comer said roofs at Riverview were replaced in 1984. "We have roof replacement in our long-term physical needs assessment, but not within the five year Comp Grant plan. We will continue to handle missing roof shingles through our maintenance budget at present, using an outside roofing firm."

Depending on the findings of the management consultant, replacing roofs on some, if not all, of the buildings may move higher on the priority list.

"We plan to revisit our five-year plan following the consultant's assessment to address those items prioritized by the assessment," he said.

Bowles Receives Endorsement Of Former State Representative

Bob Lawless, former state representative, has endorsed Ian Bowles, candidate for the 10th District Congressional seat.

Lawless, a Barnstable County political activist, said Bowles "has the potential to be the next Gerry Studds."

"As a former state representative, I worked with retiring Cong. Gerry Studds. I am endorsing Ian Bowles because I believe he's the best candidate to fill Gerry's shoes. I know Gerry Studds, Gerry Studds is a friend of mine, and believe me when I say Ian Bowles has the potential to be the next Gerry Studds.

"Ian has the right combination of intelligence, experience, energy and enthusiasm to be our next congressman. Ian has worked with Congress for eight years, on environmental and economic issues, and has the experience to get things done for the people of the 10th district."

Lawless also said Bowles has the "grassroots support, fundraising ability and political aptitude" to win the Democratic primary and general election.

"I am supporting Ian both because he can win and because he should win. I urge all 10th District voters to do the same," he said.

Delahunt Endorsed By American Nurses Assn.

Norfolk County Dist. Atty. William Delahunt, a Democratic candidate for Congress in the 10th Congressional District, has been endorsed by the American Nurses Association and the local Massachusetts chapter.

"As district attorney, Bill Delahunt has always stood up for women and against domestic violence," M.N.A. President Margaret Barry said. "In the Congress, we know that Bill Delahunt will stand up for vital Medicare and Medicaid coverage for our elderly citizens and our children.

"And Bill Delahunt will stand up in the Congress for every American's right to affordable, accessible health care. He'll make a difference," she added.

In accepting the endorsement, Delahunt said he was "honored to be endorsed by those who are on the front lines in the fight for better health care. Nurses are the ones who do the real work, the ones who really care, and to have their endorsement on the issue of health care is something to be proud of.

"I am particularly pleased to receive the support of these health professionals," he continued.

"Their endorsement recognizes the importance of work I and my office have accomplished in the past several years, and their endorsement recognizes my commitment to standing up and fighting for people, the cornerstone of the message I've conveyed throughout this campaign.

"Of the many programs developed during my tenure as district attorney, I am especially proud of the programs on domestic violence. Too often nurses were the first "outsiders" to observe the consequences of violence--the physical effects, the breakdown of the family unit, the devastation to self-esteem for victims. I am pleased that I have been able to work with the communities in combating this horrendous crime, and I am pleased that the Nurses Association appreciates both the effort and results."

If elected, Delahunt said he would continue "standing up for people" in Congress.

"The nurses, who are so ably represented by their Association are also part of a larger community--a community at risk of diminished health care; a community at risk of losing education benefits; a community at risk of fewer and lower-paying jobs. The Republican platform is a major factor in creating these risks, and I pledge to stand up and fight against these attempts at sacrificing the average citizen for the benefit of wealthy individuals and corporations."

Daniel Burke Resident Assistant At New Suffolk Hall

Daniel Burke of Quincy, a junior at Suffolk University majoring in sociology, has been selected as one of nine resident assistants at the university's new residence hall.

The residence hall is located in the heart of the city's Midtown Cultural District, across from Boston Common. Listed in the National Register of Historic Places, the building has recently been renovated as a state-of-the-art facility, and will house 409 students.

"Suffolk's resident assistants fulfill many roles," said Nancy Stoll, dean of students. "They are peer advisors for the residents, helping them with academic and interpersonal issues and making appropriate referrals to campus resources. They are role models, educators, and community builders to the diverse groups of students who live in the residence hall."

John Brennan Joins Army Through Delayed Enlistment

John P. Brennan has joined the Army under the Delayed Enlistment Program at the U.S. Recruiting Station, Quincy.

The Delayed Enlistment Program gives young men or women the opportunity to delay enlistment into the Army for up to one year before reporting to basic military training.

The enlistment gives the new soldier the option to learn a new skill, travel and become eligible to receive as much as $30,000 toward a college education. After completion of basic training, soldiers receive advanced individual training in their career specialty.

Brennan will report to Fort Jackson, Columbia, S.C., for military basic training in Oct.

He is the son of Theresa and stepson of Peter A. Guidaboni of 188 West Squantum St., Quincy.

MAKING A DETERMINATION

Injured parties who win their personal injury cases can be expected to be awarded judgements for the amount that the jury or judge has determined will compensate them for the harm or damages that they suffer. Compensation for lost of future lost wages are considered "special damages" because they can be calculated with a certain degree of precision. On the other hand, "general damages," such as pain, suffering and mental distress, are not so easy to translate into monetary terms. In fact, it is difficult to come up with a precise rule or standard by which damages (and general damages, in particular) can be determined. It is usually through the fact-finding efforts of the jury that the amount of compensation that the plaintiff, who is successful in winning his or her personal injury suit, shall receive. This does not mean, however, that the jury will get a blank check to compensate the injured party.

HINT: The jury should not base its damage award on sympathy for the injured party, but on the facts of the case that are presented in court.

Are you a victim of another party's negligence? Whether or not the harm inflicted was intentional, you have the right to receive compensation to try and make you "whole again," that is, you return your situation to what it was prior to the incident. I am extremely experienced in pursuing civil suits and offer diligent and aggressive representation. You'll find that I've the track record to demonstrate this. To schedule an appointment, call 773-2880. My office is located at Gridley Bryant Office Condominiums, 111 Willard Street.

"My family and I have been preparing for the opening of Hancock Park for 60 years."
-Richard Welch

When Hancock Park in Quincy opens in October, it will be the newest Healthcare and Assisted Living Center on the South Shore. But this isn't a story about bricks and mortar. It's the story of one women's vision of what community healthcare could be. And should be.

My grandmother, Florence St. John, RN

It all began in 1935, right here in Quincy in my grandmother Florence St. John's parlor. As a Home Health Nurse, she saw first hand the unique difficulties many of her elderly patients faced. Often what they needed most was emotional support and care in a warm, unthreatening environment. In those days, there were few facilities prepared to provide that. But my grandmother was.

So she began caring for seniors in her home. From these modest beginnings, the Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group has become the leading provider of healthcare services on the South Shore.

Which brings us to the point of this story.

The opening of Hancock Park will be both a homecoming for us and a living memorial to the ideals that were so important to my grandmother. We're obviously very proud of her. And we're absolutely committed to making sure everything about Hancock Park reflects that pride.

To learn more about Hancock Park or about Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group, please call us at (617) 878-6700. We'll send a you a free copy of our Welch Family Guide to Senior Care.

Teague Challenges Others On 'Taxpayer's Protection Pledge'

House Republican Leader Ed Teague (R-Yarmouth) recently challenged all other candidates for Congress in the 10th district to take the "Taxpayer Protection Pledge" against higher taxes.

The pledge, which Teague has already signed, calls for those who sign to "oppose any and all efforts to increase the marginal income tax rates for individuals and/or businesses, and oppose any further reduction or elimination of deductions and credits, unless matched dollar by further reducing tax rates."

The pledge is sponsored by Americans for Tax Reform, a national tax watchdog organization based in Washington, D.C.

"It's time for all the candidates to do the right thing and sign on the dotted line," said Teague. "The people of the 10th district want less taxes, not more, I've promised to oppose any efforts to increase taxes. I challenge all other candidates to do the same."

Teague added, "People need to be able to keep more of their paychecks."

Teague's tax policies are detailed in his Ten Point Plan for the Cape and South Shore. Teague favored a two-thirds supermajority vote requirement to make it more difficult for Congress to raise taxes. He also supports a $500 per child tax credit, eliminating the marriage penalty on federal taxes, and expanding IRAs to allow a maximum annual contribution of $2,500.

Teague is the only candidate that has released a plan to fight taxes.

A copy of the Ten Point Plan can be obtained by writing Teague for Congress at P.O. Box 1888, Hyannis, MA 02601, or by calling the Teague for Congress office at (508) 790-1200.

Ed Teague's Eye on Congress New Jobs

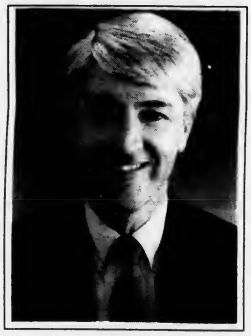
HYANNIS Ma -- As the campaign for the 10th District's open Congressional seat heats up, one question surfaces again and again: How do the candidates propose to create new jobs in Massachusetts? So far, the only candidate to have even introduced a plan to create jobs is Ed Teague.

Ed Teague's Ten Point Plan for the Cape and South Shore makes a strong case for his detailed program of regional economic revitalization. And with economic issues playing a major role in the election, it is surprising that Ed Teague is the only candidate addressing the problem. "Job growth continues to be the key to our continued economic reform," Teague said.

Teague's plan focuses first on the jobs lost with the closings of the Fore River Shipyard and Weymouth Naval Air Station. "We have a real debt to the workers who helped us win the Cold War," Teague said. "And we need to help undo the economic damage caused by these shut downs."

His plan also proposes a move to take advantage of the growing national demand for shellfish by eliminating burdensome regulatory which currently prohibit the development of aquaculture in local water.

Finally, Teague targets the bureaucratic regulations that stifle the growth and productivity of small business. He added he would require risk assessment and cost-benefit analysis when writing future regulations.



Congressional Candidate Ed Teague

With nearly three out of four new jobs created by small business, the National Federation of Independent Business was quick to lend their support to Teague's Jobs Initiative. The business group, which has 1411 members in the district, is excited by Teague's proposals and expects his ideas to positively impact the region's economy.

"We have one of the best educated workforces in the country," Teague said. "There's no reason we can't secure local economic growth well into the 21st Century."

"The right to work and prosper is encompassed in the American Dream," Teague continued. "By opening up the area to growing businesses and job creation, we will go a long way toward restoring that dream to Massachusetts workers."

You can obtain a free copy of Ed Teague's Ten Point Plan by calling Teague for Congress at 508-790-1200

Atty. Arthur Murphy Elected Labor, Employment Law College Fellow

Atty. Arthur Murphy, senior partner in the Quincy law firm of Murphy, Hesse, Toomey & Lehane has been elected a Fellow of the College of Labor and Employment Law.

The college is a non-profit organization established this year by the American Bar Association to honor outstanding career professionals in the field of labor and employment law.

Murphy was one of 50 practicing attorneys in the nation honored with the fellowship appointment. He was formally inducted as a Fellow of the College in a recent ceremony at the American Bar Association's Annual Meeting in Orlando, Fla.

During his 32-year legal career, Murphy has represented management in the field of labor relations and employment law. He represents organizations of all sizes including Fortune 500 companies, major teaching hospitals, cities and towns, small and family-owned businesses and non-profit institutions.

ARTHUR MURPHY

Murphy has presented and successfully argued hundreds of cases in administrative hearings and at every level of the state and federal court systems. His work at the forefront of labor and employment law gained national attention and he was recognized in the initial publication of "Best Lawyers in America", which included him in its listing of the country's top legal talent.

Murphy has served on a wide variety of professional, government and industry associations, boards and councils. He is a former member of the Governor's Task Force on Labor Management Relations, a former president of the Boston Chapter of Industrial Relations Research Association, and advisory counsel to the American Arbitration Association. He also is one of 20 members of the Labor Relations Advisory Committee, a select panel of the nation's leading labor and employment attorneys and he serves on a national team of seven lawyers that advises an association of 1,200 hospitals across North America.

In addition, Murphy was Notre Dame Man of the Year in 1978 and chairman of the Notre Dame Scholarship Committee. He was chairman of the United Way for all South Shore Committees, and served as state director of the United Way of Massachusetts. He is active in the arts and has served as director of Project LINK, an international program that supports education and training of handicapped children.

Murphy is also the vice chairman of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, which has over 2,400 members and is one of the nation's largest chambers, covering a geographical region encompassing 30 cities and towns in Massachusetts.

In 1989, Murphy was honored as a recipient of the prestigious Cushing-Gavin Award for management representation in the field of labor relations.

expressed some health-related concerns. I'm basically reacting to the residents' concerns, which is what I was elected to do."

Other councillors said they also want the strictest body piercing regulations possible placed in the ordinance. Council President Peter Kolson said the risk of AIDS and other diseases alone makes the ordinance an important one.

"You're opening and closing people's bodies (with piercing), and you have to be very, very careful with that," said Kolson. "Whatever Councillor Ayers wants to do to protect the best interests of the public is fine with me. We all have to move in the same direction."

"We need to protect people when you have needles around, absolutely," said Councillor Timothy Cahill. "He (Miller) may think he's being singled out, but he's not. I think it's a step in the right direction.

"It's almost like a restaurant," Cahill added. "People are being served, and they could get sick if it's not done properly. It's not going to shut him down. If he (Miller) follows the regulations, he'll be fine."

Miller could not be reached by telephone, but said in a written statement the proposed city ordinance goes too far and should be amended.

"I am not against regulating piercings as long as they are fair to both parties concerned," Miller wrote. "As the regulations stand, neither myself or anyone else will be able to pierce in the City of Quincy."

Gallahue, however, said the city needs "very sound regulations" regarding such establishments in order to prevent the risk of infections and other health problems. She noted she has been in contact with officials from the Massachusetts Department of Public Health, Oklahoma State Health Department (Oklahoma is one of only a handful of states that has such regulations) and the National Association of Professional Body Piercers in California to discuss the matter.

Gallahue said the proposed ordinance has been modeled after existing regulations and is more than fair.

"Nothing, I feel, in these regulations differs from the regulations piercers want for themselves and their industry," she said.

Gallahue, who began researching the issue even before being contacted by Ayers, said among the regulations she feels most strongly about are the prevention of minors being pierced--except for their earlobes--and a ban on the use of "stud guns" to pierce body parts.

Citizenship Course Starts Sept. 7

QHS Student Council Orientation For Freshmen Aug. 28

The Quincy High School Student Council's second annual Orientation for incoming freshmen will be held Wednesday, Aug. 28.

The new students will be welcomed at 9 a.m. in the new auditorium and will end the day with a cookout.

Each student will meet his or her upperclassman "Freshman Buddy." The older students will bring the freshmen on a tour of the building and help to familiarize them with their classrooms.

All freshmen are encouraged to attend. For more information, call the Quincy High School Main Office at 984-8754.

The Orientation is student run and is an effort by the upperclassmen of Quincy High School to make the incoming Class of 2000 feel welcome in their new environment.

WEEK OF THE Young Child was observed recently in schools throughout the city. Entertainer Rick Goldin presented his "I Like To Read" program at the Atherton Hough School.

Let's Show Kids We Care About Education

By RICHARD W. RILEY
U.S. Secretary of Education

Now that kids are going back to school, it's a good time to ask: Where do you have to live to find good schools?

Do you have to live in a wealthy suburb? Do you have to head for the big cities? Should you go to a university town?

The answer is: Good schools can be found anywhere in America. You can find them in the inner-city, in the suburbs, and in rural towns. That's what Money. magazine discovered when it went looking for America's 100 best school districts. The results of the search can be found in the January 1996 issue of the magazine, and it's an article that every parent, educator, and citizen who cares about education should read.

"Money isn't everything," declared Money. The districts that made the list enjoyed widespread community support and a high degree of parental involvement, and many were in areas where the average home cost less than the U.S. median.

The fact that good schools can be found anywhere--so long as parents and communities are willing to work for them--is good news for every citizen. We all have a stake in quality education, even those of us who don't have children in school. Strong schools build strong communities, and we all want that.

Because parental and community involvement are so important to education, the U.S. Department of Education and the national Partnership for Family Involvement in Education are launching an important initiative to coincide with back-to-school time. It's called "America Goes Back to School: Get Involved!" This is the second year for this initiative, and I would like to invite you and every citizen to participate.

"America Goes Back to School: Get Involved!" asks parents, grandparents, neighbors, educators, students, and all community members to work together to achieve these goals: Making schools safer, more disciplined, and drug-free; putting computers into classrooms; improving reading; making sure academic standards are high; preparing young people for careers; and making college more accessible.

A free kit is available that offers lots if good ideas for achieving these goals in your community. Many of these ideas have succeeded in helping communities like yours to improve their schools. Just call the U.S. Department of Education at 1-800-USA-LEARN and ask for the "America Goes Back to School!" activities kit.

Until it arrives in your mailbox, here are a few tips to get you started.

•Parents: You can make the biggest difference in your children's education. Research shows that when parents are involved in helping their children learn, good things happen. Children get better grades, behave better in class, and are more likely to go to college. So here's what parents can do:

Volunteer for school activities and stay in regular touch with teachers. Read to your very young children, and share books with your older children. Limit TV to no more than two hours on a school night. And talk with your youngsters about the values you want them to have and about the dangers of drugs, alcohol, and tobacco.

•Employers: Remember that quality education is critical to producing a quality workforce. Many businesses offer leave and/or flex-time to their employees to allow them to volunteer in schools and to give parents the time to participate in their children's school activities. These "family-friendly" businesses have been rewarded with higher worker productivity. Business people can also provide work-study opportunities and internships and apprenticeships for students, and help define the skills, knowledge, and work habits needed for success in today's challenging workplace.

•Community members: If you're in a community, cultural, religious, law enforcement, or other neighborhood group or organization, you can make a big difference, too. Work with the schools to offer after-school and summer enrichment programs and homework centers. Become tutors or mentors. Help with adult literacy efforts. Establish computer labs in neighborhood centers. Create safe corridors for children going to school. And encourage your local paper to report positive stories about young people.

•Schools: Schools can't do the job alone these days, and teachers and principals should reach out and make parents and community members their partners. Educators can use the phone, newsletters, home visits, and E-mail to keep parents informed and part of the education team. They can take advantage of community learning resources. They can meet with parents at the beginning of the school year to agree on goals and responsibilities. Most important, they can make parents feel welcome in the school and include them in decision-making.

Southern Illinois University President Ted Sanders has summed it all up best: "If schools are operating at maximum efficiency, they are responsible for about 40 to 50 percent of what a child learns. The other 50 to 60 percent of learning comes from the family and the community."

We're proud to have them. We're also proud to have the many thousands of citizens who have already joined us. And we'll be proud to have you, too, and everyone in your community. Join us and help build a better future for our students, our families, and for all of America.

Johnston Calls For Child Care Tax Breaks

Phil Johnston, Democratic candidate for the 10th Congressional District, is calling for doubling tax breaks for working parents to help offset the cost of day care for their children.

Federal tax deductions of up to $5,000 per child should be granted such parents, Johnston said. Current deductions total $2,400 per child.

He said the tax breaks could be financed by reductions in the $14 billion defense department budget and the $75 billion "corporate welfare" program in which huge federal grants are given to private industries to expand overseas.

"In many homes, both parents must work to meet the heavy financial burden of bringing up children," said Johnston. "Many families are struggling to regain some of the economic stability they forfeited when one or both parents lost jobs or had their take-home pay decreased during the recent recession because of the elimination of overtime and other factors.

"Some parents are paying up to $10,000 a year per child for day care so both parents can work. These costs are swallowing most of the financial gain they anticipated when the second parent went back to work," said former New England Director of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

"These families deserve help," said the candidate, "and the federal government can do it."

If elected, Johnston said he would fight to get these tax breaks for parents of children in day care.

Labor Day Festivities At Marina Bay To Benefit MDA

In conjunction with the Jerry Lewis "Stars Across America!" Labor Day Telephone, the Muscular Dystrophy Association will hold an array of activities on Labor Day weekend at Marina Bay in Squantum to benefit greater Boston area residents who are affected by neuromuscular diseases.

Events kick off Sunday evening from 7 to 11 p.m. with "Stars Across America--Jazz On The Bay," at the Summer House. In addition to a full-course dinner served under the stars and along side the bay, the evening includes an auction, Vegas style games, and dancing to the smooth jazz of Frank Vardaros and his band Future Reference.

Tickets are $30 and can be purchased by calling MDA at (617) 575-1881.

On Monday afternoon, the Marina's boardwalk will come alive as Family Fun Day takes place from noon to 6 p.m. There will be games for all ages, clowns, caricaturists, a variety of concessions, face painting and more. Also, Quincy firefighters will be on hand with a fire truck display and souvenir photos.

Boardwalk admission is free.

Also on Monday, Marina Bay's WaterWorks offers a good time for a good cause. Live entertainment includes the Bermuda Strollers, Country Fever, Ron Alsopp's Tribute To The legends, and a celebrity impersonation act from Ron Bartell DJ and Co. WaterWorks admission is $5, a portion of which will go to the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

"All of these events present a great way to wrap up the summer," said MDA Director David Spellman. "Helping Jerry's Kids has become a Labor Day tradition for so many people, and this is just another way to help."

MDA is a voluntary health agency working to eradicate 40 neuromuscular disorders through worldwide research, medical and health services, and professional and public health education. Almost all of MDA's income is derived for private voluntary contributions, and the Association is consistently ranked as one of the top national voluntary health agencies for the level of income expended on program services.

MDA Seeks Extra Special People

The Muscular Dystrophy Association is currently seeking children of all ages to be Extra Special People (ESP), on Labor Day Weekend, by helping people who are affected by neuromuscular diseases.

Participants are asked to obtain an Extra Special Person kit and collect donations from friends, family, and neighbors. Donations can be turned in at the Marina Bay Family Fun Day in Squantum on Monday, Sept. 2 from noon to 6 p.m. where there will be games, caricaturists, clowns, a fire truck display and more.

"Being an Extra Special Person is a great way for kids to help other kids who don't have healthy muscles. It is a also a good way to become a part of the Jerry Lewis MDA Telethon tradition," said MDA Director David Spellman.

ESP sponsor kits can be obtained by calling the Greater Boston Muscular Dystrophy Association at (617) 575-1881. They can also be picked up at The Quincy Sun, 1372 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

ESP donations go directly to Greater Boston residents affected by neuromuscular disease through research, medical and health services, and professional and public health education.

Almost all of MDA's income is derived from private voluntary contributions, and the association is consistently ranked as one of the top national volunteer health agencies for the level of income expended on program services.

Part Of 'Stars Across America' Celebration

MDA Labor Day Telethon Tradition To Expand With 'Jazz On The Bay'

The Muscular Dystrophy Association, known for its Jerry Lewis "Stars Across America!" Labor Day Telethon, is offering a new way to wrap up a summer of fun by helping others this year.

MDA's first annual "Stars Across America—Jazz On The Bay" celebration, a dinner dance and auction will be held at Marina Bay's Summer House on Sunday, Sept. 1 from 7 to 11 p.m.

In addition to a full course dinner served under the stars and alongside the bay, the evening will include an auction, Vegas style games, and dancing to the smooth jazz of Frank Vardaros and his band Future Reference.

"Stars Across America—Jazz On The Bay" tickets are $30 and can be purchased by calling The Greater Boston Muscular Dystrophy Association at 575-1881. Visa and Mastercard are accepted. Advanced tickets are required. Proceeds benefit local individuals affected by any of 40 neuromuscular diseases.

The Muscular Dystrophy Association is a voluntary health agency working to defeat 40 neuromuscular diseases through programs of world wide research, comprehensive medical and health services, and far-reaching professional and public health education. Almost all of MDA's income is derived from private contributions, and the Association is consistently ranked as one of the top national voluntary health agencies for the level of income expended on program services.

REAL ESTATE MARKET

Bay State Housing Market Posts Strong Gains

Sales of detached single-family homes and condominiums each rose by 32 percent during the second quarter of 1996 versus the same three-month period last year, as attractive interest rates, stable home prices, and escalating rental rates in eastern Massachusetts enticed a steady stream of buyers into the state's housing market this spring, a report released recently by the Massachusetts Association of Realtors (MAR) states.

The sharp quarterly increase also reflects the substantial impact the state's Title 5 septic regulations had on home sales last spring, a factor which helped Massachusetts record the largest increase in seasonally-adjusted home sales of any state in the country during the second quarter, according to data compiled by the National Association of Realtors in its latest quarterly report on housing activity in the U.S.

"The impact from Title 5 is obvious," said MAR President Laura Shifrin, pointing to monthly figures for the quarter which showed detached single-family home sales activity increased year-to-year 13.4 percent in June, 23.8 in May and 71.5 in April. The Commonwealth's revised septic system regulations took effect on March 31, 1995.

Still, buyers are responding to today's favorable interest rates and stable prices to enter the market. "Today's prices are what make the current market so appealing," said Shifrin. "Single-family home prices are nearly unchanged from a year ago, up ever so modestly. Yet, the rental housing market is tight right now, and that's forced rent prices up by as much as 10 percent over the past year in some areas. With interest rates still very reasonable, home ownership is now more affordable than renting for many who have the down payment."

Notably, the chances of losing the mortgage interest deduction through implementation of a flat tax appear less likely now, and that's helped to increase interest from buyers too, Shifrin added.

Data from the MAR report shows 12,052 detached single-family homes were sold in the Bay State during the second quarter of 1996 versus 9,092 during the same period one year ago, an increase of 32.6 percent. Also, condominiums sales rose 32.1 percent, from 1,814 units sold during the second quarter of 1995 to 2,397 units sold during the same quarter this year.

Regionally, during the second quarter, detached single-family home sales improved in all areas of the state compared to the same period last year, with sales growth equal to or greater than the statewide increase reported in greater Boston (+32.3 percent), the Central region (+35.6 percent), South Shore (+39.6 percent), Northeast (+43.1 percent), and on Cape Cod and the Islands (45 percent). In the condo market, sales rose in every region except the Southeast, where they were flat. Significant gains occurred on the Cape and the Islands, the Northeast, Central and South Shore regions, where sales rose 39, 41.7, 44.1 and 50 percent respectively.

Additionally, activity for the first half of the year mirrored second quarter results in much of the state, with detached single-family home sales up 24.3 percent statewide versus the same period last year, and sales of condos 28.2 percent higher in the first six months of 1996 versus January to June 1995. Detached home sales rose a minimum of 21 percent in six of seven regions, as only the West saw a decrease, falling 0.3 percent. Meanwhile, condominium sales improved everywhere but the Southeast, as volume there fell by four units. Increase varied from 4.3 percent in the West to 46.1 percent on the Cape Cod and the Islands.

Two From Century 21 Named State Licensed Residential Members

The Massachusetts Board of Real Estate Appraisers announces that Phyllis Rudnick and Arthur Foley, both of Century 21 Annex Realty, Inc., in Quincy, have been awarded the status of State Licensed Residential Member.

The Massachusetts Board of Real Estate Appraisers (MBREA) was founded in 1934 for the purpose of providing those in need of expert appraisal services with qualified people specializing in the field. Today, it is one of the largest statewide appraisal organizations in the country, with a diverse and active membership.

The MBREA grants two real estate appraisal designations--the MRA (General Designation) and RA (Residential Designation)--and sponsors several other membership categories. As a result of its stringent membership requirements, broad range o educational programs and its Code of Ethics and Standards of Professional Practice and Conduct, the MBREA continues to grow in size and status.

The MBREA enjoys wide recognition as an organization of highly competent real estate professionals and is also active on the national scene, through its efforts as a member of the Advisory Council of the Appraisal foundation in Washington, D.C.

HINTS FOR HOME BUYERS

How Much House Can You Afford?

(NAPS)—There are many important questions prospective homebuyers should ask, such as "How much house can I afford?"

"What are the different types of loans available?" "Should I finance my home for 15 or 30 years?"

To answer these questions, first you need to find a good source of information. One useful source of information now educating home buyers about their options is the HomeSide Lending web site on the Internet.

The web site's helpful glossary defines many unfamiliar terms involved in buying a home, while a products and helpful information page explains how the home financing process works and which options might be best for you.

A pre-qualification worksheet can help you figure out exactly what you can afford.

According to HomeSide Lending, a mortgage lender qualifies a prospective borrower by looking at income and debts.

Under most product guidelines, about 28 percent of a family's gross monthly income may be used for the payment of your mortgage and up to 36 percent of their gross monthly income may be used for total monthly debts. Additionally, there are many programs available for first time homebuyers that make it easier to qualify for a mortgage.

Many mortgage options exist and learning about what's available may save you money.

For example, a 15-year mortgage can save you thousands of dollars in interest payments but a 30-year mortgage will probably have lower payments and can qualify you for a higher loan amount.

Information offered on a helpful new web site can help clear up the confusion about financing a new home and may help home buyers save money.

In certain situations a fixed rate mortgage is ideal and in others, an adjustable rate mortgage is better. Certain homebuyers may also qualify for government-insured loans.

How much will your monthly mortgage payment be? The web site makes it easy to figure out if it's an amount you can afford.

HomeSide's mortgage rates and payment table are updated each business day. The calculator can give you monthly principal and interest payments for a variety of loan programs.

For a limited time, HomeSide is offering homebuyers $300 off their closing costs when they apply for their mortgage through their Internet home page.

To find out more, visit the HomeSide Lending's Internet address at www.-homeloan.com.

Legion Baseball

Despite Key Departures

Morrisette Eyes State Championship

THE MORRISETTE AMERICAN LEGION baseball team, led by first-year head coach Mark Kelleher, will return six starters to next season's squad, including four 16-year-old players. Front row (from left): Mike Kenney, Tim Zaniboni, Joe McCarthy, Erik Fagan, Mike Russo, Chad Feetham and Jeff Russell. Back row (from left):: Kelleher, manager Ray Cattaneo, statistician Chris Dolan, Paul Marnikovic, Eric Wirtz, Ray Cattaneo, Jim Cunio, Tom Cunio, Ryan Herlihy, Matt McLoughlin, Brian Beaton, assistant coach Tom Balzano and athletic office Gus Russo. By LIAM FITZGERALD

The state championship.

That is where Mark Kelleher, head coach of the Morrisette American Legion baseball team, expects his squad to be next summer.

Following a first round exit from the Legion playoffs last month, Kelleher is putting the past behind him and focusing on the 1997 campaign.

"I'm already looking forward to next season," said Kelleher, who recently completed his first season as head coach. "We want to bring Morrisette back to where it belongs, which is the state finals. I don't expect anything less."

If Morrisette (11-9-2) is to return to prominence next year and advance to the states, it will be without five players who played key roles on this year's team.

The team loses its top starting pitcher (Jeff Russell), starting catcher (Tim Zaniboni), a reliever and starter (Joe McCarthy), an outfielder-infielder (Tom Cunio) and a first baseman-designated hitter-pitcher (Mike Kenney).

"They were a great bunch of kids," said manager Ray Cattaneo. "I know I'll miss them, not just as players, but their personalities as well. These kids seem like they're my own and in the summertime they are my own.

"McCarthy had some great games, especially that one against Needham, when he should've got some breaks and won the game. When he has his control, he's tough to hit. Kenney was our DH, and he hit the ball hard. We'll miss him, because we used him as a starter and reliever, too.

"Russell was our No. 1 pitcher of the year. He made the hitters hit the ball and didn't walk anyone. He was a tough pitcher all year. Tom did a good job for us for three years, played some good baseball. Tim played first last season and caught for us because we needed a catcher. You need someone like that, to be a leader out there, keep the others alive, alert on every pitch."

Kelleher, who looks forward to seeing the 18's play varsity ball at the collegiate level, said that Zaniboni and McCarthy were enrolled at Mass Maritime Academy, Russell was heading to Suffolk University, Cunio was going to Bridgewater State College and Kenney was attending Salve Regina in Rhode Island this fall.

The good news for Morrisette is that six starters return, including four 16-year-olds, who have two years of eligibility remaining. Pitcher Chad Feetham and infielder-pitcher Paul Marnikovic, both 18's this season, will play next season as well, said Cattaneo.

"Marnikovic and Feetham have an extra year, because they didn't turn 19 before August 1," said Cattaneo, who along with Kelleher, is optimistic about Morrisette's chances in '97.

"We had a young team, with four 16's in the lineup and two 17's, so it looks promising for next year," said Cattaneo. "We'll have some guys for two more years. We'll have the players back, the whole infield and outfield and the back-up catcher, [Mike] Russo.

"(Erik) Fagan was our best ballplayer the last two weeks of the season. He just started to get his confidence up. Matt McLoughlin hit the ball all year long and looked tough some games then looked great in some others. Ray (Cattaneo) will continue to improve in both hitting and pitching. Jim Cunio played great at first, but his hitting tailed off near the end of the season, so hopefully he'll bounce back and hit well for us next season."

Babe Ruth

Quincy Reaches Finals

In the championship game of the fourth annual Ray Cattaneo Tournament, Hingham's Babe Ruth team rallied for an 8-7 victory over Quincy Saturday night at Adams Field.

Trailing 7-5 in the seventh inning, Hingham scored three runs on defensive miscues by Quincy and held off the defending champions to claim the championship.

Hingham had jumped out to a 5-0 lead before Quincy came back with seven unanswered runs. Quincy shortstop Tommy Daly, who was named the tournament's outstanding player, and teammates Pat Dolbere, Billy Walker and Sean Manning led the comeback. Chris Bregoli pitched well for Quincy, but fell victim to poor defense behind him.

To advance to the championship, Quincy edged Weymouth, 5-4, behind the complete game four-hitter tossed by Michael Shaw. Daly, who finished the game with three hits, had the big hits to lead Quincy offensively.

"He was tremendous," said Quincy coach and tournament director Rich Bryan of Daly's performance. "He had a great tournament, playing shortstop and second base flawlessly."

Quincy had lost to Hingham Friday night, so the host team had to defeat Hingham twice to clinch the championship. Also losing Friday night was Sanborn (N.H.), who was knocked out of the tournament by Weymouth.

Thursday night, Sanborn (N.H.) eliminated Randolph and South Boston was ousted by Weymouth. Wednesday night, Quincy edged South Boston, 7-6.

Bryan, who was pleased with how the tournament went in its fourth year, added that he plans on inviting more teams to participate in the future.

"The tournament was definitely a success, so we're looking to expand it next year."

The opinion of those who attended the tournament was that Bryan and his staff put on an excellent tournament for the fourth consecutive year.

Quincy, North Football Practice Underway

The Quincy High School and North Quincy High School varsity football teams begin preparation for the upcoming season with three days of conditioning starting today (Thursday).

Under second-year head coach Pete Chella, Quincy begins double session practices Monday behind the high school at Faxon 1 and 2.

North Quincy, under the direction of 14th-year head coach Ken McPhee, begin double session practices Monday at Cavanaugh Field, across from the Atlantic Middle School.

The Presidents have a scrimmage against Boston College High School scheduled for Friday, Sept. 6 at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Quincy, which finished 4-6 last season, opens at non-Old Colony League opponent Bishop Stang Saturday, Sept. 14 at 1 p.m.

The Presidents' other non-conference game is against Lynn English Sept. 20.

North Quincy, 3-7 a year ago, begins its campaign at non-OCL foe Stoughton Friday, Sept. 20 at 7 p.m. North lost to Stoughton, 13-7, in last season's opener.

The Red Raiders' other non-conference game is against Don Bosco Oct. 26.

The Old Colony League opponents for both schools consist of Falmouth, Plymouth South, Barnstable, Weymouth, Silver Lake, Bridgewater-Raynham and Taunton.

Lights Installation Begins At Faxon Park Field

The Quincy Park Department will take a major step toward completing the Faxon Park renovation project with the installation of lights at the upper ballfield, which began yesterday (Wednesday).

Four 60' poles and two 70' foot poles will be affixed with 42 light fixtures to illuminate the field for men's softball. The 1500 watt lights will be official tournament level, providing 50 candle power in the infield and 30 candle power in the outfield.

In addition to the expansion and lighting of the upper field, there will be a new Little League field constructed by the park's entrance.

A new picnic area, two bocce courts, two horseshoe courts, and a roller-blading facility will also be added to the park. The work is being done under a $240,000 appropriation by Mayor James Sheets that was passed by the City Council earlier this year.

Faxon Park was bequeathed to the City of Quincy in 1885 by Henry H. Faxon. In 1919, his son, Henry M. Faxon, donated an additional 20 acres to bring the park to its current 57 acre size.

North Quincy High Soccer Practice Starts Monday

staff, which carried the team most of the season, will have to fill the holes left by the departure of Russell, McCarthy and Kenney, which Cattaneo believes can be accomplished.

"We lost some pitching, so we need to beef it up for next year. I think we'll do that with (Mark) Kelly, (Ryan) Herlihy and my grandson (Ray Cattaneo)," said Cattaneo. "They should handle themselves well in that league next season."

The experience the 16's received this season facing the best pitching Zone 6 had to offer will help them in the long run.

"Playing this year makes it less difficult to face the top pitchers like (Weymouth's Jay) Estano or (Needham's Mike) Smith, since there was no one better than them," said Cattaneo. "It won't be overwhelming to them next season. It's tough for a 16-year-old to try and hit someone like Smith, who throws around 90 miles an hour. Gradually, he may be able to, but not right away."

What plagued this year's squad, Cattaneo and Kelleher agreed, was the lack of timely hitting, knocking in a run to tie the game or take the lead.

"Some of the 16's and 17's have to pick it up offensively," said Cattaneo. "We just didn't have the hitting this season when we needed it. We couldn't get the big hit to break open a game or just take the lead.

"Maybe some of the younger guys tightened up, which will happen when you put too much pressure on yourself to produce. It's a team game. You have to go up to the plate relaxed and confident that you'll get the bat on the ball."

Said Kelleher: "We just couldn't get a clutch hit. If we got five or six more clutch hits, we might won some close ball games down the stretch."

What impressed Kelleher was how he and the players "were on the same page" as the season winded down.

"We didn't finish great, but I felt better about how we approached the game as a team," said Kelleher. "The guys were staying loose and having fun, giving 100 percent every game. I knew this would be a learning year for both myself and the players, and they seemed to adapt to me and vice versa as the season went on."

The rookie head coach credited Cattaneo and first-year assistant coach Tom Balzano with helping him adjust to the position and lending assistance to make his job easier.

"It's nice to have Ray here, who's been around so long, to give me guidance and let me and Tommy take the bull by horns," said Kelleher. "That's how you learn. This year, I learned a lot about the game and the kids, and I plan on learning from the positives and the negatives to help get Morrisette back in the states.

"I owe a lot of thanks and a lot of credit to Tom, who worked with the catchers and with other positions and did a great job. It's like having another head coach. It's good to have someone who knows about hitting, too. He's a hard-working assistant coach."

How does Cattaneo, who has been involved in Morrisette baseball for 27 years, think his young coaching staff handled their first season at the helm?

"Mark and Tom did a good job," said Cattaneo. "As the season went on, I let them handle things themselves and make the decisions. I didn't want to get too involved or critical, so they might lose their confidence.

"They worked hard, they like the kids and they want to help them succeed. They have to keep the kids loose, have fun and the wins will come. Both of them are dedicated to the program, and anyone that dedicated and committed is going to do well."

Loses Close Bout At O'Malley's Show

West Knock Down Not Enough

Quincy's Jeff West, who knocked down New Bedford's Paul Delgado in the first round, could not finish him off and lost a close fight Saturday night at the Braintree Armory.

West's fight was part of the 16-bout amateur card presented by O'Malley's Boxing Gymnasium of Quincy, 1452 Hancock St.

A Golden Gloves champion, West landed a solid left that stunned Delgado and dropped him to one knee in the opening round. Delgado came out firing in the second round, but West ducked and avoided a number of Delgado's wild punches.

In the third, West himself hit the canvas, a victim of Delgado's increased aggressiveness. Delgado came right after his opponent, peppering him with combinations and keeping West off balance. The judges then awarded the victory to Delgado, who rebounded from the first round knockdown and dominated the end of the fight.

Quincy's Nick Cyr was scheduled to fight on the card, but Dan O'Malley of O'Malley's Gym said Cyr's opponent backed out of the fight. Dorchester's Jim March, fresh off a victory in the 178-pound division at the Ohio State Fair, was also set to fight before his foe backed out as well, O'Malley said.

In earlier action, middleweight Matt Carey of Abington, who trains at O'Malley's, triumphed over Andy Ruprecht of Halifax at 126 pounds.

Mike Morganelli, a 9-year-old from Whitman, dominated Jacob Medeiros of New Bedford at 60 pounds. David Dirksmeier of Weymouth appeared to be in control against Holyoke's Luis Flores, even knocking out his opponent's mouthpiece, but the judges awarded the win to Flores. Both Morganelli and Dirksmeier, a 147-pounder, fight out of O'Malley's.

Tom Attardo of South Boston knocked down his opponent, Holyoke's Larry Morales, in the first round on his way to an easy win. Lynn's Teddy Nichols, overpowered East Boston's Dave Gleason the entire fight en route to the victory. Attardo, a 147-pounder, and Nichols, a heavyweight, train at O'Malley's.

Scituate's Adam Frazer met a tough Holyoke fighter, Carlos Cancel, and dropped a close decision. The DeGloria brothers of Hyde Park, John and Mike, both emerged victorious with second round TKO's.

The South End's Mike Bernal dominated the first round of his battle against Fitchburg's Elio Rodriguez but Rodriguez rallied to take the victory. Frazer (112 pounds), Bernal (130 pounds) and the DeGlorias all train at O'Malley's.

A CALL TO EVACUATE

Any time that an automobile's air conditioner loses all its refrigerant or if the system is opened for any reason, it should be evacuated before adding more refrigerant. This means that air and moisture must be pumped out of the system. Otherwise, air left in the system increases pressure and reduces cooling efficiency, while left-over moisture reacts with the refrigerant to form hydrochloric acid which eats away at system components. Moisture left in the system may also freeze to block the flow of refrigerant and temporarily shut down cooling. By attaching a vacuum pump to the system and running it for at least 30 minutes, all moisture in the system can be boiled off and evacuated from the system. This procedure requires specialized equipment.

Hint: The air conditioning system cannot be properly evacuated by using the car's compressor, which can lead to damage of the compressor.

Rely on our ASE certified technicians at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO to service your vehicle on a regular basis and to repair any special problems you are having with your air conditioner or other systems. Learn for yourself why so many of your friends and neighbors turn to us to keep their family cars in top condition. For the finest service in town, we're here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

The touch in a handshake can mean "Hello," "Good-bye," "Congratulation," "Sympathy" and a lot of other things. Because man has a soul, his touch differs from the pawing touch of an animal. Man combines the touch of the physical with the spiritual. The loving touch of a mother's hand can ease the pain of a child's bruise. A slap can inflict pain physically and spiritually.

There are contrasts in both the physical and spiritual touch. Some are pleasant. Some are painful. In a spiritual sense, everybody touches the lives of others everyday by what we say... what we do... how we act. The touch on others can be good or bad. It can bring a touch of happiness or unhappiness. It can bring a touch of moderation and mercy; a touch of harshness or hatred. All of us touch someone with nearly everything we say or do everyday.

And, incidentally, we sometimes wonder how - or if - the weekly thoughts you read here, reach out to "Touch you" as we hope they do?...

After Shaking President's Hand

Former Quincy Man Dies In Clinton Cargo Plane Crash

A Quincy native was among nine people who died when a military transport plane crashed in Wyoming Saturday.

Thomas Stevens III was on board the C-130 transport plane that slammed into a mountain shortly after takeoff from Jackson Hole Airport.

Stevens, who turned 21 Friday, stood in front of the plane and shook President Clinton's hand just before boarding.

Air Force Staff Sgt. Jeremy O'Bryan said Stevens had been in charge of securing a vehicle used by Clinton's staff into the cargo bay and for giving instructions to a Secret Service agent, the plane's only passenger.

Born in Boston's Beth Israel Hospital, Tommy Stevens he grew up in Quincy and enjoyed riding his bike along Wollaston Beach, attending Massachusetts Field School and playing pool with a family friend, Fred Fraser of Quincy. When Fraser died in October, Tommy's grandmother, Florence Stevens, sent Fraser's pool stick to her grandson.

After his parents divorced, Tommy's father, Thomas Stevens II, took custody of him and moved with him to Rockland, where the boy finished grade school.

Tommy and his father then moved to the Orlando area, where Tommy graduated from high school and decided to follow in his father's footsteps and joined the Air Force about a year ago.

News of Tommy's death came on the same day the family had scheduled a Mass at St. Ann's Church in Wollaston to commemorate the anniversary of the death of Tommy's grandfather, Thomas Stevens III. Instead, the Mass was said in memory of Thomas Stevens I and Thomas Stevens III.

Sheila A. Nowick, 61

A private memorial service for Sheila Ann (Murphy) Nowick, 61, of Quincy, was held yesterday (Wednesday) in Osterville.

Mrs. Nowick died Aug. 15 at Deaconess Hospital, Boston, after a long illness.

An administrative assistant at the Boston office of Putnam Securities, she was born in Boston and lived most of her life in Quincy.

She is survived by three sons, Matthew Nowick of Pittsburgh, Pa., Henry Nowick of Quincy and Andrew Nowick of Provincetown; a daughter, Teresa Rideout of Granby; two sisters, Mary Paiva of Woburn and Patricia Burgess of Bethel, Conn.; and three grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were by the Frank H. Carr Funeral Home, Charlestown.

Concourse To Open In 1998

Furniture store and other business and apartments once stood. The building was destroyed by fire in 1986.

Other property expected to be involved is a Hancock St. building owned by the Agnitti family where Wings Express, Optical Factory and Fairy Nails are located and the Quincy Legion Post on Mechanic St.

Daniel Flynn, downtown businessman and president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association called the six months early start on the concourse "good news."

"We are very excited because it means the roadway will be completed earlier and give us better access to the downtown," he said.

"We have a lot of other positive things going on, too: the Hancock Park health care facility, the Quincy Promenade project, the additions to the library and to the YMCA.

"And with the concourse, it will all come together for a vibrant Quincy Center."

Sanger Center Honors Three Individuals, Organizations

The Esther R. Sanger Center for Compassion in Quincy recently honored three individuals and organizations for their contributions to the center's program partners at its annual board meeting.

Receiving awards were: Kenneth Nelson of Covenant Congregational Church, which was awarded the Church of the Year Award for donating space in its facility to serve hot lunches; Don Laing of American Medical Response of Massachusetts, which received the Business of the Year Award for providing turkey dinners for 400 families in the Quincy area last Thanksgiving and Christmas; and Stuart Van Tyne, who was awarded the Volunteer of the Year Award for the Mary Martha Learning Center.

The Sanger Center is a private, non-profit, compassionate ministry and human service provider. It is named after Esther Sanger, who began feeding hungry people in front of City Hall in 1978 and eventually became the founder of the Quincy Crisis Center, which serves the community with a crisis hotline, free hot meals for the homeless and shut-ins, and emergency food distribution.

The Crisis Center's program partner, the Mary Martha Learning Center, is a residential educational program where homeless families, primarily women with young children, receive training in life skills designed to help them achieve positive, long-term changes in their lives.

Securing Your Apartment Or Condominium

The following tips can make your home more burglary-resistant.

• All exterior doors should be checked for adequate security.

• After moving in, ask the management to have a licensed locksmith rekey all exterior door locks in your home.

• Deadbolt locks should be installed on exterior doors. Do not master key these locks to management keys because that defeats the purpose of these locks. If necessary, keys in sealed envelopes should be given to managers for emergency use only.

• Secure all sliding glass doors and windows regardless of which floor you live on.

• Always lock your doors and windows when you leave home - even for just a few minutes.

• Demand adequate lighting for stairwells, laundry rooms, parking lots and the building's exterior.

• Have shrubs trimmed so they can't conceal burglars or attackers.

• When taking vacations or trips tell trusted neighbors of your plans and where you can be reached. Have newspapers and mail picked up. Stop other deliveries.

• Be cautious of door-to-door solicitors who want to give you something for nothing. Never let a stranger into your home.

• Women living along should not use their first initial and last name on mail boxes and telephone listings. Using a listing like "The Smith Family" gives a potential thief the idea that there is more than one person at this address.

• Elevators are potential places for assault. If the building has an elevator, make sure the ground floor elevator is well lighted and visible from the street or manager's office. Before entering an elevator see who is already onboard. Don't get on if a person already on looks suspicious.

Michael Kane Presents Scouting Award To Squantum School

Michael Kane of Boy Scout Troop 61 in Quincy recently presented a Scouting Award to the Squantum Elementary School.

The children of the school assisted Michael with his Eagle Scout project, a citywide collection of more than 2,000 books from most of the city's elementary schools for distribution to various centers. The Squantum School won the contest for donating the most books.

Michael, who presented the award to Squantum School Principal Donald Houghton, was accompanied by Scoutmaster Joseph Bissanti and fellow Scouts including his brother Patrick, Jeff Stevens, Joe Kavida and Steve Aldoupolis.

LEGAL NOTICE

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
SALE OF REAL ESTATE UNDER M.G.L. 183A:6

By virtue of a Judgement and an Order of the Norfolk Superior Court (Docket No. 95-02398), in favor of TRUSTEES OF THE SUNNYLEA AT QUINCY SQUARE CONDOMINIUM TRUST against BONNIE M. CROWLEY, et. al. establishing a lien pursuant to M.G.L. 183A:6 on the real estate known as UNIT 207, of the SUNNYLEA AT QUINCY SQUARE CONDOMINIUM for the purposes of satisfying such lien, the real estate is scheduled for Public Auction at 12:00 O'CLOCK NOON ON THE 18TH DAY OF SEPTEMBER, A.D. 1996, at 195 THOMAS S. BURGIN PARKWAY, QUINCY, MASSACHUSETTS. The premises to be sold are more particularly described as follows:

DESCRIPTION: "Unit 207 of the SUNNYLEA AT QUINCY SQUARE CONDOMINIUM, created by Master Deed dated November 25, 1987, and recorded with Norfolk Registry of Deeds in Book 7816, Page 571, together with an undivided 1.765% interest appertaining to said Unit in the common areas and facilities of said Condominium and subject to and with the benefit of the provisions of said Master Deed hereinabove referred to. The Post Office Address of the Condominium is 195 Thomas S. Burgin Parkway, Quincy, Norfolk County, Massachusetts 02169. The Unit is conveyed without the exclusive easement appurtenant thereto for the use of a parking space.

The said Unit is conveyed with the benefit of and subject to: (a) the provisions of Massachusetts General Laws, Chapter 183A as the same may now or hereafter be amended, (b) the Master Deed and any amendments thereto, (c) the SUNNYLEA AT QUINCY SQUARE CONDOMINIUM TRUST and amendments thereto, the by-laws and all matters of record stated or referred to in the Master Deed, as completely as if each were fully set forth herein, (d) further subject to real estate taxes attributable to said Unit for the current year as are not now due and payable.

The Unit shall be used for residential purposes only and is subject to such other restrictions on its use as are set forth in the Master Deed.

The said Grantee(s) by the acceptance and recording of this Deed agree to assume and perform all conditions of this Deed and the said Master Deed as completely as if each were fully set forth herein.

The Unit referred to above is laid out as shown on the unit plan attached to the Grantors Unit Deed, which is a copy of a portion of the Floor Plans filed with the Master Deed and to which is affixed a verified statement in the form provided In Massachusetts General Laws, Chapter 183A, Section 9, and said Unit contains the area shown on the plan recorded herewith."

For title see unit deed to Bonnie M. Crowley dated February 16, 1988, and recorded with the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 7885, Page 493.

In the event of a typographical error or omission contained in this publication, the description of the premises contained in said Unit Deed shall control.

TERMS OF SALE:

1. A non-refundable deposit payable in cash, certified or bank check in the amount of five thousand dollars ($5,000.00) for the unit shall be payable at the Auction.

2. The balance of the purchase price is to be paid within thirty (30) days of the auction.

3. An Auctioneer's Release Deed will be issued to the purchaser, upon payment of the balance of the purchase price, within thirty (30) days of the auction. The Deed shall convey the premises subject to, and with the benefit of, all restrictions, easements, improvements, outstanding tax titles, municipal or other public taxes, assessments, liens, or claims in the nature of liens, and existing encumbrances of record senior to the lien hereby being satisfied, whether or not reference to such restrictions, easements, improvements, outstanding tax titles, municipal or other public taxes, assessments, liens or claims in the nature of liens or encumbrances is made in the deed.

4. Additionally, and not by way of limitation, the sale shall be subject to and with the benefit of any and all tenants, tenancies, and occupants, if any.

5. No representation is or shall be made as to any amount of taxes due and outstanding.

6. The successful bidder shall pay the future condominium common charges commencing with the date of the auction.

7. No representation is or shall be as to any other mortgages, liens, or encumbrances of record.

8. No representation is or shall be made as to the condition of the Premises or the Condominium. The Premises shall be sold "as is".

9. Other items, if any, shall be announced at the sale.

10. The sale is subject to and in accordance with the Judgement and Order, a copy of which may be obtained from the seller's counsel, Attorney Janet Oulousian Aronson, Marcus, Goodman, Emmer & Brooks, P.C., 45 Braintree Hill Park, Suite #107, Braintree, MA 02184, (617) 843-5000.

Citizens Police Academy Starts Sept. 12

The Quincy Police Department will sponsor its fifth Citizens Police Academy beginning Thursday, Sept. 12 and running through Thursday, Nov. 14.

Classes are held at the Quincy Police Academy, 1 Sea St., second floor, from 6:30 to 10 p.m. each Thursday evening.

Some of the topics covered include: police stress, criminal laws, search and seizure, patrol function, weapons and tactics, court procedure, drug investigations, police training, crime scene scenarios and police training.

Successful candidates will also participate in a four hour ride-along in a police cruiser, learn about the use of radar, and have an opportunity to fire police weapons.

Applicants must be at least 21 years of age and a Quincy resident. They must also be available for all 10 sessions in order to receive a certificate of completion. All applicants will be screened for past criminal history.

For further information, contact project director, Officer Bob Hanna at 745-5719 or Lt. Vincent Flaherty at 745-5722.

Applications are available at Quincy Police Headquarters and are due no later than Friday, Aug. 30.

'Excellent, Professional Teamwork'

Mullen Commends Officers For Actions In Hostage Incident

Police Chief Francis Mullen has commended a group of Quincy Police Officers who successfully resolved a recent hostage situation.

In a written statement, Mullen recounted what happened.

On Aug. 21, 1996, Officers Anthony Balzano and Donald Burke were dispatched to 119 Bayview Ave. to assist on a call that a woman was being held hostage by a man with a knife. Prior to the call for service, an MBTA bus driver stopped Officer Balzano and reported that a man had kidnapped a female passenger from the bus and that he was holding a knife on her.

"Sgt. Charles Middendorf arrived and immediately gained entry to the residence. The suspect threatened the Officers to 'stay back or I'll kill her.' Lt. Neil MacDonald arrived at the scene and tried to negotiate with the suspect. The suspect kept the knife to the throat of the victim; however, he allowed Lt. MacDonald to stay.

"After a couple of hours, Lt. MacDonald convinced the suspect to allow a State Police Sergeant into the house. The suspect agreed (as long as he wasn't armed) and Sgt. Steve Pugsley joined Lt. MacDonald in trying to convince the suspect to give himself up and surrender the victim. The suspect, fearing for his own safety if under arrest, was told that he would be treated professionally.

"Captain Frederick Laracy, Captain Robert Salvaggio, Lt. Thomas Casey, Lt. William Falco, and Officer Francis Roche were at the scene, and after several tension-filled hours, it was apparent that the suspect was not going to surrender so Captain Laracy, Lt. MacDonald, and Sgt. Pugsley devised a plan to rescue the victim and subdue the suspect.

"Under the direction of Captain Laracy, the contingent of Quincy Police Officers on the scene joined in and the plan to rescue the victim was effective and nobody was injured. The successful conclusion of this dangerous situation was the result of excellent professional teamwork by our personnel and the assisting State Police and MBTA agencies.

"Special recognition must be given to Lt. Neil MacDonald for his

Projected Enrollment 8,730 Students

School Bells To Ring Sept. 4

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

School bells will ring for Quincy Public School students in grades 1-12 on Wednesday, Sept. 4, School Supt. Eugene Creedon announces.

Next Wednesday will be a full day for students in grades 1-12 and lunch will be served.

Kindergarten orientation days will be held Wednesday, Sept. 4 through Friday, Sept. 6. Kindergarten classes will start Wednesday, Sept. 11.

School hours are the same as they were when school closed in June, Creedon said. See the chart accompanying this story for specific hours.

This year's enrollment could be as high as 8,730 students, according to Creedon. That figure would represent a slight increase over last year's enrollment of 8,696 students.

"There could be a chance that we might be about the same as last year. Or we could possibly be as high as 8,730 students," Creedon said, adding new students at the kindergarten and high school levels could impact the final enrollment.

"We'll know much better in a couple of weeks," the superintendent said.

The school system will operate under its "traditional calendar," of 185 days, Creedon said. One day is set aside for teacher orientation on Tuesday, Sept. 3. Four days are earmarked as snow days. The remaining 180 days are actual school days mandated by the state.

The number of snow days, despite last winter's heavy snowfall, has not been increased. Last year, school was canceled 10 days and those days were made up at the end of June.

"Parents were surveyed and there was overwhelming support for the 'traditional calendar' and therefore we've built in the same number of snow days," Creedon said.

The last day of school is scheduled for June 25. However, weather could shorten or lengthen the school year.

For instance, if the city does not utilize any of its snow days, then the last day of school would be June 18, Creedon said. Conversely, if inclement winter weather forces school to be canceled for more than four days, then school would end later than June 25.

Creedon said he is hoping for a mild winter, one which would hardly impact the current school calen-

Quincy College Anniversary, Inaugural Events Begin Sept. 6

Quincy College will kick off a series of 40th anniversary and inaugural events Friday, Sept. 6.

Dr. Jeremiah Ryan, who was named president of the school by the college's Board of Governors earlier this year, said he is looking forward to the activities.

"The inaugural committee composed of staff, community people, students, alumni and Board of Governors members did a wonderful job putting everything together," he said.

Ryan noted that he thinks a Presidential Campaign Forum scheduled for Oct. 29 is "particularly appropriate because it's an election year" and said a scheduled series of Domestic Violence Forums also is fitting because "70 percent of our students are women."

Ryan said he is glad inauguration events scheduled for Nov. 1 and 2--which will conclude the series--will not be the focal point of the events.

"There's a lot of things going on, and the inaugural is just a small part of it," he said. "That's the way I wanted it."

The schedule:

Friday, Sept. 6: Chancellor Sherry Penney of UMass Boston will speak on "The Future of Higher Education" at 1 p.m. at United First Parish Church, 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Friday, Oct. 4: A student/faculty softball game will be held at 12:30 p.m. and a clambake at 2:30 p.m., underwritten by the Student Government Association, will be held at Pageant Field. Also, a Legion Band Concert, underwritten by the Inaugural Committee, will be held at the Ruth Gordon Amphitheatre.

JEREMIAH RYAN

Saturday, Oct. 5: The Plymouth Philharmonic Orchestra will perform its opening night from 8 to 10 p.m. to be followed by a wine and cheese reception at the college's Plymouth campus at 11 North St.

Thursday, Oct. 10: A Domestic Violence Community Forum will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. at Quincy College. A workshop will address domestic violence issues, elder and child abuse, and neglect.

Thursday, Oct. 17: A Domestic Violence Community Forum will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. at Quincy College. A workshop will include discussion on conflict resolution and confrontation skills, peer and community mediation, and positive parenting.

Friday, Oct. 18: A College Community Meeting entitled "Teaching and Learning," recognizing the school's emeritus faculty, will be held at 1:30 p.m.

Saturday, Oct. 19: An "Octoberfest" featuring educational events, entertainment, food and more will be held all day at Quincy College.

Tuesday, Oct. 22: A Plymouth Campus Council Meeting will be held at 4 p.m. to celebrate the history and progress of the Plymouth campus.

Wednesday, Oct. 23: A Total Quality Management Seminar featuring methods to improve customer satisfaction and organizational effectiveness will be held from 8 a.m. to noon. The event will be presented by the college's Quality Center and the South Shore Chamber of Commerce. Stephen Konver, president of Lockheed Martin Defense Systems, will give the keynote address.

Thursday, Oct. 24: A Domestic Violence Community Forum will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. It will include a dramatic performance of "The Yellow Dress" concerning teen dating violence followed by discussion. Norfolk County District Attorney William Delahunt will give the keynote address.

Monday, Oct. 28 to Friday, Nov. 1: Through a program entitled "You Matter," free coffee and refreshments will be available for evening students at the Quincy and Plymouth campuses.

Tuesday, Oct. 29: A Presidential Campaign Forum and Memorabilia Exhibit and Reception will be held. The time will be announced at a later date. Dr. Edward Fitzgerald will facilitate the panel discussion and forum.

Friday, Nov. 1: A Formal Investiture Ceremony at which Ryan will be officially inaugurated at the college's fifth president will be held at 1 p.m. at United First Parish Church.

Saturday, Nov. 2: An Inaugural Ball will be held at 2 p.m. at the JFK Library in Columbia Point. Proceeds in excess of expenses for the black tie gala will fund scholarships for Quincy College students. Highlights will include dancing, complimentary beverages and hors d'oeuvres and viewing of the exhibits.

For more information about any of the above events, call Ryan's office at 984-1776.

Declines To Speak At Convention

Legion Members Feel Snubbed By Clinton

By MICHAEL WHALEN

American Legion members from Quincy have expressed outrage and disappointment over a recent decision by President Clinton not to speak at the Legion's national convention in Utah next month.

Quincy Housing Authority Executive Director John "Jake" Comer, past national commander of the Legion, said he is more than a little upset about the president's decision.

"It's a snub to proud Americans who have served their country that their commander-in-chief would not come to address them," he said.

Quincy Veterans Services Director Henry Bradley, past state commander of the Legion, voiced similar sentiments.

"I'm disappointed," said Bradley.

Both men said Clinton is in all likelihood reluctant to speak at the convention because he has "reneged" on two promises he made to the Legion while running for president in 1992: to support a Constitutional amendment protecting the American flag from desecration, and to leave relations with Vietnam closed until the United States receives full information about POWs (prisoners of war) who served during the Vietnam War.

"Those are two very important programs, and that's why he's probably afraid to speak to us (in Salt Lake City)," said Comer. "He's a very poor commander-in-chief not to face his troops and take it like a man. In my opinion, he's less than a man."

"He was with us on those issues when he was running for president, but he's backed down," agreed Bradley. "I'd have more respect for the man if he came before us to speak.

"You have to really consider where this man is coming from," Bradley added. "I really feel he cannot be taken at his word."

Comer and Bradley said the American Legion never officially endorses candidates--as it is against the organization's bylaws--and always allows both Democratic and Republican candidates to speak before them. Both suggested, however, that Clinton could lose the support of a number of veterans during his bid for re-election because of his recent actions.

Bob Dole, Clinton's Republican opponent, has agreed to speak before the convention.

American Legion National Commander Daniel Ludwig, reacting to the president's rejection of the Legion's invitation to speak at the convention, said he was "stunned" by Clinton's decision.

"Our convention played a key role in his 1992 campaign and now the president has allowed our differences (on the flag issue) to come between us," said Ludwig.

Ludwig said Legion members were impressed with the speech Clinton gave at the 1992 Legion convention, at which they were given the impression that the president supported the flag protection amendment. The Legion, in fact, used Clinton's words to the convention as part of a promotional video for the flag campaign, showing his endorsement to thousands of Americans across the country.

Ludwig said members were shocked when Assistant Attorney General Walter Dellinger of the Department of Justice testified before the Senate Judiciary Committee on June 6, 1995 that Clinton now opposed the amendment.

The amendment eventually received 14 Democratic votes in the Senate, but fell three votes shy of passage. The U.S. House of Representatives passed the measure in June 1995 by a vote of 312-120, with almost half the Democrats voting in favor.

A recently-completed poll of registered Democrats conducted by Frederick Schneiders Research showed that 73 percent support the amendment, with 52 percent saying they consider it as important as issues such as Medicare reform and term limits.

Colleges Should Give Students What They Need

A declining applicant pool to colleges and universities nationwide appears to be leveling off, and if projections released by the U.S. Department of Education are accurate, children entering the first grade this year represent the largest group of school aged children in 25 years.

Yet before those children begin considering college more than a decade from now, administrators and admissions officers are today faced with designing course offerings which reflect the needs of a unique and more selective college perspectives.

"Many people now look to colleges in terms of what the end result will mean for them," said Sean Barry, executive director, Marketing and Recruitment at Quincy College. "They want more than simple statistics about earning potential and the changing American workplace. Although it is those very statistics which compel them to look at college."

According to Department of Labor economists, Americans with associate degrees earn nearly $3,000 more each year than those without a college degree. That figure jumps to nearly $6,000 for those with bachelor's degrees. Additionally, unemployment levels drop as education levels increase; college graduates are more hireable and appealing to employers.

"Employers look to college graduates for practical and professional experience," said Eileen Mawn, director of community services for Quincy College. "They ask applicants with classroom knowledge and critical skills like computers and communications."

"In this region, the community value of education is expressed in the diverse number of institutions offering degrees and certificates," said Barry. "New Englanders in general and metropolitan Bostonians in particular have a full spectrum of choice."

ASK YOUR LAWYER

by Kevin F. O'Donnell
ATTORNEY AT LAW

SETTLING OUT OF COURT

If plaintiffs in civil cases have visions of themselves in court watching their lawyers engaged in legal battles with their adversaries, they should realize that over 90 percent of all cases settle without trial. Ordinarily, the lawyer representing the plaintiff in a personal injury case will, initially, write to the defendant detailing his or her client's version of events and outlining the damages. This will usually prompt the defendant's insurance company to respond. Depending on the facts of the case, the insurer may also make an offer to settle the case. In the event that the plaintiff finds the offer to be unacceptable, the opposing lawyers will attempt to negotiate a reasonable compromise. Failing that, the lawsuit may be filed and the case may go to court. Even then, however, it is possible to reach a settlement anytime; this is precisely what usually happens - even during a trial.

HINT: Settlement discussions can even be initiated after a trial to avoid an appeal.

Most civil lawsuits are settled out of court before the trial date arrives. As your attorney, my goal is to serve your best interest. I'll take the time to outline the various options available to you. If it becomes necessary to bring this matter to court, you can count on my extensive trial experience to get you results. Call 773-2880 for a free consultation now. My office is located at Gridley Bryant Office Condominiums, 111 Willard Street.

A Pictorial Look At Quincy

The cover photo shows strong-faced granite workers about to be lowered on a "boat" into canyon-like Swingle's Quarry.

In one of the first photos inside, Mayor Joseph Whiton leads Fore River shipyard workers in a parade to Boston on Armistice Day, Nov. 11, 1918 marking the end of World War I.

And there's President William Howard Taft speaking at the Quincy railroad station in 1910 and there he is again at the Aero Meet at Squantum.

Famed flyer Claude Grahame-White (also shown in the book) invited Taft to take a ride in his plane that day. Taft declined. A wise decision, it is noted, considering Taft weighed 300 pounds and the plane not much more.

And there's the Beale St. drugstore from where Howard Johnson parlayed an ice cream recipe into a business empire.

And, his first restaurant in the old Granite Trust building, now the Bank of Boston in Quincy Sq.

Johnson got a jump start to success at the restaurant when Eugene O'Neill's play "Strange Interlude" was banned in Boston and was allowed to play the old Quincy Theater.

The play had a long dinner intermission and the theatergoers found their way down Hancock St. to the new restaurant. They liked the food and the service. And the Johnson name was on its way.

Those are among the more than 200 nostalgic photos and postcards in a new book on Quincy which is fresh off the press and has the look of a collector's item.

"QUINCY: A Past Carved In Stone" is a 128-page pictorial history of the city from just after the Civil War to up to the 1960s and just into the 1970s.

It is told in the old photos and postcards with accompanying informative captions.

Author Patricia Harrigan Browne of Milton says she selected Quincy as the subject because: "There is so much history here. So much to explore. It is such a fascinating city."

BROWNE

She started gathering and researching the photos—some rare and previously unpublished—last Christmas and completed that part of the project this past March.

"My goal as I started out was to find 200 good photos," she says. "But when I got through I had close to 500 photos and a problem. What 200 to select? It wasn't easy."

The photos are from the Quincy Historical Society, the Thomas Crane Public Library, the Massachusetts State Archives, various companies that started in Quincy and from individuals.

Among the old postcards in the book are those from the collection of Tom Galvin, a weekly feature in The Quincy Sun and from former Sun reporter Ruth Wainwright.

"I tried to find as many sources as possible," Browne says. "I wanted this to be a history for everyone—not just the Adams family. I wanted people to be able to look at a photo and say, 'that's my grandfather right there.'"

Someone might find their grandfather or grandmother or some other relative in photos of Quincy suffragettes parading for the right of women to vote, or bathers at Wollaston Beach with women in long modest swim suits and men with chest tops. Of kids skinny dipping in a quarry. Of early police and firefighters.

Among the other photos:

Thomas Watson, who received the first phone call from Alexander Graham Bell and later founded what became the Fore River shipyard. The Zildjian family, whose secret formula cymbals are known world wide. The early days of the Grossman family business. Early street cars. Horse-drawn milk wagons. The great train wreck AT Dimmock St. in 1890. The lighthouse gasoline station on Southern Artery. The Quincy Tennis Club's original site. Scenic views of Houghs Neck when it was a popular resort area. The Dennison Airport.

And there are photos of Harriet Quimby, the first woman licensed pilot in the U.S. who flew out of Squantum. She was the first woman to fly across the English Channel.

Tragedy awaited her at the 1912 Harvard Aero Meet when her new plane pitched into a nosedive throwing her and a passenger, William Willard, out. They both died on impact on the muddy flats off Squantum. The plane somehow landed without damage.

All those and more photos are in the book which was published by Arcadia Press in Dover, N.H. Price is $16.99.

It's available at local book stores and can also be obtained by calling the author directly at 617-698-6488.

It would make a nice Christmas gift for anyone interested in a visual history of Quincy.

Nominations Open For HN Honors Night

Nominations are open for the annual Honors Night held by the Houghs Neck Community Council.

More than 150 people have received honors at the dinner, which has been held since 1954. This year's event, chaired by Jack Nigro, will be held Sunday, Oct. 20 at St. Thomas Aquinas Hall on Darrow St.

Those honored will be selected by ballot by a committee of five or more for heroism, community service, or being a "Good Neighbor" or distinguished senior citizen. Five years' residence is a requirement.

The selected committee will include members of the PTA, Catholic Daughters, Mothers & Others Club, Houghs Neck American Legion, and youth groups.

Nominations should be submitted by Sept. 15 to an officer or member of the Houghs Neck Community Council. Peggy O'Connor is the 1996-97 president. Those chosen will be announced at an open meeting Sept. 17 at the Houghs Neck Community Center, 1193 Sea St.

ATTENTION QUINCY & WEYMOUTH RESIDENTS

Due to Labor Day, Monday, September 2, 1996, rubbish collection will be a day late. Monday's rubbish will be collected on Tuesday. Tuesday's will be collected on Wednesday, etc. There will be a Saturday collection for rubbish usually collected on Friday. This applies to all routes.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS OLD POSTCARD served as a schedule for the steamboats that ran in the summer between Houghs Neck and Boston just after the turn of the century. The city still maintains a pier at this public landing next to the Quincy Yacht Club, but the building at the far end has been gone for years. The large steam powered boats used a channel that was dredged in the mudflats to reach the pier.

Corporate Responsibility And Community Need

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

There are those who would say that Quincy has struggled in determining its identity with respect to perceptions of its being business and development friendly. The question usually surfaces when issues arise that juxtapose the needs or wishes of the residence community against those of the business community defining them as singularly independent and not interdependent. Whether it be in the establishment of business versus residence tax rates, zoning ordinances (i.e. site plan review, et al) or a myriad of other areas, the debate, like a brush fire, ignites from time to time. It has recently come to the fore regarding the desire of certain supermarket chains (Roche Bros., Shaw's and Stop & Shop) to sell beer, wine and perhaps hard liquor in between the Rice Krispies and toothpaste.

Quincy, however, suffers from no identity crisis in its support of family values and all that which strengthens the quality of life of all members of the community. We are facile in fostering that which is good and wholesome, cognizant of that which needs repair and redress and attentive to those in need. This includes the identification and ready acknowledgement of areas which are problematic within our community and the development of resources to address these problems. We are indeed fortunate to live in a community with abundant human resources, those who volunteer and serve to address those needs, political leaders with foresight, and business people who become partners in these efforts.

One area within which we continue to struggle is that of substance and alcohol abuse which tends to be particularly pervasive among youth, young adults and often the elderly as well. Although the factors that underlie and drive social problems are varied and complex, the response of the community, including the corporate community, must be clear and consistent. That includes taking responsible approaches to decisions regarding advertising, merchandising and sales in product areas that may compromise the health and well being of the community.

Whether it is tobacco products or alcohol, the notion that we should make their accessibility any more plentiful or convenient is anathema to all we have strived to accomplish in Quincy. Increasing the number of licensed retail alcohol establishments beyond that which exist, or focusing attention by merchandising center stage in a supermarket is in direct contravention to our goals as a community. Beyond that Massachusetts General Laws, Chapter 138 states clearly that licenses should be issued "with a view only to serve the public need and in such manner to protect the common good."

Companies, like Stop & Shop, who have been generous benefactors in this city, need to allow their history of corporate responsibility to continue to be the force which guides their decision making. The community doesn't need an additional licensed business for the sale of beer, wine and liquor and it should not be the central focus of the food market. Food shopping is a necessity that those in recovery from alcohol abuse can't avoid. For many, food shopping is a family exercise, kids in tow who need not be further desensitized to the issue of alcohol use/abuse. I would like to believe that the public good and corporate responsibility not corporate profiteering will win out.

Congratulates Stevensons For Fine Hoop Tourney

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I would like to congratulate the fine work done by Ted Stevenson and Ted Stevenson Jr. in organizing the 7th Annual Clancy-Ward Basketball Tournament.

With more than 150 people participating on more than 25 teams, I was very impressed with how efficiently the tournament was run. The level of competition was fantastic, and the games were almost all tightly contested.

The Stevensons are to be commended for creating such a great cause.

Keep up the good work!

Shipyard Workers Go Back To Work

Aug. 29 - Sept. 4
1969
27 Years Ago

By PAUL HAROLD

The one week work stoppage at the shipyard ended this week, with 7,400 workers returning to work at the General Dynamics plant.

Local 5 ordered its 5,000 production workers to return to their jobs following the decision of an arbitrator who ruled that GD acted within its contract rights when it laid off 10 machinists.

A flyer handed out by the union stated that strict seniority didn't exist at the Quincy facility, according to the arbitrator's interpretation.

QUINCY HIGH DRESS CODE SUSPENDED

Quincy High School Principal Lloyd Creighton announced that the school's dress code was suspended from the first day of school through the second marking period.

The change is policy came as a result of a recommendation of the student coordination group. "Beards, sandals and shorts are acceptable, as long as the students are clean and their hair, long or short is neat," Creighton said.

CITY DOUSES QUARRY ST. ODORS

The forestry department doused the area of Quarry St. with pine-scented insecticide to combat odors and insects coming from former dumps.

The praying took place in areas where garbage was dumped before the sanitary landfill operation began. Long-term relief was anticipated when the city sealed off the old dumps.

PLAN FOR CONTROLLING PAIN

It used to be that pain was something you just has to put up with, an unpleasant part of physical ailments and surgical procedures. Fortunately, for the thousands of individuals with chronic or severe pain, we now know that people don't have to suffer without help. Pain management has become a subject of growing concern and research among many health care professionals. Depending on the source of the patient's pain, a pain relief plan might involve a primary care physician, anesthesiologist, neurologist or physical therapist. In addition to medication, that plan could include such techniques as mental and physical exercises, biofeedback or behavioral therapy. Treatment is prescribed with a patient's total phycological and social situation in mind. Even patients who have been in pain for years may finally find relief.

P.S. All pain is real to the person who feels it, whether it has an obvious physiological cause or not.

If you are suffering from a chronic painful condition, be sure to ask your physician if you can consider all the options. Today, you need not suffer as much if you employ a successful pain reduction strategy that involves life-style choices as well as medication. At COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, we specialize in treating heart problems, hypertension and cholesterol. We're at 700 Congress St., in Quincy (472-2550). I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals.

Labor Day Celebration At Adams Historic Site

The National Park Service, Adams National Historic Site announces a special program to celebrate Labor Day, Sept. 3.

To honor the hard work, sacrifice and cooperation that was needed to establish the United States of America, Adams National Historic Site invites the public to experience the joys, hardships and rewards of helping their neighbors and their nation during the American Revolutionary War.

Portraying refugees from British-occupied and war-torn Boston, visitors will assume the roles of colonial crafts and trades people and demonstrate their skills to the patriots in the countryside at the Adams family farm.

Visitors will investigate colonial lifestyles, help with farm chores, gather provisions, and practice military maneuvers with the Captain of the local militia, who "pays" them for their service. The patriots will celebrate their cooperation and hard work with a cup of cider and a slice of liberty cake.

The program will take place at the Adams National Historic Site "Birthplaces" located at 133 and 141 Franklin St., Quincy. Limited street parking is available on Franklin St.

Their will be two programs offered on Monday, Sept. 3 at 10 a.m. to noon and again from 2 to 4 p.m.

They are free of charge, have a limited capacity and will be reserved on a first come, first serve basis. Those who wish to attend are recommended to call the Adams National Historic Site Visitor Center at 770-1175 to reserve a place at one of the two sessions.

Refreshments follow both performances.

For more information, call Adams National Historic Site Visitor Center, 770-1175.

Health Insurance Access Legislation Signed Into Law

Legislation which increases access to health insurance for individuals in Massachusetts, unanimously approved by the Senate, has been signed into law by Gov. William Weld.

The non-group reform bill is designed to make health insurance accessible for people who do not get insurance benefits from their employer r other group and cannot buy individual coverage.

"I am very pleased that this legislation will make insurance coverage accessible for those individuals who need it the most, by eliminating "Medical redlining," or the denial of benefits due to age or illness, without putting the burden on young, healthy insurance consumers," Sen. Michael Morrissey said.

Under the non-group (individual) bill any person would be eligible to buy insurance regardless of age, gender or medical condition. Individuals could not be denied coverage based on medical history or health status. The bill would also guarantee portability of health coverage for those individuals changing jobs or moving residences.

"With features such as consumer choice, guaranteed renewability, and expansion of small group from 1 to 50 people it will create equal opportunity and increased access to health insurance for thousands of Massachusetts citizens," Morrissey said.

Meetings On QP School Construction To Be Held

The city is planning to hold a series of meetings regarding the upcoming construction of a new elementary school in Quincy Point.

Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymondi said meeting dates scheduled so far include yesterday (Wednesday) at 2 p.m. at the 1000 Southern Artery senior citizens complex and Wednesday, Sept. 4 at 7 p.m. at the Fore River Clubhouse for other abutters and neighbors.

Raymondi said site preparation work for the project is currently underway. He added that it is his understanding more extensive work will begin in mid-September and will be performed Mondays through Saturdays from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m.--excluding holidays--although he deferred to Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton regarding the official schedule.

Colton was unavailable for comment at press time.

Raymondi said the planned meetings will allow residents to ask questions or voice concerns about site preparation, blasting, or construction issues. Among those expected to attend are Raymondi, Colton, other DPW officials, engineering department officials, Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, School Supt. Eugene Creedon, and representatives from D & R General Contracting Inc.

Officials are hoping the new Quincy Point elementary school, which is being built to help relieve overcrowding at the Sterling Middle School, can open by January 1988. As part of the plan, the Point-Webster Elementary School will be converted into a middle school so Quincy Point students will not have to travel to Sterling in South Quincy.

Farmers' Market Open At Quincy Promenade

The Farmers' Market is now open Saturdays through the end of the growing season at the Quincy Promenade along Ross Way in Quincy Center.

The Saturday hours are in addition to the Farmer's Market operation Fridays at the Hancock Parking Lot across from Quincy District Court.

Hours of operation on Saturday will be 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Free two-hour parking is available at the site in the Ross Parking Garage. For more information, call Rodney Spear at 376-1953.

Montclair-Wollaston Assn. Meeting Sept. 5

The Montclair-Wollaston Neighborhood Association will meet Thursday, Sept. 5 at 7:30 p.m. at Work Inc., 3 Arlington St.

City Clerk Joseph Shea will demonstrate the use of the city's new state-of-the-art voting machines which will be used for the first time during the state primary election in September. All Quincy residents are welcome.

CLEAN AIR NOW!

If only people were as concerned about the inside of their home.

Practice Random Acts of Cleanness

Did you know that when you heat with natural gas instead of other fossil fuels, there's less soot and dirt in the air? That's because natural gas burns cleaner and more efficiently than other fossil fuels.

It's also piped directly to your home. There are no spills, no delivery trucks, and no bulky oil tank. Best of all, natural gas contributes less pollutants to the air. It's the smart solution for the home environment and the American environment!

Rev. William Harding New Bethany Minister

REV. WILLIAM HARDING

Rev. William Harding has been named new senior minister at Bethany Congregational Church in Quincy Center.

Rev. Harding, who was selected following a recommendation from Pastoral Search Committee Chairman Curtis Gifford during a recent meeting, will begin his duties Oct. 1.

Rev. Harding grew up in Weymouth and is a 1968 Weymouth High School graduate. He furthered his education in the liberal arts program at Massasoit Community College in 1978 and received a certificate diploma from Bangor Theological Seminary in 1983.

In 1983, he received a bachelor of arts degree in psychology from Eastern Nazarene College and a master of divinity from Bangor Theological Seminary. In 1987, he completed a master pastoral counseling course at ENC.

Rev. Harding was ordained by the United Church of Christ on June 24, 1984.

His ministerial journey began in June 1980 as a part-time student pastor at First Congregational Church in Weymouth Heights and continued at Quincy Point Congregational Church where he began as a student assistant minister in September 1982, progressed to assistant minister and, upon ordination, became the full-time associate minister. In 1985, he became an associate minister at Union Congregational Church in East Weymouth where he remained until January 1988, when he became an associate minister at First Congregational Church in Braintree.

Rev. Harding is a captain and serves as chaplain with the U.S. Army Reserves. He has served as a director for the Protestant Social Service Bureau and is a member of the executive board for the South Shore Youth Conference where he is involved with the preparation, staff training and overseeing of a one-week conference for over 350 youths from several South Shore churches. In addition, he is a past member of the Beechwood Counseling Center Advisory Board, a corporator of Weymouth Savings Bank, and a chaplain for Boy and Explorer Scouts.

Rev. Harding's wife Carol, a register nurse, works at Quincy Hospital. Their son, Billy, is entering Grade 7 at Thayer Academy Middle School.

Durkin Awards Two Scholarships

Ward 5 City Councillor Stephen Durkin has awarded scholarships of $250 each to two Wollaston residents.

Those selected to receive the scholarships are Ian Foley of 39 Sewall St. and Timothy Sheehan of 41 Cheriton Rd., both North Quincy High School graduates.

Foley will attend Boston University's College of Communications and Sheehan is set to attend Plymouth State College in New Hampshire.

The Ward 5 Councillor's Scholarships, established by Durkin this year, will be offered each year to two graduating high school seniors who live in Ward 5. Recipients are selected by the Ward 5 Councillor's Scholarship Committee.

"My family and I have been preparing for the opening of Hancock Park for 60 years."

-Richard Welch

When Hancock Park in Quincy opens in October, it will be the newest Healthcare and Assisted Living Center on the South Shore. But this isn't a story about bricks and mortar. It's the story of one women's vision of what community healthcare could be. And should be.

My grandmother, Florence St. John, R.N.

It all began in 1935, right here in Quincy in my grandmother Florence St. John's parlor. As a Home Health Nurse, she saw first hand the unique difficulties many of her elderly patients faced. Often what they needed most was emotional support and care in a warm, unthreatening environment. In those days, there were few facilities prepared to provide that. But my grandmother was.

So she began caring for seniors in her home. From these modest beginnings, the Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group has become the leading provider of healthcare services on the South Shore.

Which brings us to the point of this story.

The opening of Hancock Park will be both a homecoming for us and a living memorial to the ideals that were so important to my grandmother. We're obviously very proud of her. And we're absolutely committed to making sure everything about Hancock Park reflects that pride.

To learn more about Hancock Park or about Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group, please call us at (617) 878-6700. We'll send a you a free copy of our Welch Family Guide to Senior Care.

Christina Stuart Completes McNair Scholars Program

Christina Stuart of Quincy, a student at Bridgewater State College, has recently completed the summer research component of the McNair Scholars Program at Brandeis University.

Named for the late Challenger space shuttle crew member, Ronald E. McNair, the program helps students to define goals, engage in research in their fields, and develop the skills, methodologies and student-faculty relationships crucial to success at the doctoral level. It also encourages students to consider careers in the field of academics.

Smoking Cessation Hypnosis Program At Hospital Sept. 25

Manet Community Health Center is offering a free hypnosis session for smoking cessation at Quincy Hospital.

The program will be held Wednesday, Sept. 25 from 6 to 8 p.m. at Quincy Hospital, 114 Whitwell St., in the Education Center.

Susan Holden-Dodge, M.S.W. certified in chemical dependency and licensed hypnotherapist, will begin the program with an interactive group session discussing nicotine, weight gain, and other concerns and fears encountered when trying to quit smoking. It will be followed by a hypnosis session and further discussion. Comfortable clothing is suggested.

Advance registration is not required for this free program. For more information, call Quincy Hospital's Public Relations Department at 376-4020.

A Message From The Superintendent

New Year To Include Site Preparation For Quincy Point School

Dear Readers:

The 1996-97 school year will soon be upon us. A great deal of work and effort in what appears to have been an all-together much too short summer was accomplished. Some 20 new teachers will be joining the staff of the Quincy Public Schools. Our class size is exceptionally good, and parents can expect to see relatively small classes for the next school year.

Last year, as you know, September saw the opening of the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School with a sparkling new addition, and the Parker School refurbished and proud of its new gymnasium. Quincy High School saw the restoration of its wonderful auditorium. The year passed quickly, and these improvements certainly proved to be everything we hoped they would be.

EUGENE CREEDON

As we begin the fall of '96, we will see the site preparation of the new Quincy Point Elementary School, soon to be followed by the construction of the new Quincy Point elementary school. Quincy High School underwent some serious work in installing a new elevator and resolving not all but many of the accessibility issues for the handicapped. Central Middle School, already over 100 years old, saw the slate roof replaced with a new shingled roof, and we know that that will be a major improvement.

Our custodians and maintenance staff have been very busy cleaning, scrubbing, waxing, and polishing our buildings, and I know they all will be ready for the first day of school The first day of school for grades 1-12 will be September 4, 1996. If you should have any questions regarding school hours, transportation, or school assignment, all of our school buildings are open this week.

It is my hope that the new school year will be a productive one for all of our students and families.

Morrissey To Attend Democratic Convention

Sen. Michael W. Morrissey will attend the 1996 Democratic Convention in Chicago as one of the 10th Congressional District's six delegates.

"This is a great honor to be chosen to represent the democrats of this district at the National Convention," said Morrissey.

The senator will be in Chicago along with 5,000-plus delegates from the National Democratic party.

"The event will give me the opportunity to discuss many political and national issues with other democrats from throughout the country," he said.

Morrissey hopes the Convention support of the Clinton/Gore ticket will give the President the momentum to hold onto his lead and win in November.

Gary Jones Candidate For County Treasurer

Gary D. Jones, a Brookline Democrat, announces his candidacy for Norfolk County treasurer.

Jones said, "The time has come to examine the role of county government in Massachusetts. In the state budget recently passed by the Democratic Legislature, Franklin County was abolished.

"The Sheriff's Department, the Registrar of Deeds, and the Court Hose will be taken over by the state in 1997. The Franklin County Retirement Board will be left in place. This can be a pilot program for all counties including Norfolk County."

He added, The issue in this campaign is waste and how much has been

Labor Day Weekend Coming Attractions At Marina Bay To Benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association

Co-Sponsored By

Continental Cablevision | The Quincy Sun | WJDA Radio

Labor Day Festivities At Marina Bay To Benefit MDA

In conjunction with the Jerry Lewis "Stars Across America!" Labor Day Telephone, the Muscular Dystrophy Association will hold an array of activities on Labor Day weekend at Marina Bay in Squantum to benefit greater Boston area residents who are affected by neuromuscular diseases.

Events kick off Sunday evening from 7 to 11 p.m. with "Stars Across America--Jazz On The Bay," at the Summer House. In addition to a full-course dinner served under the stars and along side the bay, the evening includes an auction, Vegas style games, and dancing to the smooth jazz of Frank Vardaros and his band Future Reference.

Tickets are $30 and can be purchased by calling MDA at (617) 575-1881.

On Monday afternoon, the Marina's boardwalk will come alive as Family Fun Day takes place from noon to 6 p.m. There will be games for all ages, clowns, caricaturists, a variety of concessions, face painting and more. Also, Quincy firefighters will be on hand with a fire truck display and souvenir photos.

Boardwalk admission is free.

Also on Monday, Marina Bay's WaterWorks offers a good time for a good cause. Live entertainment includes the Bermuda Strollers, Country Fever, Ron Alsopp's Tribute To The legends, and a celebrity impersonation act from Ron Bartell DJ and Co. WaterWorks admission is $5, a portion of which will go to the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

"All of these events present a great way to wrap up the summer," said MDA Director David Spellman. "Helping Jerry's Kids has become a Labor Day tradition for so many people, and this is just another way to help."

MDA is a voluntary health agency working to eradicate 40 neuromuscular disorders through worldwide research, medical and health services, and professional and public health education. Almost all of MDA's income is derived for private voluntary contributions, and the Association is consistently ranked as one of the top national voluntary health agencies for the level of income expended on program services.

MDA Seeks Extra Special People

The Muscular Dystrophy Association is currently seeking children of all ages to be Extra Special People (ESP), on Labor Day Weekend, by helping people who are affected by neuromuscular diseases.

Participants are asked to obtain an Extra Special Person kit and collect donations from friends, family, and neighbors. Donations can be turned in at the Marina Bay Family Fun Day in Squantum on Monday, Sept. 2 from noon to 6 p.m. where there will be games, caricaturists, clowns, a fire truck display and more.

"Being an Extra Special Person is a great way for kids to help other kids who don't have healthy muscles. It is a also a good way to become a part of the Jerry Lewis MDA Telethon tradition," said MDA Director David Spellman.

ESP sponsor kits can be obtained by calling the Greater Boston Muscular Dystrophy Association at (617) 575-1881. They can also be picked up at The Quincy Sun, 1372 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

ESP donations go directly to Greater Boston residents affected by neuromuscular disease through research, medical and health services, and professional and public health education.

Almost all of MDA's income is derived from private voluntary contributions, and the association is consistently ranked as one of the top national volunteer health agencies for the level of income expended on program services.

Part Of 'Stars Across America' Celebration

MDA Labor Day Telethon Tradition To Expand With 'Jazz On The Bay'

The Muscular Dystrophy Association, known for its Jerry Lewis "Stars Across America!" Labor Day Telethon, is offering a new way to wrap up a summer of fun by helping others this year.

MDA's first annual "Stars Across America—Jazz On The Bay" celebration, a dinner dance and auction will be held at Marina Bay's Summer House on Sunday, Sept. 1 from 7 to 11 p.m.

In addition to a full course dinner served under the stars and alongside the bay, the evening will include an auction, Vegas style games, and dancing to the smooth jazz of Frank Vardaros and his band Future Reference.

"Stars Across America—Jazz On The Bay" tickets are $30 and can be purchased by calling The Greater Boston Muscular Dystrophy Association at 575-1881. Visa and Mastercard are accepted. Advanced tickets are required. Proceeds benefit local individuals affected by any of 40 neuromuscular diseases.

The Muscular Dystrophy Association is a voluntary health agency working to defeat 40 neuromuscular diseases through programs of world wide research, comprehensive medical and health services, and far-reaching professional and public health education. Almost all of MDA's income is derived from private contributions, and the Association is consistently ranked as one of the top national voluntary health agencies for the level of income expended on program services.

REAL ESTATE MARKET

Realtors Hail Continuing Education Legislation

After six years of lobbying by the Massachusetts Association of Realtors (MAR), legislation requiring real estate brokers and salespersons to receive ongoing continuing education, as a condition of active license renewal, has passed the state Legislature and been signed into law by Gov. Weld.

The measure, which was first proposed by MAR in 1990, mandates all licensees complete 12 hours of state-approved classroom instruction every two years as a requirement or license renewal. The law applies to any real estate agent whose license is subject to renewal on or after Jan. 1, 1999.

"This law will raise the level of professionalism within the real estate industry and help ensure quality representation for consumers relative to home buying and selling," said MAR President Laura Shifrin. "We commend Governor Weld and the legislature for seeing the public benefit in this bill, and working so diligently to pass it in the hectic, final days of the session."

Massachusetts now joins 48 other states with minimum continuing ed requirements for real estate license renewals.

To ensure real estate brokers and salespersons remain knowledgeable about the most important aspects of the property transaction process, the new law mandates that six of the 12 hours of curriculum instruction address agency law; environmental issues; fair housing, equal employment opportunity and accessibility for the disabled; appraisal and financing issues; zoning; tax assessment; and real estate board regulations. Real estate practitioners who do not complete continuing education coursework may have their license placed on "inactive" status, a licensing category which will still allow agents the opportunity to receive compensation for referrals. However, inactive licensees may not engage in or be compensated for representing or working with buyers or sellers in sales, landlords, or tenants in rentals, nor any other marketing states.

With passage of this bill, Bay State real estate agents should enjoy increased license reciprocity in neighboring states, according to Shifrin.

"For years, we've had to complete classes in other states in order to conduct business within their borders. Now that we have uniform continuing education standards for all real estate professionals in the commonwealth, we're hopeful that more state licensing borders will grant equivalent status to Massachusetts agents," she said.

The legislation also contains a provision increasing the bonding requirement for brokers from $1,000 to $5,000.

16 Sales Associates Commended At DeWolfe

Sixteen sales associates at DeWolfe New England's Quincy office have been commended for achieving "100% Customer Satisfaction."

Office manager Brian Fahey in recognizing them said:

"I am fortunate to be the team leader of such a dynamic group of professionals who are proactive rather than reactive. They are always educating themselves and realize how important honesty, integrity and fairness are when it comes to their customers and clients."

He said their efforts for the first six months of the year produced record breaking results.

The 16 associates recognized are:

Elena Adgate, Sandy Burke, Beth Cadigan, Judy Carter, Tom Carter, Ginny Casey, Eric DeWolfe, Johanna Donovan, Carolyn Humphrey, Ita Lynch, Camilla McGill, Lindsay Mulvey, Bob Munroe, Jim O'Brien, Jim Szabo and Carl West.

Four new associates have joined the DeWolfe Quincy office. They are: Jack Mullen, Anna Jordan, Allison Wellock and Erica Delgado.

DeWolfe New England has 65 offices and 1,600 agents. It is the largest real estate firm in New England and the 11th largest in the U.S.

Last year DeWolfe had 12,100 sales and 7,380 relocation referrals.

Two Join Granite Group

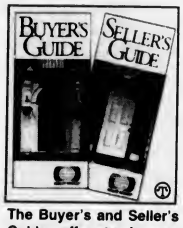
Ann Fernandez and Peter K. Lam have joined Granite Group, Realtors as sales associates.

Fernandez, a Squantum resident, has been in the real estate field for more than 12 years. She has experience as an appraiser, often serving as an expert witness in court decisions of property value. She is active in the Star of the Sea Parish Council and North Quincy High School Football Boosters.

Lam of Priscilla Lane, Quincy, has eight years of experience managing property in Chicago. He holds a B.S. degree in informational science from Northeastern Illinois University.

How Much House Can You Afford To Buy?

(NAPS)—One of the first questions most prospective home buyers ask is "How much house can I afford to buy?" Here are some helpful hints about evaluating your financial situation from the experts at Realty World Corporation, one of the largest real estate franchise organizations in North America.



The Buyer's and Seller's Guides offer step-by-step information to help you through the home buying or selling process.

You should start shopping for a loan about the same time you start shopping for a house. You can often be pre-qualified for a loan even before you start house shopping so you will know exactly how much house you can afford.

Figuring how much you can afford is a matter of simple addition. The amount of cash you can put up as a down payment, plus the amount of money you can qualify to borrow equals the amount you can afford.

To calculate how much you can afford to borrow, lenders typically use the 33 percent and 38 percent tests to qualify applicants. The 33 percent test allows for no more than 33 percent of your gross monthly income on all of your housing costs, which include loan principal, interest, taxes and insurance (P.I.T.I.). The 38 percent test covers both your P.I.T.I. and other long-term debts you may have, such as other loans, alimony or credit card accounts. For example, with a gross monthly income of $4,000, a lender would allow you to spend $1,320 on monthly housing expenses. And based on the 38 percent test with the same income, lenders would allow $1,520 a month on housing and long-term expenses.

SUN SPORTS

FORMER BOSTON BRUINS star Bobby Orr autographs a picture of his Stanley Cup-winning goal in 1970 against the St. Louis Blues for a fan at the recent Philip Doyle Fund reception at Marina Bay's Summer House. According to Mike Linnane, one of the reception's hosts, over $15,000 was raised to fight leukemia, with the final total expected to be over $17,000 after the silent auction funds are tallied.

Doyle Reception Raises Over $17,000

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Now that he is recovering from his battle with leukemia, nine-year-old Philip Doyle of Weymouth is eager to help other families with children suffering from the disease.

At the Philip Doyle Fund's raffle drawing and reception at Marina Bay's Summer House last week, over $15,000 was raised to help these families, with over $17,000 expected to be the final tally, said Mike Linnane, one of the reception's hosts.

"We definitely surpassed the goal," said Linnane, who hosted the event with fellow Quincy residents Martin Nicholson and Wally Glendye. "It was a big success and a tribute to Philip that so many people, including the sports and media celebrities, came out for the event."

Philip's mother, Beth Doyle, said her son is recovering well after undergoing chemotherapy and radiation treatment and has turned his attention to those still suffering from the disease.

"He really wants to help others," said Mrs. Doyle. "He's healthy now. He never questioned why we were doing this, and when he knew it was to help others out, he was all for it.

"He's in remission now, and it's been one of his best years. He's taller, he's gained some weight, he looks good, he feels good, and the little things don't bother him as much as they used to."

Mrs. Doyle noted how different life became when her son contracted leukemia and how others got overlooked in the process of taking care of her son.

"It's a great cause," she said. "Everyday life is just not the same when a child of yours has this disease. Bills mount up, and your mind is so focused on the disease, that sometimes

North Quincy Football Alumni Hold First Annual Golf Tourney

The North Quincy Football Alumni Association recently held its first annual golf tournament at the Ponkapoag Golf Club in Canton.

Over 100 former players, friends and supporters joined in the day's festivities which finished up at the Quincy Sons of Italy.

The association, which helps to bolster the program's budget, had an extremely successful day. Players from the 1940s right into the 1990s had a day to remember.

Former North Quincy High star Ryan Craig said, "Throw some pads and helmets and I could learn to like this game."

The organizers of the tournament said plans are already underway for a larger second annual golf tournament as well as other fundraising efforts.

For more information, write to: North Quincy Football Alumni Association, P.O. Box 7394, Quincy, MA 02169.

Mather Wins President's Club Championship

Carol Mather captured the recent President's Golf Course Ladies Association three-day club championship.

Mather had a gross of 232 to lead Division I. Karen Baptista's net of 201 led the division, followed by Margaret Murphy at 203.

Geralyn Saunders had a gross of 263 to lead Division II. Janice Morin had a net of 215 and Elizabeth Harrington came in second at 218.

In Division III, Barbara Robertson led with a gross of 289. Elaine Mooney had a net of 228, edging the 229 by Diane O'Donnell.

In a member-guest tournament, Nancy Bilodeau and Jane Hagge finished first with a gross of 72, followed by Nancy Martens and Marijke Alsbach at 73.

With a net of 58, Karen Baptiste and Sharon Preece captured first place. Tied for second with a net of 60 were two teams: Barbara Robertson and Pat Roderick and Melanie Curtain and Molly O'Toole.

Three two-somes shot a net of 62: Carol Mather and Margaret Anderson, Moya Baldwin and Patricia King and Pam Corradino and Roe Johnson. Shooting a net of 63 were Gina Mostone and Laney Clemens Holbrook.

Marilyn Robertson scored her first hole-in-one on the second hole at President's Golf Course in a recent men's association mixed tournament. Robertson's teammates Tom Kelley and Dennis Lilla witnessed the hole-in-one shot.

Fenno St., Russell Park LaBreque Soccer Winners

The Quincy Recreation Department recently sponsored a 6-on-6 soccer tournament for the city's 21 summer playgrounds.

The midget boys team from Fenno St. captured first place with the three Costa brothers: Tyler, Kyle and Daryl, Rich Stone, Chris Sheehan, Jared Tucker and Jeff Butts.

Last year's champions from LaBreque finished second with the Giordani and Conley families. Josh, Matt and Mike Giordani, Brendan and Ryan Conley and Danny Sullivan comprised the LaBreque team.

Russell Park finished third in the junior boys division. Team members included: Dan and Paul Donovan, Tim Curran, Paul Flynn, Ryan Farham and Casey Winter.

The Segalla and Hogan families helped lift the team from Atlantic to second place. Steve and John Segalla, Daniel and Ian Hogan and Sean Sullivan paced Atlantic to the city finals.

In the senior girls division, LaBreque playground took first place behind Jen and Kellee Conley, Pam Sullivan, Kerri McAteer, Caitlyn Flaherty, Kelly Coleman, Amy Satkevich and Julie Keane.

O'Rourke finished second with the team of Nicole Flynn, Kate Sharf, Jackie Rideout, Beth Goodrich, Julie Rackauskas and Courtney Rand.

In the senior boys age group, Fenno St. took home the title. The team included Kevin Walsh, Domenic Papile, Mark Gibbons, Dave Rochon, Matt Joyce and Greg McGinnis.

The Forbes Hill team of Adam Woo, Matt Kenney, Dave Riley, Bill Miller, Martin McGrath and Pat Casper finished second.

City Frisbee Winners

The Whamo World Jr. Frisbee Disc Contest, sponsored by the Quincy Recreation Department, was held recently at Russell Park with more than 100 participants.

The city wide contest consisted of various frisbee events including: distance, accuracy and numerous catching displays. Also included in this year's contest was the hackey-sack used for bonus points.

This year's winners:

Midgets (Ages 8, 9, 10): Girls: first place-Erica Djerf, Beechwood; Boys: first place-Brian Malone, LaBreque.

Juniors (Ages 11 and 12): Girls: first place-Julie Rackauskas, Wollaston; Boys: first place-Dennis Thomson, Mass Fields.

Local Cyclists To Pedal In Autumn Escape Bike Trek

Doug Haskins, a Quincy resident and Quincy Hospital employee, is gearing up for the American Lung Association's 12th Annual Autumn Escape Bike Trek.

Haskins is not only riding in the bike trek, but also is organizing a team of 25 co-workers and friends to ride to support the fight against lung disease. Also on the Quincy Hospital team are Haskins' wife, Lynn, Rob and Elaine Curtis and Michelle Columbus, all of Quincy.

Other Quincy residents participating in the trek are Robert Parker, Linda Doherty and Jeffrey Stapleton. Stapleton, whose mother has lung cancer, has a personal commitment to help fight lung disease.

Together they will pedal from Plymouth to Provincetown Sept. 13-15. The three-day, 160-mile trek takes hundreds of bicyclists along the back roads and bike paths of scenic Cape Cod.

The Autumn Escape Bike Trek route features some of the finest New England scenery. Over three days, the bicyclists will tour the Cape Cod Canal, the Falmouth Shining Sea Bike Trail, the Old King's Highway, and the Cape Cod National Seashore.

The Lung Association will provide camp accommodations in Sandwich and Brewster, breakfast and dinners, a sag wagon to carry gear, a mobile bike repair shop, experienced leaders, frequent rest stops and plentiful snacks, and a communications and check point system for safety and encouragement.

For more information about the Autumn Escape Bike Trek, contact the American Lung Association of Greater Norfolk County at (508) 668-6729.

Doyle Reception Raises Over $17,000

the other kids get brushed aside. I think overall I've missed a year of my son Steven's life taking care of Philip."

Philip's mother said her son was blown away by the appearance of former and current sports celebrities Bobby Orr, Jim Lonborg, Chris Slade and Steve DeOssie and National Hockey League referee Paul Stewart, all of whom signed autographs for the 500 people who turned out.

"He was really pleased Orr came," she said. "It knocked him over that such a big name came. He knows Jim (Lonborg) personally, and Steve (DeOssie) is a friend of my husband's. Paul Stewart used to umpire in the Boston Park League, and my husband was a pitcher, so they knew each other from then."

Linnane, who got involved with the Philip Doyle Fund when heard about it from Nicholson and Glendye, said he was impressed with the support from the media celebrities, including WHDH-TV's Liz Claman, the event's emcee.

"Liz got up there, helped raise some money and made my job easier," said Linnane. "She picked it up and ran with the program and did an excellent job. WBZ Radio's Tom Cuddy and Scott Cooper, who played the role of auctioneer, also came down to help us out."

Others who contributed to the success of the event, Linnane said, included Joe and Ed Kane of Eating Up the Coast, who provided the facility and food for all in attendance.

Linnane also praised the volunteers from the L St. Running Club, who donated their time to work the door, the autograph line and "kept everything running smoothly the entire night."

Also attending the event was a large group of unions, including the Pipefitters of Boston, members of NYNEX and the Jimmy Fund.

With all these people lending a hand to ensure the event's success. how did Linnane react to the news that City Council President Peter Kolson proclaimed the day "Mike Linnane Day" in Quincy?

"It was a bit of a surprise when I found out, but it was a real nice honor," said Linnane. Here we were trying to do all this for Philip, and they sneak this in on me."

In the future, Linnane said those involved with the Philip Doyle Fund will continue to raise funds to aid children who need financial help with medical costs, including holding a golf tournament in the spring.

"Now that Philip is in remission, we can take on additional people," he said. "The Jimmy Fund puts us in contact with families that need some financial assistance, and we'll do our best to help them out."

Mrs. Doyle agrees: "Until they find a cure, kids are still getting this disease and families are going through it with them. I'm confident it will work out, though. I don't want to stop here--I want to help others anyway I can."

Mary Deware Wins Deware Golf Tourney

The annual Deware Classic Golf Tournament for the lady golfers was held recently at Furnace Brook Golf Club.

Scott Deware, president of Deware Funeral Homes of Quincy, presented the awards. Mary Deware of Quincy won the tournament and past winner Pat Cugini of Rockland was the runner-up.

DO YOUR PART

For more than a decade, the auto industry has been doing its part to better assure the safety of drivers and passengers. Though cars are generally smaller than those produced many years ago, they are also safer. Today's automobiles are designed with "crumple zones" at their front and rears that are engineered to absorb and redirect crash forces by allowing the vehicle's frame and componentry to fold into itself in a crash. Passenger compartments are also reinforced with safety cage structures, once only found in race cars, that offer cocoon-like protection. Added padding and energy-absorbing materials also help to reduce injuries. In addition to airbags, seatbelts and anti-lock brakes make driving safer; however, despite their proven safety effectiveness, some people still resist buckling up and/or do not know how to make the best use of their anti-lock brakes. For these safety features to work, they must be used, and correctly.

HINT: In order that they may work as intended, antilock brakes should not be pumped. Instead, exert steady and firm pressure upon the brake pedal.

OBITUARIES

Joseph L. Rooney, 77

New England Telephone Manager

A memorial Mass for Joseph L. Rooney, 77, formerly of Quincy and recently of North Port, Fla., and Marlborough, Conn., was celebrated Aug. 24 in St. John Fisher Church, Marlborough, Conn.

Mr. Rooney died Aug. 17 in Marlborough.

He began his 45-year career at New England Telephone as an office boy and worked his way up to southeast area manager of the Boston Public Telephone department, including Cape Cod and the Islands, a position he held for 10 years.

A member of the Morrisette Legion Post in Quincy and the Neighborhood Club of Quincy, he was a former member of Archbishop Williams Men's Club of Braintree, former officer of the Quincy Art Association, former president of the New England Adventures Club, and former president of South Council Telephone Pioneers.

He also managed the Grossman's Little Baseball team for five years and was a Boy Scout leader at St. John's Church.

He played baseball with the Atlantic Braves in the old Quincy Park League.

Following his retirement in 1982, he lived in Marlborough, Conn., and spent winters in North Port, Fla. He was a member of the LaCasa Homeowners Association there.

A graduate of North Quincy High School, he attended Boston University after serving with the Coast Guard for three years in World War II.

He was a communicant of San Pedro Catholic Church in North Port, Fla.

Mr. Rooney is survived by his wife, J. Frances (Pinkman) Rooney; a son, Paul Rooney of Braintree and Limerick, Maine; a daughter, Helen Baehr of Marlborough; three sisters, Katherine (O'Donnell) Devlin of Duxbury, Pauline Cronin of Quincy and Frances Kennedy of Maryland; and five grandchildren.

Burial was with military honors in Marlborough Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Spencer Funeral Home, East Hampton.

Alan J. Quinn, 49

Computer Programmer

A funeral service for Alan J. Quinn, 49, of Quincy, was held Aug. 23 at Hamel, Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St.

Mr. Quinn died Aug. 19 at home.

He was a computer programmer for Prudential Life Insurance.

Born in Boston, he was a graduate of North Quincy High School and lived in Quincy all his life.

He is survived by his former wife, Laurie (Carter) Quinn; three daughters, Lauren Quinn, April Quinn and Georgia Quinn, all of Quincy; and a brother, David Quinn of Weymouth.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

John M. Zanardelli, 85

Market Owner For 40 Years

A funeral Mass for John M. Zanardelli, 85, of Quincy, was celebrated yesterday (Wednesday) in St. Mary's Church.

Mr. Zanardelli died Sunday at Tobey Hospital in Wareham.

Owner and operator of John's Market in West Quincy for 40 years, he retired in 1976.

Born in Verona, Italy, he came to the United States as a child in 1916 and settled in Quincy where he was raised, educated and lived for 80 years.

He is survived by his wife of 65 years, Josephine P. (Rusconi) Zanardelli; a son, John K. "Buckie" Zanardelli of Quincy; a sister, Caroline Winquist of Hingham; four grandchildren, and several nieces and nephews.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave.

Donations may be made to St. Mary's Church Improvement Fund, 115 Crescent St., West Quincy, MA 02169.

Edith R. Beck, 87

Lifelong Quincy Resident

A funeral Mass for Edith R. (Purdy) Beck, 87, of Quincy, was celebrated yesterday (Wednesday) in St. Chrysostom's Episcopal Church, Hancock St.

Mrs. Beck died Sunday in Quincy Hospital.

A lifelong resident of Quincy, she was a graduate of the Woodward School for Girls and a member of St. Mary's Guild of Chrysostom Episcopal Church.

Wife of the late John E. Beck, she is survived by a son, Martin R. Beck of Pepperell; a brother, Albert Purdy of Quincy; a cousin, Agnes Woodbury of Quincy; and several nephews and nieces.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were by the Deware Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St.

Donations may be made to the Alzheimer's and Related Disorders Association, 1 Kendall Square, Cambridge, MA 02138.

Ann Marie Daly

A funeral Mass for Ann Marie (Cummings) Daly of Quincy will be celebrated today (Thursday) at 10 a.m. in Sacred Heart Church.

Mrs. Daly died Monday.

Wife of the late Charles J. Daly, she is survived by a son, Edward J. Daly of Carver; a sister, Marguerite Irwin of Quincy; and two grandsons, Benjamin C. Daly and Robert N. Daly, both of Carver. She was also the sister of the late Patrick J. Jennings.

Burial will be in St. Joseph's Cemetery, West Roxbury.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

Donations may be made to the Parkinson's Disease Foundation, 720 Harrison Ave., Boston, MA 02101.

Paul J. Skarzenski, 68

Retired Boston Fire Dept. Captain

A private graveside service for Paul J. Skarzenski, 68, of Quincy, was held at Massachusetts National Cemetery, Bourne.

Mr. Skarzenski died Aug. 19 at home after a short illness.

A retired captain in the Boston Fire Department, he worked for the fire department for 26 years before retiring in 1990.

Born in Long Island, N.Y., he lived in South Boston before moving to Quincy 30 years ago.

He served in the Marine Corps.

He is survived by his wife, Mary (Connolly) Skarzenski; a son, Paul M. Skarzenski of Weymouth; a daughter, Eleanor Campbell of Quincy; eight grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

A Thought For The Week

At this time of the year, most people's thoughts turn to the coming change in the season and the beginning of school. Kids of all ages will be standing, walking, running and in all ways populating the streets . . . so, let us all take a little more caution when driving . . . But we'd like to take this thought beyond the basic "School's opening, drive safely" theme, to include some other hopes for the coming school year.

We hope that all teachers, administrators and students approach the new school year with a zest for teaching and learning, to provide the best education that is possible. And we would like to see all the parents of school children examine their own ideas and behavior and make a positive commitment to help the education of their own kids . . . Too often, people criticize the schools, the teachers, the administrators and the kids for what some people feel is a general malaise among our youth. When, in fact, a lot of the blame for this malaise starts and grows in the home . . .

Let us remember that schools, teachers and parents working together can mold young minds and head them in a positive direction.

School Bells Ring Sept. 4

dar.

Although school bells won't ring until next week, there has been activity in and around school buildings in preparation of the coming year.

This summer, school grounds have been a major focus. "We've tried to pay more attention to the school grounds. They are looking better than they had. The greenery looks a lot better than it has," Creedon said, adding that frequent rain this summer has also helped.

One significant project which has been completed is a new asphalt roof at Central Middle School. The original slate roof, as old as the 101-year-old building, had become dangerous and leaky because of loose slates.

The front of the Point Webster School on Lancaster St. has undergone an improvement and beautification project. First, a circular driveway was installed and Lancaster St. was widened to improve accessibility, thereby making it safer for students. The area has also been landscaped and greenery added, Creedon said.

An elevator was installed at Quincy High School to make that building more handicapped accessible, Creedon said.

One project which city and school officials will continue to address this year is the construction of a new Quincy Point elementary school. Creedon said the site at Victory Park off Southern Artery (near the old Pollard School site) has been approved by the state.

Because the city met the June 1 application deadline, Quincy will receive 63% reimbursement of the construction cost from the state, Creedon pointed out.

The school will help alleviate overcrowding at the Sterling Middle School which is presenting taking students from the Point Webster and Lincoln-Hancock Elementary Schools. With a new elementary school in Quincy Point, Point Webster will revert to a middle school, thereby easing overcrowding at the Sterling School.

Creedon said site preparation at Victory Park could begin as early as this fall. Construction would probably require a full year. Officials would then need another six months to prepare the building for occupation.

If all goes according to plan, Creedon said he hopes the new elementary school would be ready for students in the fall of 1998.

The city employs approximately 696 teachers throughout the system's 18 schools. Quincy has two high schools, four middle schools, 11 elementary schools and one early childhood center.

Creedon said enrollment has experienced modest growth during the last five or six years. He said the system's population bottomed out in 1989 when there were 7,861 students. That figure is probably the lowest in 25 years, he pointed out.

Since then, enrollment has ticked up one or two percent per year. Overall, enrollment has climbed approximately 10 percent since 1989.

Creedon cited three main factors for the rise: increased birth rate, increase immigration and affordable housing. "Quincy is an attractive place for families because of public transportation and its proximity to Boston," Creedon said.

The 1996-97 school year marks Creedon's 26th in the Quincy public school system, the fourth as superintendent. He said the start of the school year brings a renewed sense of purpose.

"The opening of school is an exciting time. You have to take a look at the values and things you cherish and realize children is our first priority in all that we do.

"There's a sense of starting anew. That's the beauty of education. You're always trying to be better than the year before."

Eastern Nazarene Receives $325,000 Settlement

President Kent Hill and the Board of Trustees of Eastern Nazarene College announce that the college has received a settlement from a New Jersey probate court in the estate of the late Warren Lahue, a former trustee of the college.

The net amount to the College is approximately $325,000.

The $325,000 estate settlement marks the second large gift received by the school within the past 14 months. In June of 1995, ENC received $800,000 from an anonymous alumni for scholarship endowment.

ENC trustees have authorized that the proceeds from the Lahue estate be allocated toward the partial restoration of the Edward S. Mann Student Center. Students and the ENC community will enjoy a beautifully renovated and air-conditioned campus cafeteria as well as significant upgrades to the College Store and the Student Center Auditorium.

Warren Lahue died in 1993. He had been a member of the Lowell Church of the Nazarene for many years. He was an ENC alumnus and served for 30 years as a trustee of the college. The college gymnasium is named in his honor. This gift is an extension of his desire to provide generous resources to ENC and will help even after his death to advance its mission.

Colleges Need To Provide Students With What They Need

means that people have jobs, but not necessarily those jobs they want to hold for a long time. National indicators report that career changes for American workers are the norm. As many as five job changes can be expected in today's workplace. Some of those changes include geographic moves and relocation to radically different work environments.

However, more Americans are finding that they cannot leave work full-time to attend college or to seek retraining. Although college is imperative for them, they look to institutions for programs designed to acknowledge work and family commitments.

"These students are very demanding and ready to learn, they don't want extensive, traditional college services--they want a clean classroom, excellent instructors and good course selections," said Dr. Jerry Ryan, president of Quincy College.

Ryan said there are still thousands of people seeking an affordable full-time day college experience but those people are only part of a total group of applicants.

"The survival of educational institutions will be dictated by the success of individual schools in identifying the distinct market segments of students and their needs and expectations," said Barry. "In plain English, we need to ask students what they want, and be very flexible in providing that to them. For many institutions that is a huge challenge because of bureaucracy or budgeting problems. We've had great success at Quincy College because of an entrepreneurial spirit and a relatively small administrative structure."

Barry said that students seeking a more traditional college experience enroll in day courses at the Quincy and Plymouth campuses while evening and weekend students tend to be more likely working or raising a family.

"Our evening students are looking for college to be a smaller part of a busy schedule, so we've made improvements to our schedule to accommodate those realities," said Barry.

These improvements include Accelerated Degree Programs, and Double-Ups, which offer two back-to-back evening courses and weekend programs.

"The on-campus concept at Quincy College means that students may move between day, evening or weekend programs without financial penalty or additional paperwork," said Ryan. "It's clear that the Quincy College of today is different and more user-friendly."

Quincy Atty. Theresa Lord, a member of the Quincy College Board of Governors, agrees: "There is a newfound sense of excitement and opportunity at Quincy College. When I attended Quincy we didn't have the technology or student services that the college now provides. This is an enormous advantage since this doesn't come as a huge expense for students."

Quincy College offers the least expensive tuition and fees in the region and is the only municipality managed community college in New England. Traditionally, community colleges like Quincy College are entry-paths for returning students, working adults and career oriented individuals seeking retraining. Admissions is simplified and ongoing, and the college has guaranteed admissions for Quincy College graduates seeking admission to area four-year colleges.

"We invited anyone interested in self-improvement and a quality education to come and see Quincy College," said Barry. "We've changed for the better. While price is certainly a factor in why people come here, they stay because we listen to them and we adapt to meet their needs."

N.Q. Body Piercing Shop Owner Requests Hearing

The owner of a North Quincy body piercing shop has asked City Council President Peter Kolson to schedule a public hearing regarding a proposed ordinance that would regulate the practice of body piercing in the city.

Mik Miller, owner of the Body Xtremes store at 414 Hancock St., has submitted to Kolson a list of 194 names--including 115 from Quincy--in favor of holding such a hearing.

"I only want a chance to speak," Miller said in a written statement. "I feel that the public should be made aware of what is being voted on. Whether I do the piercing or not, people will still get pierced and most of the younger generation will do it themselves. I am offering a safe, sterile alternative."

It appears, however, that Miller did not have to go through the trouble of collecting nearly 200 signatures.

City Solicitor Stephen McGrath said a public hearing is required by law when an ordinance change affects zoning. City Clerk Joseph Shea said that is the case with the proposed piercing law.

Kolson said even if a hearing were not already required by law, he would be happy to hold one at Miller's request if the other city councillors agreed to it.

Kolson added that the council will address the body piercing issue in late September or early October.

In June, a draft of the proposed ordinance was written and submitted to the council by Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue. Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers, whose ward includes Body Xtremes, has said he asked Gallahue to write the law regulating body piercing mainly because of safety concerns voiced by neighbors.

DESCRIPTION: "Unit 207 of the SUNNYLEA AT QUINCY SQUARE CONDOMINIUM, created by Master Deed dated November 25, 1987, and recorded with Norfolk Registry of Deeds in Book 7816, Page 571, together with an undivided 1.765% interest appertaining to said Unit in the common areas and facilities of said Condominium and subject to and with the benefit of the provisions of said Master Deed hereinabove referred to. The Post Office Address of the Condominium is 195 Thomas S. Burgin Parkway, Quincy, Norfolk County, Massachusetts 02169. The Unit is conveyed without the exclusive easement appurtenant thereto for the use of a parking space.

The said Unit is conveyed with the benefit of and subject to: (a) the provisions of Massachusetts General Laws, Chapter 183A as the same may now or hereafter be amended, (b) the Master Deed and any amendments thereto, (c) the SUNNYLEA AT QUINCY SQUARE CONDOMINIUM TRUST and amendments thereto, the by-laws and all matters of record stated or referred to in the Master Deed, as completely as if each were fully set forth herein, (d) further subject to real estate taxes attributable to said Unit for the current year as are not now due and payable.

The Unit shall be used for residential purposes only and is subject to such other restrictions on its use as are set forth in the Master Deed.

The said Grantee(s) by the acceptance and recording of this Deed agree to assume and perform all conditions of this Deed and the said Master Deed as completely as if each were fully set forth herein.

The Unit referred to above is laid out as shown on the unit plan attached to the Grantors Unit Deed, which is a copy of a portion of the Floor Plans filed with the Master Deed and to which is affixed a verified statement in the form provided in Massachusetts General Laws, Chapter 183A, Section 9, and said Unit contains the area shown on the plan recorded herewith."

For title see unit deed to Bonnie M. Crowley dated February 16, 1988, and recorded with the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 7885, Page 493.

In the event of a typographical error or omission contained in this publication, the description of the premises contained in said Unit Deed shall control.

TERMS OF SALE:

1. A non-refundable deposit payable in cash, certified or bank check in the amount of five thousand dollars ($5,000.00) for the unit shall be payable at the Auction.

2. The balance of the purchase price is to be paid within thirty (30) days of the auction.

3. An Auctioneer's Release Deed will be issued to the purchaser, upon payment of the balance of the purchase price, within thirty (30) days of the auction. The Deed shall convey the premises subject to, and with the benefit of, all restrictions, easements, improvements, outstanding tax titles, municipal or other public taxes, assessments, liens, or claims in the nature of liens, and existing encumbrances of record senior to the lien hereby being satisfied, whether or not reference to such restrictions, easements, improvements, outstanding tax titles, municipal or other public taxes, assessments, liens or claims in the nature of liens or encumbrances is made in the deed.

4. Additionally, and not by way of limitation, the sale shall be subject to and with the benefit of any and all tenants, tenancies, and occupants, if any.

5. No representation is or shall be made as to any amount of taxes due and outstanding.

6. The successful bidder shall pay the future condominium common charges commencing with the date of the auction.

7. No representation is or shall be as to any other mortgages, liens, or encumbrances of record.

8. No representation is or shall be made as to the condition of the Premises or the Condominium. The Premises shall be sold "as is".

9. Other items, if any, shall be announced at the sale.

10. The sale is subject to and in accordance with the Judgement and Order, a copy of which may be obtained from the seller's counsel, Attorney Janet Oulousian Aronson, Marcus, Goodman, Emmer & Brooks, P.C., 45 Braintree Hill Park, Suite #107, Braintree, MA 02184, (617) 843-5000.

NORFOLK COUNTY DEPUTY Sheriffs salute as the casket of Sheriff Clifford H. Marshall is borne from St. John's Church following a funeral Mass attended by 2,000 Saturday.

Well Known, Little Known Overflow St. John's Church

Over 2,000 Bid Farewell To Clifford Marshall, Sheriff And Friend

By HENRY BOSWORTH

They came by the thousands over three days--the well known and the little known--to bid a sad farewell to Clifford H. (Kippy) Marshall, sheriff and friend.

More than 2,000, including a congressman, five mayors, state, city and county officials and law enforcement officers were at St. John's Church--inside and out--for his funeral Mass Saturday.

Earlier on Thursday and Friday, long lines formed outside the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals on Independence Ave. to attend his wake.

Among those visiting the funeral home were Cardinal Bernard Law, Gov. William Weld, Senator John Kerry, Lt. Gov. Paul Cellucci and Treasurer Joseph Malone.

Obituary On Page 24

It was the largest outpouring of affection for an elected official from Quincy since the funeral of late Mayor James McIntyre in 1984, also held at St. John's.

The funeral Mass was shifted from St. Joseph's Church, the sheriff's home parish, to St. John's because the latter is much larger.

But it, too, turned out to be too small.

The main church which seats 800 was filled. Closed circuit television monitors were set up in the lower church, which holds 300, and outside to accommodate the overflow crowd.

Fr. Jack Roche of the Columban Brothers, a close friend, told of visiting Marshall two weeks ago at his Quincy Point home.

He said Marshall could not speak but gave him a wink that said: "I'm okay. That wink was worth a thousand words."

New Salary $75,000

Sheets To Get $12,500 Pay Raise

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Mayor James Sheets soon will be bringing home a bigger paycheck.

Sheets will receive a $12,500 pay raise effective Jan. 1 boosting his salary from $62,500 to $75,000.

The proposed 16.7 percent pay hike was included on the City Council's agenda for its Tuesday night meeting. At press time, indications were that the councillors--whose pay jumped from $10,000 to $12,500 two years ago--would approve the salary increase, although it was unknown if a vote would be taken this week or at a later date.

City Council President Peter Kolson said he has spoken with the entire council about the pay hike and has heard no opposition.

"It's a reasonable pay increase," said Kolson. "The mayor has done an excellent job, and we have department heads who make more than he does. The job warrants it."

The vice chairman of the council's Finance Committee voiced similar sentiments.

"I think he deserves to get paid at least what the other department heads are getting paid," said Councillor Timothy Cahill.

Councillor Michael Cheney, the Finance Committee chairman, could not be reached for comment.

Kolson said at press time he did not know if the council would vote on the matter or put it into committee Tuesday night.

"It depends on what the other councillors want to do," he said.

Sheets, for his part, said the intent of the pay hike is to bring his salary up to the same level as that of the other city officials.

"Right now, the mayor's salary is below that of 15 to 20 employees in the city," he said. "We're trying to arrive at a figure for the mayor's pay that we felt would be reasonable to carry into the 21st century. I wouldn't expect the council to even think of another salary increase until then."

Last year, Sheets noted, the city's department heads and other non-union workers received salary increases of a little over 13 percent while the salaries of union workers went up about 12 percent.

Sheets said his salary increase would "round out all of the raises" and bring his pay to a figure more comparable to those of his department heads.

In fact, if the City Council does approve the pay hike, his salary will still be less than the figures currently paid to the superintendent of schools ($90,000), assistant school superintendent ($78,773) and police and fire chiefs ($78,000 apiece).

Sheets also provided figures showing that even with a pay increase, his salary will be lower than that of mayors of communities with populations similar to Quincy's. The mayor of Fall River, which has a population of 93,000, makes $78,426 a year, while the salary of the mayor of Newton, which has a population of 81,000, recently jumped from $82,500 to $120,000.

Other communities with mayors earning more than Sheets include Boston ($110,000), Waltham ($86,000), Beverly ($80,000), Brockton and Medford ($78,000 apiece), and Revere ($77,643).

Bellotti Bill Would Regulate Body Piercing

State Rep. Michael Bellotti has filed legislation to regulate body piercing in Massachusetts.

The legislation would make Massachusetts the only state in the country other than Oklahoma with such regulations. The bill calls for the following:

•No person would engage in the practice of body piercing unless licensed by the Massachusetts Department of Public Health. Licenses would be issued for a $50 fee and be reviewed annually.

•No such piercing would be performed on a child younger than age 18 unless with the permission of a parent or guardian who must be physically present.

•The commissioner of public health would promulgate rules and regulations regarding piercing which would establish sanitation standards.

•Any violation of the law or rules and regulations established would be punishable by a $2,000 fine.

Bellotti said he filed the legislation mainly because he is concerned about sanitation standards in the body piercing industry and about the health of minors. The opening of the Body Xtremes piercing shop in North Quincy also was a factor, he said.

"I think because it's such a growing industry, and relatively new to the mainstream, that it should be regulated," said Bellotti.

He added that he thinks his colleagues in the Legislature will back the bill.

"I don't think it will be anything controversial," Bellotti noted. "I think it will receive widespread support."

Bellotti said he hopes the Massachusetts House of Representatives can take up the matter as soon as possible.

The City Council plans to review a proposed ordinance regulating piercing in the city either later this month or in October. Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers, who had Quincy Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue submit a draft of the law to the council in September, said his actions were prompted by the opening of Body Xtremes.

Musical Entertainment, Family Activities Among Festivities

Quincy Promenade To Open Sunday

The official opening of the city's newest attraction, the Quincy Promenade, will celebrate its grand opening Sunday, Sept. 8 from 4 to 8 p.m. on Ross Way off Granite City.

Festivities for the pedestrian sculpture park will feature live entertainment by the Drifters and Clutch Grabwell and the Leadfoot Horns. There will also be refreshments and family activities including face painting and giant bubble blowing.

The Quincy Promenade, a downtown revitalization project, will also be a sculpture park, thanks to the voluntary participation of the South Shore Art Center in Cohasset. A group of area artists have selected pieces for the setting, a stretch of Ross Way which runs parallel to Hancock St., and abuts the Ross Parking Garage.

The $150,000 to $200,000 refurbishment project is managed by the Quincy Department of Public Works in cooperation with the Traffic and Parking Department, and funded by city bonds.

Sculptures range from figurative to abstract, and three include benches for pedestrians. Other visual improvements include fencing, banners and refurbished sidewalks, signage and lighting.

The landscaped promenade was designed by Mary Smith Associates, one of the landscape architects of Great Woods. Also redone will be Town Brook Alley, a connecting walkway between Hancock Street and Ross Way.

New lighting, reworked sidewalks containing circles of sparkling concrete, and overhead banners designed by Ross Miller, the designer of banners at Boston's Downtown Crossing, will adorn the walkway.

"This is a wonderful chance to bring art to our region and into people's lives on an everyday basis--on their way to work, as they do an errand, while walking their children," said South Shore Art Center Executive Director David Lloyd Brown.

DPW Commissioner David Colton said the promenade is the first downtown major revitalization project coordinating public art displays and the business community. It is also the first portion of that area's planned refurbishment which is projected over the coming years.

"We are delighting to be working with the South Shore Art Center and appreciative of their members' important contribution to the success of this project," Colton said.

City officials hope the promenade can make that downtown area more exciting, thereby drawing more consumer traffic.

As part of the project, The Farmers' Market is operating Saturdays between 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the promenade. Free two hour parking is available in the Ross Parking Garage.

The Saturday market is in addition to the Friday Farmers' Market held at the Hancock Parking Lot.

Lunch-time concerts at the promenade commenced Wednesday. Concerts are held between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Other special festivals are planned throughout the fall.

Hurricane Causes No Damage

Area Breathes Easier After Edouard Departs

Residents in Quincy and most of Massachusetts are breathing a collective sigh of relief now that Hurricane Edouard has come and gone.

Although the Labor Day storm impacted Martha's Vineyard, Cape Cod and the Islands, the majority of communities in the Greater Boston area--including Quincy and the South Shore--experienced only gusty winds and steady rainfall.

Quincy Emergency Management Deputy Director Tony Siciliano said he received no calls Monday from city residents about any damage or flooding caused by the storm.

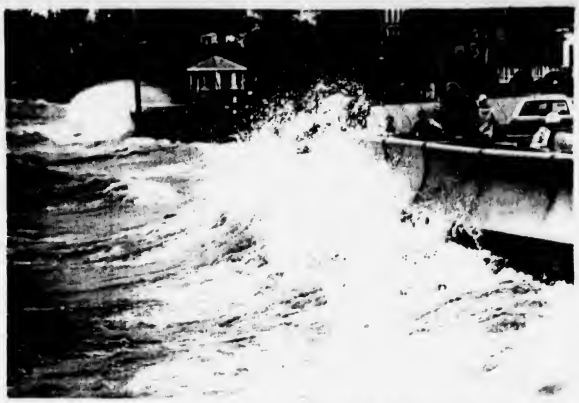
"We were fortunate the hurricane did not hit us head on as a Category 3," said Siciliano. "That would have caused some real trouble."

Siciliano noted that when Edouard first originated, it was a Category 4 hurricane. Storms in the Category 4 range, only one level below what he termed "catastrophic," contain steady winds of between 131 and 145 miles per hour, while Category 3 winds range from 111 to 130 miles per hour, according to Siciliano.

When Edouard blew into Quincy, Siciliano said, it was dropping from a Category 2 hurricane to a Category 1. The lowest wind levels for Category 1 are 74 miles per hour, he added.

Siciliano commended Emergency Management personnel and auxiliary police members whose main duty during the storm was to drive people to and from medical appointments and other destinations.

"They all did a great job," he said.



HURRICANE EDOUARD caused waves to crash against the seawall at Quincy Shore Drive, but caused no major damage or flooding Monday.

Emergency shelters also were set up at North Quincy High School and the Quincy Center for Technical Education. Siciliano said only one person sought shelter, and that was at the latter site.

During the storm, Gov. William Weld declared a state of emergency in Massachusetts, and a local state of emergency also was declared by the city. Both were lifted by 4 p.m. Monday.

Get Ready For 'The Big Game' Friday

Gov. William Weld has signed into a bill sponsored by Sen. Michael Morrissey creating a new lottery game that will increase local revenue to Massachusetts cities and towns.

"The Big Game" will generate $30 to $40 million annually that will go directly into Local Aid and helps us actively compete with other multi-state lotteries such as Powerball," said Morrissey.

The multi-state lottery game, dubbed "The Big Game," is a six state partnership is designed to create large jackpots that will rival those of Powerball. Powerball is currently in 21 states, including Rhode Island, Connecticut and New Hampshire. "The Big Game" will protect the Massachusetts Lottery from Powerball competition.

"Massachusetts lottery sales declined approximately 43 percent in towns bordering Powerball states," said Morrissey.

Lottery revenues pay for school services not covered under Chapter 70, and contribute to local public safety and local public work projects.

"The Big Game protects Massachusetts's own lottery business while helping small businesses against out of state competition," said Morrissey. "This additional revenue will help fund programs that communities cannot fund otherwise and help continue the flow of local aid from the state."

"The Big Game" is much like other Massachusetts "lotto" games.

"It is simple to play and will revitalize existing Lottery games. Other states that have Powerball have seen an increase of Lottery sales," said Morrissey.

Jackpots for the new game are expected to reach $15 million to $100 million. The first drawing is scheduled for Friday.

Disability Commission Meeting At City Hall

The Quincy Commission on Disability will meet Monday, Sept. 9 at 6:15 p.m. in the second floor Conference Room at City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The meeting is open to the public.

Applications are being accepted for additional committee members. For more information, call Judie Dacey at 472-7528 or Nancy McGee at 770-4530.

Your Social Security

Changing Careers

By CAROL BOYLE

Most American workers change jobs an estimated four to six times during their working life, and observers note that the rate seems to be increasing. There are many reasons for changing jobs -- a promotion, a change in career focus, even a layoff. Regardless of the reason, you may wonder if it will affect your Social Security if you change jobs. Most likely it won't.

No matter how many times you change jobs, you never lose the Social Security protection you've already earned. And you continue earning that valuable protection for your and your family as long as you work in a job that's covered by Social Security. Although there's no difference in how you earn Social Security protection, a job change could mean a difference in how you pay your Social Security and Medicare taxes.

If you're paid a salary, your employer deducts 7.65 percent from your gross pay, matches the deduction dollar for dollar and sends both amounts, long with a report of your earnings, to the government. If, however, you are self-employed, as are 8.1 million of the 143 million current workers, you pay your Social Security and Medicare taxes directly to the government.

It's not uncommon for a person to switch from a salaried job to self-employment and when that happens he or she may wonder how that affects his or her Social Security. For example, a woman recently called our office to ask how she would pay Social Security now that she had changed her career.

Mary McDonald had worked for a large company for 15 years when her job was eliminated because business dropped off. Fortunately, Mary's experience and knowledge enabled her to form her own consulting business. But she no longer has the convenience of having Social Security taxes withheld from her paycheck; and she doesn't have an employer to share the tax expense.

Mary pays the entire 15.3 percent of her salary. Each year, she files her taxes and reports her annual net earnings on IRS schedule SE (for self-employment). Mary pays her Social Security and Medicare taxes as part of her quarterly tax filing. In 1996, she will pay 12.4 percent in Social Security and 2.9 percent in Medicare taxes on net earnings up to $62,700. If she earns above $62,700, she'll pay the 2.9 percent Medicare tax on the rest of her earnings.

Self-employment persons get two income tax deductions that reduce their tax liability. The deductions are intended to make sure self-employed people are treated in much the same way as employers and employees for Social Security and income tax purposes. First, an individual's net profit from self-employment is reduced when determining net self-employment income. Second, self-employed persons can deduct half of their self-employment tax on the face of the IRS form 1040. It can't be an itemized deduction and must not be listed on the Schedule C.

For more information about Social Security and self-employment, call Social Security's toll-free number, 1-800-772-1213, and ask to receive the factsheet Social Security: If You're Self-Employed (Publication No. 05-10022).

Kippy Marshall

When it came to courage, Kippy Marshall had it by the ton.

And loyalty, he had that in the same size.

The name on the many election ballots through the years was Clifford H. Marshall but to his friends he was always Kippy or Kip.

KIPPY MARSHALL

No one seems sure how he got that nickname but he picked it up as a kid in Merrymount and it followed him to Quincy Point, Beacon Hill and to Dedham.

His political career started in 1965 and spanned 31 years. It was not only an impressive one, but a rare one. He never lost an election.

He was elected to five terms as Ward 2 city councillor, three terms as state representative and four as Norfolk County sheriff. Sadly, he didn't get to finish that last term.

He served in the city council with five future mayors: Walter Hannon, Joseph LaRaia, Arthur Tobin, Frank McCauley and James Sheets.

Kippy was stricken in January, 1995 with what at first was thought to be a mild stroke. But it was soon found to be a dreaded brain tumor.

Following six hour surgery in February of that year, he was optimistic and ready to take on whatever was in store for him.

"I'm not quitting," he vowed.

And he never did.

He fought the good fight. But the odds were against him. And, he lost last week at age 58.

For more than a year and a half he courageously fought the battle. And did so with dignity.

He never complained. He never felt sorry for himself. There was never a "Why did this have to happen to me!"

He battled right down to the end.

His wife, Louise, and their four sons, Clifford (better known as Chucky), Mike, Paul and Chris gave him loving strength. And he returned it.

He was proud of the kids. He wouldn't miss one of their hockey or baseball games. He was always there rooting for them.

And Louise was his girl.

A few days ago, when time suddenly started to rapidly run out on him, Louise said to a long-time friend:

"I've always loved Kippy and respected him. And during this period (his illness) that love and respect has grown and grown."

Loyalty meant a lot to him. If a friend needed help, he was always there with a helping hand. And that hand went out to others, too.

But there were a few he helped who thought loyalty was a one-way street: the one with their name on it.

Politically, Kippy was a clean campaigner. No dirty tricks. No meanness. He was a straight shooter. He accented the positive in life and in politics.

During his tenure as sheriff, he built a reputation as a good administrator and an innovator. He initiated modern incarceration alternatives such as work-release programs.

One of his most notable achievements is the new Norfolk County Correctional Center constructed between the north and southbound lanes of Route 128 in Dedham and opened in 1991.

It replaced the old Dedham jail that dated back to 1817 and whose most famous prisoners were Sacco and Vanzetti during their controversial 1920's trial for the murder of a Braintree factory payroll guard.

I met Kippy when he was making his first run for the Ward 2 city council seat in 1965. I saw a good-looking, clean cut, crew-cut kid, full of enthusiasm and promise.

I watched him through the years after he won that council seat and went on to become state representative and then sheriff.

And, though the years went by, to me he was always that good looking clean cut kid still full of enthusiasm and fulfilling that promise. There was one change, however. The crew cut disappeared somewhere along the way.

That new Norfolk County Correctional Center is considered by many as his most notable achievement. But I don't think so.

I think he had a bigger achievement. It was in the way he lived his life: as a real decent human being.

Decency. He had that by the ton, too.

Kip, we're really going to miss you.

Applications Available For Adams Site Employment

The Adams National Historic Site is accepting applications through Sunday for full-time or part-time seasonal employment as park ranger, not to exceed six months.

The Adams Site includes the birthplaces of the second and sixth U.S. Presidents, John Adams and John Quincy Adams; the Adams Peach field estate including the "Old House", home to the two presidents and their distinguished decedents; a visitor center and through a cooperative agreement, interpretative programs at the crypts of the presidents and the United First Parish Church. Park rangers perform the technical and practical work supporting park management, conservation, interpretation, development and use of park areas and resources.

To be eligible for seasonal employment, applicants must be a U.S. Citizen, and be at least 18 years of age. Those interested must submit a OF-612 federal application resume to the Adams National Historic Site, P.O. Box 531, Quincy MA 02269 no later than Sept. 19. Applications may be obtained by calling the administrative specialist at 773-1177.

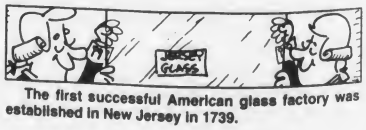
Informational Gathering For Grandparents Sept. 18

The Quincy Council on Aging, in conjunction with Harvard Community Health Plan, will sponsor an informational gathering for grandparents who find themselves parenting their grandchildren.

The event will take place Wednesday, Sept. 18 from 10 to 11:30 a.m. at the Harvard Community Health Center (4th floor), 1250 Hancock St., Quincy Center. Validated parking is available at the Harvard Community Health Plan garage on Saville St.

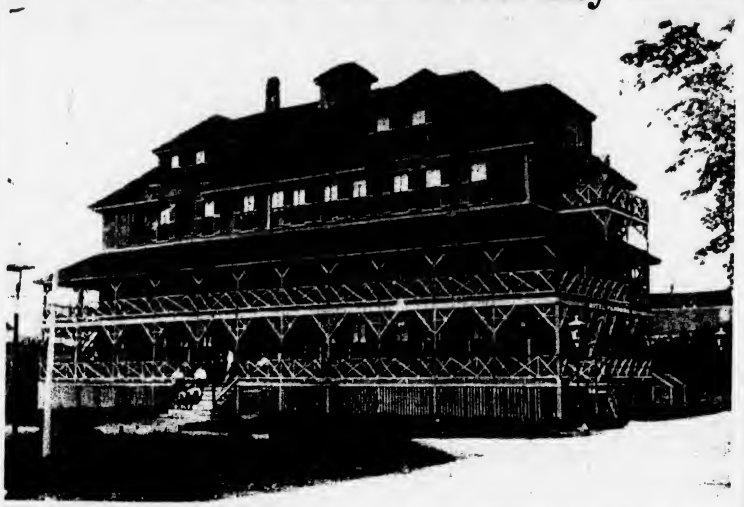
There will be presentations and resources available in areas such as legal issues, finding services for children, educational services and advocacy and financial services.

Registration is encouraged, but not required. To register, call Mary Burke at 376-1243 or Chip Wilder at 774-0920.



The first successful American glass factory was established in New Jersey in 1739.

Scenes From Yesterday



THIS 1912 POSTCARD is a closeup view of the Hotel Pandora on Fensmere Street at the end of Houghs Neck. Built in 1900 as the Fensmere Hotel, it later was named the Crystal Lake Hotel and during the 1920's and 30's until its demise it was called Taylor's Hotel. A popular summer destination the Pandora had horse stables, a private launch for guests, and a separate dance hall open to the public.

Take Advantage Of Citizens Police Academy Course

An open letter to the citizens of Quincy:

I would like to let all of you know about the Quincy Police Academy's Citizen's Course.

It's a 10-week course every Thursday night. Each week there is a different Quincy police officer explaining his department's role in the everyday operations of the Quincy police. One of the training sessions involves being part of a routine Quincy police cruiser patrol (about four hours). This gives you a hands-on look at what these officers face during a night's work.

I really learned so much about our Quincy police and the good things they are doing for the citizens of Quincy that we never hear about.

I've always had respect for our police department before I attended this course, but now I have an even greater respect and appreciation for what the Quincy police officers have to encounter on a daily basis.

I truly believe every one of us in this city should take advantage of this academy's course. It really is an experience that will not be forgotten for a long time.

Applications are available in the lobby of police headquarters. The next course session is scheduled for Sept. 12.

I believe Officer Bob Hanna and all of the officers involved with this program would appreciate the citizens of Quincy showing an interest in just what our police department faces on a daily basis and develop a deeper insight into how they do their job.

Thank you Quincy Police, Bob Hanna and everyone associated with this very progressive community educational program.

Illinois Commissioner Praises Quincy Officer

[The following letter, dated Aug. 15 and addressed to Police Chief Francis Mullen, was submitted for publication:]

Dear Chief:

As you can see from the letterhead, I am a fire/police commissioner in Quincy, Ill., and being such I perhaps take more notice of the actions and attitudes of police officers when visiting out of town than do the majority of people.

A couple weeks ago I had the pleasure of visiting in your city with friends. I had occasion to seek directions and assistance from one of your officers, Terry McDonnell. I wanted you to know how impressed I was with the reception I received from him. He was more than courteous, friendly and very helpful. In fact, Officer McDonnell made me feel very much at home. Being sensitive to the impression a police officer makes on the public, I thought it wise to let you know my impressions.

Your community was of great assistance to ours during the Great Flood of 1993 and I think many of us here in Quincy, Ill., feel a special kinship with the citizens of Quincy, Mass. That may explain why many of us have since found ourselves vacationing in your fine city. Officer McDonnell, in a personal contact with me, personified all the feelings of fellowship and caring all of us here in Quincy, Ill., received during the Great Flood of 1993 from the citizens in your community.

Lane Probes Crime Link To Pinball

By PAUL HAROLD

Sept. 5 - 11
1957
39 Years Ago

Dist. Atty. Myron Lane ordered an investigation countywide into the connection between pinball machines and gambling. He enlisted Quincy Police Chief William Ferrazzi in the probe.

In a letter to the chief, Lane requested his department provide information, if any, on the pinball machines and gambling activities.

Capt. William McIntyre, head of detectives, would direct the Quincy investigation.

LAND-TAKING TO ENHANCE BIRTHPLACES

The City Council scheduled a public hearing for the taking of the McCausland property on Franklin St. as an addition to the Presidents' birthplaces grounds.

William O'Connell, executive vice president of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, was the leading proponent.

City historian William Edwards opposed the taking, noting that the city recently took the Craig property to add to the birthplaces' property and that the McCausland land was not needed.

O'Connell noted, however, that the McCausland property was zoned for business and that "businesses "were creeping in toward the Presidents' homes."

Councillors Edna Austin and James McIntyre wanted further study before the proposal was rejected. Councillors David McIntosh and Thomas Burgin said the taxpayers couldn't afford it.

SQUANTUM GARDENS TAKE OVER FAVORED

The City Council informally recorded the city in favor of the Navy acquiring Squantum Gardens from the present owners.

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa was given a green light to notify Cong. Richard Wigglesworth and the state's two senators that the city would favor the sale.

City Solicitor Douglas Randall noted, however, that the city wanted monies from rents that reflected current city taxes and future in lieu of tax payments from the Navy.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Sausage and Cheese Casserole

When our daughter Ann Marie and son-in-law Davey invited us for Sunday breakfast, she said it was going to be different and a "surprise".

Well it certainly was that and then some. I just couldn't wait to tell you all about it. The nice part of it is that is can be made the night before. Usually, breakfast takes quite a while if made the ordinary way. But this way was so much easier as you will note.

Ann Marie's Surprise Breakfast

Sausage and Cheese Casserole
1 pound sausage meat
12 slices white bread
3 cups grated cheddar cheese
3 cups milk
4 large eggs
3/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon freshly ground pepper

Saute the sausage meat. Butter a 3 x 9 baking dish.

Remove crusts from the bread and butter one side of each slice.

Arrange half the bread, butter side down. Top with half the sausage meat and half the cheese. Layer the remaining bread, sausage and cheese in the same way.

In a bowl, mix the egg, milk, salt and pepper and pour over the top. Chill for at least an hour and up to 12 hours. Place at room temperature and then bake in a 350 degree oven for 45 to 55 minutes or until puffy and brown.

Cut in squares. It is absolutely the most delicious treat. With this, Ann Marie served potato pancakes and a delicious french toast, a recipe that I will print at a later date.

ANNIE KELLEY of Quincy will star in the lead role of Diane Purdy's Children's Theatre Workshop's production of "Little Red Riding Hood, More Or Less" Saturday, Sept. 7 at 1 p.m. at the Woodschool School, 1102 Hancock St., Quincy. The free performance will be preceded by registration for the workshop's fall semester beginning at 11 a.m. For more information or a free brochure, call 472-9233.

Historical Society Concert, Picnic To Be Held Saturday

The Quincy Historical Society's annual Old-Fashioned Family Day Concert and Picnic will be held Saturday from 2 to 4 p.m. on the grounds of Adams Academy, 8 Adams St., Quincy.

The Pro-Dixie Jazz Band, with Dolly Frezzetti as the featured vocalist, will perform a program ranging from Dixieland to early Swing-era classics. There will also be a variety of children's games and concerts.

Guests may bring picnic lunches. Refreshments including hot dogs, soft drinks and popcorn will be available at moderate prices.

In the event of rain, festivities will be held inside the academy. Admission is free. All are welcome. For more information, call 773-1144.

Promenade Concert Series Schedule

The Quincy Department of Public Works announces the schedule for the Wednesday Lunchtime Concert Series at the new Quincy Promenade along Ross Way in Quincy Center.

Performers include: Ahimsa (New Age jazz), Sept. 11; Carol O'Shaughnesy Duo (contemporary-Broadway), Sept. 18; Back Bay Rhythm Makers Quintet (swing); Oct. 2, Rob Jaret Quartet (pop, R & B and jazz); Oct. 9, JM Productions Broadway Review; Oct. 16, Charles River Stompers Dixieland Band.

Concerts will be held from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. In the event of rain, performances will take place the following day. For more information, call Rodney Spear at 376-1953.

Registration Sept. 12 For Point Players

The Ward 2 Community Center will hold registration for The Point Players Drama Program Thursday, Sept. 12 from 3:30 to 5 p.m. at the Fore River Clubhouse, 16 Nevada Rd., Quincy Point.

The Point Players is planning its fourth season at the clubhouse. Children ages 5-14 are invited to join the classes which are held Thursday afternoons. The 12-week program will culminate in a one-act play Dec. 12 to which the public is invited. Cost of the classes will remain $4 per class and can be paid weekly.

The Point Players are directed by Marianne Timcoe-McCormack who also makes use of mime, improvisation, staged readings and extemporaneous speeches to foster confidence in the child's public speaking skills.

For more information, call Phyllis Bagan at the clubhouse at 376-1376 or McCormack at 472-7865.

Richard Johnson Executive Director Of Hancock Park

Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group has appointed Richard Johnson of Dover executive director of its newest facility, Hancock Park in Quincy.

Johnson will oversee the 142-bed skilled nursing and rehabilitation center owned and managed by Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group. Scheduled to open in October, the facility will also feature Allerton House, consisting of 40 Assisted Living apartments.

Johnson is the former president and executive director of The McAuley, a Classic Residence by Hyatt, a continuing care retirement community in West Hartford, Conn. Previously, he was executive director of Brookhaven, a continuing care retirement community in Lexington.

RICHARD JOHNSON

He holds a master's degree in business administration from Babson College in Wellesley and a master's degree in social work from Boston University. Johnson also has served as a trustee for the Association of Massachusetts Homes and Services for the Aging and McAuley Center Inc.

Johnson lives in Dover with his wife and two sons.

"We are delighted to have someone of Richard's caliber at the helm at Hancock Park," said Richard Welch, president of Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group. "His leadership, influence and guidance will be of great value to our residents, families and staff."

Welch Healthcare's comprehensive care resource serves the needs of the South Shore community with its nursing and rehabilitation centers, home healthcare services, senior living communities, and Assisted Living residences. Its management office is located at 52 Accord Park Drive, Norwell.

"My family and I have been preparing for the opening of Hancock Park for 60 years."
-Richard Welch

When Hancock Park in Quincy opens in October, it will be the newest Healthcare and Assisted Living Center on the South Shore. But this isn't a story about bricks and mortar. It's the story of one women's vision of what community healthcare could be. And should be.

My grandmother, Florence St. John, RN

It all began in 1935, right here in Quincy in my grandmother Florence St. John's parlor. As a Home Health Nurse, she saw first hand the unique difficulties many of her elderly patients faced. Often what they needed most was emotional support and care in a warm, unthreatening environment. In those days, there were few facilities prepared to provide that. But my grandmother was.

So she began caring for seniors in her home. From these modest beginnings, the Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group has become the leading provider of healthcare services on the South Shore.

Which brings us to the point of this story.

The opening of Hancock Park will be both a homecoming for us and a living memorial to the ideals that were so important to my grandmother. We're obviously very proud of her. And we're absolutely committed to making sure everything about Hancock Park reflects that pride.

To learn more about Hancock Park or about Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group, please call us at (617) 878-6700. We'll send a you a free copy of our Welch Family Guide to Senior Care.

EMERGENCY SITUATIONS

In general, anyone who drives a car is expected to exercise a degree of care that an ordinarily careful and prudent person would use under the same circumstances. The care that a driver must exercise includes the duty to maintain a diligent lookout with regard to the circumstances present. At the same time, there is a theory in motor vehicle negligence called "sudden emergency doctrine," which involves circumstances in which a driver is confronted with an emergency situation that is not of his or her own creation. This emergency situation may compel the driver to act instantaneously to avoid injuring both him or herself and all passengers in the car. Under such circumstances, if injury or damage occurs to a third party, the person driving the car will not be considered negligent. If there are any questions in the minds of those who are injured in a car accident, a lawyer should be consulted to answer them.

HINT: Negligence laws do not hold emergency vehicles to the same standard of care as other motor vehicles.

I take my fiduciary duties very seriously. My dedicated staff and I take pride in our ability to provide prompt and effective representation. If you need an excellent personal injury lawyer, then call 773-2880 to schedule a free consultation. Know your rights because they are only as good as your ability to protect them. Our office is conveniently located at Gridley Bryant Office Condominiums, 111 Willard Street. After we have met, I'm confident that you will feel that you have received the best advice for the best results.

South Shore Habitat 4th Annual Hike Oct. 6

South Shore Habitat for Humanity, the regional affiliate of Habitat International, will hold its fourth annual Hike For Habitat at Houghton's Pond in the Blue Hills Reservation, Sunday, Oct. 6. Registration will take place between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

South Shore Habitat has built homes in partnership with low income families in: Abington, Braintree, Brockton, Cohasset, Quincy, Randolph, Weymouth and Whitman.

David Bigley, Executive Director said "We have a full plate of building opportunities ahead of us, and we are looking forward to the Hike for Habitat as a fun and enjoyable way for people to help move our building schedule forward."

Habitat is now working on building a new single family home in Hanson, renovating an empty home in Hanover and putting the finishing touches on a new home in Randolph. Plans for the next six months include another home in Randolph, one in Marshfield, a complete rehab in Sharon and the beginning of phase one of a site in Quincy which will eventually contain 10 new homes.

Anyone interested in participating in the Hike can pick up a pledge sheet at any Tedeschi's Food Store on the South Shore. For more information about volunteering for Habitat or applying to purchase one of the homes, call the Habitat office at 617-340-5992.

South Shore Habitat is a volunteer organization, and all proceeds from the Hike will go directly into building simple decent homes in partnership with families in need.

CLEAN AIR NOW!

If only people were as concerned about the inside of their home.

Practice Random Acts of Cleanness

Did you know that when you heat with natural gas instead of other fossil fuels, there's less soot and dirt in the air? That's because natural gas burns cleaner and more efficiently than other fossil fuels.

It's also piped directly to your home. There are no spills, no delivery trucks, and no bulky oil tank. Best of all, natural gas contributes less pollutants to the air. It's the smart solution for the home environment and the American environment!

MICHAEL J. JOYCE for
NORFOLK COUNTY TREASURER

I'm here to ask for your support in my campaign for Norfolk County Treasurer.

You might ask, why should I vote for Michael J. Joyce.

That's a fair question. After all, you are the ones who will have to decide who's the most qualified candidate for the position.

So, why should you vote Michael J. Joyce, Norfolk County Treasurer?

First of all, I ask you to consider my professional experience.

I am currently the treasurer for the town of Braintree, a position to which I was first elected in 1988. It is my job to collect, disburse and invest millions of the town's dollars each year. This fiscal year I am responsible for the management of a $62 million town budget.

As the treasurer of town funds, I have to decide to invest approximately $20 million a day in order to get the best return on every dollar.

I'm proud to say that during each year of my eight years in office I have earned $1M in interest for the town of Braintree.

In my role as town treasurer, I have full responsibility for making financial decisions for all municipal funds, which include not only the town's budget but also Braintree Light ($32 M), and Water & Sewer ($10M). I am also custodian of the $50M Braintree Municipal Retirement Funds.

Furthermore, in all my financial management duties I am required to follow strict legal guidelines. So I am not only accountable to the town financially but legally as well.

Again, I'm back to my initial question: Why should you vote Michael J. Joyce, Norfolk County Treasurer?

I've described my financial experience, now I ask you to consider a few of my professional affiliations. I am a Certified Massachusetts Municipal Treasurer, a former treasurer and director of the Braintree Credit Union, member Norfolk County Financial officers, member Massachusetts Government Financial officers and member Massachusetts Treasurers and Collectors Association. If I've done anything worthwhile today, I hope I've convinced you that I have the qualifications and experience for the Norfolk County Treasurer position. When you leave here, I hope you'll take with you some of the reasons why you should vote Michael J. Joyce, Norfolk County Treasurer.

As the county position requires, I have money management experience and a proven track record of protecting public funds.

I believe I'm the most qualified candidate for Norfolk County Treasurer. If you agree, please cast your vote for Michael J. Joyce, Norfolk County Treasurer, on Primary Day, September 17th.

Thank you.

Tourists Really Do Go Shopping

By JO-AN THOMAS

It has been said of Americans that we are the consummate consumers.

Apparently, however, we have lots of company. In a recent survey, overseas visitors to the USA said their number one choice on the list of things to do is shopping. And visitors to Massachusetts, too, pick shopping as their number one activity. In the 1995 Domestic Travel report for the Massachusetts Office of Travel & Tourism, 43 percent of respondents said shopping was their number one pick of things to do, visiting historic places and museums came in number two at 21 percent, visiting beaches and the seashore, number three at 15 percent and visiting state and national parks last at 13 percent.

Evidently, this passion for shopping is nothing new or unique to America or Americans. It is interesting to note that back in the late 1700s and early 1800s this shopping phenomena then had a hold over the population.

English essayist and critic Charles Lamb (1775-1834), in an 1801 letter to William Wordsworth enthused over the captivating characteristics of shopping.

"The lighted shops of the Strand and Fleet Street," Wordsworth wrote, "the innumerable trades, tradesmen and customers, coaches, wagons, playhouses, all the bustle and wickedness round about Convent Garden, the very women of the town, the watchmen, drunken scenes, rattles--life awake, if you awake, at all hours of the night, the impossibility of being dull in Fleet Street, the crowds, the very dirt and mud, the sun shining upon houses and pavements, the print shops, the old book stalls, parsons cheap'ning books, coffee houses, steams of soups from kitchens, pantomimes, London itself a pantomime and a masquerade, all these things work themselves into my mind and feed me, without a power of satiating me."

Except for the noise of automobiles and horns, 18th century London doesn't sound too much different from one of our visitors' favorite places to stop--today's Faneuil Hall. Indeed, as the intrepid group whose pictured with this story recently visiting Quincy's shopping and historic venues shows, some things never change.

But, very soon, Quincy will be attracting those shopping bugs to the newest addition to Quincy Square. The grand opening of the Quincy Promenade where "Excitement is Right Up Our Alley" is scheduled for Sunday. Pantomimes, musicians, artists, a Farmers' Market with stands of fruits and vegetables, restaurants with the appetizing fragrance of delicacies cooking in the air, carts full of varied merchandise, all this and more will be right here for visitors and Quincyites as well.

As Ralph Waldo Emerson once said, "Every man is a consumer."

(Jo-An Thomas is Quincy's Director of Tourism.)

Donald Robinson Named Southwest Person Of The Year

Donald Robinson of Southwest Quincy recently received the Albert J. Conti Southwest Person of the Year Award from the Ward 4 Neighborhood Association.

Robinson, 75, a retired maintenance carpenter for the Quincy Public Schools, won the award--named after the late community activist Albert J. Conti--for decades of volunteer work to his church, neighborhood elementary school and community.

Robinson and his wife Martha--a previous recipient of the Conti Award--helped found the neighborhood association and started the first Parent-Teacher Association at the Lincoln-Hancock School 45 years ago. In addition, Robinson is a former Sunday School teacher and Church Council member and serves on the Faith Lutheran Property Committee.

DONALD ROBINSON (center) receives the Albert J. Conti Southwest Person of the Year Award from Ward 4 City Councillor Michael D'Amico (left) and Ward 4 Neighborhood Association President Stephen Hawko.

He also frequently gives neighbors rides to the hospital or doctor's offices.

The award was presented by Ward 4 City Councillor Michael D'Amico and Ward 4 Neighborhood Association President Stephen Hawko. Speakers at the event included Mayor James Sheets, state Reps. Stephen Tobin and Michael Bellotti and Rev. James Kimmell of Faith Lutheran Church. Robinson's son-in-law Ed MacDonald also spoke on his father-in-law's behalf.

State Offering $2,000 Scholarship Program

State Education Commissioner Robert Antonucci announces that eligible high school juniors and seniors may apply for a $2,000 college scholarship through the U.S. Senate Youth Scholarship Program.

The program is open to any public or private high school junior or senior student in Massachusetts who is a class school officer and who meets other specific criteria including leadership ability, high scholastic standing, and community involvement.

Students who are interested in the program take a statewide exam testing their knowledge of federal and state government. All students must pre-register for the exam by obtaining and completing an application form available at their school. Applications must be filed by Sept. 27.

Jennifer Shaw Completes Navy Basic Training

Navy Seaman Recruit Jennifer M. Shaw, daughter of Stephen E. and Frances R. Shaw of 56 Gannett Rd., Quincy, recently completed U.S. Navy basic training at Recruit Training Command, Great Lakes, Ill.

During the eight-week program, Shaw completed a variety of training which included classroom study, practical hands-on instruction, and an emphasis on physical fitness. In particular, she learned naval customs, first aid, fire fighting, water safety and survival, and a variety of safety skills required for working around ships and aircraft.

'More Good Things To Come'

Morrissey Says Senate Session A Success

State Sen. Michael Morrissey says the past Legislative session was a successful one for the Massachusetts Senate and called it "the beginning of more good things to come for the people of the Commonwealth."

Morrissey listed among the Senate's recent accomplishments:

•Solid fiscal management including enactment of a $17.4 billion general appropriations act--of which only $3 million was vetoed by Gov. William Weld--and a final Deficiency Budget that provided modest relief ($40 per person, $80 per couple, $60 per household head) for all Massachusetts taxpayers.

•Commitment to education including $254 million for the fourth year of the Education Reform Act, a higher education tuition tax deduction, $53 million increase for the state's colleges and university system, $33 million for new school building projects, $11 million for a public education endowment for fund-raising effort and an $86 million authorization for classroom technology.

•Reform and promotion of health care including an override of the governor's veto of a bill providing health care aid to children and elders by increasing the cigarette tax, a separate bill requiring cigarette manufacturers to divulge additives and accurate nicotine levels, passage of non-group insurance legislation to enable more individuals to access competitive rates for health care coverage, and passage of a bill to establish a physician profile registry to help inform consumers.

•Increased crime-fighting effectiveness through establishment of a sex offender registry and notification system, implementation of tougher juvenile justice sentences and expansion of penalties and protected classes associated with existing hate crimes statutes.

•Promotion of job growth and economic opportunity by passing a number of bills to improve the competitiveness of businesses in the Commonwealth.

•Protection and preservation of the environment by passage of the Rivers Bill.

•Passage of pension disability reform.

•Increased local aid through recent authorization of multi-state lottery games in Massachusetts.

•Inclusion of $1.60 million in the Deficiency Budget for disaster relief during the snowy winter of 1996.

"There is more for the Legislature to accomplish, and there always will be, but that does not diminish all that we have accomplished thus far," said Morrissey. "I, personally, will continue to endeavor to respond to my constituents and their needs."

ENC Receives $10,000 Grant For Science And Religious Study

Eastern Nazarene College is one of three Massachusetts Colleges to receive a $10,000 grant from the John Templeton Foundation for offering an outstanding course examining the relationship between religion and science.

The other Massachusetts recipients are Boston College and Clark University.

The award money is divided equally between the institution and the course instructors, Dr. Carl Giberson, Professor of Physics and Dr. Andy Johnson, Assistant Professor of Religion. The Templeton Foundation was formed in 1987 by international investment manager Sir John Templeton to encourage the pursuit of scientific and religious knowledge.

The objective of the ENC course is to equip students in such a way that they can begin to learn how to articulate the Christian faith using a framework that is intellectually coherent and intellectually credible in the scientific community.

The dialogue between science and religion has recently become a major component of contemporary intellectual discourse. The course, Religion and Science, explores issues involved in this dialogue from an historical perspective, from today's context, and in terms of their philosophical validity.

Over 2,000 Bid Farewell To Sheriff Marshall

"I knew Kip the person," he said. "He was renowned for his pro-fessional work but he left a personal legacy far greater than his professional one."

Son Michael Marshall, with his three brothers, Clifford, Christopher and Paul standing beside him on the altar, had this tribute from the four for their father:

"How proud we are to be his sons. He touched many lives. He was a leader...He brought people together. He was a man for all others...He never said 'no' to anyone. His door was always open. They always knew he would be there if they needed him.

"He didn't know the meaning of the word quit..He was a politician in name only.

"He left us a blueprint to follow in life. He left us a legacy."

Returning to the pew to rejoin their mother, Mrs. Louise Marshall, the four sons stopped and bowed to kiss their father's casket in a touching scene.

Participating in the Mass were Bishop John McCormick, representing Cardinal Law; Fr. Daniel Graham, pastor, and Fr. Robert Monagle of St. Joseph's Church; Fr. Peter Quinn, pastor, and Fr. William McCarthy, former pastor, of St. John's Church; Fr. Robert Beale, Catholic chaplain at the Norfolk County House of Correction; Fr. Robert O'Grady of The Pilot newspaper, and Deacons Michael Hickey, St. Joseph's Church, and Joseph Papile, St. John's Church.

Among those attending the funeral were:

Congressman Joseph Moakley, Atty. Gen. Scott Harshberger, state Auditor Joseph DeNucci, former Atty. Gen. Robert Quinn, former House Speaker Thomas McGee.

Mayor James Sheets and former Mayors Walter Hannon, Joseph LaRaia, Francis McCauley and Arthur Tobin, all of whom served with Marshall in the Quincy City Council, and Mrs. Sheila McIntyre, wife of the late Mayor James McIntyre, City Clerk Joseph Shea, in charge of political protocol at the funeral.

Judge Thomas Brownell, associate justice of Quincy District Court; Norfolk County Special Sheriff Josephine Shea, Dist. Atty. William Delahunt, former Dist. Atty. George Burke, County Commissioners John Gillis, Peter Collins and William O'Donnell, Clerk of Courts Nicholas Barbadoro, Register of Deeds Barry Hannon, Sen. Michael Morrissey, Rep. Michael Bellotti, Rep. Ronald Mariano, Rep. Stephen Tobin.

City Council President Peter Kolson, Councillors Bruce Ayers, Timothy Cahill, Michael Cheney, Stephen Durkin, Patrick McDermott, Daniel Raymondi, Police Chief Francis Mullen, Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, former City Councillors Ted DeCristofaro and Charles McIntyre, Michael McFarland; executive secretary to Mayor Sheets, Helen Murphy, assistant to the mayor; Recreation Director Barry Welch, Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey, Jeanne Reardon, clerk of City Council Committee; former state Rep. William Connell, Braintree Town Treasurer Michael Joyce and former County Commissioner George McDonald.

The long funeral motorcade to Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree, passed under a flag draped archway formed by two fire ladder trucks, one from Quincy, the other from Boston, across School St.

As the motorcade started to leave, an unidentified woman said simply: "He was so nice!"

Friends And Colleagues Have Fond Memories

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford Marshall is remembered by friends and colleagues as a caring, compassionate man and an outstanding law enforcement official.

Marshall, 58, known to his friends as "Kippy," died Aug. 28 at his Baxter Avenue home. He had been ill since being diagnosed with brain cancer last year.

A Democrat, Marshall began his political career in 1965 when he was elected Ward 2 city councillor, a seat he held for five terms. From 1968 to 1974, he also served in the Massachusetts House of Representatives, where he was assistant majority leader and a member of the Legislature's Counties and Rules committees.

Marshall was elected sheriff in November 1974 when he defeated incumbent Republican Charles Hedges. Re-elected to the seat three times, his greatest accomplishment is considered by many to be the construction and opening of the Norfolk County House of Correction on Route 128 in February 1992.

Among those who offered words of tribute:

Mayor James Sheets, who served with Marshall on the City Council: "Cliff Marshall was a man among men, a leader among leaders, and a gentleman among gentlemen. He had a very warm and unique way of communicating with people. He had the heart of a lion--he was a ferocious competitor, and yet had the heart of a gentle man, and that gave him special talents enabling him to accomplish and lead.

"I will miss his leadership presence, and also his presence as a personal friend."

Norfolk County District Attorney William Delahunt: "We were very close, both professionally and personally. As sheriff, he was a pioneer, and he impacted more lives than anyone will ever realize. On a personal level, he was just so special. When I think of Kippy, I think of enthusiasm, and the best aspects of human nature. He was a remarkable human being."

Another Tribute

Josephine Shea, Norfolk County special sheriff who worked with Marshall for 20 years: "It was a distinct honor to work with an individual who had so much insight and accomplished so much. He was always looking forward--he would accomplish a goal, and then he would immediately move on to the next goal. And he would always recognize all his employees for their achievements. The one thing he would always tell his staff is that there is no 'I' in 'team.'

"He was a great, great man. He always put his family first, but he always gave his best to the people of Norfolk County.

"He was the most kind and considerate boss that employees could ever ask for. The most important thing we want to convey from the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office is that the entire staff is praying for his family. We want to be there for them, because he was always there for us."

John "Jake" Comer, Quincy Housing Authority executive director and Marshall's first campaign manager: "I've worked in a lot of elections, but I've never met a man with finer principles. He was a stand-up guy, a statesman more than a politician. He always looked out for his friends.

"He was a man who lived for his God, his country, and his family. I'm just devastated by his loss. He was like a brother to me."

John Gillis, Norfolk County commissioner and former city clerk: "He had a spark to him. There was someone different about him--he attracted people, and you need that when you're a politician. And being an old Marine, I knew when he told me he was a Marine that he was a good kid.

"His greatest accomplishment as sheriff is the new jail. It will always be Kippy Marshall's jail in Norfolk County.

"He was a great family man. He was a great, great husband and he always took care of his children. I feel very sorry for his wife and four boys, and I send my condolences to them."

Atty. George Burke, former Norfolk Country district attorney and Marshall's City Council colleague and longtime friend: "Kippy and I were very, very close. We had a special relationship. He was my protege--he played Quincy High School basketball and entered public service after I did, and he was elected sheriff when I was district attorney. We were just the closest of friends, and I'm really hurting. I really loved the guy.

"I really believe he was a great man. He had a great feeling for, and love of, people. He was a public servant in the truest sense, and he did an outstanding job in all of his public offices."

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi, who succeeded Marshall on the council: "He was a man of great strength, courage and faith. He worked tirelessly on behalf of the people. As a person, he was a very caring, sensitive individual. In the end, he showed great dignity and courage.

"He was an innovator in the arena of public service and a man ahead of his time. You don't replace people like Kippy Marshall. Ward 2 has lost a great friend, and the county has lost a great sheriff."

City Clerk Joseph Shea: "I first met Cliff Marshall in 1964 when we were both were coaching C.Y.O. basketball, and we had been friends ever since. Cliff was always a dedicated public official. But while he knew how to perform his official duties to the highest of standards, he still took time to be a loving husband, father, and friend to all who needed him.

"He was loyal to a fault, and it is difficult to visualize Quincy and Norfolk County without the sheriff. He has left that kind of impression on myself and my family."

School Committeeman Francis McCauley, former mayor and City Council colleague: "I always got along very well with Cliff over the years. He was a people's person, a responsive guy who was always there to help somebody out. I always enjoyed my relationship with him."

Clerk Magistrate Arthur Tobin, former mayor, council colleague and fellow Marine said Marshall was always an "excellent public official" and a "credit to his family and the City of Quincy," but noted that his strongest memories will be of the sheriff's last months.

"I've never seen such courage with dignity," said Tobin. "Kippy was one tough Marine. Even his family said he never once complained (about his illness). His wife and his family should be very proud of him, and I'm sure they are."

Judge Warren Powers, associate justice at Quincy District Court and another council colleague: "Personally, he was a friendly, open, upbeat person, and I remember him as an outstanding friend. But he was also a man who belonged behind a badge, someone who could handle authority without any kind of arrogance. He knew how to handle people; he was the perfect man to handle that responsibility."

REAL ESTATE MARKET

Decorative Door Knockers Can Help Sell Your Home

Most home buyers notice the decorative finishing touches that add a little extra warmth and personality to the home's interior. Trailing silk flowers down a stairway banister, adding Oriental rumors on a hardwood floor or arranging greenery above the kitchen soffits are just a few of the extras that appeal to many buyers.

When selling your home, it's also important to accentuate these types of extras the minute a potential buyer approaches your front door. By choosing to place an attractive door knocker on your front door, you can add a distinguished touch to your home's exterior.

Whatever your taste, from Early American to Colonial, Victorian or contemporary, you should be able to find a door knocker that suits you. Most are made from quality, solid brass and can then be finished in a variety of textures and materials to match the home's architecture and the homeowner's style.

The most common textures are polished and satin, and homeowners can choose from materials such as chrome, stainless steel, bronze, or even semiprecious stones. There is also a variety of techniques used to form the knockers, and homeowners can choose the style that fits their tastes and their budget.

If you simply want to test out a door knocker, you may want to purchase the least expensive style which is stamped from a sheet of metal and then bent into shape. The cast hardware door knocker is of a higher quality and is usually more expensive. It is made from molten metal poured into a mold and left to solidify.

Finally, if you're looking for a top-of-the-line door knocker, experts suggest looking for forged pieces. The designers shape them by hammering then by hand or with a forging press. Although it may not capture details as well as the cast hardware knocker, this type of knocker is generally the sturdiest as well as the most expensive.

National Real Estate Educators To Speak At MAR Convention

One of the largest educational programs ever offered to local real estate professionals will take place when the Massachusetts Association of Realtors (MAR) holds its 72nd annual convention and trade show, from Sept. 4-6 at the Marriott Hotel-Copley Place in Boston.

Ten of the 40 educational sessions to be offered will be presented by well-known real estate trainers Carla Cross, Randal K. Eager, Tom Lundstedt and Jerry Rossi. Topics of these national speakers and others will include many of the industry's latest and most popular issues and trends, such as the practice of agency, computer fundamentals and selling property on the Internet, building wealth from real estate, the use of personal assistants, real estate exchanging, how to use today's tax laws to list and sell more, and effective marketing techniques.

National Association of Realtors Chief Economist John Tuccillo will present his outlook for the local housing market and New England economy, and MAR General Counsel Monica Staaf will provide interpretations of the new federal lead paint law, Massachusetts Rivers Protection Act and Title 5 regulations, existing fair housing law, and revisions to the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act (RESPA).

The convention's keynote address will be delivered by Apollo 13 Mission Commander Capt. James Lovell on Sept. 5.

Those attending the three-day show will be able to view 75 exhibits on the latest industry-related products and services available to real estate licensees and consumers.

One-day registration fees for first-time convention attendees are $65, while the cost for two- and three-day packages are $95 and $125 respectively. Fees for real estate professionals who have previously attended a MAR convention start at $90. For complete program and registration details, call the MAR Customer Service Dept. at 1-800-725-6272, or call MAR's Fax-on-Demand Line at 1-800-892-6271 and request Document #9002.

The 90s Bathroom An All-Inclusive Retreat

(NAPS)—Relaxing at home has always been popular, but there has been a major increase recently in the number of people who work, entertain, play and even vacation at home. As more people catch on to this 90s "beehiving" trend, spending more time at home doing things formerly done outside the home, they are changing the way they design their surroundings.

They see their home as more than just a place to eat and sleep. Perhaps the best example of this is in the bathroom. Although once viewed as simply a functional room, it has become the ultimate get-away within the home.

In this era of "beehiving," it comes as little surprise that Americans are investing more time and money in their bathrooms with oversized jetted tubs.

Just walk into any home remodeling store and you'll see the popularity of beehiving is evident on every shelf and in every model bathroom. New and enhanced products that have surfaced recently due to the demand for more luxurious bathrooms include jetted tubs, body massagers and sprays, oversized tubs and double-head showers.

The choices of building materials and accessories used in the bath are also changing. While traditional materials, such as cast iron and enameled steel, are still frequently used, cast acrylic is among the fastest growing surface materials available. Cast acrylic, such as Lucite® XL, is less susceptible to stains, much easier to clean and guaranteed to maintain its beauty and color for life. It is also easy to transport for do-it-yourself remodelers and manufacturers can mold it into various shapes and sizes to fit today's lifestyles.

To accommodate these larger tubs and additional amenities, the bathroom itself is growing at a rapid pace. In fact, recent surveys revealed an overwhelming majority of homeowners want bigger bathrooms as well as separate showers and tubs.

Manufacturers are responding to the demand with updated products that are often more affordable and easier to install than many people think. For example, there is a new series of showers that comes in three pieces that snap together in a matter of minutes. The completed shower looks as good as what you might find in a newer home.

Water, in all forms, has long been associated with relaxation, refreshment and therapy. For many, the bathroom is no longer just a place for a quick shower; it is a vacation from the stresses of everyday life.

Quincy, North Tune Up With Scrimmages

By LIAM FITZGERALD

In preparation for their upcoming season openers, North Quincy High and Quincy High School's football teams are playing scrimmage games to gauge their progress.

Despite playing well for most of the game, North Quincy winded up on the losing end of an 18-0 score against Newton North Saturday at the Stadium.

"I'm pleased with the way we played today," said head coach Ken McPhee, in his 15th year at North. "Overall, I'm pleased, but we have a lot of work to do. We have a young team, with four sophomores starting on defense.

"They're making a few mistakes, but for the most part they're doing a nice job. I think we'll be fine. We'll certainly be more competitive than last year (3-7)."

North's first team matched up evenly with Newton North's as both defenses stepped up early.

On Newton North's first possession, North Quincy's Jim Finn intercepted a pass and held on as he collided with a Tiger player. The Red Raiders also intercepted a pass on the Tigers' next possession.

"Defensively, we played well, but we have a lot more to do, especially with a new scheme to learn," said McPhee. "Chris Bregoli did a nice job defensively and Charlie Plaskasovitis, Frank McNamara and Brian Walsh were awesome on defense."

The game remained scoreless until the Tigers' fourth possession, when their quarterback found and open receiver, who scampered into the end zone for the touchdown.

With both team's second string players in the game, the Tigers scored twice on long runs on their sixth and final possession.

Fans got a preview of North's strong running game as tailbacks Walsh and Jason Turner led the Red Raiders downfield throughout the scrimmage.

On their second possession, Red Raiders senior quarterback Tom Coughlin connected with Walsh and found wide receiver Finn downfield for a 20-yard gain.

Walsh followed with a tough run, bouncing off a teammate before heading downfield. Finn hauled in another pass for a long gain, but Coughlin's next

Over 2,500 Runners Expected In Degan Race

The fourth annual William F. Degan Memorial Road Race will take place Sunday, Sept. 22 in Quincy.

The event is held in honor of Degan, the Quincy native who was killed in the line of duty while serving with the United States Federal Marshal Service in August 1992.

The event includes 10K and 5K road races, a 5K run/fun walk and new this year, a senior citizen walk.

The races, which start at 10 a.m., begin and end at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

Race chairman Dan Stock said he expects over 2,500 participants this year, which would double the number of runners who competed last year. The Degan family will also participate.

"With many law enforcement agencies and military personnel coming the day of the race from different parts of the country, we anticipate over 2,500 runners," said Stock.

Post-race refreshments will be provided for all registered runners and their families. Awards and T-shirts will be presented and family post-race activities will include clowns, face painting, McGruff the Crime Dog, among others.

Entertainment for all runners and spectators will be provided by DJ Larry Links. Prizes will be raffled off during the race.

Mayor James Sheets will start the race and Gov. William Weld plans to participate again this year.

"Bill Degan felt strongly about drug abuse, education, sports and the community," said Stock. "We hope, through annual scholarships and grants to different youth organizations, Bill Degan will be remembered for the hero he was and some good will come from a terrible tragedy."

Proceeds will go to Quincy D.A.R.E., Quincy

Lorenzano Sixth In National Softball Throw

Quincy's Mike Lorenzano finished sixth in the softball throw at the National 1996 Hershey Track and Field Competition at Hershey Park, Pa.

The Quincy Recreation Department recently hosted the Hershey Track and Field Meet locally where Lorenzano won the boy's ages 11 and 12 year old softball throw. He then won the state finals and place first in the New England Regional Meet.

Two other Quincy residents also finished first in the state meet. Brenna O'Brien won the 400 meter dash in the girl's 9 and 10 year old competition and finished second in the New England Region. Alan Lambkin placed first in the state in the 1600. Lambkin also finished third in the New England Region.

These winners of the Massachusetts Championship were compared to winners from meets held in six other northeast states. The top qualifiers, such as Lorenzano, received an all-expense paid trip to the National Championships in Hershey, Pa. Local meet winners from the Quincy competition have advanced to the nationals 11 out of the last 16 years.

Recreation Director Barry Welch thanked Geoff Hennessy of the Quincy Track Club for his assistance at the local meet and state championship. Welch said he was pleased to see a Quincy winner advance to the National Finals after a two year absence.

"We are indebted to Hershey Chocolate for making this program available at no cost to Recreation Departments across America. These types of experiences cannot be duplicated," Welch said.

Other state qualifiers included:

Six Youngsters Win Hot Shot Competition

The Quincy Recreation Department recently crowned six youngsters in the annual Pepsi Hot Shot competition, conducted as part of the supervised playground program at 21 locations.

Recreation Director Barry Welch thanked the Milton Bottling Plant of Pepsi Cola and Buddy Graham of Milton Pepsi for helping to make the event possible.

Pepsi Hot Shot is a one minute timed basketball shoot off in which participants score points by successfully making shots from "hot spots" located at different areas of the court. There are three age groups for boys and girls.

This year's winners:

Midget Boys: Champion: Brian Lynch, Wollaston; second place: Daryl Costa, Fenno St.; third place: Frank Feeley, Perkins.

Midget Girls: Champion: Bonnie Hirtle, Kincaide; second place: Cristina Conley, LaBreque; third place: Lisa Satkevich, Forbes Hill.

Junior Boys: Champion: Chris Lockhead, Fenno St.; second place: Adam Woo, Forbes Hill; third place: Brendan Sleeth, Mass Fields.

Junior Girls: Champion: Lauren Sleeth, Mass Fields; second place: Julie McGunigle, Perkins; third place: Stephanie Roche, Russell Park.

Senior Boys: Champion: Matt Gibbons, LaBreque; second place: Jared DeCelle; third place: Mark Gibbons, LaBreque.

Senior Girls: Champion: Maureen Holleran, Fenno St.; second place: Jen Conley, LaBreque; third place: Colleen Kelly, Palmer.

The event was conducted by Christine Barrett, Kim Marsden, Alyssa Gilman and David Bogan.

Jaehnig Chiropractic All-Stars Top Cohasset, Win Hull Tourney

The Jaehnig Chiropractic 12-year-old All-Star team from Quincy won six of seven games, including four victories in one day, to capture the recent Hull Baseball Tourney.

The Jaehnig All-Stars, who lost to Cohasset in earlier play, defeated Cohasset twice to win the tourney.

Keith Doherty was the star of the second championship game, tossing a one-hitter, striking out 13 to lead the Jaehnig All-Stars to a 6-1 victory over Cohasset. Doherty also blasted a home run and a double.

Pat Jaehnig doubled in a run and Jeff Hoslett, Mark Maher, John Fidalgo, Greg McGuiness and Bryan Thornton all hit safely.

Each member of the Jaehnig All-Star team received a trophy for winning the championship. The team is coached by Mark Jaehnig, Les Fidalgo, John Germane and Charlie Jaehnig and the team's bat boy is Matt Jaehnig.

In the first game of the championship, the Jaehnig club downed previously unbeaten Cohasset, 9-4, behind the strong pitching of Doherty, who picked up the win, and Pat Jaehnig who allowed one run in three innings to earn the save.

Maher (two doubles, two runs) and Chris Ham (two singles, two runs) led the way offensively, helped by Jordan Virtue (double) and Pat Jaehnig, Mark Tetreault and Chris Lockhead, who all hit singles.

The Jaehnig club advanced to the championship with an 8-2 victory over the host team, Hull.

The first game of the day for the Jaehnig club was against an undermanned Milton team and resulted in a 21-4 romp.

The Jaehnig club dropped a 6-2 decision to a strong Cohasset squad.

The loss knocked the Jaehnig club into the losers bracket, giving the team the opportunity to win four games on the tourney's final day and clinch the championship.

The Jaehnig club rolled over Hingham, 16-6, and opened the tourney with a 13-6 win over Milton.

North Quincy Boys' Goal: Reach League Tournament

A familiar face has returned to coach North Quincy boys soccer--Robert Dano, who guided the team from 1990-92.

Dano, who realizes that succeeding in the Old Colony League will be a tough task, believes that North has enough talent to reach the league tournament.

"You have to have a super team to come out on top in this league, " he said. "Silver Lake, Bridgewater-Raynham, Weymouth, Plymouth and Falmouth will be strong. I think we have a good team. A .500 record, or a few games over .500, is definitely within reach.

"I'd be disappointed if we finished under .500. This team has a lot of talent, and I've told the players they have the chance to be the best team the school has had in a dozen years."

Dano will get his first chance to see how good North is when it opens its 1996 season against Plymouth South Friday at 4 p.m. at Teal Field, off of Newbury Ave.

In his first season back, Dano is impressed with the team's "good skill level" and added that the squad has "quite a few good athletes."

He is counting on three or four seniors this season, including co-captains Bill Barron and Neil Costa, but also said the team will likely be carried by the juniors.

"We have a strong group of juniors this season, although I'm looking for quite a bit from the seniors, too," he said.

Sophomores Robbie Bell, Chad Fitzpatrick, Chris Myers, Matt O'Mahoney, Mike Regan and Kevin Walsh will also be counted on to contribute this season.

Dano also praised the incoming freshman class: "We have an excellent group of freshmen, and I wouldn't be surprised to see a few of them playing a little varsity ball this season."

T.J. Bell, David Constantine, Brian Deshler, Joe Flynn, Rick Loughmiller, Ben Roberts, Stephen Rochon, Kevin Shea and Zack Winderl compile the freshman class.

North's junior varsity game against Plymouth South under varsity assistant coach Rich Hanlon will be played at Bishop (Montclair) Field on Holbrook Rd.

Midget Boys: Kyle Costa.

Junior Boys: Scott Markarian.

Senior Boys: Kevin Ann.

Second place winners were:

Midget Boys: Chris Sheehan.

Junior Boys: Mark Perry and Steve Johnson.

Senior Boys: Matt Mormino and Bill Gavell.

Third place winners were:

Midget Boys: Tim Mullen.

Junior Boys: James LaFleur and Paul Grazioso.

Senior Boys: Chase Clark.

Bobby Muollo Inducted Into Youth Baseball Hall Of Fame

Bobby Muollo Jr. of 48 Hughes St., Quincy, a first baseman on the South Shore Baseball Club's Seadogs of Hingham, was recently inducted into the American Youth Baseball Hall of Fame in Coopers-town, N.Y.

The Seadogs (11 and under division), coached by Steve Almonte, were invited to participate in the Dreams Park Tournament along with 27 other teams from across the country.

The team finished second in the 12-year-old division and tied for sixth place overall. All the coaches and players were the first to be inducted into the American Youth Baseball Hall of Fame, to be constructed this fall.

BOBBY MUOLLO JR.

Muollo, 11, was the only Quincy resident on the Seadogs in the Dreams Park 12 and under Invitational Tournament in Coopers-town. He played first base and hit .325 with three RBI. Muollo, his teammates and coaches all received a Dreams Park Tournament ring.

Muollo also plays first base for the Quincy Little League Lions Club and was on the 11-year-old All-Star team this season.

(Cont'd From Page 19)

Youth programs and U.S.M.C. charities. Before serving as a deputy in the Marshal Service, Degan was a lieutenant colonel in the United States Marine Corps.

Last year, nearly 1,300 runners endured a torrential downpour and raised $15,000 for Quincy D.A.R.E. and USMC charities.

Registration and number pick-up is from 8-9:30 a.m. the day of the race at the Stadium. An entry fee of $12 must be received by Saturday. The fee to enter the day of the race is $15.

All pre-registered runners are encouraged to pick up bib numbers and T-shirts the day before the race, Saturday, Sept. 21, from 2 to 5 p.m. at the Stadium.

Each race will include eight divisions based on age and sex, including a wheelchair division.

For more information or an application, call 576-9860 or call Dan Stock at 472-6159, Bill Graney at 472-8220, or Steve Des-Roche at 472-4867.

Rob Kane, Rob Cibotti Members Of Trinity College Football Team

Rob Kane and Rob Cibotti, both of Quincy, return to the Trinity College football team this fall.

Kane, a graduate of Quincy High School, will start at split end for Trinity College.

Slowed by an ankle injury late last season, Kane caught seven passes for 121 yards as a junior. Also a punt and kickoff return specialist, he compiled 387 return yards last season.

Cibotti, an Archbishop Williams graduate, will compete for a starting position on the offensive line. Last year, he started three games at left guard before a leg injury ended his season.

CARBON BUILDUP AND PINGING

Pinging due to abnormal combustion causes metallic-sounding noises to emanate from inside the engine. The octane rating posted on the gasoline pump is a measure of the fuel's ability to resist pinging. As a car gets older, however, it may happen that gasoline of a particular octane number is no longer sufficient to keep pinging at bay and gasoline of a higher octane number may be needed to stop pinging. An engine's increased octane appetite may be due to excessive carbon buildup in the combustion chambers. While driving the car at high speed for a few hours may help to burn off some of the carbon, good sense and recognition of the need to enforce speed limits may preclude this solution to the problem. Instead, the automobile technician may use a chemical for decarbonization, or as a last resort, mechanical carbon removal may be necessary.

HINT: Mechanical carbon removal is an option of the last resort because it entails removing the engine's cylinder head or heads.

Quincy, North Tune Up With Scrimmages

pass eluded Finn and North had to punt.

On North's next possession, Turner took the handoff for about a 10-yard gain. A few plays later, Turner busted through the Tigers' defenders for a 20-yard romp.

Turner continued to excel, leading the Red Raiders deep in Tiger territory on their fourth possession. Following three solid runs, Turner took off on about a 50-yard scamper before the Tigers dragged him down from behind.

Walsh, who gained 800 yards in five games last season before getting injured, also impressed McPhee with his performance Saturday.

"Walsh and Turner are two very good tailbacks," said McPhee. "Coughlin threw the ball extremely well and the receivers also did well. Fullback Mike Powers was out there banging people around today. I enjoyed watching him play."

With the season opener at Stoughton two weeks away, one of McPhee's main concerns lies with the offensive line, which has the task of blocking for North's tailbacks and protecting its quarterback.

"The offensive line needs to gel a bit, but that will happen as the season goes on," said McPhee. "That's the toughest thing to get going, but it will come around."

In preparation for the opener, North hosted Xaverian in a scrimmage yesterday (Wednesday) and travel to Marshfield Saturday for a 10 a.m. scrimmage.

Following a scrimmage at Braintree last Saturday, Quincy (4-6 in 1995) heads to B.C. High to tangle with the Eagles Friday at 7 p.m. The Presidents open their 1996 season next Saturday, Sept. 14 at Bishop Stang at 1 p.m.

Under second-year coach Peter Chella, the Presidents have installed a pro-style offense, resulting in more passing and motion than last season.

Senior starting quarterback Mark Glynn returns to lead the Presidents and will look to throw to senior wide receivers Bob Walsh, Mark Belanger and sophomore John Katsirikas. Providing Glynn with protection will be massive offensive linemen Don McCarthy (6-4, 272) and Paul Daley (6-4, 275).

Senior halfback Kevin Connolly, who ran for 750 yards and 10 TDs last season, will be relied upon to produce again this season. The defense will be keyed by junior defensive tackle Dan Nichol and an experienced secondary with solid cover people.

Braintree Rifle & Pistol Club Open Indoor Shooting Range

Don Kusser, 173 Edgewater Drive, Quincy, was among the executive officers of the Braintree Rifle & Pistol Club present at the recent opening of a new indoor shooting range in Braintree.

The state of the art range is comprised of 15 shooting positions, including a booth for handicapped persons. Fully integrated electronic target carriers allow the shooter to set targets at ranges from 12 to 75 feet. Targets can also be controlled in unison for competition matches by a range officer situated in a fully enclosed range masters booth.

The backstop and baffle system allow the use of all handgun caliber ammunition including magnum and jacketed loads, as well as .22 rimfire rifles. The range uses a heating and ventilation system that exceeds OSHA and NIOSHI for lead particle removal and clean air standards, and reclaims 80 percent of the heat.

Also included in the new facility is a fully equipped kitchen, a treasures office complete with computerized phone system and card key access security system, and a new room for the club's executive board.

Construction of the range was started approximately four years ago. The entire interior of the building and shooting range was constructed by members of the club who generously volunteered their time and talents. Goal members are encouraged to visit the club.

The club, which is located on 85 acres of land, has approximately 2400 members.

OBITUARIES

Hanna Olson, 106

Self-Employed Cleaner

A funeral service for Hanna (Anderson) Olson, 106, of Quincy, was held Aug. 30 at the Hamel, Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St.

Mrs. Olson died Aug. 28 at Quincy Hospital.

She was the matriarch of six generations. Her daughter, Marie H. Johnson, 86, died July 18.

Born and educated in Sweden, Mrs. Olson lived in Quincy for 82 years.

She was self-employed in the cleaning business for many years.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Have you ever noticed how some people seldom, if ever, make premature decisions? How they do not make decisions that cannot be made effective? How, if pressured for a decision, they often say "No" because they know "No" can later be changed more easily to "Yes;" less easy to change from "Yes" to "No?" How, when they make a bad decision, they blame themselves, not others?

Lincoln illustrated a good formula for making good decisions. When he was severely criticized he said, "I do the best I know how; the very best I can; and I mean to keep doing so until the end. If the end brings me all right, what is said about me won't amount to anything. If the end brings me out wrong, ten angels swearing I was right would make no difference."

On that formula, there is seldom any need to hesitate, or 'hem or haw.' Base firm decisions on your best judgement, skills and abilities given you by God - and do the best you can... People who make good decisions know how true this is.

Clifford H. Marshall, 58

Norfolk County Sheriff For 21 Years

A funeral Mass for Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford H. Marshall, 58, of Quincy, was celebrated Aug. 31 in St. John the Baptist Church.

Sheriff Marshall died at his home Aug. 28. A Marine Corps veteran, he was diagnosed as having brain cancer in 1995.

He was county sheriff for 21 years. At the time of his death, he was still serving in that capacity but had turned the day-to-day operations over to a deputy.

In May, he received the Norfolk County Bar Association's Amicus Curiae Award during Law Day Ceremonies. Also in May, he was presented with the James R. McIntyre Award at a Quincy Law Day forum.

Sheriff Marshall, known to his friends as "Kippy," was a Quincy city councilor and a state representative before winning election to the sheriff's office in 1974.

Perhaps his best known accomplishment was the erection of the new Norfolk County Sheriff's Office & Correctional Center between the northbound and southbound lanes of Route 128 in Dedham. He surveyed 32 sites before choosing the location, which opened in 1992.

The American Correctional Association named him to its board of directors in 1992.

The sheriff drew praise for establishing the Braintree Alternative Center for the incarceration of non-violent offenders in 1985. It was here that the inmate community service and work release programs were housed. Some 200,000 hours of volunteer inmate labor provided playground improvements, renovated town halls, fire and police stations and completed many other public service projects.

The work release program he initiated had inmates making child support payments and earning money to pay their fines and restitution.

Sheriff Marshall also instituted the electronic incarceration program which keeps track of offenders without putting them in jail.

CLIFFORD MARSHALL

He sponsored child fingerprinting and identification and the Drug Abuse Resistance Education (D.A.R.E.) projects. He also founded the first sexual assault unit in Norfolk County.

The sheriff fulfilled a longtime dream when he established Explorer Post 850, the adult extension of the Boy Scouts, at the sheriff's office in 1990.

A 1956 graduate of Quincy High School, he attended the University of Massachusetts and Suffolk University, completing several law enforcement courses. He completed the National Sheriffs Institute at the University of Southern California in 1975 and the Babson College Correction Management Program in 1976. He also completed a management training course at the USC School of Public Administration.

Sheriff Marshall completed the Adult Drug Education Program at Quincy Junior College in 1973.

Among the awards he received are the Hennebury Award, Dennis Ryan Award, AmVets Award, Ward 2 Civic Association Unity Award, Quincy Public Schools A Friend to Education Award, the Achievement in Administration & Management Award of the National Sheriffs Institute and the Jaycees Outstanding Contribution to Community Award.

He was a member of the Knights of Columbus, the Sons of Italy and the Elks and was a co-founder of the Norfolk County Honorary Deputy Sheriffs Association and the Quincy Ward 2 Civic Association.

The sheriff had been a youth hockey coach in Quincy.

He was a state director

Carrie M. Loeffler, 82

Longtime N.E. Telephone Employee; Co-Founded Tea Room In Quincy

A private funeral service was held for Carrie M. (Russell) Loeffler, 82, of Quincy.

Mrs. Loeffler died Aug. 29 in Quincy Hospital.

She worked as an employee of New England Telephone for 30 years before her retirement.

In 1973, after she retired, she and her daughter, Carolyn A. Schmock of Quincy, founded the Regina Russell Tea Room in Quincy. The two also teamed to teach astrology and ESP courses and to write a column for several weekly South Shore newspapers.

Although Mrs. Loeffler retired from the Tea Room in 1979, she continued to keep the books for the business until her death.

Born in Springfield, she attended Quincy schools and went to work for the phone company at an early age to assist her family during the Great Depression. During her 30 years with the company, she worked in Quincy, Braintree and Hull.

Active for some years with the Emblem Club, she served as supreme marshal for the national organization in 1962. She was also past president of the Quincy Emblem Club.

Mrs. Loeffler lived in Braintree for several years and spent 10 years in Florida before returning to Quincy.

Wife of the late Albert Loeffler, she is also survived by a son-in-law, John Schmock of Quincy; a sister, Alma White of Braintree; three grandchildren, and several great-grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were by Hannel Chapel of the Deware Funeral Home, 86 Copeland St.

Donations may be made to the American Heart Association, 20 Speen St., Framingham, MA 01701.

Marjorie Bissett, 82

Howard Johnson Co. Cook

A funeral service for Marjorie (Evans) Bissett, 82, of Quincy, was held yesterday (Wednesday) in Quincy Point Congregational Church.

Mrs. Bissett died Aug. 29 at Bethesda at Evanswood in Kingston after a long illness.

A former cook, she worked 15 years for the Howard Johnson Co. before her retirement 11 years ago.

Born in Dunbarton, Scotland, she graduated from Quincy High School in 1932. She had lived in Quincy since 1921.

Mrs. Bissett went on walks for the Protestant Social Service Bureau.

Wife of the late Rev. William C. Bissett, she is survived by two sons, John T. Bissett of Quincy and Norman M. Bissett of Windham, Maine; two grandchildren, and several nieces and nephews.

Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Hamel, Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St.

Friends And Colleagues Have Fond Memories

mer mayor and council colleague: "When he served on the Legislature, he was part of the driving force behind a number of major, major developments such as State Street South in North Quincy. He was a stand-up guy for the City of Quincy; you couldn't meet a more stand-up guy in the whole world.

"We played golf together, and he was a delight to be with. He was just a wonderful, wonderful man. It's such a tragic loss at such an early age."

Joseph LaRaia, Board of Assessors member, former mayor, and council colleague: "I'm saddened by his passing and I grieve for his family. He had a lot of good qualities that a lot of public officials would like to have, but sometimes seem to lack. He was very friendly, affable and outgoing."

Police Chief Francis Mullen: "He had a lot of charisma and a warm heart. He helped many people. He was very good to our department as a city councillor and as sheriff. His hand was always out there to help. When the old police station was in need of repairs or painting and money was low, he would send over some of the inmates to help do the work.

"His first love was policing. He wanted to be a Quincy police officer but through the years, the timing was never right for him."

Highlights of Marshall's successful career as sheriff include:

•Development of the Braintree Alternative Center for non-violent offenders, which opened in 1985. Inmates housed in the center participate in community service projects, saving county taxpayers millions of dollars.

•Establishment of a work release program that forces inmates to make child support payments and make restitution to victims.

•Establishment of a system of electronic monitoring in 1987 that eased jail overcrowding.

•Development of the county's first rape counseling unit and a variety of drug abuse and other programs aimed at young people. He also founded Explorer Post 850, the adult extension of the Boy Scouts of America, in 1990.

Marshall's crowning achievement, however, was the opening of the 428-bed House of Correction which replaced an aging facility on Village Avenue in Dedham. The new jail opened to praise as a facility that embraced modern theory on inmate management and rehabilitation.

Born and raised in Merrymount, Marshall was a 1956 graduate of Quincy High School. He served four years in the Marine Corps and subsequently became a reservist for four more years. He attended the University of Massachusetts and Suffolk Law University, completing several law enforcement courses.

He is survived by his wife Louise and four sons: Clifford H. Marshall III, 33; Michael, 31; Paul, 29 and Christopher, 27.

Michael F. Moriarty, 83

Turnpike Authority Night Sergeant

A funeral Mass for Michael F. "Mickey" Moriarty, 83, of Quincy, was celebrated Aug. 31 in St. Ann's Church.

Mr. Moriarty died Aug. 27 at Quincy Hospital.

A retired employee of the Massachusetts Turnpike Authority, he was a night sergeant, working in the Callahan Tunnel for 30 years. He retired 14 years ago.

He served in the Army in World War II.

Born in Boston, he lived in Quincy for the past 39 years.

He is survived by his wife, Mary K. (Moore) Moriarty; a son, Michael J. Moriarty of Florida; a daughter, Mary E. Pothier of Roslindale; a sister, Mary M. Ferrari of Colorado; and two grandsons.

Burial was in St. Joseph's Cemetery, West Roxbury.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

Donations may be made to St. Francis House, 39 Boylston St., Boston, MA 02116.

WHEN THE FLU ISN'T THE FLU

"The whole family came down with the flu last weekend – one of those 24-hour bugs." How many times have you heard a friend say something like that, or said it yourself? The ads for cold and flu remedies are everywhere at this time of year, yet what illness are people really taking about when they refer to "the flu?" Probably not the real flu, or "influenza," which is a highly contagious upper respiratory infection. Symptoms of the true flu typically include sore throat, chest congestion, fever, chills, headache, muscle aches and cough. On the other hand, the condition that has come to commonly be called the flu usually involves abdominal cramps, nausea, vomiting and diarrhea. The best way to avoid this not-really flu is to wash hands carefully and often. Bacteria and viruses picked up and swallowed are the most common culprits.

PS. There are many possible causes of stomach upset. Check with your doctor if queasiness persists for more than a day or two.

Routine good hygiene helps prevent a host of illnesses. At COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and I are dedicated to comprehensive preventative care. JOSEPH PALUZZI

Joseph Paluzzi Sgt.-Major In 9th Massachusetts Regiment

Joseph Paluzzi of Quincy is sergeant-major of the 9th Massachusetts Regiment, Continental Line, a re-enactment group portraying the American soldier of the Revolutionary War era, particularly 1779-81.

Paluzzi's role has grown from the time he first became part of the group in 1976 when it was known as the Braintree Volunteer Militia. That name stemmed from the fact that Quincy formerly was known as the North Precinct of Braintree.

Paluzzi joined the militia as a private soldier. In 1991, he became corporal of the regiment and his attention to detail subsequently has earned him the rank of sergeant-major. He runs the drills held on the weekends in the spring.

A Braintree native, he also is a member of the Braintree Historical Society.

Paluzzi attended Suffolk University School of Management and received both his B.A. and M.B.A. degrees by 1982. A finance officer in the Medical Groups Division of Pilgrim Health Care, he is married to the former Elizabeth Harding who has joined in his efforts to portray the 18th century.

The regiment is seeking new members. Those interested in joining should call Gordon Campbell at 843-2833.

BUSINESS

Bank of Braintree Holding Company Accepts USTrust Offer

Bank of Braintree officials announced that the bank's holding company, Walden Bancorp (NASDAQ: WLDN), has signed a definitive agreement under which USTrust will acquire Walden.

Shareholders of Walden will receive 1.9 shares of USTrust's stock for each share of Walden stock. At USTrust's closing stock price of $16 5/8 on Aug. 29, the transaction would be worth approximately $160 million, or $31.50 per share of Walden stock. The acquisition is expected to close during the first quarter of 1997, subject to receiving all necessary regulatory and shareholder approvals.

In December, 1995, Bank of Braintree signed with The Co-operative Bank of Concord to form a shared holding company, Walden Bancorp. As a result of this 1995 merger, Bank of Braintree has maintained and built its management staff, commercial loan teams and physically tripled in size.

Although the acquisition is expected to be completed in early 1997, USTrust anticipates that it will retain all Bank of Braintree branches, and continue its operation as a subsidiary bank until systems and procedures can be fully evaluated. In addition, USTrust wishes to maintain Bank of Braintree's commercial lending staff.

Don Olson, Bank of Braintree President and CEO said: "Community banking is a philosophy and a way of doing business, it is not a reflection of size. This transaction with USTrust reflects an overall strategy and commitment to the development and growth of community commercial banking."

The agreement is subject to the approval of the shareholders of USTrust and Walden, as well as federal and state bank regulatory authorities. In connection with the merger agreement, Walden has granted USTrust an option to purchase approximately 19.9 percent of its common stock exercisable upon the occurrence of certain events.

USTrust is a $2 billion, Boston-based bank holding company which provides a broad range of financial services to individuals and small-medium-sized companies in New England. As a result of this most recent acquisition, USTrust will become a $3.8 billion bank holding company with 65 branches in the Greater Boston area.

Bank of Braintree operates nine branch offices along the South Shore in Quincy, Braintree, Hanover, and Randolph, with a total of $530 million in assets. In addition to being recognized as a premier commercial lending institution on the South Shore, Bank of Braintree prides itself on its outstanding customer relations, as well as customer service products offered.

Walden Bancorp is the $1 billion bank holding company for Bank of Braintree and The Co-operative Bank of Concord. Both subsidiaries, which total 17 branch locations, specialize in meeting consumer and small business banking needs in their respective local markets.

Carol D'Alessandro Sales Asst. Associate At Humboldt

Carol D'Alessandro of Quincy has been named sales assistant associate at Humboldt Storage and Moving, a leading United Van Line agent for the New England region.

She will assist with qualifying prospects for the sales department and with ongoing customers contact as part of customer service.

D'Alessandro previously was employed by Quincy Savings Bank in the Operations Department as an ATM Interchange Coordinator. She is married and the mother of three children.

William Connolly Manager Of New Cambridgeport Bank

William Connolly of Quincy has been named manager of the new Cambridgeport Bank branch that recently opened at the Roche Bros. Supermarket in Quincy Point.

Prior to joining Cambridgeport, Connolly managed two supermarket branches on Cape Cod. A graduate of Boston College, he attended graduate school at the University of Massachusetts and served as a captain in the U.S. Air Force.

The new Cambridgeport branch is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The staff includes a manager and sales and service associates who handle all customer inquiries and transactions.

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS

DOCUMENT 00010
ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS

The Department of Public Works for the City of Quincy, Massachusetts will receive sealed bids for Newport Avenue Extension Roadway Improvements, Quincy, Massachusetts, until 10:00 a.m. local time on Monday, September 30, 1996, at the Office of the Commissioner of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, Massachusetts 02169, at which time and place all bids will be publicly opened and read aloud.

The work under this Contract consists of furnishing all necessary labor, material, and equipment required to reconstruct Newport Avenue Extension from Hancock Street to Squantum Street with necessary earthwork and drainage improvements in the City of Quincy.

The work includes, but is not limited to, reconstruction of existing roadways, construction of bituminous concrete pavement, excavation, removal of subgrade material and replacement with lightweight fill, removal and resetting of existing granite curb, installation of new granite curb, construction of bituminous concrete sidewalk, upgrading of traffic signals at three locations, installing and maintaining temporary traffic signals at three locations, furnishing and installing electrical conduit, cable and pull boxes and the installation of a new storm drainage system. The work also includes furnishing and installing signs and pavement markings, landscaping, the provision of safety controls and safety signing for construction operations and all other items of any character whatsoever necessary for the completion of the work, as specified or as shown.

A copy of the contract documents for the work may be obtained from the office of EARTH TECH, 196 Baker Avenue, Concord, Massachusetts 01742 upon the deposit of $35.00 in cash or check made payable to EARTH TECH. Contract documents will be mailed to prospective bidders upon receipt of a separate check for $15.00 made payable to EARTH TECH, which will not be refunded. Deposits and mail fees that are sent to EARTH TECH by mail, Federal Express, UPS or any type of carrier shall be addressed to the attention of: Debbie Yelle. Such deposits will be refunded if the contract documents are returned in good condition to the issuing office, postpaid if mailed, within thirty days after the opening of bids.

The contract documents may be examined during business hours from 8:30 a.m. to noon and from 1:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. at the following locations:

EARTH TECH
196 Baker Avenue
Concord, MA 01742

Dodge Reports
24 Hartwell Avenue
Lexington, MA 02173

Office of the Commissioner of Public Works
55 Sea Street
Quincy, Massachusetts 02169

Each bid shall be accompanied by a bid security in the amount of five percent of the value of the bid in the form described in the Information for Bidders.

A performance bond and a payment bond, each in the amount of 100 percent of the contract price, will be required in the form described in the Information for Bidders.

Bidders attention is called to the requirements as to conditions of employment to be observed, minimum state wage rates to be paid and payroll submission requirements under the contract.

No bidder may withdraw his bid within 60 days after the actual date of the bid opening.

Complete instructions for filing Bids are included in the Information for Bidders.

Equal Employment Opportunity - Workforce, Minority Business Enterprise (MBE) and Women's Business Enterprise (WBE) policies of the City of Quincy, Massachusetts are applicable to this contract. The goals for this project are:

1. The Contractor and Subcontractors shall maintain on this project a not less than 10 percent ratio of minority employee and not less than 6.9 percent ratio of women employee manhours to total manhours in each job category.
2. A minimum of ten (10) percent MBE participation and five (5) percent WBE participation by State-Certified MBE/WBEs. The bidder shall submit completed MBE;WBE forms included in the Form for General Bid. See Document 00865, Special Conditions - City of Quincy's EEO Requirements, for more information.

The BIDDER certifies he will comply with City of Quincy workforce ratios and specific affirmative action steps contained above.

Prequalification is required. Contractors intending to bid on this project must first obtain Form R109 "Requires for Proposal Forms" (for determination of Contractor's Prequalification) from the State's Contract Engineer, Massachusetts Highway Department, Room 7210, 10 Park Plaza, Boston, Massachusetts, which form must be completed and submitted to the Contract Engineer for approval. Bidders shall be required to submit an "Approval for Proposal Form" prior to obtaining an "official" bid document.

The more stringent Equal Employment Opportunity - Workforce, MBE and WBE policies of the City of Quincy shall prevail.

The City of Quincy has residency requirements for workers which provides for local preference in hiring on City supported construction projects. See Document 00858 - Residency for City Supported Construction Projects, of this project manual.

The Owner may waive any informalities or minor defects, or reject any or all bids if it is in the best interest of the City of Quincy to do so.

LEGAL NOTICE

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
SALE OF REAL ESTATE UNDER M.G.L. 183A:6

By virtue of a Judgement and an Order of the Norfolk Superior Court (Docket No. 95-02398), in favor of TRUSTEES OF THE SUNNYLEA AT QUINCY SQUARE CONDOMINIUM TRUST against BONNIE M. CROWLEY, et. al. establishing a lien pursuant to M.G.L. 183A:6 on the real estate known as UNIT 207, of the SUNNYLEA AT QUINCY SQUARE CONDOMINIUM for the purposes of satisfying such lien, the real estate is scheduled for Public Auction at 12:00 O'CLOCK NOON ON THE 18TH DAY OF SEPTEMBER, A.D. 1996, at 195 THOMAS S. BURGIN PARKWAY, QUINCY, MASSACHUSETTS. The premises to be sold are more particularly described as follows:

DESCRIPTION: "Unit 207 of the SUNNYLEA AT QUINCY SQUARE CONDOMINIUM, created by Master Deed dated November 25, 1987, and recorded with Norfolk Registry of Deeds in Book 7816, Page 571, together with an undivided 1.765% interest appertaining to said Unit in the common areas and facilities of said Condominium and subject to and with the benefit of the provisions of said Master Deed hereinabove referred to. The Post Office Address of the Condominium is 195 Thomas S. Burgin Parkway, Quincy, Norfolk County, Massachusetts 02169. The Unit is conveyed without the exclusive easement appurtenant thereto for the use of a parking space.

The said Unit is conveyed with the benefit of and subject to: (a) the provisions of Massachusetts General Laws, Chapter 183A as the same may now or hereafter be amended, (b) the Master Deed and any amendments thereto, (c) the SUNNYLEA AT QUINCY SQUARE CONDOMINIUM TRUST and amendments thereto, the by-laws and all matters of record stated or referred to in the Master Deed, as completely as if each were fully set forth herein, (d) further subject to real estate taxes attributable to said Unit for the current year as are not now due and payable.

The Unit shall be used for residential purposes only and is subject to such other restrictions on its use as are set forth in the Master Deed.

The said Grantee(s) by the acceptance and recording of this Deed agree to assume and perform all conditions of this Deed and the said Master Deed as completely as if each were fully set forth herein.

The Unit referred to above is laid out as shown on the unit plan attached to the Grantors Unit Deed, which is a copy of a portion of the Floor Plans filed with the Master Deed and to which is affixed a verified statement in the form provided in Massachusetts General Laws, Chapter 183A, Section 9, and said Unit contains the area shown on the plan recorded herewith."

For title see unit deed to Bonnie M. Crowley dated February 16, 1988, and recorded with the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 7885, Page 493.

In the event of a typographical error or omission contained in this publication, the description of the premises contained in said Unit Deed shall control.

TERMS OF SALE:

1. A non-refundable deposit payable in cash, certified or bank check in the amount of five thousand dollars ($5,000.00) for the unit shall be payable at the Auction.

2. The balance of the purchase price is to be paid within thirty (30) days of the auction.

3. An Auctioneer's Release Deed will be issued to the purchaser, upon payment of the balance of the purchase price, within thirty (30) days of the auction. The Deed shall convey the premises subject to, and with the benefit of, all restrictions, easements, improvements, outstanding tax titles, municipal or other public taxes, assessments, liens, or claims in the nature of liens, and existing encumbrances of record senior to the lien hereby being satisfied, whether or not reference to such restrictions, easements, improvements, outstanding tax titles, municipal or other public taxes, assessments, liens or claims in the nature of liens or encumbrances is made in the deed.

4. Additionally, and not by way of limitation, the sale shall be subject to and with the benefit of any and all tenants, tenancies, and occupants, if any.

5. No representation is or shall be made as to any amount of taxes due and outstanding.

6. The successful bidder shall pay the future condominium common charges commencing with the date of the auction.

7. No representation is or shall be as to any other mortgages, liens, or encumbrances of record.

8. No representation is or shall be made as to the condition of the Premises or the Condominium. The Premises shall be sold "as is".

9. Other items, if any, shall be announced at the sale.

10. The sale is subject to and in accordance with the Judgement and Order, a copy of which may be obtained from the seller's counsel, Attorney Janet Oulousian Aronson, Marcus, Goodman, Emmer & Brooks, P.C., 45 Braintree Hill Park, Suite #107, Braintree, MA 02184, (617) 843-5000.

In the County of NORFOLK

NOTICE

A petition has been presented in the above-captioned matter paying that the last will of said decedent be proved and allowed and that DEBORAH D. NEWMAN of NEW YORK in the State of NEW YORK be appointed executrix named in the will without surety on the bond.

If you desire to object to the allowance of said petition, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before 10:00 in the forenoon on Oct. 2, 1996.

In addition you should file a written statement of objections to the petition, giving the specific grounds therefore, within thirty (30) days after the return day (or such other time as the Court, on motion with notice to the petitioner, may allow) in accordance with Probate Rule 16.

Witness, DAVID H. KOPELMAN, Esquire, First Justice of said Court at Dedham, this twenty-third day of August, one thousand nine hundred and ninety-six.

INVITATION FOR BIDS

INVITATION TO BID

The Department of Public Works for the City of Quincy, Massachusetts will receive sealed bids for North Quincy Business District Improvements: Phase I until 10:00 AM local time on Tuesday, September 24, 1996 at the offices of the Commissioner of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, Massachusetts 02169, at which time and place all bids will be publicly opened and read aloud.

The work under this contract consists of selective cold planing of approximately 2500 feet of the existing pavement along Billings Road and Hancock Street, and full depth excavation of approximately 1100 linear feet along Burgess and Holmes Streets, installation of new pavement, new sidewalks, wheelchair ramps, resetting of granite curbs, adjustment of utility appurtenances, storm drainage, landscaping, installation of decorative lighting poles, installation of electrical, fire alarm, traffic interconnect systems and wire loop detectors; relocation of existing signals, posts, and installation of street signage and pavement markings.

All work shall be performed in accordance with the Massachusetts Highway Department's Standard Specifications for Highways and Bridges (1988 edition) and Construction Standards (1977 edition), all as last revised, unless specified or directed otherwise.

A work under this contract shall be completed in 120 calendar days, no inclusive or winter recess.

A non-refundable deposit of $75.00 in cash or check is required for each set of Contract Documents. Bidders requesting Contract Documents by mail shall pay an additional non-refundable amount of $15.00 per set to cover shipping and handling costs. All checks shall be made payable to the City of Quincy.

The Contract Documents may be obtained during the business hours of 8:30 AM to 4:30 PM at the Offices of the Commissioner of Public Works, Engineering Division, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, MA 02169 on or after September 9, 1996.

A pre-bid conference will be held in the offices of the Commissioner of Public Works on Thursday, September 19, 1996 @ 11:00 AM. All prospective bidders are urged to attend.

Each bid shall be accompanied by a bid security in the amount of five percent (5%) of the total value of the bid in the form described in the Instructions to Bidders. The Successful Bidder shall be required to furnish a one hundred percent (100%) Construction Performance Bond and a one hundred percent (100%) Payment and Performance Bonds from a surety company acceptable to the City. The bidding and award of this contract shall be in full compliance with Massachusetts General Law, Chapter 30, Section 39M, as last revised.

No bidder may withdraw the bid within 60 calendar days after the actual date of the opening of the bids. All prospective bidders must be certified by the Mass Highway Department. A copy of bidders per-bid qualifications certificate must be presented prior to obtaining plans and specifications.

All Federal/State and City of Quincy regulations in relation to Minimum Wage Rates, Minority Business Enterprise, Women's Business Enterprise, Minority Work Force, Equal Employment Opportunity and Employment of Quincy Residents must be complied with.

The project goals in these areas shall be as given below:

1. The Contractor shall maintain on the project a not less than ten percent (10%) ratio of minority employee manhours to total manhours in each job category.

2. A minimum of ten percent (10%) MBE participation and five percent (5%) WBE participation by state-certified MBEs and WBEs will be required and maintained on this project. The bidder shall submit complete MBE/WBE forms with the bid.

3. Compliance with the City of Quincy's Ordinance No. 532 requiring Contractors working on City-supported construction projects to hire a certain percentage of Quincy Residents is mandatory.

4. Performance with the minimum wage rates for all workers, as mandated by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Department of Labor and Industries issued in the most current "Wage Decisions" as applicable to the project area shall be enforced.

Failure to comply with these requirements may render the bid non-responsive, and thus ineligible for further consideration. No waiver for any portion of these provisions will be granted. The City reserves the right to waive any informality in or to reject any or all bids if deemed in the best interest of the City. The City does not condone submissions of unbalanced bids. Such bids may be summarily rejected.

YMCA Mountain Movers Receive 100 Bike Helmets

The South Shore YMCA Mountain Movers Program received a donation of 100 bicycle helmets recently from the Massachusetts Academy of Trial Attorneys (MATA) in cooperation with the Massachusetts Medical Society/Massachusetts Medical Society Alliance (MMS/MMSA).

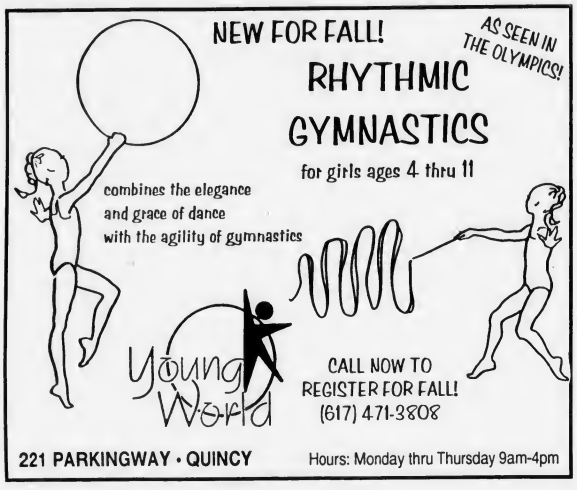
Mountain Movers is an adventure-based outdoor educational program, run by United States Cycling Federation Member and South Shore YMCA Mountain Movers Coordinator Tom Vinson. Through the sport of mountain biking, middle school students focus on team building, problem solving, environmental awareness, and self-esteem three days a week for eight weeks during the Fall and Spring.

The most recent session ran from April to June in collaboration with Atlantic Middle School in Quincy.

South Shore YMCA Executive Director Mary Moore, Development Director June Blair and Community Development Director Jon Simons attended the donation event. Also in attendance were MATA President Kathleen O'Donnell, Atty. Michael Rezendes, Atty. Maryellen Cronin, Atty. Martha Howe and MMS/MMSA member Bonnie LiVoie.

During the event, Mountain Mover Matthew Hodges, age 11, from Quincy, won a gift certificate for a new mountain bike from MATA and MMS/MMSA.

Mountain Movers bike in locations such as Wampatuck State Park in Hingham, Blue Hills in Canton, and Foxboro.



Prostate Screenings To Be Held At Quincy Hospital

"They treated me like I was buying a new Saturn." —Lillian L. Wiley

We treat used car customers the same way that we treat new car customers: Differently. Differently from other car dealers, that is. Because no matter what car you're looking for, we're looking to make you happy. We'll treat you respectfully and honestly. And if you buy a car from us (new or used), we'll cheer and take a picture. Sort of equal opportunity embarrassment. Hope to see you soon.

Will Ask Council For $10,000

Sheets Eyes Radar To Curb Speeding

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Mayor James Sheets is planning to request a $10,000 appropriation from the City Council to purchase a radar device designed to crack down on speeding motorists.

Sheets said that in the wake of a number of pedestrian accidents that have occurred in the city during the last couple of years, appropriating the money from Quincy's free cash (cash reserve) account is the right thing to do.

"One of the things we're trying to do is come up with ways to slow down the speed of cars," said Sheets, who added that Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi, chairman of the City Council Public Safety Committee, already has expressed support of the appropriation. "You can't have a patrolman everywhere."

Sheets said the device he is eyeing is the Speed Monitoring Awareness Radar Trailer (SMART) made by Kansas-based Kustom Signals Inc. The unit displays the speeds of oncoming vehicles on a 12-inch tall digital display that can be seen from up to 100 yards away.

"That way, someone who is speeding is instantly made aware that he or she is breaking the law," the mayor said.

Sheets said Chapter 30B, the state law governing the bidding of contracts, may require the city to send out a request for proposals, or R.F.P., to other companies that sell such devices. If that is the case, he said, the city will try to get the best deal possible, although he added that he expects the price to remain in the $10,000 range.

Since such devices are portable, Sheets added, the unit eventually purchased will be used on Dimmock Street, Quincy Avenue, Sea Street, Standish Avenue and "any other street where we've had chronic problems with speeding."

The police department will monitor the effectiveness of the device based on accident statistics and feedback from neighborhood residents. If it is deemed effective, other units will be purchased, Sheets said.

City Begins Fiscal Year With $4.2M Surplus

The city has begun Fiscal Year 1997 with a cash reserve or "free cash" surplus of $4,214,245, according to Mayor James Sheets.

FY97, which officially began July 1, marks the second consecutive time the city has begun the fiscal year with a surplus, the mayor noted.

"For the second year in a row, we have met our projected receipts and actually collected in excess of what we projected," he said.

Sheets said last year, the city took in about 106 percent of what it had estimated in the collection of receipts including excise taxes, water and sewer bills, licenses and permits, parking violations, and more.

Also contributing to the $4.2 million surplus figure were the individual surpluses in various city departments, he added.

Sheets, who noted that the city spent $1.7 million in free cash on snow and ice removal last winter, said he has no major plans at the moment for the surplus funds.

"Free cash is something you have to spend very carefully, very thoughtfully," he said.

The mayor added, however, that he does plan to spend $75,000 for new trees to be planted in each of the city's six wards and about $10,000 on a radar machine designed to encourage motorists to obey the speed limit.

Sheets said the free cash will not affect the city's new property tax rates, which have yet to be announced. That is because free cash "is not a

Forecast : 'Light And Early'

22% Turnout Seen For Primaries Tuesday

BY HENRY BOSWORTH

The state primaries next Tuesday are expected to be a "light and early" election day here in Quincy.

City Clerk Joseph Shea is forecasting "about a 22 percent" turnout of the city's 48,489 registered voters.

And with the city's new optical scan voting machines and computer counters making their debut, he hopes to have the results all wrapped up by "about 9:15" Tuesday night.

In the system, instead of punching cards, voters simply connect the name of a candidate with the elective office by pen.

The light vote prediction is based on the fact there are only three contests and only two Quincy candidates involved.

There are no state senate and state representative fights which usually bring out voters locally.

If Shea's turnout forecast is correct, it will mean 10,668 voters will go to the polls while 37,821 will stay home.

Sample Ballots Page 14

The three contests are for: the 10th Congressional seat Gerry Studds is leaving, Norfolk County treasurer and the Governor Councillor's post in the Fourth District which includes Quincy but has little local interest.

Most of the interest for those turning out will be in the Congressional and county treasurer nomination races.

Four Democrats and three Republicans are in the Congressional field.

Dist. Atty. William D. Delahunt of Quincy, Philip W. Johnston of Marshfield, former state representative and former director of Health and Human Resources; Ian A. Bowles of Falmouth and Walter S. Murray of Hull seek the Democratic nomination.

Steve Pappas of Weymouth, Francis W. Sargent, Jr. of Orleans, son of the former governor and Edward B. Teague, state representative are chasing the Republican nomination.

Four Democrats are running for county treasurer: Quincy City Councillor Timothy P. Cahill, Gary D. Jones, former state representative from Brookline; Braintree Town Treasurer Michael J. Joyce and John D. Vozzela, Walpole town meeting member.

The winner will meet Republican incumbent Robert D. Hall, Jr. of Needham in November. Hall has no opposition in the primary.

Coalition To Help Place Those With AIDS In Condo Units

The Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition (QISC), which operates Father Bill's Place, the city's homeless shelter, is making plans to assist three Quincy residents who have AIDS.

Mayor James Sheets said the QISC is applying for a federal grant that will enable the coalition to manage three condominium units, one for each resident.

Sheets said he supports the effort, saying the QISC will be better able to help the AIDS patients outside of the homeless shelter because they require special care.

"We do have a population who obviously need those services," he said. "It certainly is a problem that every city and town has."

Sheets added that he will support QISC efforts to expand the program if the need arises.

Fr. William McCarthy, retired pastor of St. John the Baptist Church in Quincy Center for whom Father Bill's Place is named, said the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) would pay for the condominiums, which would cost and between $40,000 and $70,000 per unit.

The units, which would be located at three as-yet undetermined locations throughout the city, are needed, according to Fr. McCarthy.

"We are not able to supply sufficient support services (for AIDS patients) at the shelter," he said.

Fr. McCarthy added that there are about 180 people living with AIDS (Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome) in the Quincy and Weymouth areas, the majority of them in the city. While helping only three people may seem to be a relatively small effort, he added, it is a step in the right direction.

"It's a start," he said.

Father Bill's Shelter Not Involved With Phone Solicitors

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The head of the city's homeless shelter is cautioning Quincy residents about a group using phone solicitation in the shelter's name.

Joseph Finn, head of the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition (QISC) which operates Father Bill's Place, said the group may be using two names: Veterans For The Homeless and Benefit Programs of New England.

"We recently received calls from a number of people saying this group has been selling trash bags and things like that in our name," said Finn. "We have not authorized them to do any telemarketing for us, nor have we received any funds from them. QISC has never done any telemarketing in the past, and we have no plans to do so in the future.

"I feel a certain sense of urgency," he added. "They're not raising money for us, and we are just concerned that people may be confused."

Finn said the timing of the problem is particularly awkward for the QISC, which is gearing up for a legitimate fund-raiser: its Food Fest scheduled for Wednesday, Sept. 25 from 6 to 9 p.m. at Presidents Place in Quincy Center.

He also noted that the sheltering coalition has made genuine efforts to help homeless veterans, including the planned opening of a building on Burgin Parkway for that purpose. The facility was acquired by Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services and will be operated by the QISC, he said.

Finn said anyone interested in confirming the legitimacy of an organization using phone solicitation in the name of a charity should contact the charity directly or call the state attorney general's office at 727-2200 and ask for public charities.

Stop & Shop Gets Beer-Wine License On 3-2 Board Vote

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

On a 3-to-2 vote Tuesday, the Quincy License Board granted a license to Stop & Shop, 65 Newport Ave. to sell beer and wine.

The approval came amidst the protest of four ward councillors, and a reported more than 1,000 letters and phone calls from the Montcalir area oopposing the license.

Chairman Joseph Shea and building inspector Matt Mulvey voted against the proposal.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman made the motion to grant the license, seconded by Police Chief Francis Mullen. Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue joined them in favor of the license.

All three board members voting in favor cited the "state of the art" sophisticated security measures taken by Stop & Shop. Both Mullen and Gallahue visited the Malden Stop & Shop store unannounced and praised the security system noting that no blaring signs depicting the sale of alcohol were in view. Mullen said he was "impressed with the the monitors and cameras" displayed throughout the store.

Gorman said he felt as though the ability to have sophisticated security measures are much greater in a large area rather than in a small liquor stores where the "little guy" can't afford to do. He cited a case in point regarding his father-in-law who once owned a liquor store in the 70's. and was beaten and robbed. Gorman said the chances of that happening in a store like the Stop & Shop were much less than in a small package store.

Charles Garchinski, loss prevention manager for the Stop & Shop told the board that "full security process is in place" and cited secured gates from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m., cash registers equipped to scan beer and wine, secret codes, and store detectives on duty at all times.

Ward 3 Councillor Pat McDermott told the board that there were "nine liquor stores within a mile" of the new store and said "the sale of beer and wine should be limited to a liquor store and does not belong in supermarkets". He said he had received more than 1,000 letters, phone calls opposing the license. McDermott related that when the request for a new supermarket was first proposed, there was no mention of a beer and wine license. However, David Mahoney, attorney representing Stop & Shop said w;hen they were asked if down the road they would request a beer and wine license, the answer was in the affirmative. Mahoney cited the Wollaston Market and Star Market, Osco, who both have beer and wine licenses and have already "opened the flood gates."

Supporting McDermott was Ward 5 Councillor Steven Durkin, Ward 4 Councillor Mike D'Amico, and Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers. All three expressed concern of the "Domino" effect on other markets wanting a beer and wine license. Also a "saturation" point pertaining to the amount of liquor stores in the area.

Dorothy Kelly, secretary to the Quincy and Wollaston Park Association asked to board to deny the license and told them they would be opening a "Pandora's box".

QUINCY POLICE OFFICER Brian Tobin (right) recently received a City Council commendation for his part in helping to save a 7-month-old boy from a burning West Quincy building in July. Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin presents the commendation to Tobin as Council President Peter Kolson looks on.

Police Dept. Equipped With New Radios

The Quincy Police Department recently issued new radios to all of its members.

Police Chief Francis Mullen said the new state-of-the-art radio, the funding for which was approved by the City Council, have several features the older radios lacked. Among them are the ability to communicate cruiser to cruiser--rather than only through a dispatcher--and the ability to scan activity in surrounding communities.

"They're a great tool for the officers on the street," said Mullen. "We bought more than 200 radios. Everyone in the department has one."

The chief also noted that an added benefit is that a number of the older radios were reissued to the school traffic supervisors.

"Now we will have 40 additional pairs of eyes and ears on Quincy streets to report emergencies, crimes in progress, or other suspicious activities," he said.

Previously, Mullen explained, the school traffic supervisors would have to leave their posts to report emergencies and suspicious activities. They will now have instant contact with the police dispatcher and all officers patrolling the area.

City Council President Peter Kolson, who first suggested the traffic supervisors should be equipped with radios three years ago, said he is pleased the event has finally come to pass.

"I was really surprised when I first heard they don't have radios," said Kolson. "They get into some pretty hairy situations, traffic accidents and things like that. Now they have instant communications. This is something I'm very glad has happened, and something I'm very proud to have been a part of."

Concourse Committee Meeting Sept. 19

The Citizens Advisory Committee (CAC) for the planned $8.6 million Quincy Center Concourse will meet Thursday, Sept. 19 at 3:15 p.m. in the second floor Conference Room at City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Since August 1994, the 10-member, non-paid committee has conducted monthly meetings, public forums and discussion with senior citizens and neighborhood groups, made on-site inspections of suggested alternative routes, and examined traffic reports, engineering documents and more from federal and state government agencies.

Mayor James Sheets has given the CAC the task of developing a public consensus and arriving at conclusions regarding the location and pedestrian safety aspects of the concourse, which will link Hancock St. and McGrath Highway.

Officials recently announced that the project's first phase will begin next spring. CAC Chairman David Ezickson, however, said other concourse-related issues are still under discussion.

CAC meetings are open to the public.

Foundation For Excellence Brunch Sept. 29

The Quincy Foundation for Excellence in Education brunch, originally scheduled on Sept. 8, will be held Sunday, Sept. 29, at the Adams Inn, 29 Hancock St., at 11 a.m.

Dr. Jeremiah Ryan, president of Quincy College, will be guest speaker.

The non profit foundation, which has been in existence for six years, will award nine grants to Quincy public school teachers. Tickets are $25 per person and may be ordered through Sharon Jarvic at 7704185 or Judy Brams 786-1884.

STRESS AND THE HEALING PROCESS

Feeling a little stressed out lately? Is that scraping noise the sound of your fingernails slipping down the chalkboard of life? Welcome to the high-pressured, fast-paced real world of the 90's! It's a well-accepted bit of folk wisdom that stress can lower resistance to infections and disease. When your physical and mental reserves are running on empty, you can bet that a bout with a cold or flu isn't far behind. There may be yet another down side to stress, though. Researchers are finding that stress can also slow the body's ability to heal itself. In one recent study, it took patients with heavy, chronic levels of stress about nine days longer than lower-stressed individuals for wounds to heal. Blood tests revealed that high-stress patients had significantly lower levels of interleukin-1, a substance that regulates inflammation.

P.S. Scheduling elective surgery for a time when you are under the least stress may take for a more relaxed–and faster healing!–experience.
